$63 million building boom hits C/D area

Six construction projects with a total valuation of more than $63 million are changing the character of the landscape around College of DuPage campus.

Replacing grass and weeds are a new high school and church and four housing developments which will include apartments, condominiums, town houses and single-family homes.

Along the east side of Lambert Road and north of the C/D campus, ground has been broken for a 15-acre housing project called Ramblewood, being built by Mars Construction, Inc., Chicago.

The $3½ million-project will have seven three-story buildings with one- and two-bedroom apartments and a two-story building with three-bedroom apartments, for a total of 264 units. The project will also include a recreation building and an outside swimming pool.

The project is about 10 per cent completed and is expected to be open next July. Water and storm sewers are almost completed and fire hydrants have been installed.

Directly east of the Ramblewood project is the $35 million Raintree development, on 97 acres extending along the northern border of the C/D property to Park Boulevard.

Construction is well under way on the project, which will include 75 condominium units and 316 rental apartments in four five-story buildings, a three-story building and a two-story building. The project also includes 167 single-family homes. All but 65 have been completed.

The Meister Neiberg Company, Inc., Glen Ellyn, has been planning the development for two years.

The apartments and condominiums are built to attract young couples and retired couples. The homes are constructed to appeal to middle-aged couples with children, since they have three, four and five bedrooms.

Rent in the apartments will range from $225 to $360 per month. The Raintree development will also include a clubhouse and a private lake to act as a water retention pond. The pond will be suitable for skating in the winter.

A small shopping area is anticipated, as is a medical and dental office.

Northwest of the C/D campus a townhouse development is being constructed west of Lorraine rd. between 16th and 19th sts.

The $7 million Lakeside development is a Wiseman Construction Co., Inc., project, and covers 25 acres.

The development will consist of 184 single-family units when it is finished next July. To date, 65 units have been completed. Most have three bedrooms.

The units are in groups of four to 12 per building. Prices will range from $29,750 to $35,950.

The fourth housing project, the $10 million Hollybrook development of Continental Homes of Chicago, Inc., is located on 66.7 acres about a half mile west of the C/D campus. It fronts on Blanchard rd.

When completed next year the project will include 102 single-family homes and 264 condominiums.

Forty single-family homes and 75 condominiums are under construction, and 25 homes and 30 condominiums are already occupied.

Most of the single-family homes have three and four bedrooms and range in price from $37,000 to $46,000. The condominiums all have either two or three bedrooms and are priced from $23,900 to $29,000.

The condominium complex will also have a clubhouse and pool.

Construction is nearly completed at Glenbard South high school, which is now occupied. The district 87 school is located on Butterfield rd. just west of Park blvd.

The building itself is valued at $7,350,000, and the parking lot,

Percy will speak in the Convocation Center.

Berg to clarify building queries

By Rob Schneider

Dr. Rodney Berg, college president, Tuesday expressed his interest in questions raised by senators concerning plans for the permanent campus.

In a letter read to the Faculty Senate, by its chairman, Ruth Nechoda, Dr. Berg said "I am pleased to see some display of interest on the part of any faculty member as to the nature of construction. I have been concerned by lack of it."

Berg said he sensed an article in last week's Courier hinted that information about the permanent campus was being withheld from the faculty. This, he said, was not true.

In an effort to clear up all questions, Berg said he would attend a future session of the Senate and discuss the matter. Berg said he wanted the faculty to "work with me to establish an aura of trust and confidence."

Sen. Marion Reis said he wanted a week set up where any faculty member could see Dr. Berg or whoever had authority and discuss particular questions. Reis said all that is necessary is a card table to be set up next to Berg's desk and interested persons could stop by and look at plans.

Reis said, "So much hot air is generated all the time, it is necessary to do something specific."

Sen. Charles Ellenbaum proposed that between now and Oct. 25 all senators discuss the matter with their constituents. He suggested Dr. Berg be invited to attend the Senate meeting Oct. 31. If the matter needed further attention, it could be brought up at the faculty assembly meeting Nov. 7. The motion was passed and an invitation is being sent to Dr. Berg.

The Senate barely managed to get a quorum. No other business was discussed.

Sex calls denied

A series of phone calls purporting to be part of a survey by a C/D sociology class have been received by several female students and by several residents of the Glen Ellyn area.

The C/D sociology department, as well as College of DuPage itself, has disclaimed knowledge of any such assignment.

"We know of no such project assignment given by a teacher," said William Gooch, C/D director of community relations.

The calls appear to be quite authentic following a Masters and Johnson questionnaire format. As the call progresses, though, the receiver is subjected to obscene questioning.

The caller does not identify himself. However, he uses the name of College of DuPage. The call is always taped.

Persons receiving such calls are asked to notify their local police as soon as possible.

Dick Dobbs leaves Dec. 15

By Margaret Patterson

After what he terms "the richest five years of my life in growth and learning," Dick Dobbs, Human Services Program instructor, is leaving C/D at the end of the quarter.

Dobbs, who was also a counselor here for three years, plans to start a family counseling service in

Dick Dobbs

Joliet in conjunction with a group of physicians.

In deciding to leave the college Dobbs is, in a way, practicing what he preaches.

As part of his work in the C/D Human Services Program, which is designed to train those who will serve in the areas of corrections and mental health, Dobbs has taught people how to help others — and themselves — to grow and change as persons.

His own need to grow was a factor in his decision to leave C/D.

"I've grown immensely because of the opportunity for openness here at the college," Dobbs said. "Maybe others haven't found this to be so, but I have. And I've seen lots of students grow, too.

"But I could see myself simply continuing to offer more and more courses each year. It's very secure in a college," he said, "but to continue to grow and learn, you sometimes have to take risks."

Dobbs said his involvement in the Human Services Program made him realize that there is a great need to work with families.

"I've recognized that most kids in mental health institutions are there because of broken homes," he said. "People come to the family doctor for physical ailments, but they also come with emotional problems.

"The medical profession has been split into gynecologists, pediatricians, etc. The doctors I talk to feel that by establishing a family counseling service we can reintegrate the family and help its members learn about themselves by communicating with each other.

"We see such a service as giving the doctor an option, so he can do something else besides prescribe pills for his patients."

Dobbs intends to have successful families involved in therapy to share ideas with families that are having problems.

"Helping is not as complex a thing as we've thought it is, despite all we have learned about psychology and psychiatry," he said. "We don't always need an expert, though there is a place for that.

"I've got all the paper degrees that people will feel comfortable with, but I don't feel a person needs years of training to help someone. I've recognized problems in my own family and in myself, and I think this is an area in which I can be of help to other people."

