VIMY VETS CRUSH FINGERS

When Vimy Ridge veterans get together, there's always a handshake in the offing. Two of the oldest survivors of Canada's most famous battle,

Lt. Col. J. B. Gemmill, right, and George Anderson, span the past with a friendly "finger crusher" at a special veterans' re-union banquet,

Wednesday by branch 26, Kelowna, Royal Canadian Legion in honor of Vimy veterans. Mr. Gemmill is 83 years old, while Mr. Ander-

Czech Leaders To Crush Rebels

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Czechoslovak leaders moved today to squash opposition to government policy among troops, some of whom are accused of taking part in recent anti-Soviet demonstrations.

The defence ministry, which Wednesday night disclosed the participation by troops in anti-Soviet activities, said those involved will face tough disciplinary action.

There have been constant reports here recently of unrest in army ranks, swollen by young reformers opposed to the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia in August.

However, the defence ministry announcement did not specify the nature of the protest among soldiers—or if any servicemen were involved in violent demonstrations against Soviet property here 12 days ago after Czechoslovak victories against Russia at the world hockey championships in Stockholm.

A joint statement issued by a military council, meeting under Defence Minister Martin Dzur, and the political bureau of the defence department, under Gen. Frantisek Bedrich, said investigations showed that "during anti-Soviet and anti-social incidents, members of the Czechoslovak military also took part."

A CTK news agency report of the statement did not say when the incidents took place or how many troops were involved. But it said army chiefs would work hard to strengthen staff discipline.

LUDVIK SVOBODA
...troops inspected

President Ludvik Svoboda paid frequent visits to military installations last week, apparently to counter a morale crisis reported in many army units.

The Communist party leadership has introduced a series of restrictive measures against the press and wayward party members after outbreaks of anti-Soviet feeling in various cities to celebrate the Czechoslovak hockey victories.

Informed sources said many prominent Czechoslovak journalists have been invited to talks at Communist party headquarters following threats of action against reporters whose articles do not conform to official policy.

Flood Fighters Surrender 18 Blocks Of Sioux Falls

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Flood fighters surrendered an 18-square-block area of Sioux Falls, S.D., to the surging Big Sioux river today after a night-long battle to plug a 100-foot break in a dike in the city's Riverside district.

"We dumped in more than 100 tons of rock, we threw in car bodies and anything else we could lay our hands on," said Joe Vandenberg, Minnehaha County civil defence director, shortly before daybreak. "But it was undermining faster than we could fill it up."

"After eight hours we finally gave up."

The entire area, which contains a meat-packing plant, the Sioux Falls stockyards, and about 50 homes, was evacuated and sealed off by roadblocks. Waters are expected to reach a depth of 25 to 30 feet before cresting.

Vandenberg said pressure of the rising river, swollen by melting snow, washed away "boulders" in front of the dike early Wednesday evening, and the dike itself went out soon after.

Some 90 miles downstream, the Big Sioux lapped at levees where it flows into the Missouri at Sioux City, Iowa, and residents of the Iowa community of Cherokee waited in emergency shelters for the Little Sioux to crest.

AROUND B.C.

Boy, 5, Drowns Near Home

SAYWARD (CP) — Timothy Cook, 5, drowned in a backyard creek Wednesday in this Northern Vancouver Island community. He was found floating face-down in a pool behind his parents' home.

WON PLOWING
CHILLIWACK (CP) — Charles Thomson, 19, of Chilliwack, won the B.C. open class at the 47th annual Chilliwack plowing match Wednesday. He scored 77 per cent, three points ahead of Charles Hayton, 37, a Chilliwack dairy farmer.

MAN SOUGHT
PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Police Wednesday night were searching for Henry George Miskeneck, 26, who escaped earlier during the day from the provincial jail here. He was due to be released in November after serving a one-year sentence for a false pretences conviction.

NEW PRESIDENT
VANCOUVER (CP) — James Killeen, 35, vice-principal of Vancouver's John Oliver secondary school, was Wednesday elected president of the B.C. Teachers' Federation. He succeeds Tom Hitchelson of Invermere and will take over the office July 1.

DOLLAR FIRM
NEW YORK (CP) — Canadian dollar unchanged at 92 1/2 in terms of U.S. funds, Pound sterling down 3-32 at $2.39 3/4.

MANITOBA CONFIDENT

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba water control branch said today there is no reason to reverse previous forecasts of 1966-level flooding on the Red and Assiniboine rivers.

The 1966 flood caused extensive damage to farmland and forced evacuation of a number of valley communities. Since then, permanent dikes have been built at Morris, Emerson, St. Jean, Letellier and St. Adolphe, all upstream from Winnipeg on the Red River.

Sirhan Spits Obscenities

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sirhan Bishara Sirhan glowered and spat obscenities as the state called him "less than a full man" and a liar who should be convicted of first-degree murder for slaying Senator Robert F. Kennedy.

Not once in a low-key day-long summation Wednesday did prosecutor David N. Pitts ask for or even mention the maximum penalty—death in the gas chamber. The degree, not the penalty, is at stake in this phase of the trial.

NEWS IN A MINUTE

Talks On Sino-Canadian Links Confirmed
WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada's external affairs minister Mitchell Sharp, confirmed today that Red China has agreed to negotiations with Ottawa on the question of establishing diplomatic relations.

India's Hospital Strike 'Illegal'
NEW DELHI (Reuters) — The Indian government today declared illegal a strike by more than 1,000 junior doctors that has paralysed eight hospitals in the city for eight days.

IWA To Protest B.C. Order On Log Sales
VANCOUVER (CP) — International Woodworkers of America said today it would protest a provincial order-in-council which the union says side-steps a prohibition on log exports until Sept. 1.

De Gaulle Pushes Stakes To Limit
PARIS (AP) — French president de Gaulle threatened today to resign if voters reject his referendum bill on decentralization and Senate reform next April 27. True to form, the 78-year-old president pushed the stakes to the limit, probably hoping to stir voters from the indifference with which they have generally viewed the referendum.

Scientist Opposes ABM Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Ralph E. Lapp, a key scientific adviser to Senate opponents of the Safeguard defence program, says the Nixon administration's decision to build the anti-ballistic missile system is an incredible mistake.

"Security just can't be achieved that way," physicist Lapp said in an interview amplifying on his challenge to the proposed Safeguard ABM system. "It seems to me that this whole business is incredible."

"What we're doing is building up forces that will provoke the Russians into building up unlimited forces."

Lapp, 51, is a long-time critic of the defence department and the Atomic Energy Commission who has had a way of turning out to be right.

His latest effort strikes at the roots of the administration's reasoning for deploying the controversial Safeguard—that American nuclear missiles must be protected from a Russian nuclear "first strike."

The position was laid out by Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird, who told Congress the Soviet Union is building toward a first-strike capability. He based the prediction on reports the Russians are planning to deploy a huge new missile known as the SS-9, capable of carrying one massive warhead or, later, three smaller ones.

Laird said that with the growing number of SS-9 missiles the Soviet Union might reach the point of being able to destroy enough U.S. Minuteman missile sites that Soviet leaders would be tempted to initiate a first strike.

In a report prepared voluntarily for senators opposing the Safeguard, Lapp said the SS-9 is not intended to give a first-strike capability because even a large-scale attack would not guarantee the Soviets against retaliation.

Bandits Kill Brink's Guard

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A Brink's Inc. armed guard was slain today in what police said was an apparently vain holdup attempt at a dairy company office.

The guard, identified as John Giendening, 63, was cut down in a shootout which erupted as he was carrying a payroll up a flight of stairs at the H. P. Hood and Sons, Inc., plant.

'Cheer up! If they stopped fighting, our job would be finished in Paris.'

Viet Cong Blames U.S.

PARIS (AP) — A representative of the Viet Cong accused the United States today of spreading rumors about private Vietnam peace talks in an effort to calm anti-war sentiment in the U.S.

Than Bui Kiem, spokesman for the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front, told the 12th full-scale session of the Vietnam peace talks that the reports of private meetings are part of a "perfidious manoeuvre" to make the U.S. public believe the Nixon administration has a program for a peaceful settlement. The United States continued to hammer at the presence of North Vietnamese forces in the South and to seek discussions on a mutual withdrawal of forces.

Nixon Proffers NATO's 'Hand' To Soviet Bloc

Nuclear Offer Fails

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon said today the Western allies stand ready—"as conditions change"—to turn the "fist" of defence "into a hand of friendship" toward the Soviets and their allies.

At the same time the U.S. president, in a policy speech for the 20th anniversary conference of North Atlantic Treaty Organization ministers, offered a three-point plan for tightening political co-ordination among the 15 NATO countries.

He proposed: —Periodic meetings of NATO deputy foreign ministers "for a high-level review of major, long-range problems before the alliance."

—Creation of a special political planning group to "address itself specifically and continually to the longer-range problems we face."

—Formation of "a committee on the challenges of modern society... to explore ways in which the experience and the resources of the Western nations could most effectively be marshalled toward improving the quality of life of our peoples."

ENTERS THIRD DECADE

In this connection, Nixon said the Western alliance as it enters its third decade needs not only a strong military defence but also "a more profound political dimension to shape a strategy of peace" and a "social dimen-

Friendship Theme Sounded As Allies Meet In Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon said today the Western allies stand ready—"as conditions change"—to turn the "fist" of defence "into a hand of friendship" toward the Soviets and their allies.

At the same time the U.S. president, in a policy speech for the 20th anniversary conference of North Atlantic Treaty Organization ministers, offered a three-point plan for tightening political co-ordination among the 15 NATO countries.

—Formation of "a committee on the challenges of modern society... to explore ways in which the experience and the resources of the Western nations could most effectively be marshalled toward improving the quality of life of our peoples."

UNITY NEEDED

But he recalled the late president Dwight D. Eisenhower spoke of need for unity in addressing the NATO ministerial group 10 years ago.

Eisenhower had noted that there is not much strength in one finger of a hand but "when five fingers are balled into a fist, you have a very considerable instrument of defence." Nixon recalled.

"We need such an instrument of defence; the United States will bear its fair share in keeping NATO strong," Nixon added.

"All of us are also ready, as conditions change, to turn that fist into a hand of friendship," he said.

Big Naval Manoeuvres Set

NAPLES, Italy (Reuters) — NATO will hold large-scale manoeuvres in the Mediterranean Sea from April 20 to May 2, it was announced today as Russia built up its Mediterranean fleet to about 40 ships.

The manoeuvres will range throughout the sea, the headquarters of Allied forces in southern Europe announced here.

The announcement was made as the eighth Soviet ship in 24 hours sailed through the Straits of Gibraltar to join the Russian Mediterranean fleet.

The new NATO exercise, called Dawn Patrol, will involve more than 60 warships and 300 aircraft from five NATO powers—the U.S., Britain, Italy, Greece and Turkey.

Red Chinese Go Historical

PEKING (AFP) — The Chinese leadership, in choosing to hold the ninth congress of the Communist party this month, seems to have wanted to stress the historic significance of the congress, observers here believe.

The date of the congress marks the end of 50 years of the Chinese revolutionary movement and inaugurates a new half century during which the thought of Chairman Mao Tse-tung is expected by the Chinese to conquer the world.

The start of the Chinese revolution is dated from the May 4 Movement—the demonstrations of May 4, 1919, against the Treaty of Versailles which awarded the former German concessions in China to Japan.

In recent days, the Chinese press has repeatedly quoted one of Mao's predictions, given a special pertinence by the ninth congress:

"The coming 50 or 100 years will constitute a great era of radical change in the social system of the world. It is a period which will make the earth tremble as never before in any other period of history."

Pakistanis 'Need Peace'

RAWALPINDI (Reuters) — President Yahya Khan indicated today his new martial-law government is satisfied with an existing system of bilateral relations with China, the United States and Russia.

Speaking at his first news conference since taking power March 25, the army commander in chief also said Pakistan wants to stay "outside the pale of major power conflicts."

"We have been able to build up useful bilateral relations with the major powers," Yahya said in a reference to policies followed by former president Ayub Khan.

Nigerian Commander Certain Of Taking Umuahia In Few Days

UZUAKOLI, Nigeria (AP) — Marking time within eight miles of the last major town held by the Biafran rebels, the commander of the Nigerian 44th Brigade says his men could take Umuahia, the secessionist headquarters, in five or six days.

Maj. Moaman Vatsas said Wednesday he could keep Umuahia under harassing fire with 105-millimetre howitzers, but "I don't want to waste the shells."

He said he had not received orders to advance on Umuahia and was keeping his troops busy digging bunkers and searching for snipers left behind when Biafran troops retreated before the advancing federal brigade during the weekend.

Between Vatsas's troops and Umuahia are heavily-mined roads studded with booby traps. As the rebel soldiers retreated south to their "capital," they jammed sharpened stakes into the dirt road to disable the federals' oncoming vehicles. Some of the vehicles tried to escape the traps by driving around them and were blown up along the heavily-mined roadside.

New Battles Rage Along Suez Canal

TEL AVIV (CP) — Another battle broke out along the Suez Canal today between artillery and tank units of Israel and Egypt.

An Israeli army spokesman said Egyptian gunners opened fire on Israeli troops near Ismailia in the northern sector of the 103-mile waterway and near Port Taufiq at the southern end.

About a dozen shells had been lobbed from Egypt at Israeli troops two hours earlier, but the Israelis did not return fire, he said.

Cairo radio charged Israeli forces opened up with artillery and tank fire along a 60-mile length of the Suez Canal.

It added the Israelis started firing in the Port Taufiq-Suez area and then extended the battle northward to the region of El Qantara.

ATTACK PATROL
The Israeli spokesman said that earlier Arab guerrillas fired bazooka shells on an Israeli Army patrol near the Sea of Galilee.

Surgeon Personally Sought Heart Transplant Inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Michael E. DeBakey personally asked the National Heart Institute to investigate whether federal guidelines helped develop the mechanical heart Karp received and, if so, whether federal guidelines for such projects were followed.

DeBakey's artificial heart program has been supported by $1,500,000 in federal money. Cooley's aides said his device was financed by the Texas Heart Institute and research grants from heart associations in Allice, Huntsville and Welmar, Tex. Because of this, Cooley said, federal guidelines requiring the approval of a local committee of doctors before using experimental procedures on humans do not affect him.

Cooley placed a human heart in Karp's chest after the mechanical pump had kept him alive 65 hours. Karp died Tuesday when rejection symptoms were complicated by pneumonia and failing kidneys.

