Overview

- (1) General description of the project
 - (1) The MIMY consortium
 - (2) The concept of liquid integration and main research question
 - (3) Structure and goals
- (2) Methodology & research design
 - (1) Multilevel approach
 - (2) Step by step design & main methodologies
 - (3) Focus - Empirical studies of qualitative research
- (3) Conclusions

1.1 The MIMY Consortium

(1.2) The concept of liquid integration and main research question

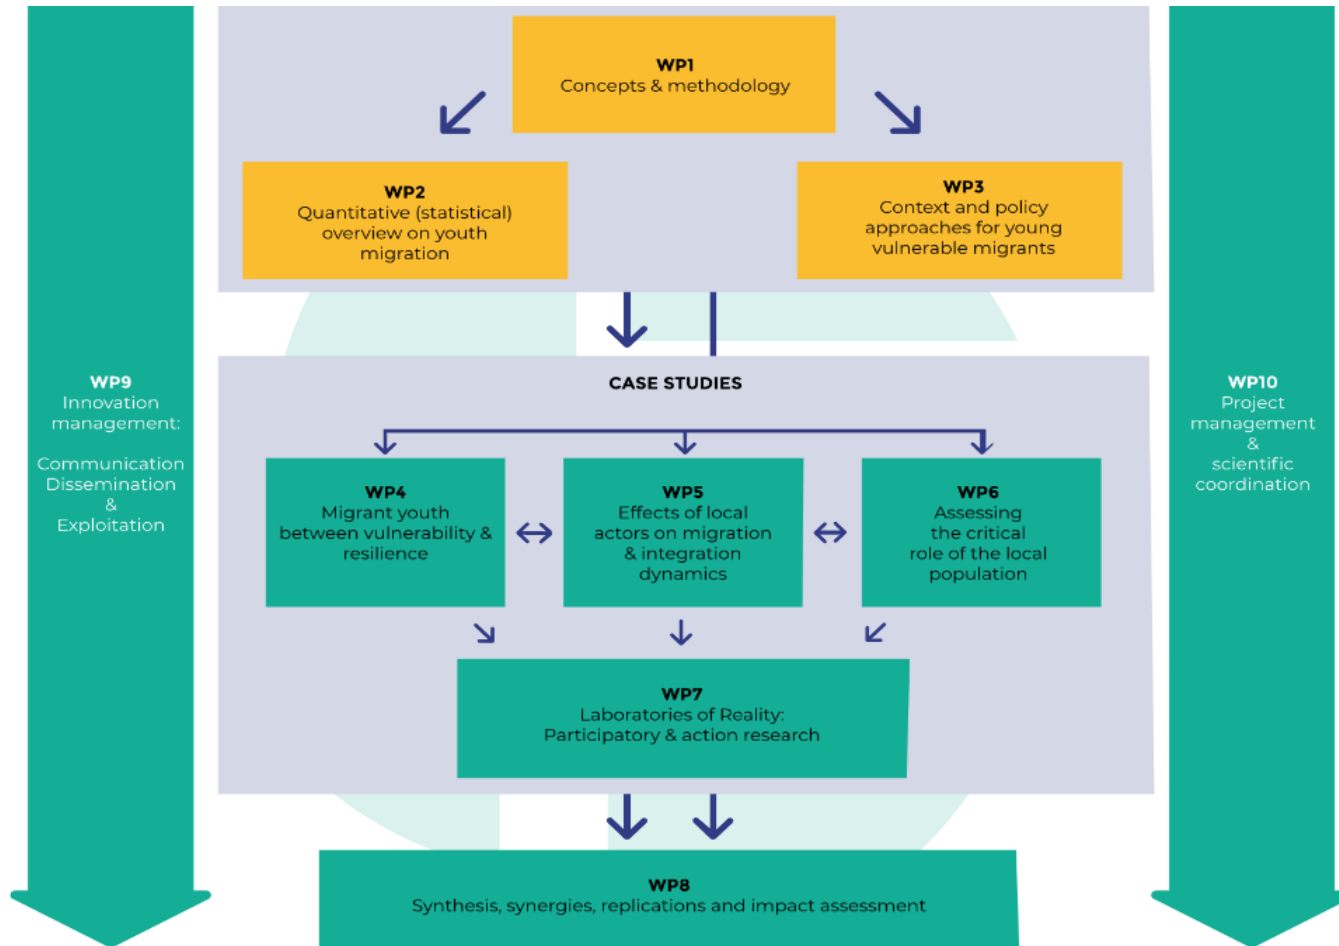

Liquid integration

A dynamic, open-ended process of change and adaptation during the life-course depending on:

