The Marist Brothers' Teaching Tradition In Australia: 1872-2000

With special attention to developments in Sydney.

John Braniff

A thesis submitted in fulfilment of the requirements for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, Faculty of Education and Social Work, Sydney University.

2005

The Marist Brothers' Teaching Tradition in Australia: 1872-2000

Table of Contents

Preface	iii
Chapter One: Project, Precedents and Process	1
The Question of Charism Australian Historiography: Ecclesiastical & Educational Outline of the Narrative	1 6 18
Chapter Two: The Political, Educational & Social Context: Sydney 1850-1872	23
Chapter Three: Fr Champagnat and the Sources of Marist Pedagogy	35
The Education of Young Marcellin: 1789-1829 Fr Champagnat's Formation of the Marist Brothers	37
as Teachers: 1830-1840 The Teacher's Guide & the Canonisation of the	46
Marist Teaching Tradition: 1840-63 Conclusion	53 64
Chapter Four: Arrival and Winning Acceptance: 1872-1875	66
Departure and Arrival Winning Acceptance - Part I: 1872 Winning Acceptance - Part II: 1873-1874 Winning Acceptance - Part III: 1875	66 68 74 79
Chapter Five: The Second Founder: 1876-1893	87
The New Broom Establishing a 'Marist' System Cardinal Moran and the Development of the Australian Marist Tradition	88 94 98
Local Decisions and the End of Br John's First Provincialship	103

Chapter Six: The High Road and the Low Road: 1894-1904	107
The High Road	108
The Low Road	118
Conclusion	124
Chapter Seven: Marist Teachers and the New Education:	10.5
1900-1945	126
The First Wave 1900-1930: I - The Low Road	127
II - The High Road	135
The Second Wave 1930-1945: I - Summary	139
II - Analysis	142
Conclusion	149
Chapter Eight: Marist Tradition Meets the Modern World	151
The Low Road: St Patrick's, Church Hill.	156
The High Road: Champagnat College, Dundas.	162
Revision and Analysis	166
Chapter Nine: Decline & Rise 1970-2000	172
Vatican II and the 'Revisioning' of the Marist Tradition Implementation at the Systemic Level:	173
I - School Administration	179
II - Religious Education	184
III - Recruitment & Formation	188
Implementation at the Local Level: St Patrick's,
Dundas.1970-2000	194
Chapter Ten: Conclusion: The Evolution of Marist Pedagogy in Australia
1872-2000	201
Appendix: Marist Iconography in Australia: 1872-2000	211
Bibliography	217

Preface

This historical analysis of the teaching tradition of the Marist Brothers in Australia is based mainly on archival material conserved at the Sydney Province's archives located at St Joseph's College, Hunter's Hill; in the school library at St Patrick's Marist College, Dundas, NSW; and, to a lesser extent, in the archives of the Melbourne Province, at Templestowe in Victoria. Access to these archival materials was kindly granted by the respective Brothers Provincial and facilitated by Br Michael Naughtin and his understudy, Br Brian Etherington, in Sydney; by Br Nello Facci in Melbourne; and also by Mr Michael Wondracz, the school librarian at Dundas. In addition I have enjoyed considerable assistance from the Irish Christian Brother's archivist at Balmain, in Sydney.

The present writer is not, of course, the first to mine these archives. Br Alban Doyle's The Story of the Marist Brothers in Australia: 1872-1972 made extensive and sensitive use, especially, of the primary sources up till 1900; and other Australian Marist scholars, such as Br Ronald Fogarty, Br Michael Naughtin and Br Frederick McMahon have also blazed a trail through periods and topics which were their particular interest. Similarly, the European archival materials preserved at the present Marist General House in Rome, and the former General House, at St Genis Laval, near Lyon, have been studied and pondered by people such as Br Gabriel Marcel, Br Alexandre Balko, Br Paul Sester and Br André Lanfrey, and it is the conclusions of these French Marist scholars, rather than the present writer's own familiarity with the original texts that have provided a pedagogical starting point for the narrative of the Marist Brothers in Australia.

The overall construction and development of this thesis have been monitored, with great generosity and regularity, by my supervisor, Dr Craig Campbell and, to a lesser extent, by my associate supervisor, Professor Geoffrey Sherington. Individual chapters have been read and discussed, or commented upon, by Brs Allman Dwyer, Charles Howard, Frederick McMahon, John Luttrell, Julian Casey, Michael Naughtin, Ronald Fogarty and Walter Smith in Australia, and by Br André Lanfrey in France. Their comments have been, for the most part, affirming and supportive, and for this I am most grateful and appreciative. However, ultimate responsibility for the judgements and opinions expressed must remain with the writer.

Finally, at a personal level, the completion of this dissertation, which has been a full-time, five days a week job for the past three years, would not have been possible without the constant encouragement and assistance of my wife, Jennifer Ledingham. She not only proof-read each chapter, as it was drafted, and corrected the punctuation; she also discussed, and invited me to re-think, the emphasis in some aspects of the argument, itself. For her support, and that of my wider circle of family, friends and former confreres, I am most grateful. Without it, writing would have been a very lonely occupation.