SUPERVISED CHANGES
Dr. Domingo Liotta, the Argentine native who developed the artificial heart in 1959, credited Cooley with supervising during the last four months certain extreme modifications that opened the way for its use on Karp.

He said federal funds were used through the years to gain experience and knowledge, but the heart used on Karp was not federally financed.

Karp's widow said Wednesday she was more than satisfied with everything that had been done for him.

CRISIS IN CEYLON
The Tamil Federal party has decided to break away from the government of Premier Dudley Senanayake, above, of Ceylon because it says the government has not fulfilled a promise to decentralize the administration.

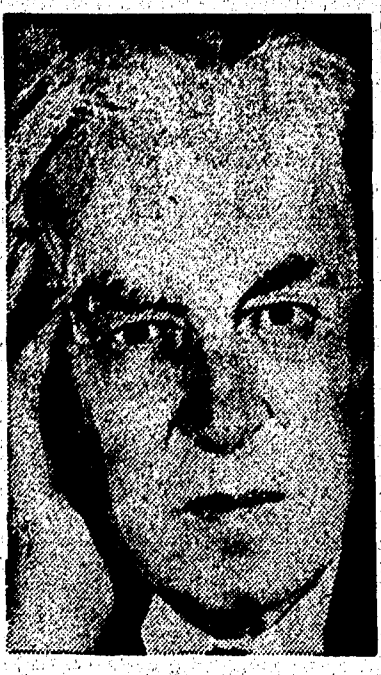

But the government still has a majority of 10 in the 15-member House of Representatives.

Another Recount Possible In Comox-Alberni Riding

The possibility of yet another recount in the Comox-Alberni federal riding looms in the wake of New Democrat Tom Barnett's cliffhanger victory over Liberal incumbent Richard Durand Tuesday. Mr. Barnett, 59, held a 240-vote lead over Mr. Durand, 38, with only one tiny poll with about 14 votes still to be counted in the sprawling Vancouver Island riding. Mr. Barnett had 12,597 votes to Mr. Durand's 12,354 late Wednesday. Blair McLean of the Progressive Conservative party got 2,350. Moe Bauche, president of the Comox-Alberni Liberal Association, said the party will wait for the official count April 17 and then talk with party officials in Vancouver and Ottawa before making a decision on a recount. "I think we'll be demanding one if the official count shows only about a 200-vote margin," he said.

ARNOLD TONYBEE
... new colonialists

Maj.-Gen. D. Sepala Aitayalle, commander in chief of the Ceylonese army, arrived in Ottawa Wednesday to begin a 10-day tour of Canadian defence establishments. He will meet senior Canadian officers in Ottawa Thursday and Friday.

Historian Arnold J. Tonybee says in London the United States and Israel have taken up the art of colonialism where the European nations left off after the Second World War. Tonybee depicted the Vietnam conflict and Israel's running war with the Arab states as colonial wars. "For a brief moment it looked as if the end of European colonialism were going to be the end of colonialism itself," he wrote in his new book Experiences since the close of the Second World War, the Americans and Israelis have rushed in where West Europeans now fear to tread."

Aislin Pohoer, president of the French Senate, Wednesday placed a wreath at the memorial near Arras, in memory of Canadian troops who fell in the Battle of Vimy Ridge in 1917.

Franco-Quebec Co-Operation To Be Subject At Paris Meet

PARIS (CP) — A review of Franco-Quebec co-operation and plans for more such projects in future will be discussed here next week by representatives of both governments.

The officials, consisting of civil servants involved in the co-operation work, will meet against a background of pledges by Quebec and France that joint activities will be stepped up in such fields as education, culture and technology.

Meanwhile, federal officials in Paris are preparing for Ottawa-backed projects scheduled for France, which include a $250,000 Canadian participation in next month's Paris Air Show. The show is a major buying magnet for aeronautical experts from around the world.

Canada's display is expected to feature an array of space and electronic equipment. Canadian planes designed for use in fighting forest fires already are well known in Europe.

Tonight's appearance on French television by President de Gaulle will be watched closely by representatives of both Ottawa and Quebec. The broadcast, in the form of an interview, takes place 17 days before France votes in a referendum on de Gaulle's proposals for less centralized government and a reorganized senate.

Any pronouncements by the general, whether or not they are likely to focus on French domestic issues, are given the keenest attention by Canadians here.

There is some doubt expressed in federal circles that planned reduction of Canadian troop commitments in Europe will affect de Gaulle's attitude to Ottawa—although the president is a longtime advocate of greater independence on the part of medium-sized countries from the world's two big power blocs.

LAY THE GROUNDWORK
Next week's Franco-Quebec talks will establish the basis for what is termed the plenary meeting in June of the agency which administers co-operation between Paris and Quebec City.

TODAY'S STOCK QUOTATIONS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market advanced fractionally in mid-morning trading today after opening with small loss. Trading was moderate.

Longshoremen Vote 'Yes'

MONTREAL (CP) — Longshoremen in Montreal, Trois-Rivieres and Quebec City Wednesday accepted a new three-year contract with the Shipping Federation of Canada, heralding what Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey called "the dawn of a new era."

About 4,000 members of the International Longshoremen's Association voted overwhelming approval of the agreement, which provides them with a guaranteed 37 weeks of work at 40 hours a week and average wage increases of 84 cents an hour.

Average hourly rate in the third year will be $4.60. Labor strife on the docks in recent years led to threats from shippers that they might be forced to find alternate transportation routes, bypassing Montreal where 2,200 longshoremen are employed.

The new contract, effective Sunday, also provides for additional pension benefits and greater job security.

ESTABLISH A FUND
The union agreed that no restrictions would be placed on container cargo handling and in return the shippers said they would establish a "technological displacement fund" to protect longshoremen against innovations in cargo handling.

Brian Mulrooney, counsel for the shipping federation, said the port of Montreal might attract new business as a result of the flexibility of container clauses.

Montreal is the first port on the eastern seaboard in which the ILA has agreed not to restrict containerization.

Had a agreement not been reached, a strike at the three ports would have been legal seven days after a conciliation board report was submitted to Mr. Mackasey.

CP Sails Containers

LONDON (CP) — Canadian Pacific today inaugurated its first container-ship freight service between Britain, continental Europe and Canada when the 4,000-ton Eemstroom sailed from Tilbury in the Thames bound for Rotterdam and Quebec City.

The Eemstroom, under charter to Canadian Pacific, is the first of two container vessels scheduled to be in fortnightly service to Quebec by the end of April. The Canadian Pacific cargo ship now undergoing conversion to take the packaged container freight and scheduled to sail for Canada April 24.

A third ship, now being built, will be chartered by Canadian Pacific and put into service at the beginning of August. It will sail under the name Beavermondo and will put the service on a weekly basis.

All three of the initial fleet will carry about 140 of the special freight containers. Three larger ships, now under construction for Canadian Pacific at Birkenhead, are scheduled to take over the service by August, 1970. Each will be of 16,000 tons deadweight and carry 700 containers—200 of them above decks.

As part of the new freight service, Canadian Pacific has set up depots at industrial centres throughout Britain. At Wolfe's Cove, Que., the company is investing $2,000,000 in new facilities, including $500,000 on rail development.

The over-all marketing program being put into operation throughout Canada and Europe is designed to make full use of the company's diverse transportation network. Stanley Byars, manager of the company's North Atlantic freight service, said Canadian Pacific is capable of making a major contribution to developing the two-way trade between Canada and Britain "and we intend to exercise our potential to the fullest extent."

Wayne Douglas Brevik, 20, of Gull Lake, Sask., and Stoner, 22 miles south of Prince George, was killed Tuesday when a car he was driving went over a bank. Police said the accident occurred on a straight, dry section of road.

The Bearded Sikhs of India, who lost two wars to the British a century ago, won a battle Wednesday against the industrial city of Wolverhampton. Transport officials surrendered and agreed that Sikhs could work on the city's buses and wear their beards and turbans instead of the regulation uniform. The battle was led by a 63-year-old Sikh leader named Sohan Singh Jolly, who had threatened to set himself on fire Sunday unless Wolverhampton's transport committee lifted its ban on turbaned busmen.

The best cure for overweight may be bad cooking, isolation, and a broken watch, a Columbia University psychologist said Wednesday in New York. Dr. Stanley Schacter told a science writers' seminar that recent experiments had shown the appetites of obese persons are largely triggered by external cues such as sight, taste, smell and time. The fullness or emptiness of the stomach has little to do with it, he said. Schacter added that anxiety commonly believed to be a cause of overeating, is not an important factor in his opinion.

Mill Workers Stay On Strike

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP)—Members of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada union voted Wednesday night to stay off the job at MacMillan Bloedel's Harmae division until their grievances are settled.

Earlier in the day, the company won an injunction restraining 35 electrical workers from picketing the mill after a dispute over the electricians' demands for jurisdiction over new safety equipment.

Stan Showaga, president of the paper workers' local, said the 1,000 men voted not to return to work until grievances involving seniority, overtime and employment of outside contractors are settled.

Italian Town A 'Powder Keg'

BATTIPAGLIA (AP) — "Assassins! Beat Them! Kill them!" the angry crowds cried at police today in this south Italian town as the toll from a day of battling rose to three dead and more than 140 injured.

"It's a powder keg," said an official of the 2,000 riot police guarding the town on the coastal plain south of Salerno. "It could explode again at any minute, and it would be worse than yesterday."

Angry crowds began gathering soon after dawn in the square before the burned and wrecked town hall, scene of the worst of the fighting Wednesday.

The third fatality was a child who was hit by a police car during the motorized charges against the rioters in the streets Wednesday. The other two dead were killed by gunshot wounds.

As word of the child's death spread through the square, people in the crowd began to shout at the police on guard behind plastic shields.

There were scuffles as the crowd tried to break into the ruined town hall again. Police with tear gas patrolled the streets, and others stood by at an army barracks just outside town.

The violence Wednesday at Battipaglia brought a new call from Italy's biggest union and its Communist party mentors for disarmament of the police. The General Federation of Labor also urged a wave of protest strikes and demonstrations as "a united adequate response to the tragic police violence."

It was the bloodiest outburst since two striking farmers were killed by police bullets in Sicily last December. That brought on a nationwide rash of strikes and demonstrations and leftist demands that the police be disbanded.

The violence in Battipaglia, about 40 miles southeast of Naples, grew out of a local general strike to protest layoffs at the government tobacco factory in the town of 26,000.

Cost Of Living In Canada Takes Another Step Upwards

OTTAWA (CP) — Higher clothing, transportation and housing costs pushed the consumer price index up to 123.2 in March from 122.6 in February, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

It was the first movement in the index, based on 1961 prices equalling 100, since January.

Price levels of food and of health and personal care both decreased slightly.

The index a year ago was 118.6 and this year's March figure represents a 3.9-per-cent increase over it.

The bureau said higher quotations for new lines of spring clothing, combined with the removal of mid-winter sales prices, helped boost the clothing index by 1.6 per cent.

The recreation and reading index was the only other main component to register an increase.

The dip in the food index, to 123.8 from 123.9 in February, was due to lower meat, dairy products and egg prices outweighing increases for fresh fruits and vegetables.

Meat "specials" lowered the prices of beef steaks, ham and bacon but chicken prices rose in a number of centres. In Toronto and some other eastern cities, increases of 50 per cent and more since the previous month were recorded in the retail prices of lettuce, reflecting almost a doubling of prices at wholesale.

Other notable but lesser increases were recorded for tomatoes, apples and canned and frozen orange juice.

Spring Clinic Seeking Blood

Better stock-up on those red corpuscles. The Kelowna and district branch of the Red Cross Society will be looking for them at their spring blood donor drive May 6 to 8.

A blood clinic will be set up in the First United Church Hall, 721 Bernard Ave., between the hours of 1:30 and 4:30 p.m., and 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

To ease donor pains for mothers, a baby-sitting service during clinic hours will be available, in addition to free transportation (two drivers) during both clinic-hour time periods.

More incentive for the attainment of the objective target of 1,500 pints has been added this year with the establishment of two trophies for highest percentage of eligible donors from business firms and service clubs. Winners will be recipients of the Olga Horn Memorial trophy, and the Kelowna Junior Chamber of Commerce service club trophy.

Last year, Kelowna and district residents responded with 1,503 pints of blood at the spring clinic held April 23 to 25.

"We're a little late this year," said Mrs. Richard Stirling, chairman of the local blood donor committee. She lauded the response of residents to the clinic objective, which she says runs "generally pretty close" to target. Another clinic is also held in the fall, with a total of 1,330 pints of blood contributed last year. She said this year's fall clinic date has not been set, although it could possibly be in October.

Donors wishing transportation during clinic hours are asked to call 2-3311.

Final House Numbering Phase Soon Started By Local Jaycees

A project to provide Okanagan Mission residents with house numbers is progressing "quite satisfactorily".

Brian Wilson, assistant chairman of the Kelowna Junior Chamber of Commerce committee handling the house-numbering project said special forms for Okanagan Mission residents will be distributed this week and next in stores in the area.

The forms advise the residents to send legal descriptions of their property to the Jaycees who will in turn notify the residents what their number is. The legal description can be found on tax notices.

Designed to allow house-to-house mail delivery in the area, the project has attracted the Rutland Chamber of Commerce. The Kelowna Jaycees and the Rutland Teen Town will both offer their help in Rutland.

A personal appearance by Jaycees involved in the project is planned in the Mission for April 26, to be held at a retail outlet in the area. A question-and-answer period will be held for Mission residents.

Some parts of the project still have to be checked with the Jaycees' executive and the project workers are still waiting for some information from the Kelowna Post Office.

SEEN and HEARD

Officials at Fort William made an effort, but failed, in their attempt to greet bowlers from Kelowna last week. The Kelowna team was competing in the Western Canada Five-Pin Roll-offs. Greeting them in Fort William was a sign reading: Welcome Bowlers From Kelowna. Sounds like Tom and Joe did a bit of advance work.

Whatever happened to the fine old art of kite-making and flying? Not too many years ago dozens of different shaped and colored kites could be seen whenever a breeze made conditions ideal. A small kite stuck to telephone wires on Lakeshore Road is evidence of a boyhood art which has almost died.

Kelowna's fame is spreading. In recent weeks the Kelowna chamber of commerce has received requests for information from people considering moving here from such places as California, New York, Michigan, Illinois, Florida and even England. Chamber manager Bill Stevenson is a bit surprised by some of the far-a-way requests, but at the same time is gratified.

