The part of Mr. Pim will be played by William Wimer; that of George and Olivia Warden, the English couple, by Alfred Gemmell and Dorothy Peoples.

The Y.M.-Y.W. Barn Dance has been postponed from March 11 to March 18. The night of the dance ten couples from Norristown will journey to the Ursinus campus in order to instruct the students in the various dances and steps that were popular in the gay nineties.

The Y's have already sponsored several trips to Norristown to learn some of the dances. The same orchestra that plays for the Norristown Y barn dances will be employed by the Ursinus organizations.

Miss Dorothea McCorkle '39, chairman of the Y activities committee, stated that the gym will be decorated in an appropriate manner. The price of admission will be fifteen cents per person.

An article in a recent issue of the Norristown Times-Herald stated that the Ursinus students are ceasing to be disciples of the "Big Apple" and its relatives, and instead are turning to the more dignified and graceful old-fashioned dances.

Again Ursinus College received national publicity last Saturday evening when Apes' pledge Fred Weiland '41, appeared on a question and answer program, "Uncle Jim's Question Bee," over an NBC nation-wide hook-up, and walked off with first prize of $25, duplicating the feat of Mark Alspach '40, last year over the same program for the same fraternity. Weiland had a perfect score in a total of five questions, in spite of the fact that he was apparently undecided as to the answer at times.

Weiland, accompanied by Nick Barry '41, left the campus on Friday morning for New York as a part of the initiation into the Alpha Phi Epsilon fraternity, and returned to Ursinus early Sunday morning.

Harmony Between Races Urged By Hill

Dire Conditions Result From Inability To 'Get On'

By David Hartman

Yesterday afternoon in Bomberger Chapel, Dr. Leslie Pinckney Hill, prominent negro educator spoke at the fourth Ursinus College Forum of the season. Dr. Hill, a graduate of Harvard and now president of the Cheyney Teacher's College was introduced by his friend, Dr. J. Lynn Barnard of the College History-Social Science department.

After extending to all a cordial invitation to visit the Cheyney School, Dr. Hill, in clear, cultured tones, expounded his thesis on "Getting on Together."

He started by presenting a far from optimistic universal outlook, for, "the world is now faced with stupendous problems," he said. "There has been a breakdown of the ideals which we cherish. Our institutions are trembling; many have been tottering; and some even are in complete collapse. Our mental and moral condition brings the threat of universal war."

He denounced war as being the sum-total of the iniquities known to man, and the least to be approved, and as the one enormous crime which the conscience of man must condemn.

Cheyney Head Deplores Darning Of Blacks

The fundamental cause for these dire conditions, according to Dr. Hill, is the inability of the inhabitants of the world to live together harmoniously. Although great progress has been made in the field of economics and the sciences, insufficient use has been made of the acquired knowledge. "Economic doctors have told the world what is wrong, but nobody pays any attention to them." An example of this he pointed out to be the tariff, the "prohibition of the free exchange of goods of life, and an iniquitous bloc with which economists are in universal disagreement."

In speaking of problems more pertinent to his own race, Dr. Hill condemned caustically the methods

Too Much Education?

There is something not all right with the world in the recommendation not long ago of Harvard's President Conant to the University Board of Overseers. He termed "desirable" a reduction in the number of students attending universities in this country, and he strongly advocated a continuance of Harvard's practice of limiting the size of its entering classes.

Now Harvard itself can afford to be "choosy", and it has a right to be selective if it wants to be. But when educator James Bryant Conant says that there is "no pressing need" for a larger annual supply of graduates of liberal arts colleges and graduate schools in this country, what does it all mean?

Does it mean that there is a superfluity of erudition and enlightenment in this country? Does it mean that there can be too many educated people in this country? Does it mean that it is better to keep the ditch-digger in the ditch and the factory worker in the factory? Must we then keep a close check upon the population that it does not learn too much?

There is something wrong with the structure of society if this be the case. We dare not turn out too many teachers and too many lawyers, because that will glut the market. Harvard's President must be a disciple of the nation's President. It is the same economic philosophy. He would plow under the teachers, and restrict the raising of lawyers. Scarcity is the solution to want, and too much education is too much of a good thing! But can there be too much of a good thing?

If Dr. Conant is right, then society must reconstruct its definition of the purpose of education. Education must become an end in itself, instead of a means to an end. Education must go on, not to make more educated teachers and lawyers, but to make more educated people. The occupational scale will readjust itself. But at all costs, we must not stop education because we have enough teachers and lawyers. We must rather give the ditch-digger the chance to enjoy Kant, and we must let the factory worker be able to appreciate da Vinci.