- stability, order and change of institutional and structural constraints
- the life-long individual adjustment

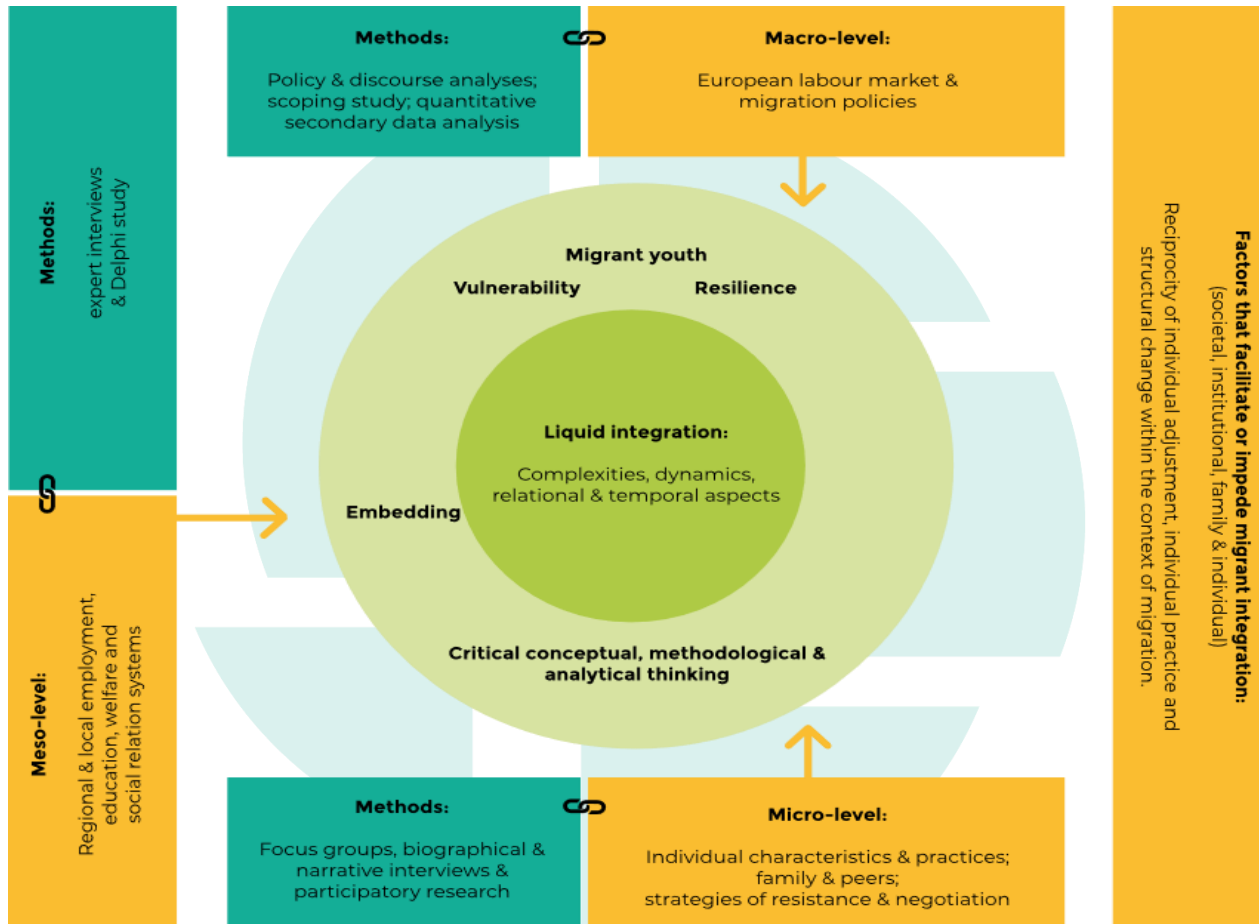

How to support the liquid integration processes of young migrants in vulnerable conditions in Europe to increase social and economic benefits of and for migrants?