A ready explanation is available for any extra sky activity you might have noticed above the Central Okanagan Wednesday night and early today. Air defence forces of the North American Air Defence Command (NORAD) and the Strategic Air Command (SAC) joined for a training exercise above southwestern United States and southwestern Canada. The Okanagan was considered on the fringe of the exercise area and any aircraft over this area were here for less than an hour. The routine practises are held several times each year.

Somebody's got their wires crossed—in fact, a lot of people. People in several areas of the city this week have been receiving phone calls they know nothing about. "The wires are crossed," an Okanagan Telephone Company operator said today after he dialed one number and got another.

Many of the trails around Knox Mountain park have been blocked by fallen trees, which found the winter's heavy snow output too much for them. Their strength sapped, as it were, the trees crashed across the trails and in other parts of the park's forested areas. A cursory count Monday showed that on one trail alone, 20 trees were down. Damaged trees throughout the park could number more than a thousand.

Contest Cancelled

The teen-age safe driving contest, usually held in late May or early June, has been permanently cancelled.

After a provincial junior chamber of commerce decision to call off the event across B.C., the local Jaycees have announced Kelowna will be no exception.

Organized more than 10 years ago on a national basis, the teen-oriented safe driving competitions are now not as useful as they used to be, the B.C. Jaycees have decided. In other cities in the province, the Jaycees have turned to sponsoring driving courses, but Kelowna already has a sponsored course.

A Kelowna Jaycees spokesman said today the organization here has been asked to come up with another driving theme to sponsor, but this will not likely be organized until 1970.

Five Month Hunt Ended

Bail of $500 surety was set by magistrate D. M. White today for Edward Roderick, Rutland, charged with fraudulently obtaining money and groceries by means of a worthless cheque.

The man was in custody today; RCMP found him after a one-month search. He was remanded to next Thursday without plea.

Also in custody today was Frederick Swift, Westbank, who pleaded guilty to assaulting his wife. He was remanded to appear Friday in family court.

There were two convictions today: Humphrey Payne, Kelowna, $50 for causing an unnecessary noise by squealing his tires; and James Lawlor, Kelowna, $35 for driving without due care and attention.

NEWEST MEMBER

Entertainment was provided by newest branch member, Arthur Dutton, from Verdun Branch, four, Quebec, with two musical monologues entitled spotty and the green eye of the little yellow God. He was introduced by Francis Tobias, entertainment committee chairman.

Head table guests present were: Mayor R. F. Parkinson; M. M. Jessop, president of Branch 26; Capt. Ed. Dickens, OC, army cadets; Capt. Jeff Bridges, OC, air force cadets; Mrs. W. S. Leitch, branch 26 padre; Mrs. Gordon Allan, president of the Ladies Auxiliary to branch 26; Mrs. C. Dowle, mother of the ladies auxiliary, branch 26, comrades and branch 26 past presidents, George Kennedy, Jack Gordon, Percy Maundrell, Jack Bews, Art Gordon, Harold Whitehouse and Al Byers.

NEWEST MEMBER

Executive changes and formal recognition of new members has rolled around again for Kelowna service clubs.

"The Kelowna Lions Club plan to 'do it up brown' this year with fraternal dignitaries at a special election of officers and installation of new members meeting tentatively scheduled for June 28.

Election of officers and new member installations of the Kelowna Junior Chamber of Commerce will be held this year May 12 and June 14.

SATISFACTORY

Local lawyer R. J. S. (Reg) Moir, injured last Thursday in a five-car crash, is listed today in "satisfactory" condition by Kelowna General Hospital. Mr. Moir was taken to hospital suffering a "crushed" shoulder, broken ribs and head injuries as a result of the accident at Harvey Avenue and Pandosy Street and was later listed in "fair" condition.

FOR VOLUNTEERS

Mrs. Donna DeMara, director of Kelowna International Regatta Association social events, and her committee are in the final stages of the pre-regatta party for volunteer workers April 17. She is anxious to hear from all volunteer Regatta workers planning to attend, so proper catering arrangements can be made.

ONE FORCE

Even though the services were now one force, Mr. Maundrell said, "one can't do a thing without the other," he conceded, although at Vimy "they didn't have battleships or aeroplanes dropping bombs" on the enemy. Addressing the gathering following the Vimy toast by Mr.

Host Of Tributes Go To Vimy Vets

While plaudits, accolades and tributes rained like shrapnel around them, more than 40 veterans of Vimy Ridge sat in quiet reminiscence of a 52-year-old memory at an anniversary banquet held Wednesday by branch 26, Kelowna, Royal Canadian Legion, in commemoration of Canada's most famous battle.

Ceremoniously led in by Legion Sergeant At Arms, Tom Brummitt, the men who helped conquer Vimy were bombarded with applause, verbal honors and fraternal recognition by more than 100 local legionnaires, as well as rhetoric bouquets from civic, service club and military head table guests.

Complimenting the Vimy veterans on "looking younger every year," Mayor R. F. Parkinson described their First World War victory as a "tremendous job for Canada that made Canada," and "all of us appreciate the work you did."

HISTORY TOLD

In a tribute-toast to the Vimy guests of honor, R. E. Nourse, Kelowna industrial commissioner, provided the most dramatic highlight of the evening with a history of the battle which he described as the first major Commonwealth victory of the First World War.

"On April 8, 1917, our nation was a British Colony," he said. "On April 10, this country was a nation."

As a conflict that cost the lives of 10,000 Canadian soldiers, the conquest of Vimy Ridge, said Mr. Nourse, came at an "opportune time" in the middle of the Russian revolution and United States entry in the war one week before. Unlike other battles that faded in memory, Vimy was "firmly implanted" on the men who took part in it and "even they can't explain it."

"It's there, and it's theirs," said Mr. Nourse.

NEARLY 100

Setting the honors pace at the beginning of the evening, banquet master of ceremonies, comrade W. J. Stevenson, paid tribute to 88-year-old Rocky Mountain Ranger veteran, Rex Sealey, who got a standing ovation from the gathering, as did 91-year-old legionnaire, Mack McGrogan. The applause reaction was later repeated when Vimy veterans were asked to stand for a head-count.

Added pomp and ceremony was extended to head table guests, who were piped into the banquet hall by two members of the local legion pipe band.

Humorous army back-slapping was provided by comrade Percy Maundrell, past president of branch 26, who told the gathering that "Vimy would not be the Vimy of today if it wasn't for the army." He termed the victory an "strictly an army show." Mr. Maundrell was responding to a tri-service toast by Capt. Jeff Bridges, OC, air force cadets, who had proposed a glass-raising for "our new Canadian Armed Forces."

FOR AIRPORT Details Heard On Schedules

Few people would have dreamed a short time ago that Kelowna, a city of less than 20,000 people, would soon have 10 major air flights in and out of here daily.

But the 137 per cent increase in air passenger traffic at the Kelowna Airport during March of this year, over the same month in 1968, indicates the new schedule is warranted.

The new runs are slated to begin April 27, when Pacific Western Airlines brings regular Boeing 737 jet and Convair jet-prop service to the Valley to replace Canadian Pacific Airlines present DC-6-B flights.

Commented Mayor R. F. Parkinson at the city council meeting Tuesday evening, "The new schedule should lead even more people to use this remarkable air service, compared to that which we had in the past."

The "remarkable air service" is a result of a whole new plan to service the Okanagan and the rest of the interior by two airlines relatively new to the area.

MAY 11

The two companies, PWA and B.C. Air Lines, will, after May 11, be operating sometimes complementary, sometimes competitive service in and out of the Kelowna Airport.

The major beneficiary remains the City of Kelowna and the surrounding area, particularly when according to airport manager Eric Davison, no rate increase is anticipated in the immediate future.

As a matter of fact the fare on one run, Kelowna to Calgary, might possibly be lowered, Mr. Davison told Tuesday's city council meeting.

Previously it was thought that B.C. Air Lines would be serving only as a feeder line to the bigger jets and jet-prop aircraft of PWA, from Interior locations.

However, B.C. Air Lines starting schedule shows the company will, on some Vancouver-Kelowna runs, be in direct competition with PWA.

"Keep 'em honest" competition it is but only to the extent of the limited carrying capacity of B.C. Air's 24-seat Nord Vistaliner machines, which the company plans to use on its runs.

PWA's Boeing 737 jets seat 117 passengers each, while their Convairs can carry about 50. The B.C. Air Vistaliners, twin-engine, high-wing, jet-prop aircraft, will be the competition for PWA's morning flight Convairs to and from Vancouver.

The seating capacities of the different carriers is the point, as total trip times for the Vancouver-Valley runs do not vary more than 10 or 15 minutes between the three aircraft.

SOME DIRECT

For instance, on Mondays under the new schedule, B.C. Air's Vistaliner leaves Vancouver at 7:45 a.m., arriving Kelowna at 8:40 a.m. after a direct flight.

PWA's Convair departs Vancouver at 9 a.m., arriving Kelowna at 10:30 a.m., after stopping in Pentiction, presumably passing B.C. Air's return flight to Vancouver which left Kelowna at 8:55 a.m., 15 minutes after arriving.

The Vistaliner would arrive back in Vancouver at 10:25 a.m., having stopped in Pentiction on the return flight.

The Convair, which landed in Kelowna at 10:30 a.m., departs again for Vancouver at 10:50 a.m. where it lands after a direct 55 minute flight.

Monday afternoons a PWA

Boeing 737 comes into Kelowna from Vancouver at 1:05 and departs for Cranbrook and Calgary 15 minutes later, at 1:20 p.m.

At 4:45 p.m. the flight returns to Kelowna from Calgary via Cranbrook again, then leaves here for Vancouver at 5 p.m.

Tuesday mornings the first flight into Kelowna is again a B.C. Air Lines Vistaliner, at 9:30 a.m., with a PWA Convair landing at 9:55 a.m. Ten minutes after putting down, at 9:30, the Vistaliner takes off and flies directly to Vancouver, arriving at 10:25 a.m.

TO PENTICTON

PWA's morning flight back to Vancouver departs Kelowna at 10:15 a.m., arriving Vancouver 11:45 after a brief stop at Pentiction, or just the reverse of Monday's flights.

Tuesday afternoon a B.C. Air Vistaliner puts in here from Vancouver at 12:10, departing for Castlegar and Cranbrook at 12:25. The aircraft then returns to Kelowna from the two Interior centres at 5:40 p.m. and leaves for a direct flight back to Vancouver 15 minutes later at 5:55 p.m.

Monday's morning and afternoon flights are scheduled the same for Wednesday and Friday, with Monday afternoon times applicable to Sunday afternoon.

There are no flights in or out of Kelowna Sunday morning.

All Tuesday morning and afternoon flights are the same for Thursday and Saturday.

EVERY DAY

Every day of the week, starting April 27 with the other regular runs, there will be a non-stop 737 flight from Vancouver at 7 p.m., arriving Kelowna 45 minutes later, but stopping in Pentiction on the way back to Vancouver the same night.

The return flight leaves Kelowna Airport at 8 p.m., arriving Vancouver at 9:10 p.m.

Effective May 11, B.C. Air Lines will implement its new evening Vancouver-north-south Valley runs using the same Nord 24-passenger Vistaliner aircraft.

On that date the new aircraft will start landing daily except Saturday at Kelowna Airport from Kamloops and north at 6:55 p.m., departing for Pentiction and Vancouver at 7:05 p.m.

Another Vistaliner then returns to Kelowna from Vancouver via Pentiction, arriving here at 8:20 p.m. and departing for Kamloops and points north at 8:30 p.m.

The identical evening schedule is followed Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Sunday, with no north-south flights Saturday.

LUNCHEON

In anticipation of the all-new runs in and out and up and down the Valley, a civic luncheon has been laid on for April 19 to welcome the two flights to Kelowna and the Interior.

PWA's advertising and public relations manager, Glen Garvin, has announced the company will have both a Boeing 737 aircraft and a Convair 440 at the Kelowna Airport from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. that day for public viewing.

Said Sid Reynolds, director of marketing and customer service for B.C. Air, "There is a good possibility we will be able to have a Vistaliner in Kelowna for public display the same day, although our training and familiarization runs have them pretty well booked up."

"We're going to do our best to get one to Kelowna for the day," confirmed B.C. Air Lines president D. R. Jacob Wednesday.

Rotary Search Continuing For Kelowna 'Ambassador'

The search goes on for two fine, upstanding gentlemen who would like to take a two-month jaunt to Bolivia to spread friendship and goodwill as part of a group study exchange program currently being sponsored by Rotary International.

The two lucky candidates, to be chosen from the Kelowna and Capri East Rotary clubs, will join four other district representatives to the South American country during September and October, to promote friendship and understanding between the two nations. The Kelowna "ambassador" must be between 25 and 35 years of age, and a college degree is not a prerequisite. So far, no firm applications have been received by the two local Rotary clubs, and time is running out. All travelling costs will be paid by Rotary International. Written applications or information can be elicited from Dyck's Drug's, and should contain biographical information as well as the reasons why the applicant is interested in the trip. Board and room, while in Bolivia, will be paid for by Bolivian Rotary clubs.

You Can Assist City Police By Keeping Premises Locked

The city continues to be plagued by a series of break-ins and thefts.

RCMP today are investigating two overnight break-ins, bringing this week's total to nine, including several thefts from cars. Businesses, private homes, schools and cars are being hit by the thieves.

An undetermined amount of cigarettes and cash was stolen sometime during the night from the Meridian Bowling Alley, 3:20 p.m. Total damage was estimated at $800.

Only one traffic accident, with no injuries involved, was reported in the past 24 hours. Gloria Kariuk, 1290 Centennial Cresco, and Gordon Runzer, Walburn Road were drivers in a two-car collision in the intersection of Ethel Street and Lawrence Avenue Wednesday at 3:20 p.m. Total damage was estimated at $800.

NEW LOOK For Clubs

Executive changes and formal recognition of new members has rolled around again for Kelowna service clubs.

"The Kelowna Lions Club plan to 'do it up brown' this year with fraternal dignitaries at a special election of officers and installation of new members meeting tentatively scheduled for June 28.

Election of officers and new member installations of the Kelowna Junior Chamber of Commerce will be held this year May 12 and June 14.

SATISFACTORY

Local lawyer R. J. S. (Reg) Moir, injured last Thursday in a five-car crash, is listed today in "satisfactory" condition by Kelowna General Hospital. Mr. Moir was taken to hospital suffering a "crushed" shoulder, broken ribs and head injuries as a result of the accident at Harvey Avenue and Pandosy Street and was later listed in "fair" condition.

