

University of the Witwatersrand

Environmental and host factors associated with persistent lower respiratory tract symptoms or asthma following acute environmental exposure to sulphur dioxide (SO<sub>2</sub>).

Ms Roslynn Baatjies

A research report submitted to the Faculty of Health Sciences, University of the Witwatersrand, in partial fulfilment of the degree Masters of Public Health in the field of Occupational Hygiene

October 2006

Johannesburg, South Africa