Dobbs said when young people begin to search for a marriage partner, too often they look for someone like one of their parents, or, if they dislike their parent, for someone the opposite.

"You have to look back and find out how you were loved and how you were not loved," he said. "We are shaped by what we didn't get, as well as what we got."

He said couples should openly assess their needs, looking at past experiences.

"They should look at how each can be a resource for the other. We need help to look at ourselves," he said. "We then begin to trust more and grow with each other.

"I try to bring an openness to my teaching and counseling," Dobbs said. "It is a mutual sharing, and I change, too. It's the same with marriage. When you can continue to grow it's difficult for the marriage to become boring.

"Mutual sharing — that's what living is all about."

Dobbs said one of the most important concepts in learning to help another person is empathy — understanding the feelings of another and communicating this understanding to him by "being a mirror to his own emotions.

"If we can start there, we can involve other conditions — that we are open, honest, real, and can disclose ourselves as a person. These all come after we establish an empathic relationship.

"But to do this I have to know where I am and take that into consideration."

Dobbs said a person must begin to grow by looking at himself, making some acceptance of the way he is, and only then thinking about change.

"We can look back and ask ourselves, 'How do I feel about this?' or 'Why am I angry?' and then, 'What do I do about it?'"

"We find we aren't perfect, but we can grow. Change is always going on in and around us," he said. "Change is a way of being.

"I have formed my own definition of mental health — the freedom to be a lot of different ways at a lot of different times with a lot of different people."

The raise will hike subsistence to $220 a month for single persons.

Please don't leave your books lying around, says Al Allison, Bookstore manager. Someone may rip them off.

Stolen texts should be immediately reported to security. Security in turn gives the list of stolen texts to the Bookstore, which checks incoming texts being sold back.

If the book can be identified as stolen, it is immediately confiscated, and security is called. Officers interview the person trying to sell the stolen book.

Every quarter some 25 to 30 texts are reported stolen. The only way a stolen book can possibly be returned is to notify security.

Ogilvie visits here . . . but briefly

On a tight campaign schedule, Gov. Richard Ogilvie spoke for a quick 10 minutes to DuPage County Republican campaign workers at the Holiday Inn in Lombard Friday, Oct. 13, encouraging them to "get the vote out" on Nov. 7.

Arriving late, Gov. Ogilvie shook hands with many of the county workers before proceeding to the speakers platform. Following the introductions of some of the local Republican candidates, Gov. Ogilvie was introduced by Pate Phillip, DuPage County Republican Party Chairman, as "the greatest governor in the history of Illinois."

Emphasizing the fact that DuPage County is a critical area and could determine how well the Republican Party will do in Illinois, Gov. Ogilvie happily announced that the latest polls put him ahead of Democratic candidate for governor Dan Walker.

In one area, Gov. Ogilvie said, Walker is behind by 13 percentage points.

"I don't want to lose anybody (Republican candidates). We've got to get the vote out — and that's your assignment," Ogilvie told the Party workers. "This means getting out and making a thorough canvass of the area."

Ogilvie said that while on his campaign tour, he had occasionally picked a house at random and gone up and knocked on the door. It was fun, he said, "and my god, you should see the look on their face when they open the door and see the Governor of Illinois there."

The governor also pointed out that he was being endorsed by almost every major paper in Illinois. These papers include the four major Chicago papers, The Globe Democrat and The St. Louis Post Dispatch, both normally Democratic papers, and The Daily Defender, a paper put out for blacks, which has never endorsed a Republican before.

"I'd like very much to serve another four years," Ogilvie said. He stated that another four years should carry out most of the programs his administration has introduced. These programs include new institutions for the handicapped, tax breaks and state-operated convalescent homes for senior citizens, strict anti-pollution laws, which were adopted as an outline by the federal government for its program, and the development of 57,000 acres of new park land.

Stating that "Illinois is in excellent condition," Gov. Ogilvie concluded his speech and received a standing ovation.

Kayak trip spotlights fight against pollution

Despite high waters and despite it being Friday the 13th, Clifford E. Leverage took a kayak trip down the Fox River in Elgin last week.

Leverage, Democratic candidate for state senator in the second district, made the trip to dramatize his concern about the deterioration of the Fox.

He and Fred Copenes, an Ojibos Indian who has been active in antipollution efforts in Canada, took samples of the river water during their two-mile trip as evidence of pollution.

Afterwards Leverage signed a suit which he is filing against the State of Wisconsin, where the Fox originates, for polluting its waters.

"Others may continue to call for studies to combat pollution and flooding," Leverage said. "I think it's time to replace rhetoric with action."

Leverage, a resident of Barrington, said he is filing Wisconsin suit as a private citizen. He promised to act against polluters in the second district if he is elected Nov. 7.

The suit was filed in the Federal District Court because Leverage is accusing both citizens and industries of polluting the river and because he feels that federal regulations have been violated.

Leverage, running against incumbent John Graham, a Republican, said he will continue to fight pollution even if he is not elected.

The second legislative district includes parts of Cook, Lake, Kane and DuPage counties. In DuPage, West Chicago, Glendale Heights, Bloomingdale and Roselle are in the second district.

Editor Wells to talk Oct. 30

Charles A. Wells, editor and publisher of "Between the Lines," will discuss, "Can Capitalism Survive the World Revolution?" at 2 p.m. Monday, Oct. 30 in the Coffee House in N4.

Wells' News Services features special reports, analyses and forecasts concerning problems of war and peace, industrial relations, economic, social and racial trends.

Wells began his newspaper career as a sports writer and artist, but later turned to illustrated feature writing.

He has traveled abroad extensively and has visited the Soviet Union nine times.

Special diets are available

Special diets may be obtained at the Campus Center cafeteria by request to either Mrs. Valiere Burke, the campus nurse, or Jeff Spiroff, the food manager.

The cost of the diet is equivalent to that of the normal foods, according to the food manager.

Spiroff said that requests for salt-free food or a diabetic's menu are the most common diets requested.

He noted the cafeteria is a "service," and it is the intention of the management to "please" those served.

Day care ok in 3d week

The child care center volunteer program, after three weeks of operation, is working adequately, according to Nick Sebastian, ASB president, and Nancy Groenewold, ASB vice president.

The program has as many as 30 new volunteers. Mothers, too, are keeping their part of the bargain which involves a time commitment.

There are to be two volunteers with the children in the center at a given hour.

Male volunteers are especially welcome since some of the children do not have male supervision at home.

According to one mother, the children love being at C/D while mother attends school and some even cry when it is time to leave. The room is comfortable but could be even larger, she said.

The program is proving to be the success which was anticipated by its innovators.