FOR VOLUNTEERS

Mrs. Donna DeMara, director of Kelowna International Regatta Association social events, and her committee are in the final stages of the pre-regatta party for volunteer workers April 17. She is anxious to hear from all volunteer Regatta workers planning to attend, so proper catering arrangements can be made.

ONE FORCE

Even though the services were now one force, Mr. Maundrell said, "one can't do a thing without the other," he conceded, although at Vimy "they didn't have battleships or aeroplanes dropping bombs" on the enemy. Addressing the gathering following the Vimy toast by Mr.

NEWEST MEMBER

Entertainment was provided by newest branch member, Arthur Dutton, from Verdun Branch, four, Quebec, with two musical monologues entitled spotty and the green eye of the little yellow God. He was introduced by Francis Tobias, entertainment committee chairman.

Head table guests present were: Mayor R. F. Parkinson; M. M. Jessop, president of Branch 26; Capt. Ed. Dickens, OC, army cadets; Capt. Jeff Bridges, OC, air force cadets; Mrs. W. S. Leitch, branch 26 padre; Mrs. Gordon Allan, president of the Ladies Auxiliary to branch 26; Mrs. C. Dowle, mother of the ladies auxiliary, branch 26, comrades and branch 26 past presidents, George Kennedy, Jack Gordon, Percy Maundrell, Jack Bews, Art Gordon, Harold Whitehouse and Al Byers.

HAPPINESS IS... THE CITY PARK

The popularity of Kelowna's City Park is increasing daily. Although breezes off Okanagan Lake are still cool at times, the park's playground equipment is beginning to get a real workout. With more than 9,000 school district 23 (Kelowna) students out of their classrooms until Monday, the equipment here and in dozens of other parks throughout the Central Okanagan will help build strong bodies and hearts that will appreciate until things get back to normal next week. Federal NDP Leadership Could Be Bitter Race

This weekend the New Democratic Party in British Columbia will be in the throes of electing a new leader. The same party has the same problem in the larger national field. So far the federal contest is a subdued one but it could turn into a bitter struggle.

When NDP leader T. C. Douglas won his way back into the House of Commons in the Nanaimo-Cowichan Islands by-election a few weeks ago he kept open his option of remaining as national leader not only until the party's biennial convention this fall but until the 1971 NDP convention.

Before last year's general election, Mr. Douglas made it clear that he would not lead the party in the next one. Mr. Douglas, now 64, and still outwardly full of vigor, is still considering representations made by various groups in the party that he continue at the NDP helm until the 1971 convention.

But even if he decides to stay on as leader this time, he undoubtedly will face a challenge for the post at next fall's convention in Winnipeg.

At the moment the question really is whether the serious candidates to succeed him will take the plunge now. Or will they hang back, either out of conviction that it is in the best interests of the party to keep Mr. Douglas for two more years or out of reluctance to test their strength against a figure so strongly entrenched in NDP affections.

The NDP has always commended itself on its constitutional framework which provides for a regular leadership election at each convention. Officials of the party have often claimed that their machinery for leadership review was far superior to what they feel are the tortuous methods of the Liberals and the Conservatives.

NDP statements on this question of leadership review have often been criticized as being rather self-righteous, but since the NDP was founded in 1961, there has been only one leadership contest and that at the founding convention. At that time Mr. Douglas, choice of the party Establishment, was opposed by Hazen Argue. It was a contest which Mr. Douglas won handily and there has been no challenge to the NDP leader's stewardship at succeeding NDP conventions.

If Mr. Douglas does decide to stand for re-election at this year's convention, he is almost certain to be opposed by Laurier Lapiere, McGill University professor and television performer, and perhaps others. Mr. Lapiere has been crisscrossing the country in recent months, drawing a good response at party meetings.

If Mr. Douglas steps aside this time, the race will be wide open and hotly contested. Charles Taylor, a professor of political science at McGill University and NDP vice-president, has long been regarded as the choice of the party brass to succeed Mr. Douglas. But he is reluctant to enter the race now and this reluctance is irritating some.

There are a number of others who could enter the race, once Mr. Douglas has bowed out—permanently. They include: Allan Blakeney, a cabinet minister in the Saskatchewan government which introduced medicare insurance; Douglas Fisher, newspaper columnist and one-time MP for Port Arthur; John Harney, Ontario party secretary, whose stock has been rising in the party hierarchy. Mr. Harney is fully bilingual and was hailed by Montreal newsmen for his performance in a debate against separatist leader Rene Levesque recently; John Renwick, deputy party leader in Ontario.

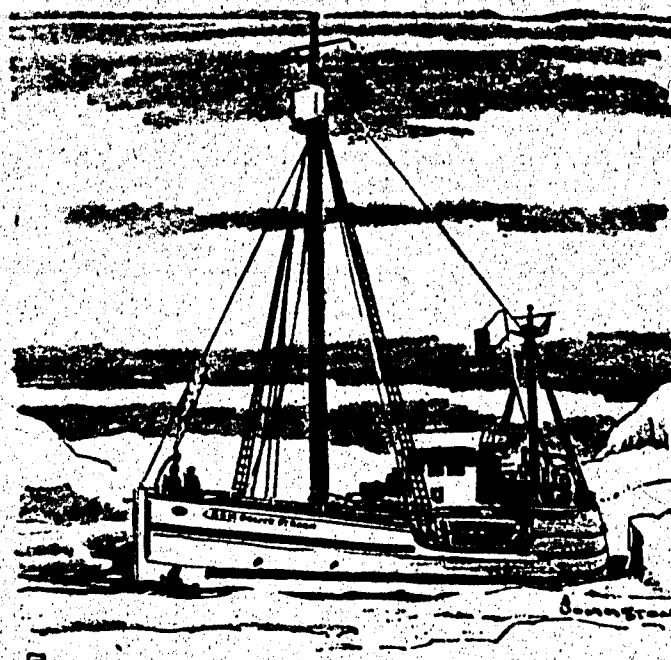

All of these possible contenders suffer from a common disadvantage: none has a seat in the House of Commons and would have to remain outside the House for up to three years, attempting to build an image without benefit of day-to-day exposure in Parliament.

Within the present Commons group, E. R. Schreyer (Springfield) and Max Saltman (Waterloo South), the party's financial critic, have been mentioned as possible candidates. A more likely contender is Edward Broadbent, a young former York University lecturer who topped Michael Starr in the last election and has already made his mark in the House.

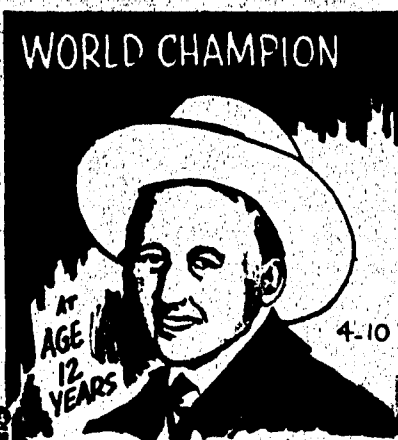

If no candidate who has the blessing of the party hierarchy emerges, the NDP brass could put pressure on David Lewis, present deputy leader, to run for the top job. Mr. Lewis, now 59, has indicated repeatedly he wants the party to choose a man from a younger generation as a successor to Mr. Douglas. But it will be difficult for the party to ignore the member for York South.

Mr. Lewis, a long-time party strategist, is a brilliant debater. He is bilingual and is a forceful figure. He has been close to power in the NDP and the CCF for years; in fact, his enemies suggest he runs the show and is preaching for a call even now. Mr. Lewis could lead the party in the 1969-71 period and then give way to a younger man, but many in the party would be unhappy with such an interim arrangement. NDP sources say Mr. Lewis probably would be no happier with such an interim role.

A Long, Long Trail Awinding From Seattle To Anchorage

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Coming up over Steamboat Mountain, one of the highest elevations along the Alaska Highway, trucker Ed Chalupa of Chulupa and Ed Chalupa of Tacoma, Wash., sang a little song to the frozen gravel road, threading through the winter whiteness of the Canadian Rockies:

"Winding in and winding out,
Leaves my mind in serious doubt.

"If the lout who planned this route
Was going to hell—or coming out!"

Thousands of army engineers scraped and blasted this 1,523-mile-long highway through the sides of mountains and across trackless and bottomless valleys of muskox in a frantic eight months back in 1942, when it was feared the Japanese might attempt to invade Alaska by way of the Aleutians.

The engineers deliberately built the crazy curves and snaking cutbacks into the narrow road to protect military convoys from possible straight-out strafing and bombing runs by the Japanese air force. The precipitous rises and ridges got there all by themselves, with a push or two from a passing glacier.

GRADE IS STEEP
For more than 30 miles in the blinding brightness of a sunlit morning, Chalupa and his 60-foot trailer rig, loaded with 15 tons of miscellaneous freight, had been climbing, climbing, climbing to the summit of Steamboat, up a 14-per-cent grade.

"The steepest you ever get in the Lower Forty-Eight (as Alaskans call the continental United States) is a five- to six-per-cent grade," said Ed, anxiously studying the large thermometer on the dashboard that recorded the temperature outside the cab. Over the last rise in the road, the temperature had warmed up 20 degrees, a common occurrence in the sub-Arctic when the sun reflects off the snowy wastes. It now stood at 28 above.

Chalupa would have preferred zero and below, because already the snow was melting on the gravel surface and refreezing into ice.

Lumbering up to the crest of the rise, within sight of a sand box and a sign that said "Mile 354.5, Summit Steamboat Mt. and Muska Valley," Chalupa "spun out." The tractor wheels turned without gripping the road, spinning helplessly on the slick surface, and the weight in the trailer threatened to pull the whole rig backwards down the hill toward a steep curve that seemed to lean out into nowhere.

The valley floor, white and desolate, spread out nearly a mile below.

SLAPPED ON IRONS
Without bothering to wake up his partner, Andy Thuney of Seattle, asleep in the back bunk, Chalupa "slapped on the irons"—but chains on the back wheels of the tractor and the front wheels of the trailer. He backed up a few feet in hopes of gaining some traction, tried again and found himself sliding once more toward the curve. When he applied the brakes and attempted to steer into the curve, the trailer jack-knifed across the width of the road.

Chalupa climbed down, ran ahead with flares to warn approaching drivers, then set about putting chains on 10 of the 18 wheels.

For nearly an hour in the silence and solitude of a magnificent mountain wasteland, Ed hauled and stretched out chains. The sun, in its brief winter course, glistened on the crusty snow. A bald eagle wheeled overhead. All around was eerie quiet, save for the wind whistling through the ice blossoms sparkling in the trees. Nothing came by in either direction.

Just as Ed successfully negotiated the summit on his 10 sets of chains, a Volkswagen came over the bend. It was the first vehicle of any kind he had seen in more than three hours.

That's the way it is in winter on the best-kept gravel roads in the world. You go for miles, for hours, without seeing another truck. Never a billboard, never a radar trap or a stop light, almost never a school bus, except for the helicopter that picks up the little Indian boy at a place called Lower Post, at Milepost 620.

Service stations and coffee stops can be 50 miles apart—when they're open—and driver-sleeper teams who run the road regularly sometimes go back and forth half a dozen times without meeting a Monte on the prowl for speeders. The limit is 50 miles an hour, but the ticket business isn't too brisk in the long day's night of a Yukon winter when you're lucky to average 30.

For the truckers, it's a lonely, starkly savage, unbelievably beautiful world of lovely, long lakes—untouched by a cabin or even a boat dock—and bleak, sparsely wooded mountains.

Seasoned drivers on "the endurance run" know every decimal point of a mile in the empty, haunting wilderness. Occasional traffic in their winter world might include a team of huskies mushing down to a trading post or a trapper whizzing along in a snow vehicle, but more than likely it will be a herd of caribou or a menagerie of moose.

"For some reason, moose like to travel in threes—two cows and a bull," Ed said, celebrating his victory over Steamboat with a belt of black coffee from one of the pair of huge thermos bottles that get filled at every stop.

The bulletin board in the Seattle terminal of Consolidated Freightways, the line for which Ed and Andy have driven for the last 19 years, carried a stern injunction against drivers blasting the air horn to get moose off the road.

"Moose can be pretty mean and stupid," said Ed, launching into a Klondike yarn that has become a company classic. "Seems one guy honked on the air horn to get some moose out of his way and the biggest one, the bull, charged the truck. Must have been the mating season. That moose really wrecked that cab. It ripped right through the windshield with its antlers and sent both drivers cowering back into the bunk."

Ed and Andy had left Seattle two days before and, alternating between the wheel and the bunk, with stops only for meals or to put on chains, it would be two more days before they would reach Anchorage. The 2,498-mile trip had begun for them in the foggy glow of Seattle's fluorescent lights, with the temperature 44 above.

Late at night they crossed the border into Canada at Sumas, and headed for the Cariboo Highway. Then it was the John Hart Peace River Highway, with alternate stretches of buckled pavement and frozen gravel.

British Columbia spread out from small farms and big ranches to a virgin wilderness of frozen lakes and deep spruce woods as lightly touched by civilization as the soft names left on them by long-forgotten French trappers: Cache Creek, Marguerite, Lac La Hache.

Just Like Siberia

Here and there the smoking beehives of a sawmill town, the sudden lights of a booming metropolis like Prince George, but almost everywhere the landscape of a North American Siberia: log cabins, vast stretches of snowy nothingness, even an occasional wolf with weak, wanton eyes squatting at the side of the road baring its fangs at the passing trucks.

Andy held forth on the Alaskan run being "the last stronghold of free-and-easy trucking—extra-wide loads, overweight loads, trucks without backup lights, trailers without marker lights—anything goes up here."

The further north they went the trees became scarcer and more stunted, the truck stops fewer and less hygienic, the prices more outrageous. Fuel went from 42 cents to 68 cents an imperial gallon; hamburgers unadorned with anything beyond a skim of grease brought $2.50.

The Alaska Highway itself began in a daze of civilization Milepost 0 in downtown Dawson Creek.

After the garish refinery lights of Taylor, a community that came to life a little over 10 years ago with the discovery of a huge natural gas field, the road swung west through a wilderness of unbroken forest, where a community might consist of only one or two buildings like Charlie Lake, at Milepost 52, named for the Chinese cook in the truck stop. It seemed odd to be munching egg rolls at 2 a.m., amid Arctic parkas and a c k l n a w, but the food would not be this good again for nearly 1,000 miles, when the team happened on a little roadside where the matronly owner had just killed and cooked a turkey.

