Volume 22, Number 1, Summer 1991

SUMMER EXHIBITIONS

The American Collection. This selection from the Museum's collection includes Elling William Gollings' 1923 oil painting, "Indian Warrior on Horseback," a gift from Dr. and Mrs. Andrew Halvorson of Brookings. Gollings (1878-1932) was born in Pierce City, Idaho, studied briefly at the Art Institute of Chicago, and from about 1904 was showing his paintings in Sheridan, Wyoming, where he was known as "Paint Bill." Like his friend Charles Russell in Montana, Gollings had experience as a cowhand.

Harvey Dunn: Son of the Middle Border. The title of this ongoing exhibition is drawn from Hamlin Garland's 1917 novel, A Son of the Middle Border. Dunn (1884-1952), the son of South Dakota homesteaders, made his reputation as an illustrator, World War I Army artist, teacher, and painter of the homesteaders' experience in South Dakota. This selection from the Museum's extensive collection of his work includes one of his finest Dakota paintings, "Home," painted in the early 1940s and for many years in the collection of his sister, Caroline Dunn Reiland.

Oscar Howe: Dakota Painter. Born at Joe Creek on the Crow Creek Reservation in South Dakota, Howe (1915-83) became one of the most successful graduates of the famous art program at the Santa Fe Indian School in New Mexico. This exhibition includes his 1963 casein painting, "Horses," which was included in the American Federation of Arts' 1968 touring exhibition, "50 Artists from 50 States," and was in 1971 the first Howe painting purchased by the Museum. With its whirlwind composition, the painting celebrates the significance of the horse for the Dakotas, who called it the Sacred Dog.

The Marghab Collection. Marghab hand-embroidered linens were made in Madeira during 1934-78, sold through such fine stores as Georg Jensen in New York, Neiman-Marcus in Dallas, and Bullock's Wilshire in Los Angeles, and are represented in the collection of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York. The complete collection of designs—over 1,800 pieces—was given to the Museum in 1970 by founder Vera Way Marghab of Watertown, South Dakota. One of the most elegant designs, "Les Fleurs," is represented in this exhibition.

American Indian Art. One of the most spectacular works in the Museum's American Indian art collection has its premier showing in this exhibition—a Dakota style eagle feather headdress with colorful "commander" feather and double trail. It was made in 1970 by Ralph Hubbard (1885-1980) of Medora, North Dakota, as a special gift for Harold Shunk of rural Rapid City, South Dakota, who retired in 1968 after 35 years of service in the Bureau of Indian Affairs. Eagle feather headdresses have traditionally been worn by Dakota men (Shunk is a Yankton Dakota Indian) who exemplify virtue and leadership ability.

The South Dakota Collection. Among the works by South Dakota artists in this exhibition is "The Castle," an oil painting by John Banvard (1815-91), given to the Museum by Joanita Kant Monteith of Watertown. Banvard, a New Yorker, made a fortune with his panoramas of the Mississippi, Ohio, and Missouri Rivers, with which he toured in the United States and Europe during the 1850s. He built a splendid home on Long Island, "Glenada," modeled after the European castle in this painting. He lost his fortune in 1880 and came to live with his sons in Watertown, South Dakota, where he produced what must have been a spectacular diorama with moving pictures, lights, and sound, "The Burning of Columbia."

Carl Grupp's 1973 charcoal drawing, "Homage to the Wallendas," and 1980 ink drawing, "Dakota Bouquet," were loaned to a retrospective of the artist's work at Northern Galleries of Northern State University in Aberdeen, South Dakota, this spring. Grupp was born 1939 in Moorhead, Minnesota, studied at the Minneapolis College of Art and Design and Indiana University, and has taught at Augustana College in Sioux Falls since 1969.

Eugene Buechel's Pine Ridge and Rosebud photographs of 1922-42 were shown at the Old Courthouse Museum in Sioux Falls April 28-June 15. Fr. Buechel (1874-1954), a Jesuit priest, served on the Pine Ridge and Rosebud Reservations during 1902-04 and 1907-54, leaving over 2,300 documented negatives and prints of the Lakota people there. The 41 prints in this exhibition were made from his negatives by David Wing of San Diego, California, in 1975, and were given to the Museum in 1984 by St. Francis Mission on the Rosebud.