Vulgarly Called Beefing

It begins with breakfast, which is always too early. The fruit is tasteless, the milk sour, and the toast cold. Then we go to classes where the professor either talks too fast or too slowly and asks too many questions or none at all. He is sure to be a "drip" and is always followed by another who is worse.

We never get service in the library, and, in case the place is not freezing, it's much too warm to study.

Of course there's no variety in lunch. I hate carrots and despise plums. The food is so starchy, and the soup looks terrible. I can't go for a hike this afternoon because those profs all think I'm only taking one course, and they work me accordingly. I can't sleep at night because the walls are too thin in this ancient dormitory and you hear every little sound. We never have any hot water, either.

Of course we'll lose the game! Our teams never win! And just look, here we've come to another ho-hum weekend. Nothing to do at all! This school certainly ought to do something about it.

No wonder that part of the price of a higher education is a wrinkled forehead, a brow wrinkled by complaining and not by study. It is a strange commentary on the futility of a college education that six young people in the course of a dinner can find no more interesting topic of conversation than the toughness of the meat. It is strange that the same man who will do or die for dear old Ursinus on the football field will tear the College to pieces that same evening, merely to hear the laughter of his friends. It is strangest of all that most of the people who complain the most are the ones who keep coming back for four years of meals which make them sick and professors from whom they learn nothing.

In other words, it seems that the average college student, at least as he is represented at Ursinus, is a professional kicker. He's rather well content, on the whole, but he must have something to say, so he fusses. He picks apart so many little things that one wonders if he will ever again be able to see anything without a defect in it.

We have no quarrel with the helpful critic. Of course, Ursinus is far from perfect. The College can only grow by becoming aware of its imperfections and then eliminating them. It is true that many defects can only be seen by the students themselves. It's their job to work for the improvement of their school, and some students are really trying to do that job. As for the rest—the fuss-fuss-fussers—they're helping no one, and they never will.

THE MAIL BOX

That Science Question Is Here Again

To the Editor:

There are two obvious faults in our present Introduction to Science course, which, if corrected should eliminate the problems now confronting us.

The first fault lies in the fact that the class is entirely too large. Wouldn't it be more advantageous to have one day of group work when slides, experiments, or other general material could be presented and one day of class work? More can be accomplished in the way of creating interest with small groups, rather than larger ones, and with a subject such as Science, this is very important. Take our compulsory History course, for example; it is based on this same principle, and cannot be called anything but successful.

Why shouldn't someone who has had four years of science in high school resent taking the fundamentals in college? This situation could be avoided as it has been in the Mathematics department. Those students offering a certain number of science credits upon entering college should not be obliged to suffer any more, unless they so desire.

These seem to me to be the most conspicuous points of criticism of this Introduction to Science course and once corrected, the purpose of this course, which is to make the student feel that he has gained an indispensable part of his education, will be accomplished.

Winifred Doolan '41.

Yahraes Refutes Pro-Science Letter

To the Editor:

Last week Miss Shisler urged that each student "select the science which most interests him and let him devote a whole year to it." Therefore, the sunny days of next September will no doubt have for her a happy surprise . . . for she is destined to find that a science requirement to that exact end has been in effect for years.

Aside from the above-mentioned sincerely offered but misapplied letter, there remains the question "Shall B. A. students have Introduction to Science, or an alternative?"

Any alternative, I think, cannot at the present time be a second compulsory lab course, for two reasons.

First, the average B. A. undergraduate even now makes his choice of a science course on reasons most of which are irrelevant to the course's true nature. Biology is chosen because "once you memorize all the terms and stuff, it isn't so bad". Or chemistry is elected because "I had it in high school".

Second, the variant needs of B. A. and B. S. students make their commingling in one class unwise. From personal experience, I recall that in at least one science lab course, only the patient tolerance of the instructor bridged the gap between general-information requirements for the B. A. students on the one hand, and the more professional regalia that was felt to be necessary for the B. S. students' foundation training on the other.

Can we assume that the average arts student is able or willing to accept two full-time laboratory courses? And can we expand our facilities immediately to differentiate between pre-professional B. S. courses and "end-result" B. A. courses?

If not, there remains only the "Intro" course, certain defects and possibilities of which I would like to indicate in a third and final communication.

Richard Yahraes '38.

At the Lorelei she showed 'em she was in earnest, so now, for the Soph Hop, Laura says the collum can form on the right.

Intramural Boxing and Wrestling Carnival To Be Staged April 4-6

The third annual Ursinus Intramural Boxing and Wrestling Carnival, sponsored in the spring of each year by the Physical Education department, will be held from Monday, April 4, to Wednesday, April 6, in the Thompson-Gay Gymnasium, it was announced by Ray Gurzynski '39, Physical Education Club member in charge of the show.