WINTER IS BEST

"Winter is the best time up here," said Andy, "when the road is frozen and hard-packed—provided you don't have ice-itis and are afraid of spinning out. October is the worst month, when the snow is new and moist. In spring the washouts in B.C. are so bad we sometimes have to go around by way of Calgary. In

Refreshing Quiet In Washington

By PHILIP DEANE
Foreign Affairs Analyst

Washington was a changed place on a recent visit. The Nixon administration, exquisitely sensitive to public relations pressures though it is, believes in discretion also, in quiet, even secret diplomacy. It manages to be secret rather than secretive, as Lyndon Johnson was.

The result has been a remarkable absence of ruffled feathers on the world scene and considerable healing of internal wounds. Liberals grudgingly admit that Richard Nixon has not put a foot wrong yet—so said a member of the Johnson White House staff, among others.

So far, Mr. Nixon is working the trick of making moderate conservatives feel some needed caution and reflection has returned to Washington while, at the same time, making liberals feel that the social progress of the past 36 years is not being scuttled. Only activists of the left and right are displeased, but then they always are.

There have not been wholesale dismissals or transfers among senior civil servants as there were in 1952; many are doing today the jobs they were doing under Johnson. A special "think tank" set up by democrats to work on urban problems, is being enthusiastically utilized by the Republicans. The Nixon administration policy statement on student radicals was very moderate, avoiding the authoritarian measures demanded by the right wing—this, despite the popularly accusing to California's governor Reagan for his tough use of force against extremist students.

In world affairs, the Nixon administration resignedly took criticism for not doing anything about peace in Vietnam, without revealing, until the time was ripe, that there had been secret talks parallel to the Paris talks and that some progress had been made there. There have been discussions of how to guarantee free elections and how to assure the Viet Cong that the U.S. would abide by the results. What makes such flexible attitudes the more remarkable is that they surfaced in the middle of a massive propaganda campaign by the armed forces to convince the U.S. that the war should go on at least another two years.

It became clear, after the announcement of the Nixon go ahead for anti-missiles that he had put those very same anti-missiles on the table for negotiation with the Russians and the package that Washington wants to discuss with Moscow includes a European settlement a dilution of NATO.

The NATO question was handled very gently in discussion with Mr. Trudeau. He was not pressed to commit himself. The stress was on the symbolic value of Canadian participation. There even was talk of Canada giving NATO a softer look, with Ottawa serving within NATO as an amiable partner through whom Moscow could communicate informally with Washington. There were no reproaches about our public review of the alliance. As in other fields, Washington was mannerly and calm.

Don't Give Coffee Unduly Hard Time

By DR. GEORGE THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
I love coffee. My friends tell me I will pay later in kidney problems if I don't cut down. I drink six to eight cups a day.—D.A.

Don't put too much stock in what your friends say, because they are giving coffee "a bum rap." I'm not saying some folks shouldn't give up coffee, or switch to types with the caffeine removed, but arbitrarily saying that coffee is bad for people is not based on fact.

The false notion about kidney damage probably evolves from the fact that coffee—and the effect of the caffeine in it—can stimulate kidney action. Some individuals find that a very small amount of coffee, say just one cup, can have a marked effect. Others don't.

But saying that stimulation of kidney action is going to be harmful simply is not true. Coffee has no deleterious effect on the kidneys.

The caffeine also has stimulating effects in other ways. For most folks, this is what affords a mild pick-me-up effect.

Too much coffee can cause unpleasant stimulation in some individuals — quirked heart beat, extra heart beats so the heart seems to "skip a beat" (which can be disquieting), jitters or difficulty in sleeping—and some people find that coffee, by stimulating the digestive tract, can cause upset stomach or make the intestine "gassy."

If coffee causes such symptoms, then the person is drinking too much for his own comfort, and ought to cut down or cut out coffee, or switch to the caffeine-free varieties.

I'm often asked how much coffee is too much. There is no answer that will fit everybody. A cup or two may disturb one person, while a neighbor may drink a dozen or more cups without difficulty.

The only sensible answer is to watch for the symptoms I've mentioned. If they appear, they may be due to coffee, or may be due to something else. If, under such circumstances, reducing your daily quota of coffee relieves the symptoms, then you have your answer.

Coffee is too useful a beverage to condemn out of hand, but it is a good idea to know what to look for in the way of coffee

CANADA'S STORY

Lloydminster Founders Had A Rough Passage

By BOB BOWMAN

One of Canada's most progressive and prosperous cities is Lloydminster on the Alberta-Saskatchewan border. Its founders would be proud if they could see the result of the hardships they endured. They came from Britain in 1903 during the successful immigration drive organized by Sir Clifford Sifton, Minister of the Interior.

Sifton had agents operating in many parts of the world, and they earned $5 for every head of family, and $2 for every other individual they persuaded to settle in Canada. One of the agents was Reverend I. M. Barr, a silver-tongued orator in England.

His largest group was known as "the Barr settlers" and it arrived in Saint John, N.B., on April 10, 1903, after a dreadful Atlantic crossing. The ship was an old tub named "Manitoba," and men, women and children had to sleep in cargo holds. They had no privacy, even in toilet arrangements, and the food and water was not fit to eat or drink.

After arriving in Saint John they were carried across Canada in "colonist" railway cars, and their baggage was lost on the way. The train went so slowly that the people in the front coaches claimed they could jump off, shoot rabbits, and still have time to board one of the rear coaches.

When the Barr settlers arrived at Saskatoon they had to live in tents for two weeks until their luggage was found. Then they travelled to their destination in overloaded wagons. Baggage dropped into mud-holes and coal oil spilled into the food. The temperature was often below zero and made colder by blizzards blowing across the prairies.

The Barr settlers were city-folk, and not accustomed to such rough living. Some of them were tempted to turn back, but Reverend G. E. Lloyd was a tower of strength and always managed to encourage them to continue.

There were many hardships, for years after they began their settlement which was called Lloydminster in honor of the man who played such a big part in the hour of need.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

COLUMN CORRECTED

Sir: It has been brought to my attention that comments appearing in "Musically Speaking" recently, concerning the Dominion Drama Festival being held in Kelowna in May, need some clarification.

It is not accurate to say the national office "passed the theatre as being suitable in every way for the Dominion event." What was said on the two inspections and repeated at the national executive meetings in October and January was that the theatre was acceptable provided that the necessary additions as suggested were carried out. I am very pleased that many of these suggestions have been implemented and will remain in the theatre for the benefit of users in the years ahead.

"To clear the record" I think it only fair to point out that the lighting requirements are such that the final festival committee is renting an extra lighting rig as well as over 100 extra lights at a rental of nearly $2,000.

This letter is being written a few hours before leaving for Ottawa where I will be attending the meeting of the four adjudicators and where the national executive, of which I am a member, will decide the six plays to be invited to Kelowna during the week May 19-24.

Yours very truly,
JOHN BENNETT,
Festival Chairman

Negro Culture Recognized

(Victoria Times)

Several developments in the adoption by United States universities of programs in black studies bring a note of optimism into the too-frequent discord of demands that more recognition be given to Negro culture and history in higher education. Three major universities, Yale, Harvard and Minnesota, have established degree programs in Afro-American studies and five more have announced plans to follow suit.

In some instances, the studies are conducted separately from existing courses. In others, they are combined to furnish a co-relationship between the Negro and non-Negro in areas of history, literature and other fields. Significantly, a high percentage enrolment of white students has been reported—a trend which may be expected to continue as the courses are extended and more become available.

Here, as recognized by Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, is an effective integrating process offsetting the segregating influence that would arise if such studies were restricted to black universities alone.

Minister Views N.W.T. Justice

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP) — Despite a ruling two years ago that his philosophy of justice was "no longer palatable," Rudy Steiner is still a justice of the peace in this community 500 miles north of Edmonton on the southern shore of Great Slave Lake.

Mr. Justice W. G. Morrow, judge of the territorial court in Yellowknife, conducted an inquiry in 1967 into allegations of unequal courtroom treatment and use of influence by Mr. Steiner.

Justice Morrow said that although Mr. Steiner's judicial philosophy was unpalatable and was recommended he be removed from his post, he had acted selflessly while justice of the peace and had done well for a businessman with little judicial training.

Mr. Steiner, however, was in court Wednesday to greet Justice Minister John Turner, touring the North to see how the 74 recommendations of the Morrow report have been dealt with.

Earlier in Whitehorse, Mr.

Turner became the 127th member of the Yukon Bar since the first was sworn in 1898.

Opening a seven day tour that will take him deep into the eastern Arctic later this week with Mr. Justice Morrow's spring circuit, the minister chatted with Yukon officials and heard their views on justice.

One of the changes implemented since the Morrow report is that justice in this community of 2,600 is no longer dispensed in the RCMP barracks.

CONVERT LIQUOR STORE
A former liquor store is being converted into a courthouse several miles from the police post. "Poetic justice, isn't it?" an RCMP officer said.

About 1,200 of the community's population are Metis—of mixed Indian and white heritage—while about 350 are Indian and the rest white.

In his report, Mr. Justice Morrow dismissed suggestions of use of influence by Mr. Steiner to avoid prosecution involving a bizarre graveside ritual in Hay River.

Mr. Steiner and several others were requested, in the will of a Joe Vachon, to perform a graveside ritual involving the drinking of liquor to send the deceased "on his way" in a fitting manner.

Mr. Justice Morrow said police acted wisely in not charging Mr. Steiner and the others after Don Taylor, publisher of the Hay River weekly newspaper Tapwe, alleged unequal treatment, use of influence and mistreatment of the press.

In another case, Mr. Steiner was described as having acted unwisely in hearing liquor charges against one of his employees.

As a result, the federal government has instructed the territorial justices of the peace to avoid conflict of interest in hearing cases.

Also on the way out is the practice of justices of the peace being paid on the basis of convictions obtained. A federal fund to remunerate the justices is being established.

EXPLAINS REJECTIONS
Mr. Turner, who went to Yellowknife Wednesday night, has rejected Yukon and Northwest Territories requests for resident attorneys-general.

The justice minister, who is attorney-general for both territories, said there are constitutional obstacles to the requests. He said the territories still depend heavily on Ottawa and have not achieved true self-government and representation of the people, described as a must for an attorney-general.

However, Mr. Turner said, he is ready to transfer as much responsibility from Ottawa to the North as is constitutional, including responsibility for appointment of justices such as Mr. Steiner.

The only complaint voiced by Mr. Steiner and other territorial representatives was that the liquor store in the old Hay River townsite was being converted to a courthouse instead of one being established at the new townsite three miles away.

The new townsite, with its fresh bungalows, churches and schools, is being built to avoid recurrence of a 1963 spring flood that ravaged the old site.

Most of the white population has moved to the new site but one official quietly remarked that most of the native population remained in the old town and provided the court with most of its business.

The Morrow report said the court should be kept in the old town as long as the population remained there.

LONG TRAIL

In addition to two enormous heaters in the cab, two dozen sets of chains and a 355-horsepower, 20-gear engine designed especially for the Alaska run, their rig carried Arctic survival gear, fire-building equipment for breakdowns and a propane torch for loosening frozen wheel lugs and trailer pins. Gloves, boots and face masks were standard personal gear for a land where flesh coming in contact with a metal door handle can suffer a third-degree burn, where lungs can freeze if a man runs or his windpipe freezes if he shouts.

Andy and Ed make the run to Alaska four times a month in summer and twice a month in winter, although winter business has been picking up lately with all the freight being hauled up to the huge oil strike on the north slope of Alaska's Brooks Range. Driving or asleep in the bunk, they share 16 1/2 cents a mile, which brings them between $22,000 and $25,000 a year. For hauling Class A fused explosives, they get half a cent more a mile.

ANCHORAGE AT LAST
The team reached the Canada-U.S. customs point at Milepost 1202 two hours ahead of the 10 p.m. winter closing time. If they had been later than that they would have had to pull over till it reopened at 7 a.m. The cargo, all destined for Alaska, did not have to be inspected. Three days before all the doors had been sealed with metal tags at the Sumas customs post.

An hour before the dawn, the soft bright night revealed something else on the vast horizon besides dark mountains and the dazzle of a million stars. The improbable skyline of Anchorage twinkled up ahead, high-rise hotels, the flush of neon, the glow of fluorescent street lights, a pretty city mirroring its image in frozen Cook Inlet.

Ed Chalupa and Andy Thuey had neither the time nor the inclination to taste Anchorage's high life, still going full blast at 5 a.m. They ran the rig into the Consolidated terminal, dropped the trailer and headed for the shower room. They had been on the road 82 1/2 hours, crossed three time zones, experienced temperatures of 50 above to 26 below, pounded out 2,496 miles—more than 1,000 of them on gravel.

Freshly shaved and showered, they climbed right back into the truck and headed for Seattle again. This time the trailer carried a long yellow sticker that said "Class A Explosives."

"You don't make any money sitting in the barn," said Andy.

ANN LANDERS

If Dad Helps Mom Quit They'll Both Benefit

Dear Ann Landers: Recently Mom got out of the hospital after a serious case of pneumonia. She was hospitalized last year for a heart attack. Mom is coughing her head off this very minute and she knows darned well why. She smokes like a chimney—against doctor's orders.

I'm a boy 17 and I will never smoke as long as I live. My sister, 15, has also made the decision. Seeing Mom cough herself purple in the face and nearly go into convulsions is less than enough for us. But it hasn't made her stop.

The day mom got out of the hospital she said she would quit smoking if dad did. Dad told her, "No deal." He enjoys smoking and is in good health. He refuses to give it up.

If Mom doesn't quit smoking pretty soon, Ann, she's going to cough herself into the cemetery. Should we beg Dad to stop? — A SON

Dear Son: Your mom is playing a game called, "It's All Your Fault—Look What You Made Me Do."

Yes, I believe your dad should quit smoking. First, it would be good for him and help him stay in good health. Second, your mother would then be forced to accept full responsibility for her smoking (no scapegoat to blame it on.) And third—if your mother does cough herself into her grave, your dad won't be tortured by guilt.

Dear Ann Landers: You seem to understand the convolutions of the warped mind. Will you please explain why some folks who are downright rich insist on crying poor mouth and talk as if they don't have a dime?

This seems utterly ridiculous—especially when they live in a mansion, drive two expensive cars, keep hired help on the place and travel all over the world. What's with these kooks? —PEEK-A-BOO

Dear Boo: Some well-to-do folks have the crazy notion that people of means are supposed to behave in a special way and they don't feel equal to it. So, they try to disavow the label. Of course it's phony, but not as bad as the newly rich who attempt to overwhelm, impress and knock everybody's eyes out.