DEADLINE NEARS

Future Worlds, the student literary magazine needs contributions from students and faculty. Poetry, essays, photos, short stories, and artwork concerning the future would be appreciated. The magazine will be copyrighted. A box has been placed in the Campus Center for all creative submissions. Deadline is Oct. 27.

OFFER SCHOLARSHIP

The Wheaton-Glen Ellyn Branch of The American Association of University Women (AAUW) is again offering a $200 scholarship.

It will be awarded to a woman student who plans to continue her education at a four year institution after completing two years at College of DuPage. The deadline date for submitting applications in Nov. 17, 1972.

No Cheers

To those who have told me C/D students aren't apathetic, I can now honestly reply without the least hesitation and absolutely no reservations, "Bull".

Until Friday's pep rally, in the Campus Center, I had slight reservations about the extent of apathy on campus. I thought, maybe, you people just needed some time to get your stuff together, but now I think you've gotten it together and C/D just doesn't figure in.

From what I could see and hear Friday, you students in the Campus Center actually objected to a pep rally being held without your permission. A complete lack of attention and concern was your answer to Nick Sebastian's and Nancy Groenewold's appeal for some support at the various school events. In fact the only times you interrupted your card games or petty discussions were when the pom-pom girls gave a sampling of what Saturday's half-time show would be like and when the C/D cheerleaders performed one of their cheers. This might have shown some interest on your part except for the fact that I overheard some pretty lousy remarks from a group of people I happened to be standing near. In effect, what those individuals said, was the pom-pom girls were going through fertility rites. In a way, though, they were, only the person who made that remark was probably too ignorant to realize it. They were trying to get you people off your butts and out to Saturday's football game; they were trying to awaken a dormant seed — student interest.

I used to think you apathetic people were repulsive. Now, I pity you. You're too wrapped up in your own little worlds to take an interest in anything or anybody else. Your lack of consideration Friday was like the act of a schizophrenic when someone tries to reach out and help, only in reverse. What I understood you to be saying was, "If I ignore you, you're not really there."

To those who ignored Saturday's football game, at least 99 percent of the students and faculty, I can only shake my head in wonder. The Chaparrals played really fine ball. They've got an offense now that almost equals the defense in toughness. The final score proves this. The half-time show, too, was first rate. All in all, I spent a thoroughly enjoyable Saturday afternoon.

So, now, a couple of interesting questions come to mind. What will Homecoming Week be like? Will you people show up for any of the scheduled events or not? Will the time spent on organizing those activities have been in vain or not?

Homecoming Week can be an end, or it can be a beginning. Unfortunately, it's up to you.

Bitch Box

Student Government has started something new in the area of Student complaints this year. A "bitch box" is located on the east wall of the Campus Center. This column will appear weekly to answer any problems which occur in student life here.

Dear Speeder,

You say that you got a speeding ticket in the parking lot by the Campus Security Police. You argue that 1) they have no right to issue traffic tickets, and 2) you were not speeding.

Pardon me if I have no sympathy for you. Last year a student who was also "not speeding" (and not paying attention to his driving) hit and killed a woman student on Lambert Road. I have almost been hit myself in the "K" lot. Does it take another death before people slow down? Would you rather the Glen Ellyn Police came on Campus and handed out $15 tickets instead of $3?

Nancy Groenewald
ASB Vice-President

Dear Ticketed,

Parking tickets are given for a very good reason, to control access to and from parking facilities and to keep traffic unsnarled. However, if you do have a legitimate gripe, go to the Security Office, across from the Gym, and speak to Mr. Rosin. He is Director of Security and will be happy to hear you out. If you are right, you are out of a $1 parking ticket.

Nancy Groenewald
ASB Vice-President

More can be gotten out of life than just grades or a paycheck. These two people have found something which might not have been but for C/D. To experience though, you must first commit yourself to the idea of becoming involved. Think about it.

Cheers

For once, instead of criticizing somebody or something, I'd like to pay a duly deserved compliment to the program board.

From what I understand from Steve Collie, program board director, the movies to be presented this year are all top notch films, and will include something for just about everybody. MASH was a good start and They Shoot Horses Don't They?, in December, somehow seems appropriate to end the quarter.

The fact that the coffee house is a little small can be put up with as long as the films are decent. Even so, the program board is trying to arrange to have future films shown in the Convocation Center, which ought to give everyone who attended last week's showings added incentive to keep coming back.

Keep up the good work guys.

To the Editor:

I have attended quite a few C/D concerts at which the music was provided by our instrumental department. I've also read the reviews they've received after all their performances. So, I just want to be sure that this particular performance, the debut of the C/D Marching Chaparrals, isn't missed; that they get the credit they really deserve.

In my opinion, they sounded better at Saturday's football game than last year's band did after an entire season of playing together. But, more important, I've never been to any game where I enjoyed the half-time performance more.

Bob Marshall did a fantastic job of arranging the music for the show and the kids did a great job of putting it together.

If any other Illinois community colleges have hopes of putting together a marching band, I'd say they have a touch act to follow.

To the Editor:

There has been some discussion among students concerning the Financial Aid Office's requirement that students complete an ACT Family Financial Statement prior to or contingent upon employment on campus. I think an explanation at this time might clear the air somewhat.

The first point to be mentioned is that student employment on campus is designed to provide a meaningful work experience for students in order to help them develop a closer personal tie to the College and to provide them with money to meet educational expenses. The main point, however, is that on-campus employment is recognized throughout the United States as a financial aid program. Our office was alerted by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare early in 1972 that colleges must provide a method to identify and provide employment on campus for as many needy students as possible. It was also indicated that colleges must use a need analysis system which is a reliable yardstick to uniformly measure all students that apply. We selected the American College Testing Program's ACT Family Financial Statement because it best meets our requirements for assessing the needs of these students. Even though the College itself provides the greatest amount of funds for the student payroll, the Federal government has provided sufficient funds in dollars to have provided over 100 students with employment on campus each of the last three years. I don't believe that many students, faculty, or staff could complain about a priority of providing employment on campus for students that demonstrate need and are eligible for combined financial aid programs and second priority to students who do not demonstrate this need.

Our office, at the same time, has maintained a concerted effort to contact 4,000 local employers to solicit a greater number of part-time and full-time job opportunities which are published

Talking Transfer

By Don Dame

This week let's talk about some of the rumors that are heard from time to time at College of DuPage about transferring.