Lakota Art Treasures will show in Brookings financial institutions during July and August before touring to other communities around the state during the 1991-92 season. Among the 24 articles in the exhibition is a Brule Lakota pipe from the collection of the late Ben Reifel. It has a catlinite bowl and an ash stem that is decorated with plaited porcupine quills, mallard feathers, and silk ribbons. The image of a buffalo head and eagle are worked into the quillwork.

STENDEL ELECTED MUSEUM BOARD PRESIDENT

Jack Stengel of Milbank was elected president of the Museum Board at its annual meeting April 8. Ann McKay Thompson of Pierre was elected vice president and Rex Myers of Brookings secretary. South Dakota State University president Robert T. Wagner reappointed Jim Abbott of Yankton, L.D. Andrews of Sioux Falls, and Phyllis Bartling and Mary Thompson of Brookings to three-year terms on the Board. Sturgis sculptor Dale Lamphere was awarded the Board's 15th Artistic Achievement Citation at the meeting, and presented a talk on his work.

EXHIBITIONS FROM THE MUSEUM

American Indian Artists, a selection of 28 paintings by Arthur Amiotte (Lakota), John Gritts (Cherokee), Oscar Howe (Dakota), Al Momaday (Kiowa), Don Montileaux (Lakota), Robert Penn (Lakota-Omaha), Herman Red Elk (Dakota), Andrew Standing Soldier (Lakota), Calvin Tyndall (Omaha), and Pablita Velarde (Tewa) from the Museum collection, will be shown at the Civic Fine Arts Center in Sioux Falls during September. The exhibition coincides with the Northern Plains Tribal Arts show and market in Sioux Falls.

Charles Greener: Prairie Painter will show at Cozard Memorial Library in Chamberlain, South Dakota, during October. Greener (1870-1935) was born in Wisconsin and settled in Faulkton, South Dakota, in 1890. His 1914 painting, "Minnehaha Creek," one of 16 in this exhibition, was chosen for the first survey of regional painting at the Saint Paul Institute in 1915. Greener was represented in the 1932 "American Scene" exhibition at the John Herron Art Institute in Indianapolis, and is featured in William Gerdt's new art history, Art Across America.

RECENT ACQUISITION

"Magic Mountain Blues" by Kay Cheever of Brookings, a 1990 wool block weaving, 30 x 30", has been given in memory of L. T. Vern Laustsen by his family and friends. Laustsen was a member of the Museum Board and his North Plains Press in Aberdeen, South Dakota, published Robert Karolevitz's award-winning biography of Harvey Dunn, Where Your Heart Is. "Magic Mountain Blues" is featured in the forthcoming Fiberarts Design Book Four, published by Sterling Publishing Company in New York. Cheever, a native of Brookings, studied at the University of Denver and University of Georgia, taught art in Clear Lake and Madison, South Dakota, and weaving at South Dakota State University in Brookings.

A DISTINGUISHED VISITOR

Charles Andres of North Berwick, Maine, a student of Harvey Dunn at the Grand Central School of Art in New York during the 1940s, paid his first visit to the Museum and its collection of Harvey Dunn paintings in April. It was a long-overdue "pilgrimage," according to Andres, indicating the respect he holds for his former mentor. Like most of Dunn's students, Andres made his mark in the world of illustration. After Andres, his wife Jane, and son Mark of Portland, Oregon, had the opportunity to see the 94 works by Dunn in the Museum collection, a reception was held in their honor in the Museum galleries.

KIRKBRIDE ELECTED MUSEUM GUILD PRESIDENT

Dee Kirkbride was elected president of the Museum Guild for 1991-92 at its annual meeting April 23. Kay Romans was elected vice president, Margy Chamberlin secretary, Cookie Perkins treasurer, Elaine Olson historian, and Joanne Johnson and Larry Stine members-at-large. All are from Brookings. Aurora painter Dorothy Morgan presented a talk on her work at the meeting. The Guild is responsible for visitor reception, guiding tours, and the Museum's art-in-the-schools program, and raises funds for Museum acquisitions through its annual fashion show.

MUSEUM RECEIVES ARTS COUNCIL SUPPORT

The South Dakota Arts Council, a state agency with funds from the State Legislature and National Endowment for the Arts, has awarded a $14,340 General Operating Support Grant to the Museum. The funds will be used to support Museum special exhibitions, touring exhibitions for other communities in the state, films, and lectures during 1991-92 — programs which will benefit over 70,000 people.