Spring Flowers For Rutland Rites

Baskets of pink gladiolas and yellow daffodils decorated Rutland United Church on April 5 for the wedding of Yvonne Hamanishi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Masayuki Hamanishi, Dougal Road, Rutland, to Gary Neil Bullock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Mackaskill, Oyama. Rev. Howard Hall officiated at the ceremony, with Mrs. William Drinkwater as organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a gown of peau d'elegance featuring a soft rolled collar and long lily-point sleeves. Lace enhanced the bodice of the gown, the hem and the edge of the long train. Four small white organza roses held the elbow-length scalloped veil which fell in four tiers.

Keeping the old traditional something old-something borrowed, she wore a blue garter and an old handkerchief of her grandmother's and borrowed the veil.

Maid-of-honor, Glory Favell, of Vancouver wore a light green full length A-line sleeveless gown featuring a round neck.

The groom's attendant was Roy Ueda of Kelowna.

For the reception held at the bride's home, her mother chose a light wool suit of mint green accented with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

For a honeymoon trip to the coast the bride donned a navy blue coat-dress ensemble with white accessories.

The couple will make their home at 210 Dougal Road, Rutland.

Family Gathers To Honor Mrs. Busst On Occasion Of 92nd Birthday

PEACHLAND (Special) — A resident of Peachland, Mrs. Elizabeth Busst celebrated her 92nd birthday recently. On hand to attend these special birthday celebrations were four of Mrs. Busst's children, Bert from Vancouver, Ernie and daughter Mrs. E. Emery from Victoria and Alfred Busst with whom Mrs. Busst makes her home in Peachland.

Mrs. Dana Wilson is home after a short trip to the United States where she visited Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Payne at Dayville, Ore. She was accompanied on this trip by Mrs. Alfred Anstett of Kelowna.

Mrs. L. M. Gerrie of Beach Avenue is home again after spending most of the winter at the coast with her daughter and son-in-law.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Enns this past week were Mrs. Enns' sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Jackman from Trenton, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. Doug Kerr, who recently have made their home at Trepanier Bay have moved to a new home in Rutland this past weekend.

Spending the Easter holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Coldham in Trepanier is John Coldham who is attending the British Columbia Institute of Technology at the coast.

ALL IS NOT roses and glory for these four students, attending university in Washington. Their apparently colorful life of football and track and field contains a lot more work than most people think. The four, from left to right, Brock Aynsley, Gerry Herron, Perry Stang and Ivars Dravinskis, are all from Kelowna. Aynsley, Herron and Dravinskis attend Washington State University while Stang goes to Whitworth College in Spokane.

Studying - Then Sports For 4 Kelowna Athletes

By ALJE KAMMINGA
Courier Sports Editor

Maybe you believe football players and athletes in general aren't always as smart as other, more normal people.

And why shouldn't you believe it? After all, for years we more normal types have subscribed to the theory big, lumbering men who run into each other for a living must be dumb. Those 250-pound giants who majored in sewing at university and graduated because of their physical abilities.

Well, you, me and theory are wrong.

Offered in evidence are four young Kelowna athletes, all of them making their mark, both physically and academically, at universities in the United States. All of them must record grades higher than the average of all other students at university. It's the price they pay for the privilege of competing in sports.

"Sure it's a privilege to play for the football team," says Gerry Herron, 21, a physical education student at Washington State University. "But football is a distant second to graduating with a degree."

"That's the attitude the university takes and the one I take."

Brock Aynsley, 19, and Ivars Dravinskis, 18, also students at WSU, agree entirely with Gerry's thinking.

"Even the coaches stress education," says Ivars, a former member of the Okanagan Track and Field Club and a Canadian Inter-scholastic record-holder in the long jump. "At Washington State, athletes regularly pull in higher marks than other students."

The same is true for Perry Stang, 20, a student at Whitworth College in Spokane.

Brock and Ivars are freshmen. Athletes are not necessarily smarter than other students but they must record higher grades to remain eligible for sports. With several hours of each day dedicated to athletics, this sometimes becomes a difficult task.

"At Washington State, any member of a sports team who has difficulty keeping up his grades is provided with free tutoring," says Gerry. "And it obviously works because the football coach we have now tells us not one player has failed to graduate since he came."

SAME THEORY

For Perry, the situation is slightly different but the same theory applies. "If a particular player is falling behind in a subject, another player who is smarter in that subject will help him out after classes."

All four are at university on scholarships. Three of them have full scholarships while Perry is provided with a job to pay part of his expenses. They will testify to the fact the fact the scholarships came because of their ability as athletes and it is this part of their university life they obviously like to discuss the most.

Ivars is concerned only with track and field, more specifically the long jump and triple jump. While he has yet to beat his best jump in either event since going to university, he says he can feel a major improvement already.

MORE CONSISTENT

"I find I'm becoming more consistent," he says, "and almost all of my jumps are close to my personal best. The competition certainly helps since we eventually will compete against some of the best athletes in the U.S. and the world."

"Even at WSU you find athletes from Canada, England and other countries. And last year, WSU had the second best track and field team in the nation."

Whitworth College has a much smaller enrolment than Washington State and competes in smaller conference, made up of similar schools in the state. Perry plays halfback for the football team, which plays a 10-game schedule every year. Even at the smaller school, says Perry, football is treated as a science.

STUDY MOVIES

"We study movies of every game and scout opposing teams much like they do in professional football. Last year, after studying movies of a game, one of the coaches noticed I was giving away the play by my stance."

"It's something we have to know because you can bet every other team in the conference noticed it."

"He's right," says Brock. "Even on our freshmen team we watch a lot of movies and our scouting report before every game is about an inch thick. Movies of opposing teams help us to pick up their tendencies, what they might do in particular situations while movies of us in either practices or games helps us correct our own mistakes."

Gerry is a veteran of Pacific-Eight football and, as a member of the Washington State Cougars, he practically has to sleep with a football.

"The game is so scientific, we have to watch at least two hours of movies every day," he says. "Even our practices are filmed."

"Going into a game we will know that particular team will run the ball 70 per cent of the time, we know what play they are likely to run on fourth-down and short yardage situation, we will know they are weak on certain plays. The game isn't a simple get-out-there and beat them affair. If we tried that we'd be kicked off the field before the half."

As a defensive halfback, Gerry knows the moves of every player on the opposing offensive team. He knows a certain lineman will lean forward on a straight running play. He must know, if he wants to continue playing regularly.

Football there is big business, says Brock. Even in high school, an average of about 8,000 people turn out for the games. For Cougar games, a crowd of 50,000 is only average.

Washington State has an enrolment of 14,000 students. At a pre-game rally, it is normal for about 80 per cent of those students to attend.

But all is not football and studying. There is time for social life, something which all four agree is "wow."

"To be honest, says Brock, I've never had a better time in my life."

MOST IN PHYS-ED

Three of the four — Gerry, Ivars and Perry — are taking physical education courses while the fourth, Brock, is shooting for a degree in chemical engineering. Perry combines his physical education course with one in English.

Police Continue Search For Missing NHL Trophies

TORONTO (CP) — Police continued their search today for three National Hockey League trophies stolen from the Hockey Hall of Fame in the Canadian National Exhibition grounds.

The thefts were discovered early Wednesday when Lefty Reid, curator, arrived at work. He reported the Calder, Conn Smythe and original Hart trophies were missing as well as two sets of medals from the Sports Hall of Fame, located in the same building.

In Montreal, NHL president Clarence Campbell said:

"There is no way in which we would consider co-operating if asked to pay ransom for the return of the trophies."

"We could be prepared to pay a reasonable reward, but only through the police," said Campbell, surprised over the theft, since the trophies would be almost impossible to sell and their melted-down value would not justify the risks taken, added:

"If anybody really wanted them that badly, we would gladly supply them with miniatures of each of them."

However, if the trophies are not found, winners of the individual trophies will have to accept the miniatures which Mr. Campbell says are available.

Cliff Schmutz Paces Bucks

PORTLAND (AP) — Cliff Schmutz worked a three-goal hat trick Wednesday night to give Portland a 5-1 victory over San Diego and a 3-2 edge in the best-of-seven semi-finals of the Western Hockey League semifinals.

The series moves to San Diego Thursday night for the sixth game and the seventh, if needed will be played back in Portland.

Dennis Huculak scored on a power play to give San Diego a 1-0 lead at 2:37 of the first period. Portland tied the game at 10:36 of the middle period when Connie Madigan slapped a shot from the blue line while Portland skated short-handed.

Schmutz then got the first of three goals on an unassisted play at 14:19 of the middle period and added two more in the final period for the hat trick.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Linda Carbonetto of Toronto, Canadian figure skating champion, has signed a professional contract with Ice Capades, the show's president, George Eby, announced today.

Eby refused to disclose terms of the pact but said Miss Carbonetto, who celebrates her 20th birthday in two days, will have a "starring role" in the 1970 production.

Rugby Team Loses Twice But Praised By Opponents

The Okanagan College Rugby Team played two games in Vancouver last weekend, were defeated in both, but still came up winners in the praise department.

Okanagan College lost the first game Saturday 8-0 to Britannia, a first-division team in Vancouver, then dropped the second game Sunday 8-3, also to Britannia.

After the games, members of the Britannia team lauded the play of the college squad. They said the boys played extremely well in addition to showing a lot of hustle.

Some felt several of the college players were capable of playing first division rugby in Vancouver.

The two teams have arranged a return match for April 26 at the City Park Oval in Kelowna.

Cambridge introduces a double-breasted suit that makes you look slim

"It used to be that a double-breasted suit was a bulky, heavy garment that did little to flatter a man's figure. No more. This year the Cambridge tailors have cut a double-breasted suit without the bulk of the original style.

Look at our photo. No doubt about it. The suit is elegant and flattering—but what our photo can't show is how easy and comfortable it is to wear. Here's the secret. The Cambridge tailors have cleverly cut the shoulders for a wider look—without padding. And they've cut the lapels wide enough to balance the breadth of the shoulders.

The waist is trim. The sleeves are slim. And although the jacket is double-breasted, you won't feel any bulk across your middle. The jacket is longer, too. This long-bodied, sculptured look makes a man appear slim and well-built.

We have a variety of new Cambridge double-breasted suits in stock. They're woven from pure virgin wool fabrics in plain colours, and colourful stripes. And every suit carries the world-famous Woolmark—your assurance that the fabrics have been quality-tested to meet high International standards. Drop by. We'd like to show how a Cambridge double-breasted suit can put you in great shape for Spring!"

Start Of Second Career For Former Pitching Ace

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Johnny Podres pitched Brooklyn Dodgers to baseball's world championship in 1955 but got the thrill of his career Wednesday night.

"I knew in spring training that I could pitch in the big leagues but I still had to prove it—and I think I did," Johnny Podres said after coming back from a year of semi-pro baseball and hurling the expansion San Diego Padres to a 2-0 victory over Houston Astros.

Elsewhere in the National League, Atlanta Braves made it three in a row over San Francisco Giants 4-1, Pittsburgh sent defending champion St. Louis Cardinals to their second straight setback 6-1, Cincinnati Reds edged Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1 on Bobby Tolan's two-run homer, Billy Williams tied a major league record with four doubles in a nine-inning game as Chicago Cubs walloped Philadelphia Phillies 11-3 and New York Mets drubbed Montreal Expos 9-5.

Podres was released by Detroit following the 1967 season after 12 years with the Dodgers and two with the Tigers. He sat around 1968, pitching semi-pro ball around his home town of Withersbee, N.Y.

The 36-year-old left hander gave the Astros only a second-inning single by Curt Blefary and Joe Morgan's bloop single in the third in the seven innings he worked. He also knocked in a run with a sacrifice fly.

"Winning this game was probably the biggest thrill of my career," he said. "I couldn't get a job in baseball last year. I called the Angels, the Dodgers and a lot of clubs, but nobody wanted me. They knew my age and they thought my arm must have been broken when Detroit released me."

"I think I could have gone nine innings, but Manager Preston Gomez told me at the end of the sixth that all he wanted me to do was go one more inning."

Podres is scheduled to make his next start Tuesday night—against the Dodgers in Los Angeles.

The Mets sent Montreal to its first defeat with a four-run first inning and "Tug McGraw's" strong 6-2-3 innings of relief. Ken Boswell homered for the Mets and Rusty Staub hit one for the Expos.

Milt Pappas retired 14 San Francisco batters in order after allowing a first-inning run, but needed relief help from Cecil Upshaw as the Braves trimmed the Giants and swept their opening three-game series.

SCATTERS SIX HITS

Bob Veale scattered six hits as Pittsburgh downed St. Louis. The Pirates scored twice in the fourth on Julian Javier's two-base error, a single by Roberto Clemente, Willie Stargell's double and Bob Robertson's single.

They added three more in the fifth on Fred Patek's bunt, another Javier error, Matty Alou's double and a single by Clemente. Jerry May homered in the sixth.

Tolan's two-run homer in the seventh against Don Sutton of Los Angeles snapped a tie and gave the Reds' victory to relief pitcher Wayne Granger, who was on base with a walk when Tolan connected. Jim Maloney, the Cincinnati starter, left the game when he pulled a hamstring muscle.

Bill Hands spaced seven hits as the Cubs trampled the Phillies and Williams' four doubles matched a record shared by 29 other players. The Cubs broke a 2-2 tie with two unearned runs in the fourth inning and exploded for seven in the seventh.

Glenn Hall, the other half of the Vezina Trophy-winning pair, pulled a hamstring muscle in the first game of the Philadelphia series and only started practicing again this week.

Meanwhile, defenceman and assistant-coach Doug Harvey won't be back this season. He suffered head and neck injuries which put him in hospital for 10 days following a car crash two weeks ago.

The Blues had flattened out in

St. Louis Blues Confident Of Becoming West Champs

ST. LOUIS (CP) — St. Louis Blues have every reason to be confident about their ability to become the National Hockey League's Western Division representative in the Stanley Cup final.

"They won the Western Division championship in a run-away. They knocked off Philadelphia Flyers in four games in the Western Division semi-final for the Stanley Cup. They were the division's representative in the Stanley Cup final last year."

Now they are awaiting the outcome of the series between Los Angeles Kings and Oakland Seals—the latter is leading the series 3-2.

And while they are confident, they are not complacent. "I don't think our club has been lulled into a false sense of self-confidence," coach Scotty Bowman said Wednesday night.