RUMOR: "If I take a certain option of English 101, 102, or 103, (such as Media, Cinema, etc.) it will not transfer to most four year schools!" NOT TRUE — On the College of DuPage transcript sent to the four year school the type of English 101, 102, 103 is not listed. For example, on the transcript under course number the section letter of the English course would be noted, English 101A, English 102A, and English 103C, but the course description is listed as Freshman English.

RUMOR: "If I take a five (5) credit course at College of DuPage and the same type of course is a four (4) credit course at the transfer school I lose one credit!" NOT TRUE — You will receive credit for the course, plus the five credits would be added to the total amount of transferrable credits.

RUMOR: "'N' grades received at College of DuPage are not computed in the grade point average here and the four year schools have the same policy concerning 'N' grades." NOT TRUE — Most four year schools consider our 'N' grade as an 'F'. Suggestion: Many students quit going to a class for a number of reasons and take the chance of receiving an 'N'. Why not withdraw officially from the class and receive a 'W' which is not computed in the transfer G.P.A. by the four year schools.

Perhaps there are other rumors you have heard about transferring. If you have a question, jot it down and leave it at the Central Counseling office, K-134, and I will try to answer the question in this column.

We wish to thank the many students, faculty and staff members who worked with us to make Film Expo a success. It was gratifying to see the large turnout for the films and enthusiasm for the entire expo. This was the direct result of those people who believed in the Expo, as we did, and were dedicated to its success. The support we received made the venture a rewarding one.

Assembly to reactivate Campus Center Committee

The Representative Assembly moved Tuesday to reactivate the Campus Center Advisory Committee.

Dr. Rodney Berg, college president, stated in a letter to the Assembly, "Inasmuch as all members of the college community are affected to some degree by the use and activities related to the Campus Center and like areas, Mr. Gibson, food services manager, would like the Representative Assembly to reactivate the Campus Center Advisory Committee."

Adade Wheeler, Psi College, asked Herb Rinehart, central services, why this was being brought up now. Rinehart said that now seemed like a good time.

Formerly, the committee was concerned with day-to-day affairs, such as thievery of utensils. The Assembly decided to broaden the base of the committee's concern to include overall practices and use of the Campus Center. The matter will be sent to steering committee for further consideration.

The Assembly considered the feasibility of setting a block of time, in which all college related meetings would be held. Discussion revolved around whether it should be left up to the individual to meet his commitments or dictate a time for meetings.

The Assembly also decided that the role of the task force on community relations was not clear. It moved that the matter be sent to the steering committee. The Assembly concluded that before people could be asked to serve, it was essential to know the specific duties involved.

Mrs. Wheeler asked to have her proposal for the LRC added to the agenda. Her proposal, that a priority committee on budget policies be set up, was defeated.

The committee could be composed of faculty, students, and classified people, if they are interested.

Mrs. Wheeler was concerned with the lack of funds for essential services and lack of funds after the middle of the year for request purchases. She said that since the LRC is a service arm of the college, groups who use the service should have priority over others.

Outing group to form Oct. 24

The first meeting of the newly formed C/D outing group will be held Tuesday at 1 p.m., Oct. 24 in the Kappa lounge, M-122.

The purpose of the group is whatever purpose you yourself might find in joining together with people and nature, according to a club spokesman.

Tentative plans for the group include hikes, canoe trips, rock climbing and camping trips. Although most of the members are inexperienced, there will be experienced outdoorsmen/women accompanying the group on its outings; experience is definitely not a pre-requisite for prospective members.

As a club spokesman said, the world is there to explore and learn from; there are no limits or boundaries.

Adult volunteers are needed to help at the DuPage Invitational cross country meet Saturday, Oct. 21 at 11:00. The meet will be held at Maryknoll Seminary, Rte. 53 and Roosevelt Rd. If you are interested contact Ron Ottoson in K115A, ext. 417.

Club will tour new campus

Would you like to see for yourself what is holding up completion of the permanent campus? On Friday Oct. 20 at 1 p.m. Eddie Ackerman will guide a tour through the new building.

Ackerman, a mechanical equipment inspector for C.F. Murphy, Architects, will explain the heating, cooling, air handling, and power systems in the lower levels of the building, which are designed to provide all requirements for the five future buildings of the Campus. Last, but not least, after putting on a "hard hat" you will be able to tour the classrooms and other facilities.

The tour, sponsored by the C/D Engineering club, will meet in the Delta Lounge, M-149 at 12:45: Anyone interested is welcome on the tour.

Jet noise cut, says engineer

On Aug. 1, 1972, all major airlines in the United States adopted a standardized procedure which significantly cuts noise from jet thrust on take-off, an aeronautical engineer told members of the C/D Engineers Club here Tuesday.

William G. Huley, an engineer from United Airlines Technical Services department, told how he and other engineers spent about six months testing procedures by running them through a simulator. One was finally standardized which now has been adopted nationwide.

The new procedure, when used with one of the new jumbo jets, can cut take-off noise in the critical areas by as much as 60 per cent without endangering the safety margin, he said.

According to Huley, the biggest problem was selling the procedure to the pilots, who each felt that their own way was best. A procedure for cutting landing noises is now being studied, and methods for controlling air polluting engine emissions are being worked out.

Airlines want to develop these procedures themselves to prevent restrictive legislation from being enacted by the government, he said.

Constitution test to be Oct. 28

The Constitution Exam will be given Saturday, Oct. 28, 1972 at College of DuPage. Students planning to take the exam may sign up and get study materials in the Guidance Center, K134.

In order to meet graduation requirements it is necessary for students to complete either the Constitution Examination, Political Science 202, or History 251. Questions on both the U.S. and Illinois Constitutions are included, with emphasis on the U.S. Constitution.

The Constitution Exam will also be given on Nov. 16. Students may sign up for the November testing two weeks prior to the test date.

When this 25-year-old researcher wanted to investigate a possible cancer treatment, we gave him the go-ahead.

We also gave him the right to fail.

At Kodak, it's not unusual for a 25-year-old like Jim Carroll to win the title of senior research physicist. Like any company involved in a lot of basic research, Kodak has felt the pressure of modern technology and the need for young, fresh thinking. So we hire the best talent we possibly can, and then give them as much responsibility as they can handle. Whatever their age.

We have departments and divisions, like any company. What we don't have are preconceived ideas about how an expert scientist's time should be spent. So when we received a request from the medical community for assistance in experimenting with lasers as a possible cancer treatment, we turned to 25-year-old Jim Carroll, who is deep in laser technology, and gave him the go-ahead. He built two half-billion watt laser systems, one of which Kodak has donated to the National Institute of Health.

The lasers proved unsuccessful in treating cancer, but we'd make the same decision all over again. We entered laser technology because we have a stake in business. We let a young researcher help the medical community look for a means of cancer treatment because we have a stake in the future of mankind.