(1.3) Structure and goals

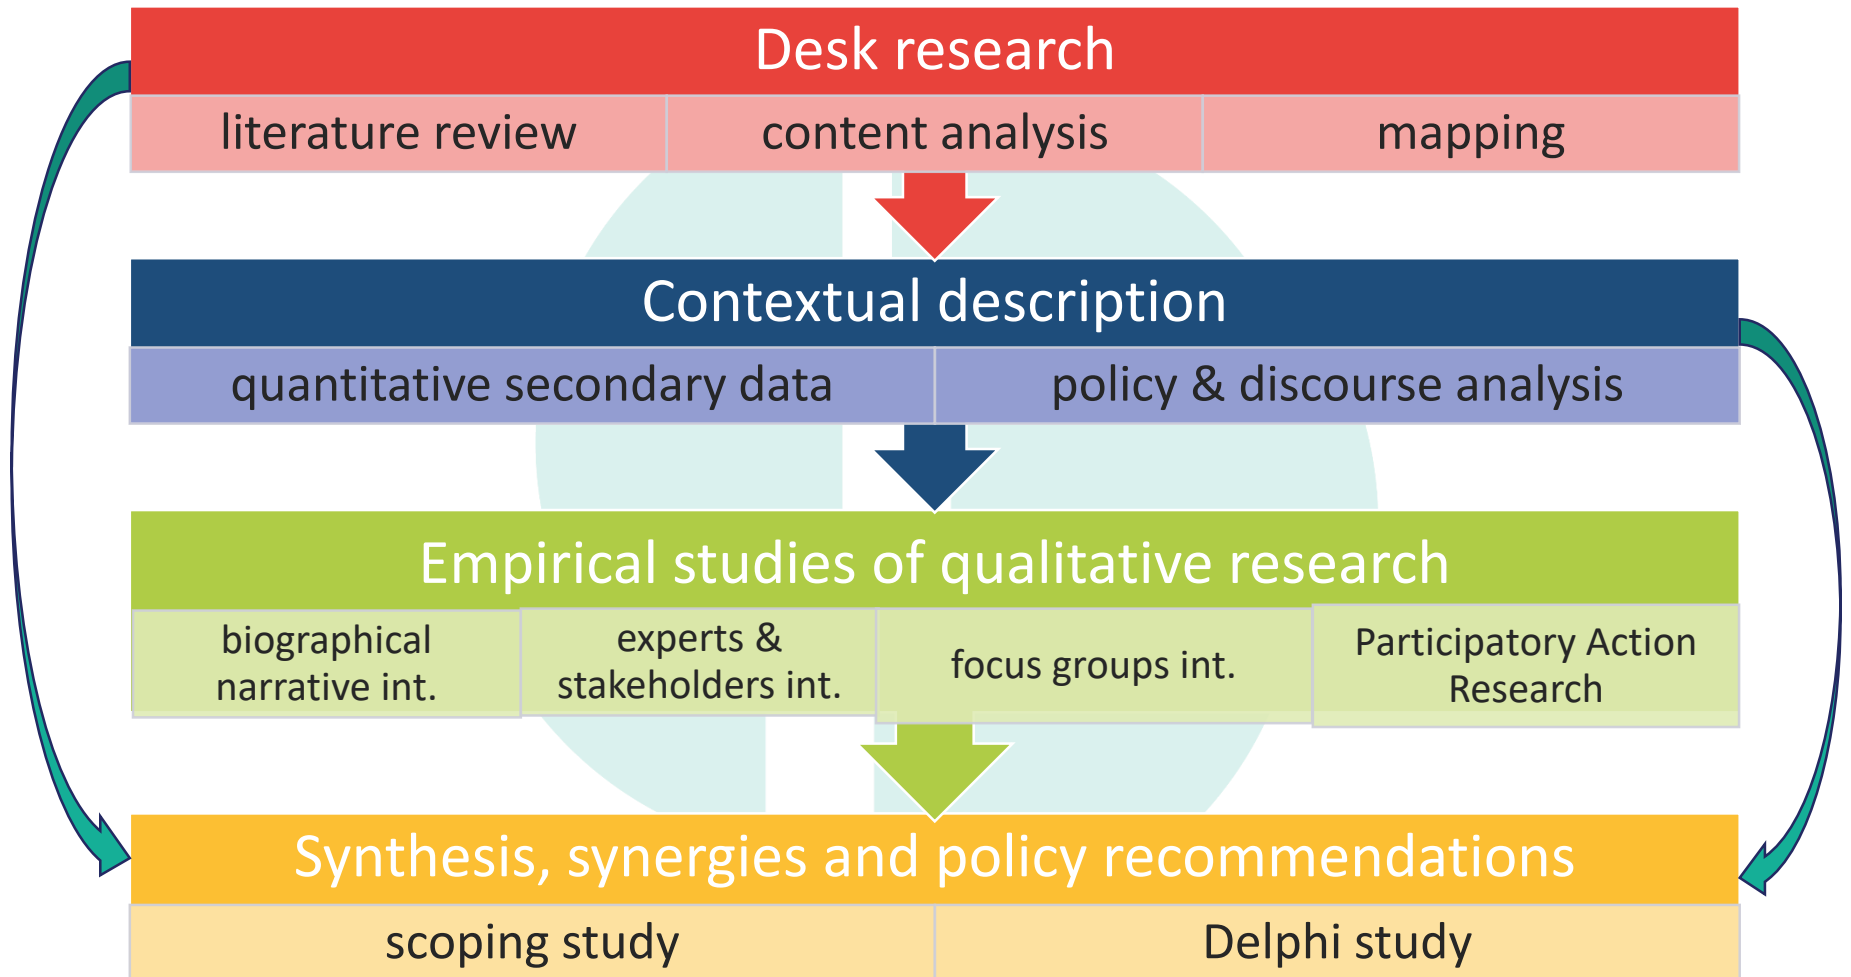

(2) Methodology & research design

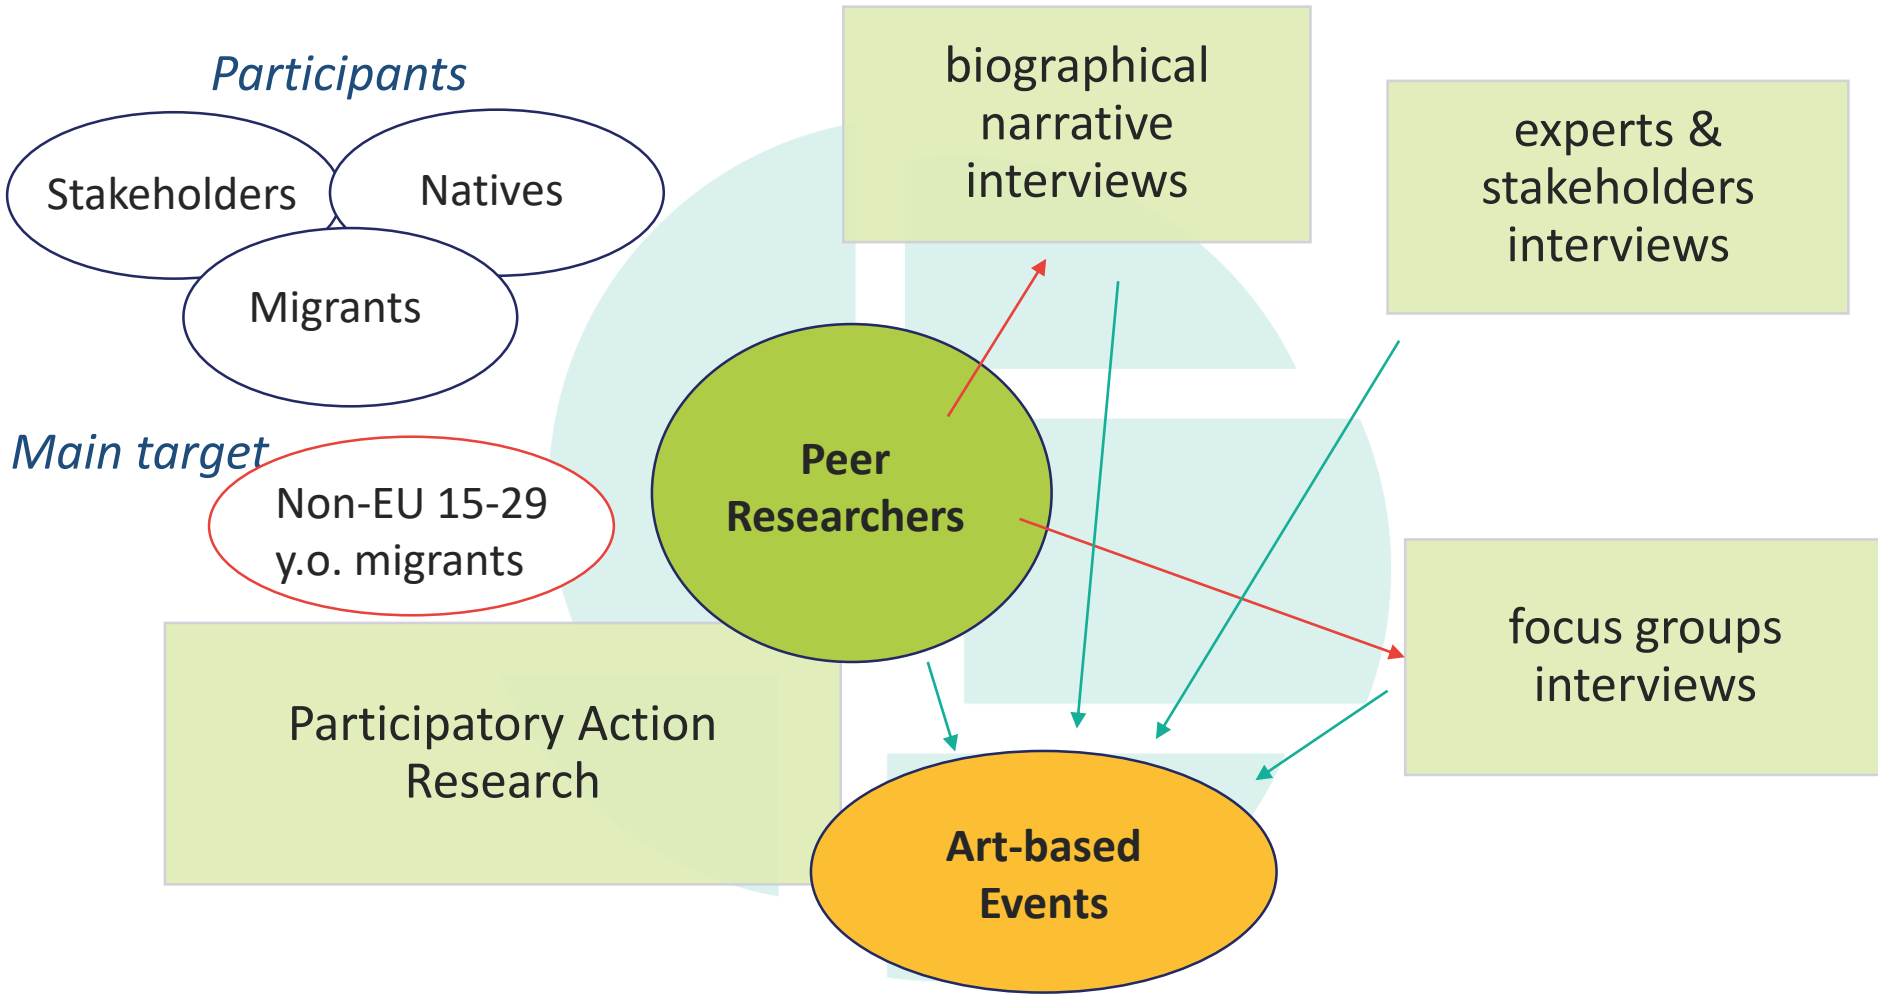

Multilevel approach

(2.2) Step by step design & main methodologies

(2.3) Focus - Empirical studies of qualitative research

(3) Conclusions

Main challenges are also the main opportunities for impact and innovation

- place based approach → capturing the local & develop cross-national strategies and recommendations
- migrant centred approach → give young migrants a voice in the debate and bring concrete social change

→ MIMY's mixed-method, multi-level, step by step design simultaneously ensures a structured comparable process & a flexible implementation