Training period for the Carnival started last week for the candidates for the annual awards given to the boxing and wrestling champions of the College. The quarter and semi-finals will be held Monday and Tuesday, with the climaxing finals set for Wednesday, April 6. There will be eight classes in each division, similar to the classes in intercollegiate wrestling and boxing.

According to rules set down by the Intramural Council, each man must have at least ten training periods previous to entering into the eliminations. These workouts are being conducted daily under the supervision of Charley Shafer '36, of the Physical Education Department, and Ray Gurzynski '39, for wrestlers and boxers respectively. Both trainers report progress with their boys and predict a close tournament this year. Seconds are also attending the boys in preparation for the battles and will be definite aides to the gladiators.

A new statute set down by the Intramural moguls states that only one man shall represent a single dormitory in any one class of boxing or wrestling. This will necessitate eliminations within the dorms in the event that any one weight class has more than one candidate. This elimination will be conducted by the dormitory manager in each case.

Any male student at Ursinus is eligible to compete in the tournament provided that he has not participated in any Varsity or Junior Varsity meet, or that he has never wrestled or boxed professionally. In addition, the entrant must undergo a ten-day training period for either of the two fields of competition, or a fifteen day period for both wrestling and boxing.

Contestants will compete for individual awards in each class, and the dormitories will receive a graduated scale of points, from ten for first place to one for seventh place. These points will go toward the intramural trophy, awarded each year to the dormitory attaining the greatest success in intramural athletics.

MAPLES, SHREINER, DAY TIE FOR TOP IN GIRLS' LOOP

Twelve games have been played in the last two weeks in the girls' intramural basketball league, but no team as yet has attained exclusive top honors. Maples, Shreiner, and the Day Study are all tie for first place.

The results of the games are as follows:

- Shreiner, 33; 612, 2.
- Clamer, 15; Sprankle, 1.
- Glenwood, 11; Lynnwood, 1.
- Shreiner, 16; Glenwood, 4.
- Day, 14; Clamer, 4.

Ten Battery Candidates Answer Jing's Call

Captain Zoll And Swift To Form Mound Nucleus

Six pitchers and four catchers answered Coach Russell C. "Jing" Johnson's first call for battery candidates last week. Of these, three, including Capt. Harry Zoll, are holdovers from last year's varsity squad, and three are veterans of the 1937 freshman outfit.

When questioned about the possibilities of these battery candidates, "Jing" would not commit himself or give any hint as to the strength of this year's staff.

The popular Ursinus baseball chief said that he would not make a statement about the squad, but would wait until next week before he made any announcement concerning the ability of the Grizzly twirlers and catchers. However, it is assumed that the pitching staff will be centered around Captain Harry Zoll and Fred Swift. These two fingers have had very much experience and will undoubtedly be the first two starting hurlers. It is not known whether Alfred Gemmell will be on the mound this year or not. Gemmell, suffering from a diabetic condition will greatly strengthen the Bear squad if he is able to play. The diminutive Robley Ehret who saw action last season as a relief hurler, is another promising possibility. Irvin Toren, William "Tony" Williams, and Harry Showalter are the other pitching candidates. Toren and Williams were on last years frosh squad, and Showalter is the only yearling who has reported for duty.

In the catching department, Harry Atkinson will probably be the starter, although Frank Meade will see plenty of action. Atkinson was on last years Frosh squad, but Meade did not play. Two freshmen aspirants, Harry Irwin and David Eavenson also reported.

A call for the candidates for the other positions on the squad will be made shortly, in order to prepare for the opening encounter, on Thursday, April 7, with Villanova, at home.

PING PONG TOURNAMENT

Entries for the men's and women's ping pong tournament will close on Saturday, March 12. Those interested must sign up in "Rec" Center before that date.

Prizes will be awarded for both men and women and will be on display in the trophy case of the Science Building. Finals of the tournament will be held in the gymnasium on intramural night, April 6.

Cagers End Season With 39-29 Win From Drexel

Final Scoring Spurt Gives Bears League's Fifth Place

By Stan Weikel

Captain Jus Bodley and his crew of in-and-outers closed their season with nine minutes of sensational basketball on Wednesday night in the Thompson-Gay gymnasium, and thereby finished in fine style with a 39-29 victory over the tail-end Drexel Dragons.

The game started out very slowly, with both teams showing a ragged attack. Abe Chern kept the Grizzlies in front for most of the first half with his one-handed stabs.

The Dragons went ahead in the final minutes of the half, 16-15, after trailing 8-3 and 11-6, but the Bears pulled through to an 18-16 lead at the half. Three times the score was deadlocked in the closely-contested first half.

The visitors took a four-point lead as the first eleven minutes of the final period ticked away. And then the Grizzlies broke loose with the best scoring attack seen in four years at Ursinus.