To put it another way, we're in business to make a profit. But in furthering our own needs, we have often furthered society's. After all, our business depends on our society. So we care what happens to it.

Students urged to apply for grants

Not enough full-time students at C/D have taken advantage of the Illinois State Scholarship Monetary Award Grant Program, according to Herb Rinehart, director of financial aids.

These honorary awards can be partial to full grants and students can gain up to 15 hours of monetary award, he said. These awards can be transferred from one institution to another.

The actual use of these awards is up 42 per cent from the 1971-72 school year. Three out of every four students who apply get an award. There are students returning to school after several years absence who are eligible.

Anyone carrying at least 12 credit hours can apply.

Many students do not apply for this monetary award because the feeling is that they are not eligible, Rinehart said. Perhaps as many students have not applied because the deadline dates for accepting applications has not been known.

"I have no doubt that if we can get students and parents to apply, we could have 700 or even 800 qualify for the monetary award," he said. "If there is any doubt about eligibility, apply just the same. It would be well worth the time and effort."

Applications can be accepted beginning Dec. 15, 1972. The last deadline date will be August 1, 1973. "We will have applications available after Jan. 1, 1973," said Rinehart.

Last year, under the Illinois Military Scholarship Program, approximately 1250 veterans took advantage of this monetary award. Veterans can gain a maximum award of $1,200.00.

"We would like to encourage students to take advantage of applying after Jan. 1, 1973," Rinehart said.

These award programs are two of 15 award programs which the Office of Financial Aids handles.

Hold SDS legal on campuses

Washington, D.C. -(I.P.)-The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled unanimously in Healy, et al. v. James, et al. that Central Connecticut State College denied students their right of free speech and association by refusing to allow the establishment of an SDS chapter on campus.

In September, 1969, the students were denied permission to start a local SDS chapter by President F. Don James because he was not satisfied that the group was independent of the national SDS, which he believed had a philosophy of disruption and violence in conflict with the college's declaration of student rights.

Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., speaking for the court noted in his 25-page opinion that the "wide latitude accorded by the Constitution to the freedoms of expression and association is not without its costs in terms of the risk to the maintenance of civility and an ordered society."

He continued, "Indeed this latitude often has resulted, on the campus and elsewhere, in the infringement of the rights of others. Though we deplore the tendency of some to abuse the very constitutional privileges they invoke, and although infringement of others' rights certainly should not be tolerated, we reaffirm this court's dedication to the principles of the Bill of Rights upon which our vigorous and free society is founded."

"At the outset," Powell declared, "we note that state colleges and universities are not enclaves immune from the sweep of the First Amendment. . .Where state-operated educational institutions are involved, this court has long recognized the need for reaffirming the comprehensive authority of the states and of school officials, consistent with fundamental constitutional freedoms is nowhere more vital than in the community of American schools."

"The college classroom with its surrounding environs is peculiarly the 'market place of ideas' and we break no new constitutional ground in reaffirming this nation's dedication to safeguarding academic freedom. . ."

Justice Powell pointed out that rules and regulations are necessary on campus. "Just as in the community at large, reasonable regulations with the respect to the time, the place, and the manner in which student groups conduct their speech-related activities must be respected."

"A college administration may impose a requirement such as may have been imposed in this case, that a group seeking official recognition affirm in advance its willingness to adhere to reasonable campus law."

"Such a requirement does not impose an impermissible condition on the students' associational rights. Their freedom to speak out, or assemble, or to petition for changes in school rules is in no sense infringed."

"It merely constitutes an agreement to conform with reasonable standards respecting conduct. This is a minimal requirement, in the interest of the entire academic community, or of any group seeking the privilege of official recognition."

"Because respondents failed to accord due recognition to First Amendment principles, the judgement approving respondents' denial of recognition must be reversed," he wrote.

"Since we cannot conclude from this record that petitioners were willing to abide by reasonable campus rules and regulations, we order the case remanded for reconsideration."

In response to the court decision, President James issued a statement in which he said,

"I am gratified with the Supreme Court decision. The decision, following the District

"What the court has said in effect, is that while no institution may deny an individual his rights as assured in the Bill of Rights, it may impose regulations governing the conduct of individuals in the interests of all persons within this community and require adherence to these regulations by groups seeking official recognition."

"With both of these principles, we heartedly agree. We welcome the decision and await further clarification of this case when it is remanded to the U. S. District Court in Hartford, Conn."

Court and Court of Appeals affirmative actions on my decision to refuse official recognition, clarifies for all colleges and universities a long standing question regarding the constitutional rights of individuals and the rights of institutions of higher learning."

Fewer fields open to teachers

Students studying in the fields of special education and vocational industrial arts may find information on existing teaching vacancies in the latest issue of "Teacher Placement Listings," published by the State School Superintendent's Office.

The listing covers vacancies in some 2,200 public and private schools in Illinois. With its statewide collection of data, the placement section is able to pinpoint exactly where the teaching jobs are.

According to Michael J. Bakalis, superintendent, recent surveys show a need for teachers in the following areas: math, speech correction, science, music and guidance. The surveys showed there were no vacancies in business, history, agriculture, home economics, social sciences, and physical education.

Wheelchair club recruits

The Rockford Chariots, a wheelchair basketball team, are looking for players. Clarence Ferguson, a student at the College of DuPage, is a player for the Chariots and says that anyone interested would be welcome.

The team plays once a week on Wednesday nights. No experience in wheelchair basketball is necessary.

Ferguson says that most kids in wheelchairs have never tried basketball and don't know how much fun it can be. If you are interested you can contact Clarence Ferguson at 231-6793.

sidewalks, football field, lighting and landscaping cost an additional $890,000. Ground was broken in February, 1970.

Dr. James Rudolph, principal, said all the classrooms are finished except for minor details. The theater, music room, gym, field house and kitchen are expected to be completed next month. Until the kitchen is completed, the students bring sack lunches.

Dr. Rudolph considers the high school a learning center. The school has a circulating library, audio-visual equipment, reading labs and staff offices.

Another new building in the C/D area is the Village Green Baptist Church, which is three-quarters of a mile north of the college campus on the west side of Lambert rd.

The church was supposed to have been completed last month, said the Rev. Robert Hess, pastor, but will not be finished until the first of the year due to rain and the slowness of the contractors.

The building has three sections — an all-purpose room which will be used for recreation; a two-story educational section; and the sanctuary itself, which will seat 275 persons. The building will be air-conditioned.

The 5½-acre property was purchased by the Glenbard Baptist Church congregation in 1970.

