MESSAGE OF CONGRATULATION TO THE
DENVER LAW JOURNAL
FROM THE CHIEF JUSTICE OF THE
SUPREME COURT OF COLORADO

FOR half a century the Denver Law Journal has made major contributions to legal education and has added immeasurably to the body of legal knowledge through carefully researched, interpretive articles. Many advances in the law of this state had their germination in its pages. And this is as it should be; university law journals should provide a forum for fresh approaches to legal problems as part of their scholarly examination and interpretation of legal matters.

The many law students and lawyers who, over the years, have contributed greatly of their time in writing, research, and editing have every reason to be proud of their accomplishments as are we, the members of the bench and bar.

May I extend to you the heartiest congratulations of the Supreme Court of Colorado on your fiftieth anniversary and our best wishes for the years to come. We know that the Denver Law Journal will continue to uphold the high standards of excellence achieved during the past half century and will maintain its position of prominence in the law journal field.