"Sure, I was surprised to knock off Philadelphia in straight games. You're always surprised when you can take two games in the other team's building."

"But we played solid hockey. I used all 11 forwards and they came up with 14 goals in four games."

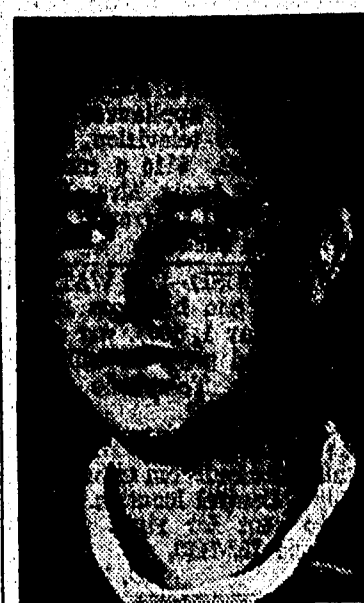

Defensively, the Blues were as stingy as they were during the regular 76-game schedule. In four games, they gave up only three goals and veteran Jacques Plante recorded two shutouts to bring his Stanley Cup playoff total to 12.

Plante will start in goal when the series opens, either Saturday or Tuesday, depending on whether the Kings-Seals quarter-final goes the limit.

Glenn Hall, the other half of the Vezina Trophy-winning pair, pulled a hamstring muscle in the first game of the Philadelphia series and only started practicing again this week.

Meanwhile, defenceman and assistant-coach Doug Harvey won't be back this season. He suffered head and neck injuries which put him in hospital for 10 days following a car crash two weeks ago.

The Blues had flattened out in the last weeks of the regular season, winning only five of their last 16 games.

GLENN HALL ... key man

"What I've been trying to do is keep the scrimmages interesting," Bowman said.

"The Seals could wrap it up tonight, fly in Friday and be on the ice the next day still with the momentum of the previous series."

"Our record is just about the same against Oakland and Los Angeles. You can't pick who you want to meet in the playoff, so why worry about it?"

Seals Take Series Lead With 4-1 Win Over Kings

OAKLAND (AP) — Oakland coach Fred Glover says it will be all over tonight if his Seals play the way they did in the last game against Los Angeles Kings.

The Seals meet the Kings tonight in Los Angeles in the sixth game of their National Hockey League Western Division semi-final playoff.

The Seals, who will be taking a 3-2 edge in the best-of-seven series, scored a 4-1 victory over the Kings Wednesday night on the strength of two goals by Bob Dillabough and excellent goaltending by Gary Smith.

Mike Laughton and Norm Ferguson also scored for Oakland while Gary Creteau replied for Los Angeles.

If the Seals win tonight, they meet St. Louis Blues for the championship in the West. If the Kings win, the seventh game will be played Sunday in Oakland.

In the Eastern Division tonight, Boston Bruins play the Canadiens in Montreal in the first game of their divisional championship set.

"This was the best forechecking effort of the series for us," Glover said after Wednesday's game.

"It was a more consistent effort than we have had in a long time, not just spotty. They can win if they play the way they're capable of playing."

Los Angeles coach Red Kelly said: "The next one now is all or nothing. It's at home at least. They beat us at our own game. I had some guys who played their hearts out and some who played half heartedly."

Kings' forward Bob Wall suffered a back injury in the second period and his participation in tonight's game was termed doubtful by Kelly, who will replace him with Bryan Campbell.

Laughton scored the first goal for the Seals with only 1:06 gone in the first period and Creteau tied it for the Kings at 15:51.

It Took Piniella 17 Moves To Checkmate Minnesota

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was a draw for 17 moves until Lou Piniella, the chess enthusiast, check-mated Minnesota Twins.

Piniella, who had four hits in Kansas City's 12-inning opening-game victory over the Twins, managed only one in Wednesday night's 17-inning affair but it gave the expansion Royals a 4-3 victory over the Twins.

It was the rookie outfielder's two-out single in the 17th that chased Jack Hernandez home with the winning run.

Outfielder Steve Whitaker made two errors on the same play in a four-run California rally that helped the Angels to a 7-3 victory over Seattle Pilots.

In other American League action, Chicago White Sox shut out Oakland Athletics 3-0 and Washington Senators dropped New York Yankees 6-4.

TOTES CHESS BOARD

Piniella—who toted his chess board to such diverse locations as Selma, Peninsula, Aberdeen, Baltimore, Elmira, Portland and Cleveland during six minor league seasons—seems to have found a home in Kansas City.

He became an instant favorite with his four-hit debut, and Wednesday's winning hit didn't hurt his standing with Kansas City fans.

The Royals had tied the game in the eighth inning on a two-out single by Joe Foy after Rod Carew's daring steal of home had given Minnesota a 3-2 edge in the fifth.

The victory left the Royals all alone in first place in the Western Division.

Whitaker was the goat in the Pilots' loss at California.

Seattle was leading 3-1 when Jim Fregosi opened the fifth inning with a single. Jay Johnstone doubled and when Whitaker first bobbled the ball and then threw wild, both runners scored, tying the game.

HELD ON TO LEAD

A walk and three straight singles by Leo Rodriguez, Tom Satriano and Bobby Knoop gave the Angels two more runs and the lead they never surrendered.

Don Mincher homered for the Pilots.

The Senators used home runs by Frank Howard, Paul Casanova and Ken McMullen to beat the Yankees and give Ted Williams his first victory as manager.

Howard and Casanova both had two-run shots in the third inning, wiping out an early 3-0 New York edge. McMullen had a solo shot and drove in another run with a sixth inning single.

Bobby Murcer and Roy White homered for the Yankees.

Sugar Kings Remain Alive

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — Lethbridge Sugar Kings erupted for three goals in the final period Wednesday night to defeat Regina Pats 5-4 for their first victory in the best-of-seven western Memorial Cup series.

The line of leftwinger Jerry Legendre, centre Darrol Knibbs and right winger Wayne Zuk collected 10 points to pace the Sugar Kings before 2,700 fans.

Regina leads the series 3-1 after earlier wins of 7-1, 8-1 and 6-5.

Fifth game will be played here tonight with the sixth, if necessary, in Lethbridge Saturday night.

Zuk scored two goals and assisted on two others as the Sugar Kings trailed 2-1 after the first period. The teams were tied 2-2 at the end of the second.

Len Chalmers, Knibbs and Legrandeur got the other Lethbridge goals. Legrandeur and Knibbs each picked up two assists.

Ross Butler, Ron Garwasluk, Larry Wright and Don Saleski replied for the Pats, who won the Saskatchewan Amateur Junior League championship.

Professors Feel Alarm At Ratio In Universities

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Carleton University professors say it is alarming that Canadians make up probably less than half of the permanent faculty members in Canadian universities. They presented their views on this situation in a brief today to hearings here of the commission on relations between universities and governments. The professors, Robin Mathews and James Steele of the university's English department, recommend that provincial governments pass legislation on certain aspects of job advertising and hiring in an effort to remedy the situation. The non-government commission, financed by a $150,000 grant from the Ford Foundation, is a joint project of the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada, the Canadian Association of University Teachers, the Canadian Union of Students and the Union Generale des Etudiants du Quebec. Its co-chairman, Prof. Donald Rowat of Carleton University's political science department and Prof. Rene Furtubise of the University of Montreal's law faculty, also heard submissions from the Canadian Nurses' Association and the Social Science Research Council of Canada. NURSES SEEK GRANTS
The nurses said the federal government should spend at least $1,000,000 annually on education grants for nursing students at the baccalaureate and master's degree levels and $100,000 a year for doctoral study by nurses. The science council said a substantial increase in funds for research in the humanities and social sciences in Canada is needed immediately and further increases will be needed from year to year to maintain research levels. The Mathews-Steele brief proposed that provincial governments pass legislation "to enable universities, in making new appointments, to strive as a general policy to employ Canadians of excellence in order to ensure that Canadians remain or become a clear two-thirds majority of full-time faculty members" in each university department. They also want provincial governments to legislate to ensure "reasonable and consistent" advertising in Canada of all available positions in Canadian universities and to ensure that Canadian citizenship is a qualification for all new appointments to administrative positions from chairman to chancellor. ALARMED BY STATISTICS
The two professors say they "look with alarm" on statistics showing that in the last three years an average of about 73 per cent of all new faculty hired has been non-Canadian. At the same time, statistics showed that the pool of qualified Canadians had been growing in fair relation to the need for faculty members in the country. The professors say Canadian universities "are unique in relation to the Canadian community, because of the historic needs, which all serious Canadians recognize, to maintain our growing excellence as a community in the face of powerful and continuous pressures upon us to cease existing at all." In the present Canadian university, the study of Canadian culture and access to Canadian knowledge generally was "shamefully neglected." The Canadian arriving at the door of a Canadian university had been "conditioned, trained, battered and bludgeoned by the hard-sell nationalistic come-on of another nation."

Great Impostor 2 Wants Medical Aid

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Impostor Ronald Ivan Macdonald, who kept a suitcase of newspaper clippings comparing him with Great Impostor Ferdinand Waldo Demara, is going to get medical help in combating his ability to pretend. But the help will be in prison. Macdonald was sentenced Wednesday to two years in Kingston penitentiary after he pleaded guilty to causing persons to act on a forged document. Macdonald was arrested Dec. 11 after working for more than two months with the London Adult Education Centre as a $10,500-a-year job counsellor. Judge D. B. Menzies noted that Kingston was a psychiatrist and said he will recommend that the doctor "observe and treat you as he sees fit." The court was told of Macdonald's previous convictions: —At Port Arthur, Ont., in 1966, where he had posed as a psychology professor at Lakehead University for three years and where he also held a seat as a school trustee. —At Kimberley, B.C., in 1967, where he was convicted of using forged documents to get a psychologist's job after claiming he held a master's degree in psychiatry. London psychiatrist Dr. Bernard Pivnick testified Macdonald also held down teaching positions at McGill University, Montreal, Francis Xavier University, Antigonish, N.S., prior to going to The Lakehead. HELD NO DEGREES
Mr. Martin, who said Macdonald held no degrees, produced equipment he said was used to forge the seal of Wayne State documents. He said the stamp was found in a search of Macdonald's quarters following his arrest. A separate charge of fraud was withdrawn Tuesday. Wayne State came into Macdonald's life earlier in his career. He told an interviewer at Port Arthur in 1966 that he was expelled from the Detroit university for a student prank and other universities refused to let him attend when they saw "expelled" on his credentials. He said when his first act as an impostor at McGill in 1960 was unbelievably easy. He used the name Everett Marshall. "I didn't produce any documents or anything. I wrote a letter saying I was interested in going there. The reply was indifferent. But I won the job over 17 or 18 other psychiatry lecturers. . . . I had some of the best psychiatrists working with me. I had excellent instruction under their supervision." After two years, Macdonald, said, he felt it natural that somebody would recognize him and he resigned. Next he posed as William Anderson at St. Francis Xavier. "They recalled me there as a 'down-to-earth' psychologist," Macdonald said. At Port Arthur, where Macdonald got a day in jail and a fine of $500, he pleaded guilty to impersonating Dr. D. R. Macdonald, a professor at the University of Missouri.

ON THE PRAIRIES CP Mainline Now Cleared

MOOSE JAW (CP) — A spokesman for Canadian Pacific Railway said Wednesday traffic on the CP Rail mainline will be restored by noon today following a washout and derailment Monday. High water washed out about 250 feet of track, derailed three diesel engines and 17 freight cars Monday, forcing traffic to be routed around the area. INVESTIGATION URGED
WINNIPEG (CP)—Ben Hanuschak (NDP-Burrows) appealed in the Manitoba Legislature Wednesday for a government investigation into extra billing practices of doctors practicing outside the Medical Care plan. He told the house of a clinic in Winnipeg that had signs advising patients they would save 15 per cent of their bill by paying immediately in cash. GRAIN DRIED WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba Pool elevators estimated Wednesday that more than 10,000,000 bushels of damp grain have been dried in Manitoba despite adverse weather in late January and early February. H. B. Sneath, chairman of the board of directors of the wheat pool organization, said the figure would represent about 90 per cent of all grain in the province classified as damp.

Student Protestors Ousted From Main Harvard Building

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

State police forcibly ejected student demonstrators from the main Harvard University administration building at Cambridge, Mass., today, ending a 17-hour sit-in protest against the Reserve Officers Training Corps program. Several persons were injured.

In California, mass sit-in continued at a Stanford University laboratory to protest classified military research on campus.

Student protesters at the New Orleans campus of Southern University forced the closing of the school Wednesday after a clash with police. The college dean locked himself in an office to escape rampaging students.

At Harvard, more than 100 helmeted and club-wielding state police waded into a crowd of 300 students outside the building before entering. They were greeted with shouted obscenities. Some bottles were thrown.

The sit-in, led by members of the Students for a Democratic Society, started at noon Wednesday when the students took over the building and forced several deans to leave. One was evicted bodily.

WANT ROTC ENDED

They demanded an immediate end to all Reserve Officers Training Corps programs at Harvard, the oldest college in the United States. President Nathan Pusey said he couldn't take their demands seriously.

Pusey said Harvard has contracts with the military forces. He said these are to be renegotiated in light of a faculty vote to deny academic credit for ROTC course and strip faculty status from ROTC instructors.

In California, an estimated 400 persons began a sit-in Wednesday night at the Stanford University Electronic Lab oratory where military research is conducted.

The action followed a three-hour mass meeting where 1,000 persons voted 2 to 1 to begin the sit-in immediately to protest the lack of action by Stanford trustees on demands that there be no more classified military research on campus.

The trustees, meeting Monday, directed the Stanford Research Institute not to undertake any new contracts in chemical and biological warfare research but did not act on the other demands.

ARREST 20 PERSONS In New Orleans, police arrested about 20 persons, all Negroes, during the demonstration at Southern University. The charges ranged from desecration of the American flag to reviling police and resisting arrest.