The new church was planned to accommodate a larger congregation, Pastor Hess said. The present building at Hillside and Park in Glen Ellyn seats only 150 persons and is now for sale.

When the six construction projects are completed, there will be little open land left around the college property except for the Village Links to the north. Plans are to extend the Links west of Lambert Road.

Although Howard Greisdorf, secretary of Mars Construction, Inc., developers of the Ramblewood project, said he did not anticipate any unusual traffic problems on Lambert Road as a result of his development, plans are being made to accommodate an increase.

Nolan Baird, chairman of the Glen Ellyn Planning Commission, which is working on a master plan for the village, said eventually 22nd st. will be extended from Lorraine Road to Park Boulevard to provide an east-west access road.

He said plans to extend Lambert north of Roosevelt have been changed, however.

Wheaton plans to extend Lorraine Road south of 22nd street to meet Butterfield. Lorraine will then provide access all the way from Duane Street to Butterfield, eliminating the need to extend Lambert north.

Baird said that although the developers of housing projects are responsible for putting in sewer and water connections, the village has to pump more water into the area, and, of course, more people means more police and fire protection are needed.

He said the type, not the size, of the development is important in determining the effect on the schools.

For instance, a small development of three-bedroom apartments will have more of an effect on a school district than a large development of luxury apartments for older people with no small children.

"The school district runs the schools," Baird said, "but it really has no say in the decision the village makes permitting a development. The district can influence the village, but it does not make the final decision."

Al Kaplan, general manager of the Meister Neiberg company, developers of the Raintree project, gave some reasons for the increase in development in the western suburbs in general, and in the C/D area in particular.

"As building in the northern suburbs of Chicagoland became slow, building in the western suburbs began to boom," Kaplan said. And in the Raintree area, "good transportation and shopping within the area are perfect for a convenient community location."

Barry Devlin, production manager of the Hollybrook development, echoed Kaplan's statement. "We feel it's a good market area and will continue to grow," Devlin said.

Student enrollment hikes construction

Construction in the C/D area has had significant influence on local school districts.

Daniel Rodgers, assistant superintendent of business of elementary district 89, said that within the last five years student enrollment has jumped 20 per cent.

Rodgers said 200 new students are entering district 89 schools each year. With existing facilities, the district can absorb 200 to 300 more students.

Glenbard South high school, in district 87, now has an enrollment of 1065. The school can handle as many as 2500 students by building additional classrooms onto the main building.

Rodgers said growth is generating from three areas. He said C/D is one of the most important elements in encouraging growth because people are interested in living near a community college.

Other reasons for expansion, he said, are the natural growth of the community and people moving from Chicago.

Rodgers said plans for the future include an additional elementary school and another junior high school in district 89. A site for a new high school in Glen Ellyn has been purchased and plans are being prepared.

New development has aided the financing of schools, Rodgers said. He said passing referendums is easier now than five years ago, since the tax base in the community is broader.

Schools are financed by bonds which, according to the state constitution, can be as high as 6 per cent.

Rodgers said the district is now paying off its debt at half a million dollars a year.

three more years of study in photography, he received his M.S. degree. In 1970, Church was hired as curator of the Photo Archives at the University of Louisville. He came here from that position. (Photo by John Evans)

Mono-rail expert joins C/D staff

Have any questions about mono-rail systems?

Jack Harbert, new faculty member in mechanical engineering, can answer them for you. Harbert spent several years helping to construct a mono-rail system.

Harbert an Oklahoman, received his B.S. degree from the University of Oklahoma in civil engineering. Returning to college after serving in the signal corps during World War II, he put in a half a year towards his master's degree in structural engineering.

Moving to Denver, Harbert set up his own consulting office. During this time he came up with a number of patents concerning concrete form designs and contraction joints.

Harbert's interest in new ideas and the chance to help design a mono-rail urban transport system prompted his move to Chicago and the Gulf and Western Co. While Harbert was with the Aerial Transit System, Inc., a cable-supported system was developed. However, due to lack of funds, the company's plans never got beyond the model stage.

Combined with his interest in ideas is his desire to teach, which led him to C/D. Harbert, a man with many years of experience, now teaches blue print reading, mechanical and electrical drafting and surveying.

Aviation class to get off ground

A 12-session Aviation Ground School seminar will be offered by College of DuPage from 7 to 10 p.m. on Wednesday evenings, Nov. 29 through Feb. 28.

The Aviation Ground School seminar is designed to be of special interest to anyone interested in obtaining a basic knowledge of flying, persons planning to take the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) written examination, or those who want a refresher course in basic ground school techniques and information.

An experienced United Air Lines pilot who has taught flight training at Ohio University will conduct the seminar, utilizing Sanderson's Private Pilot audio-visual instructional materials.

Included in the seminar will be pre-flight and basic flight; weather; navigation; FAA regulations; airport operation; weight and balance; and computers. The FAA private pilot written test will be reviewed during the final session.

Cost for the seminar is $30. This does not include books and other instructional materials which will cost approximately $20 and are sold in kit form.

Additional information can be obtained by calling the coordinator Roger Jaacks, ext. 426 or 427.

Boyd heads data processing

James Boyd has been appointed director of data processing at College of DuPage.

He has been associate director since 1968. With this new responsibility his goal is to continue improving the services in this instructional area which are a vital part of college operations.

Boyd received his B.A. from David Lipscomb College and his masters from the University of Minnesota, majoring in Mathematics. He did extensive computer work at the Illinois Institute of Technology.

His interest in data processing "came about gradually" while attending a computer course in high school. He was the chairman of the mathematics department at Willowbrook High School from 1966-1968. Following this he then came to C/D in 1968 to work on CVIS (Computerized Vocational Information Services) project.

Boyd's goals are "to establish a reliable system that provides a quick and accurate response to the need of all users and to expand the applications of data processing to all areas of educational process."

The Rose Hip String Band will appear in the Coffee House at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 25. The group blends exotic and traditional, using the dulcimer, violin and guitar. Their style ranges from medieval English to mellow country blues. Admission is $1.

2ND TAPE DECK THEFT

Thomas Hampel, of Hinsdale, reported to campus police that someone stole the $215 tape deck from his car Oct. 11 while he was in class.

Hampel said his car door was picked and the dome light removed, so the thief could work in darkness without being spotted. This is the second tape player stolen in two days. Both thefts occurred between 6 and 9 p.m., and both times the victim was in class.

Sigma Adviser List

Sigma College has posted in its lounge, K141, the major and adviser list for all of its students. Any student who does not know who his adviser is may check the bulletin board there.

The rules of College of DuPage encourage every student working for a degree of certificate to see his adviser before he registers.