Shots dropped from all angles as each man lost himself in splendid team-play. The result? Twenty points recorded in approximately seven minutes of torrid action.

Keehn, Chern, and Bodley led the offense with 11, 10, and 10 counters. Lignelli topped the opposition with 9.

It was the sixth win for the Bears in their fourteen-game schedule and assures them of fifth place in the league.

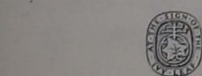

Jus Bodley climaxed three seasons of varsity play at Ursinus with a remarkable exhibition of floor work, guarding, shooting, and court generalship.

Bennett, visiting forward, required several stitches in his tongue following a crash with Chern in a wild scramble for the ball.

Grapplers Place Second In Middle Atlantics As Hayashi, Astheimer, Steinmetz Win

After a mediocre mat season in which they lost all five of their dual meets, the Grizzly Grapplers snapped out of it at Gettysburg, Saturday, when they captured second place in the Middle Atlantics wrestling tournament, which brings together annually the wrestling teams of Gettysburg, Lafayette, Haverford, and Ursinus.

Led by Captain Hayashi, Steinmetz, Astheimer, Grove, Meklos, and Knoll, Ursinus captured first place in the 118, 165, and 175 pound classes, second place in the 145, and third place in the 155 and heavy-weight classes for a total of 23 points. Gettysburg snared top honors with three firsts, three seconds, and one third for a total of 35 points. Lafayette was third with 22, and Haverford last with 12.

Co-ed Basketeers Swamp Drexel, As Bunny Harshaw Gets 29

On Tuesday the Ursinus co-ed basketballers overwhelmed the Drexel Dragonettes by the score of 45-12. From start to finish the local lassies maintained the lead easily over their less experienced opponents, a fact which made the game a rather unexciting one to watch. It was the fourth win of the season for Eleanor Snell's Bear cagers, against two defeats and a tie.

The Ursinus team was superior to the Dragonettes, showing faster passing and more accurate shooting. "Bunny" Harshaw was high scorer with 29 points; "Squeaky" Von Kleeck had 16.

The girls return to action twice this week, meeting Penn on Tuesday and Mount St. Joseph's on Saturday. Both games are away.

Frosh Close Disastrous Season With 42-39 Loss To Drexel

Don Kellett's Ursinus Frosh ended their season by losing the 13th game, this time a thriller to the Drexel Dragons, 42-39, in the Drexel-varsity preliminary last Wednesday.

Of 14 games the freshmen could pull through but once, defeating Albright, 36-26.

Fetterman kept the crowd going with six beautiful field goals; he added two fouls to make his total of 14.

Etsweiler, Barris, and Thompson collected 16 field goals between them for the visiting frosh.

The Cublets also lost to Conshohocken Hi-Club, 44-31, at Conshohocken on Monday night. Leading in the first quarter, the Bears were soon overtaken by a more experienced and aggressive ball club.

Ursinus' closest competitor in the meet was Lafayette with one less point, and thereby hangs a tale. For had it not been for the fact that a G-burg man outpointed a Lafayette man in the last match of the evening, a consolation match, the Leopards would have scored three points boosting their total to 25 and second place honors.

The disappointment of the evening for the Bears was George Meklos' dethronement in the 155 pound class. Last year's champion in that division, George succumbed to Doolittle of Lafayette and Evert of Haverford after winning his opening match against Miller of G-burg, giving him third place.

Captain Tay Hayashi was crowned champion of the 118 pound class when he beat Williamson of Lafayette and Manges of Gettysburg on decision.

Charlie Steinmetz was the winner and new champion of the 165 pound division when he won from Bailey of Haverford and Perry of Lafayette by decision.

The other Grizzly champion and new title-holder is Gordon Astheimer, who received the nod over Lafayette's Agard and then pinned Miller of G-burg. Astheimer had previously been beaten by Agard.

of teaching the races of man employed by most grade school geography texts. Schools in America for generations have taught that the real man is the white man, while the creature nearest to no man is the black man.

Social scientists have concluded that all men fundamentally are equal and that there is neither a superior race nor an inferior one. "When, by a liberal attitude, we acknowledge this equality, we can get on together and have peace in the world," concluded Dr. Hill.

Dr. Barnard, chairman of the Forum, conducted the questioning. In the discussion which followed, Dr. Hill pointed out the rapid progress his race is making. At one time 98 percent of the black race was composed of illiterates. Today only about 20 percent of the race can neither read nor write. This progress has been made in a shorter time against greater odds than any other race of which we have records.

The next meeting of the forum, as announced by Mabel Ditter '39, secretary of the forum committee, will be held on April 6 when Dr. Jesse Holmes of Swarthmore College will speak on "Our Democracy; Its Strength and Weakness."