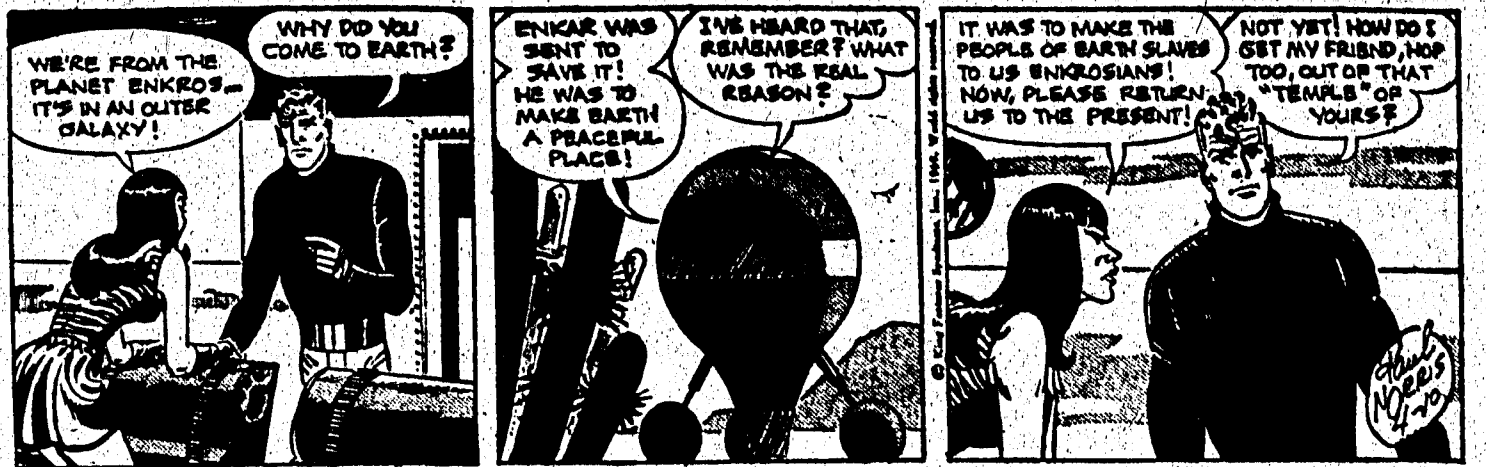

The trouble erupted when six Negro students pushed aside three campus guards and replaced the American flag with a black, green and red liberation flag. Police then moved in.

The students were demanding the removal of college Dean Emmett W. Bashful, a reduction in tuition, and more black studies. Bashful locked himself in his office at one point to escape students demanding an immediate meeting.

Police soon cleared the building and released Bashful. Classes were called off for the rest of the day but Bashful said operations would resume today. The demonstrators said the college would remain closed.

At Boston University, about 150 students led by the Students for a Democratic Society occupied a university building for two hours but left when threatened with arrest. They also demanded abolition of ROTC.

Ted Kennedy Goes To Nome After Seeing Alaska Poverty

NOME, Alaska (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, sporting a button proclaiming "Eskimo Power," flew to Nome Wednesday night after a day-long tour of poverty-stricken villages in Southwestern Alaska.

Kennedy and members of the Senate subcommittee on Indian education left Bethel by bush plane in the morning for Tuluksak, a community of about 200 persons located on a tributary of the Kuskokwim River 50 miles away.

There the Massachusetts Democrat went into the log cabin-type homes of several villagers to visit around the wood stoves. At one home where a child was suffering from pneumonia, Kennedy had a doctor traveling with his party examine the child.

In response to a question, Kennedy was told the village children breakfasted primarily on bread and coffee since milk was not available.

The party then went to Nunapitchuk where over half the village's population of 400 consists of children under 18. Of the 125 youngsters in grade school, only a handful will complete a high school education, Kennedy was told.

SEEK SCHOOLS Villagers said they didn't like to send their children away to high school and asked that a system of regional high schools be established.

Kennedy agreed such a system was needed and said he also was "distressed" that the teachers he talked to don't speak the Eskimo dialect. As a result, he said, children were falling as much as five years behind.

After a stop at Pilot's Station on the Yukon River, Kennedy's party returned to Bethel for a tour of the Public Health Service native hospital prior to the flight to Nome.

Kennedy had planned to visit three other villages but this was changed when white-out conditions made flying dangerous. In a white-out it is virtually impossible to distinguish the horizon.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

SOUTH ♠ A K Q 2 ♥ K Q 5 ♦ 7 4 3 ♣ 9 6 2

The bidding: North East South West 1 ♦ Pass 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♦ Pass 3 NT

Opening lead—jack of hearts. Put yourself in the West seat and imagine that all you see is dummy's hand and your own. You lead the jack of hearts and South wins with the king, East playing the deuce. You then take the diamond return with the king and it's now your play. What would you lead?

Actually, there's only one right play—the ten of clubs. If you lead it, South goes down; if you don't, South makes the contract.

If declarer wins with the ace, you finish with three club tricks and the A-K of diamonds. If declarer covers the ten with the jack, East wins with the king and returns the seven while if declarer ducks the ten, so does your partner. A club continuation then establishes the two more club tricks you need.

Note that if you lead a low club at trick three, declarer ducks in dummy and cannot be stopped from making four no-trumps.

How are you supposed to know that the ten of clubs is the right play at trick three? Well, look at it this way. From studying dummy, you can count eight tricks for declarer—three hearts, four diamonds and a club—and it's a sure thing from the bidding that South has a ninth trick comfortably tucked away somewhere in his hand.

So you mustn't just stand pat by making a "safe" lead of another heart, or you'll be handing South the contract without a fight.

You have to attack to succeed, and declarer's only possible weak spot must be in clubs. For a spade shift to be right, your partner would need something like the A-Q-J-10, which on the bidding is next to impossible.

For East to have the king of clubs is by no means out of the question. That's why you attack clubs, being careful, of course, to lead the ten in case South has the nine.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

FOR TOMORROW Stars continue beneficent. You can make excellent headway in both business and personal matters, and some unexpected recognition for past efforts is a distinct possibility.

FOR THE BIRTHDAY If tomorrow is your birthday, you are currently governed by stellar influences generous to both job and financial matters. For the Aries, the coming year should truly be a period for outstanding accomplishment—if, of course, he makes the best use of his skills and talents, and takes advantage of all opportunities offered.

From now until the end of June, you should be the recipient of many gains along monetary lines but, for the two months following, it would be wise to consolidate assets and prepare for further expansion beginning on Sept. 1, when you will enter another splendid 4-month cycle for furthering material goals. Next good month on the fiscal score: February of next year. Most likely periods for job advancement and recognition: The balance of this month, July, September, November, December and February.

Romance and creative interests will also be star-blessed during the next 12 months, with emphasis on the former between early May and late September; also in late October and December; on the latter in May, June, September, November and January. Most propitious months for travel and social activities: July, August, October and December.

A child born on this day will be endowed with a high order of intelligence and unusual versatility in the creative field.

P. Q. Has Powerful Arm As Airport Site Staked

STE. SCHOLASTIQUE, Que. (CP) — A team of Quebec prospectors employed by a provincial government mining subsidiary has staked claims in the dead centre of the 3,000 acres selected by the federal government for its new international airport, it was learned today.

The staking was done as late as March 11—about two weeks before Transport Minister Paul Hellyer announced the location of the new airport in this community 26 miles northwest of Montreal.

The coincidental move gives the provincial government a powerful weapon, backed by the British North America Act, to exercise and protect its sovereignty over the land.

The government, which wanted the new airport to be south or southeast of Montreal, has been criticizing the federal government's choice of a site since it was announced March 27.

The staking is all officially recorded with the provincial department of mines and resources.

The government's mining subsidiary is Quebec Mining Exploration Co.—La Societe Quebecoise d'Exploration Miniere in French or SOQUEM for short—wholly-owned subsidiary which does research in exploration methods and also engages in mining exploration.

Most of the staking was done late last year in the names of certain individuals, since a company cannot in itself stake mining claims.

Three SOQUEM employees, R. Cormier, P. Bourassa and P. Brosseau, registered their claims in their own names and subsequently transferred them to SOQUEM.

The provincial government now is in a position where it could, if it wishes to press the matter, insist that the possibility of diamond discovery or the existence of columbium deposits in the area takes preference over building the airport.

Saturday Mail Blackout Upset Some Businesses

TORONTO (CP) — The ending of Saturday mail deliveries doesn't appear to have upset most businessmen.

A sampling of opinion since the service was dropped seven weeks ago found that, while there are some complaints about delays in delivery, few companies found it difficult to make adjustments.

"As far as I'm concerned, there's been no effect at all," said Laurie Brown, personnel manager for Royal Insurance Group's local operations.

His reply was echoed by spokesmen for banks and several other organizations that deal closely with the public through the mail, including the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

Even mail-order companies were subdued in their comments.

Both the T. Eaton Co. Ltd. and Simpson-Sears Ltd., two of Canada's mail-order giants, say the ending of Saturday deliveries has had only a minimal effect on their business.

An Eaton spokesman added that its mail-order office doesn't operate on Saturdays anyway.

Insurance agent Derek Kotchie said deliveries early Monday suit him.

If Postmaster-General Eric Klerans is right when he says he'll save $1,500,000 "I'll drink to that," Mr. Kotchie said.

REPORTS SOME DELAYS

Brokerage officials generally say there is little problem with delays in payments by mail for transactions.

A few doubts were raised, however.

A spokesman for one large house said it could mean some extra work for brokerage houses.

If a client transacts some business on a Friday, he won't get a bill until the following Monday. When payment for a stock transaction takes more than three business days, the extra time has to be recorded and that will mean more paper work, he said.

"But I think it's something people are going to accept."

George Collins, controller with Bongard, Leslie and Co., said many people like to figure out their bills during a weekend.

Lack of mail on Saturdays could mean a week's delay in payments from these people, he said.

Secretary Howard Roden of Sun Life Assurance Co.'s Toronto branch said it now is impossible to know when mail is due from the head office in Montreal.

But he added that he would not advocate a return to Saturday delivery, since postmen are entitled to a two-day weekend as much as anyone else.

Pathet Lao Kills Five Frenchmen

VIENTIANE (Reuters) — Five French civilians were killed today by pro-Communist Pathet Lao guerrillas at Thangon about 20 miles from this Laotian capital today.

Three of the men, members of the French aid plan to Laos, were executed on the site of a school. The other two were shot down as they approached the scene on hearing firing.

Reports reaching here said the three men executed were technicians working at the Thangon Agricultural School.

Then Chris Went Away Happy After 'Interviewing' Senator

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Chris Asmar is a young man who thinks nothing is impossible.

A Grade 11 student at F. J. Brennan secondary school here, Chris gate-crashed Senator Edward Kennedy's appearance Tuesday at the Detroit Economic Club luncheon, and left with autographs, pictures, a tape recording—and no questions from the secret service.

When he read the senator would be in Detroit Tuesday, he arranged for time off school, took a camera, and a tape recorder. "I looked like the press," he said.

When the senator arrived and joined the receiving line, Chris went through the line. He wanted to get a message from the senator on his tape recorder then, but the secret service held him back.

He had no luncheon ticket, so he got a chair from the kitchen, and sat in front of television cameras near the podium.

During the dinner, "I kept bugging him for autographs," said Chris.

He also persuaded a woman to take his picture with the senator.

Still nobody checked who he was, although "I had a few suspicious looks."

As Senator Kennedy spoke, Chris got most of it on tape.

"I had the best seat in the place," he said.

When the senator left, Chris went after him. As Mr. Kennedy sat in his car, Chris "just crammed my way through" the secret service and asked the senator for a message to the students at F. J. Brennan.

"Well I'm glad to see you, F.J.," said the senator, thinking Chris himself was F. J. Brennan.

When they straightened that out, Mr. Kennedy said he wished he had time to go over and pay his respects to the students.

Chris went away happy.

Airlines Kill 349 In U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Airline crashes took 349 lives and another 1,374 persons were killed in private plane accidents in the United States last year.

The national transportation safety board said here the airline toll was the second highest on record, exceeded only by the 499 killed in 1960. At the same time, the accident rate for each 1,000,000 aircraft miles flown reached a new low of .028 last year.

Fatalities occurred in 14 of 72 airline crashes, the highest ratio in 20 years. The board said this might be a reflection of "the recent trend toward faster aircraft with increased passenger capacity."

There were 692 fatal crashes out of 5,069 accidents involving non-airline planes.

In 1967, there were 286 persons killed in airline crashes, and 1,228 died in accidents involving private planes.

Fairyland Time Of Life Seen Through Eyes Of Boy And Dog

A boy and his dog . . .

No other visual symbol typifies the carefree fairyland time of life everyone would like to re-live.

For a 14-year-old Penticton boy, the most cherished part of that image was cruelly torn away March 8.

Someone stole Guy, his white German shepherd friend with proud golden ears and tanned tail and back.

They thought they were stealing a dog. They didn't know they were taking a boy's joy, and it isn't the kind of thing that is easily hidden or forgotten.

To Mr. and Mrs. Bill Petruik, the boy's parents, the dog's loss is sad in a different way, for Guy was companion, watchdog and playboy pet of the whole family.

Every day their son gets on his bicycle and searches the streets of Penticton, calling a beloved name and waiting for a streak of white and gold to come charging out of nowhere, that funny right ear with the tip missing catching the wind like a badly furled sail.

He's still searching . . .

Besides the markings already mentioned, Guy can be identified by Penticton tag number 428.

If you know, or have seen part of a boy's life answering the above description, the Petruik family urges you to get in touch with your local RCMP.

Expect a lot of good things when you fly East with Air Canada.

Like a change of scenery. Inside the airplane. And here's why. Air Canada stewardesses are wearing bright and beautiful new uniforms. Their working wardrobe consists of A-line mini-dresses in three basic colours: Jet Red, Sonic White and Galaxy Blue. All the dresses can be worn interchangeably with their winter red and summer blue coats. And as you can see, they're smart and swingy outfits.

What you'll also see are happier stewardesses. (After all, can you think of any young girl who doesn't like to look chic?) Which means happier, better-looking-after passengers. And that's exactly what we're trying to achieve. Always. All ways. For you.

Next time you head across Canada, come with Air Canada and watch the girls go by — in high style. Call your travel agent and reserve your seat for the fashion show.

Posties Pay Hit By Errors

TORONTO (CP) — Errors in postal-workers paychecks have been cropping up across Canada since August, with recovery of lost wages sometimes taking three months, a union official said Wednesday night.

L. A. Murphy, president of the Toronto local, Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said hundreds of Toronto night-shift workers Wednesday received cheques underpaying them between $25 and $200.

"It's something we've been filing grievances over since last August," he said. "It's just been one foul-up after another."

About half the 1,200 night workers found errors and the same percentage of the 1,800 day workers are expected to be shortchanged today, Mr. Murphy said.

The union complaints met no success because of red tape created by the fact that postal employees work for the postmaster general but are paid by the treasury board, he said.

There had been no explanation from Ottawa, but he thought the errors were caused by a new pay system under which workers were paid every two weeks instead of twice a month.