Any student may change advisers by filling out a standard form he can pick up in the provost's office, K143B or the Sigma counselor's office, K141B.

Soccer team wallops Shimer, 8-0

By Jim Moravcik

The College of DuPage soccer team went on a scoring spree as they shut out Shimer College 8-0 Oct. 11.

The Chaparrals led in every category getting 25 shots on goal in the first half to Shimer's five.

Six goals were scored in the first half. At 10:11, Pat Ranahan put his first of three through, with a fine head shot, assisted by Rod Prochaska. At 15:20 George Kosmos sent the first of his two goals in with help from Ranahan. It was Ranahan again sending it through at 23:38 assisted by Kosmos. Coming right back was Kosmos with his second goal, assisted by Prochaska. Scoring his third and final goal of the afternoon at 32:45 was Ranahan, scoring unassisted. Angelis Pseflis from Greece, making his first appearance for the team, scored a penalty shot at 39:00, to make the halftime score 6-0.

In the second half it took DuPage just 43 seconds to score as Craig Allen came up with his first goal of the season unassisted. Bruce Morris put the final goal in the net at 11:10. DuPage played ball control the rest of the game to secure the shutout.

On Friday Oct. 13, DuPage must have believed in superstition as they were handed a tough defeat by the University of Chicago and All-American candidate Dennis Ball by the score of 2-1.

Chicago drew first blood at 18:38, with a shot that sailed over the head of goalie Terry Chatton to take a 1-0 lead. It proved to be the only goal of the first half.

In the second half, Chicago took just 38 seconds to score their second and final goal. DuPage got their only goal at 5:04. George Kosmos put it in, assisted by Pat Ranahan for the final score.

DuPage as usual had their stiff defense shining again, but had trouble generating any offense in the first half. Coming on strong in the second half, DuPage made several offensive threats, but just couldn't get the goals they needed.

DuPage's next game will be their first away game at Meramec, Oct. 20 at 3:00. Meramec is one of the best teams around so the Chaparrals will have their hands full.

Sophomore Pat Ranahan had three goals and one assist as DuPage routed Shimer College 8-0 last week. Ranahan, who led the Chaparrals in scoring last season with 16 total points, has 12 already this year in six games.

Foil your opponent; a little stab'll do it

By Laurie Sulzenfuss

Fencing instructor David Webster says fencing is like chess — "you don't need to be a grand master to enjoy it."

Webster teaches fencing to several hundred students each quarter in two-hour sessions twice a week. The class is held in the Gym.

He said that it is a safe sport. A mask covers the entire head; the plastron covers the upper half of the body with padding and the tip of the foil is covered, rendering it harmless.

Fencing is beneficial to all persons, said Webster, because it develops balance and quickens the response. He added that being a gymnastics and tennis instructor he can see the carry over value of fencing.

Students find the class enjoyable and purposeful.

Ellen Newnam, a student who previously had one year of fencing, is enrolled in Webster's class. She said she had discovered muscles that she hadn't known existed.

Fencing progresses easily, she said. She added the fact the instructor allowed them to begin practicing almost immediately enhanced the pleasure and skill.

Michael Westerholt, another student, has never before fenced, but he said he really likes it.

Westerholt agrees with Miss Newnam that fencing is not at all difficult. After three weeks he said he feels like he knows what he is doing.

He said he would like to continue with fencing for the next two quarters and perhaps someday, if he is good enough, join a fencing team.

As Westerholt put it, "It's fun to try to stab another guy."

Focus on Sports

One of the most colorful spectacles in sports is the start of a big cross country race, with 300 runners simultaneously beginning a quest for victory, where just one man can be the winner.

College of DuPage students will have an opportunity to see this sight on Saturday at 11:00 a.m. as runners from 25 colleges in six states compete in the DuPage Invitational.

The Invitational, in its fifth year, will, as always, be run at Maryknoll Seminary at Rte. 53 and Roosevelt Rd. Maryknoll, a three-mile course two years ago, is now a four-mile run and is considered one of the nation's toughest. It is also one of the few courses where spectators can see the entire race just by moving a few yards.

The Invitational draws the top teams from all over the midwest. It is considered by some experts as a tune-up for the national meet.

Five of the top 15 teams in the nation last year will run Saturday at Maryknoll.

Vincennes University, the winner of last year's DuPage Invitational, is also the defending national champion. Their top runner is Tom Alwine, who led the field at Maryknoll last year and went on to finish eighth in the nation. Alwine will have trouble retaining his title at DuPage this year because he has already been beaten twice this year and both of his conquerors, Frank Flores of Parkland and Dan Slack of Lincolnland will be at Saturday's meet.

Flores was second in the state in 1971 and Slack ran an incredible 19:47 on a four-mile course to beat Alwine at the Vincennes Invitational.

Rounding out the top of the field at Maryknoll last fall were the University of Illinois frosh, DuPage, and Florissant Valley of St. Louis. DuPage finished 15th in the nation while Florissant Valley was 8th.

A new addition to this year's invitational is Haskell Indian Institute of Lawrence, Kan., the nation's number four team in 1971.

Besides Haskell, Vincennes and Florissant Valley, other participants from outside Illinois are Milwaukee Tech, Meramec of St. Louis, and several Michigan schools.

Alwine's course record of 20:38 probably will not stand after Saturday. Last year the first 15 runners broke the previous mark of 21:38.

The Invitational is the only meet of its size where a team may enter 12 runners instead of the usual seven. This is because C/D coach Ron Ottoson, organizer of the meet, feels that everyone should have the opportunity to qualify for the national meet. Consequently, it is probably the biggest field of runners most of the participants will run in this year.

One of the great things about the Invitational is that it costs the College of DuPage nothing to host. Scoring is handled by faculty volunteers and all expenses are covered by a $10 entry fee for each team. The money goes towards awards (the first 10 finishers receive wristwatches) and apples for all the runners when they get back to the DuPage gym. Last year there was even a surplus of funds. Ottoson says if that happens again the extra money will go towards extra awards.

Past winners of the DuPage Invitational:

- 1968 - Northern Illinois University
- 1969 - College of DuPage
- 1970 - College of DuPage
- 1971 - Vincennes University

The College of DuPage soccer team has outscored their opponents 21-6 through six games so far this season. Goalie Terry Chatton has compiled three shutouts while the Chaparrals have not been held scoreless. Leading scorers are:

- Pat Ranahan - 7 goals, 5 assists
- George Kosmos - 6 goals, 1 assist
- Bruce Morris - 4 goals, 3 assists
- Craig Allan - 1 goal, 1 assist
- Rod Prochaska - 2 assists

In last week's Courier we stated that the DuPage women's football team consisted of the same players as the women's volleyball team. This is true, but in saying so we gave the impression that you must play on both teams or neither one. This is not true. New players will be welcomed on either team even though the season has already started. If you are interested in participating in women's football contact Donna Oleson in room J120G, ext. 344. If volleyball is your sport see June Grahn, ext. 503.

Cunnigan stars in 35-19 trouncing

By Don Doxsie

An old gridiron axiom says that the secret to winning football games is to have a solid offensive line. The College of DuPage's offensive line of Doug Christy, Paul Cesaretti, Walt Erdmanis, Bob Wood, and Mike Mackey are making the author of that axiom look like a genius.

The Chaparrals victim last Saturday was Kennedy-King College as DuPage rolled up 318 yard rushing and won going away 35-19.

Larry Cunnigan, who was the chief beneficiary of the line's vicious blocking, ran for 136 yards in 25 carries and scored three times to tie a school record. His first touchdown was a seven-yard run that concluded a 56-yard drive by DuPage on the game's first series. The highlight of the march was a 33-yard gallop by Jim de Visch Eybergen.

Kennedy-King went ahead 13-7 before the Chaparrals scored again early in the second quarter on an eight-yard run by Vince Long.

Until this point the offenses had dominated but for the remainder of the first half the defenses took over.

DuPage extended its narrow lead in the third period when Andy Gaines intercepted a slant pass and raced 37 yards down the sideline to score.

The Statesmen came back quickly as they marched 80 yards to cut the Chaparral lead to two points with little Mike Haynes scoring from the nine-yard line. An attempt for the two-point conversion failed.

As the end of the third quarter neared, DuPage's Ray Severino intercepted for the third time this season and carried the ball back to the Kennedy-King 33. Larry Cunnigan ripped off left tackle for 19 yards and three plays later on fourth down and short yardage, he charged into the end zone from five yards out.

Cunnigan scored for the last time midway through the final period on a four-yard run to cap a 66-yard drive.

Others who ran well for DuPage were de Visch Eybergen with 87 yards, Don Riggle 47 yards, and Long 34 yards.

It's a good thing DuPage has a strong ground game because their total passing yardage Saturday was 33 yards as quarterback Joe Hodal failed to complete a pass in six attempts.

The DuPage defense left something to be desired despite the fact that linebacker Greg Collins came within two of tying the CD record for tackles in one game as he had 15. The Chaparrals allowed 195 yards rushing, the most gained against them this year.

Penalties were also a problem for DuPage as they had 80 yards stepped off against them. Kennedy-King had the same problem as they were penalized 65 yards. Several times, however, the Statesmen were not given penalties when they might have been. Twice DuPage place kicker Jack Manis was sent flying after kicking the ball and no penalty was called. As time ran out in the game, a Kennedy-King player started a fight in the end zone with the Chaparrals' Jim Zarembo. Zarembo displayed good sense by not retaliating, because if he had, both teams probably would have become involved in a massive brawl.

The officials should be excused for missing some calls as they were shorthanded, with three men rather than the usual four.

Manis, despite being decked a couple of times, still managed to tie a school record with five extra point kicks out of five attempts.

Defensive tackle Kurt Sampson was injured and will miss at least one game. Byrl Eddy, who was injured against Morton, has undergone knee surgery. He will be lost for the season.

The Chaparrals next game will be Saturday, Oct. 21 at Joliet. Joliet is ranked 19th in the nation and a victory for DuPage would give them a definite chance at the conference title. DuPage coach Dick Miller said his team will have to play as well offensively as they did against Kennedy-King and better defensively if they expect to beat the Wolves.

six touchdowns this season.

Nancy Shimkus was a standout on defense, intercepting two passes. Mary Baker and Linda Tross also were major factors in shutting out Southwest.

The Chaparrals are now 2-0. Their next game is at home against Morraine Valley October 21 at 12:30.

Quarterback Joe Hodal picks up a first down on a bootleg to set up a DuPage touchdown. The Chaparrals defeated Kennedy-King Saturday 35-19.

Harriers top Joliet

The College of DuPage cross country team made it two dual meets in a row as they beat Joliet on its home course 24-37 on Oct. 12.

Bob Reynolds of Joliet won the race with a time of 21:58. Gary Brown led DuPage finishing second, followed by John Fleckles, fourth, Steve Lawrence, fifth, Randy Bement, sixth, Joe Urban, seventh, Steve Bratton, eighth, Vic Lantz, ninth, Don Plunkett, 11th, Carey Myers, 12th, and Charlie Pogue, 13th.

Coach Ron Ottoson was especially pleased with the close distance between the top three finishers for DuPage.

Saturday at 11:00 a.m., the Roadrunners will host the DuPage Invitational at Maryknoll Seminary. Several of the top teams in the nation will be there.

Girl's volleyball 1972-73 schedule

Tryouts for the College of DuPage basketball squad will begin Monday, Oct. 23 at 3:00. Anyone interested can get further information from head coach Dick Walters in the Intramural office N-4, ext. 466. The season starts Nov. 18.

Golfers tied in first place

The College of DuPage golf team moved into a three-way tie for first place in the N4C with victories over Illinois Valley and Rock Valley last week.

On Oct. 10, DuPage handed Rock Valley their first conference loss 303-316 as Rick Janaes shot a two-under par 70, equalling his previous top mark for the season. Kevin Kramer and Charley Shirk followed with 77's and Ken Hittner shot a 79. Oct. 13 against Illinois Valley, Janaes again led the way with a 77 followed by Kramer 78, Shirk 79, Don Warekois 80, and Mark Schmidt 80. The Apache's best man finished with an 81.

DuPage now has a 5-1 record in the N4C, tying them for first with Rock Valley and Joliet. They have a 7-3 mark overall.

Intramurals

The opening game of the 1972 Intramural football season ended in a lopsided win for a strong Beercats Team. For most of the first quarter the teams exchanged punts with Seagrams Seven getting the edge with a well placed pass from Rod Prochaska to Robin Heiney. Prochaska failed on the run for the extra points. Midway through the 2nd quarter Seagrams Seven got on the scoreboard, when the quarterback, Walker ran 18 yards for a touchdown. Hansen scored the extra point. Just before the half Dean Vaccarino tackled a Seagrams Seven runner deep in Seagram territory. With less than a minute remaining, Hansen scored from the three-yard line.

The second half saw Walker score on a 34-yard pass and pass 28 yards to Cassell for another. Casino of the Beercats added the final touchdown on an 8-yard run. Final score 36-6, Beercats.
