Introduction

This Professional Development Directory has been sent initially to consortia leads; we ask you to pass it on to leaders and managers in your consortium to aid them in organising continuous professional development (CPD) both for themselves and for the staff that work in their institutions.

Consortia preparing to deliver the first five Diplomas from September 2008 are leading the way in a significant reform programme. This means embedding new ways of working, creating stimulating curriculum plans, directing learner choices and working out what delivery looks like in the local area.

In addition to the Diplomas and functional skills, there are a number of other changes to the 11-19 curriculum from September 2008, including the new secondary curriculum, revised GCSEs and A levels, as well as new professional standards for the Further Education (FE) workforce.

In this directory, we want to provide you with an overview of the changes across the 11-19 age range and how the supporting CPD opportunities fit together.

Professional development is a high priority in our plans, and we know from conversations with you that you are thinking carefully about it too.

We have worked closely with awarding bodies to design a CPD package for the 11-19 reforms and with the Diploma Development Partnerships (DDPs) specifically on the Diplomas.

This ensures that the content of the support and training you receive is coherent. The support offered centrally will be complemented by what is offered by awarding bodies on qualification specific training, and by DDPs on employer engagement.

You will also be aware that the work of the Department for Education and Skills has now been split between the new Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) with Secretary of State Ed Balls, and the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS), with Secretary of State John Denham.

We would like to assure you that this change will not detract from our plans toward Diploma delivery in 2008. We are working closely with colleagues across government departments. The changes in 2008 are on track and remain a high priority for both Departments.

Finally, we expect all staff who will be teaching new qualifications, and in particularly Diplomas and functional skills, to prioritise the CPD being provided centrally, as it provides a vital knowledge base for accessing further support and training. As you work with your staff to identify who should attend training for these reforms, we suggest that this is worked out at both institution and consortium level. We also recommend that different members of staff lead on training for each reform, where this is possible, for greater manageability at institution level.

In 07/08, an additional inset day is being made available to secondary schools to plan for the 11-19 reforms. Please contact DCSF for more details.

How to use the Professional Development Directory

The directory is intended for use in a number of ways:

By leaders and managers:

- to understand the full scope of the reforms and plan and prioritise their delivery through the curriculum;
- to identify the right members of staff to be trained and ensure that training is accessed;
- to consider your own training and development needs and what tools you can access to drive change in your institutions.

The following sections will be of particular relevance to leaders and managers:

- Checklist for leaders and managers;
- 11-19 Reforms at a glance;
- leaders and managers support packages in the directory.

By teachers and practitioners:

- as a single point of reference for central training and support, to build into existing local CPD arrangements;
- to tailor training needs and network with other staff to share good practice; and
- to gain an overview of 11-19 reforms and understand the roles of the key players involved.

The following sections will be of particular relevance to teachers and practitioners:

- Checklist for practitioners;
- 11-19 reforms at a glance;
- The national organisations involved in delivering the 11-19 reforms;
- Directory listings detailing support and training for practitioners.

By support staff and exams officers:

- to understand the implications of the reforms for your role; and
- to help ensure that the administrative aspects of delivering the reforms are considered and built into local delivery plans.

The following sections will be of particular relevance to support staff and exams officers:

- Checklist for exams officers;
- The national organisations involved in delivering the 11-19 reforms;
- Directory listings detailing support for exams officers and support staff.

This directory can be accessed online at www.dcsf.gov.uk/14-19. We welcome feedback from you on this document. Please email 14-19@dcsf.gsi.gov.uk with your comments.

The 11-19 reforms – at a glance

The aim of these reforms is to develop an education system that prepares young people for success in life, improving their life chances, our economy and our society. The 11-19 reforms are designed to give learners:

- more engaging learning choices;
- highly valued and relevant qualifications that recognise their talents;
- mastery of English, mathematics and information communication technology (ICT), including how to apply these;
- new opportunities that enable progression to work, or to further or higher education.

This is the vision that drives these changes to 11-19 education.

Schools and Further Education

S/FE

S/F

____

Changes to A level specifications. These include moving from six to four units in most subjects and introducing more challenging and open-ended questions, enabling students to achieve A* grades.

WHY?

The new A levels will reduce the burden of assessment and introduce greater stretch for the most able students.

WHEN?

First teaching in September 2008.

SUPPORT AVAILABLE, AND BY WHOBy awarding bodies

WHERE TO FIND OUT MORE.

WHAT

New qualifications for 14-19 year olds that will combine theoretical and applied learning, functional skills and learning based around industry sectors. They will sit alongside, and may incorporate A levels and GCSEs. Diplomas will be available at three levels:

- Level 1, equivalent* to 4-5 GCSEs
- Level 2, equivalent* to 6-7 GCSEs
- Level 3, equivalent* to 3 A levels
- * Equivalent in terms of teaching hours.

Diplomas at all levels will incorporate:

Principal learning – this will develop knowledge, understanding and skills relevant to a broad economic sector, using realistic contexts and leading edge sector relevant materials.

Additional/specialist learning -

this will allow learners to tailor their programme according to their interests and aspirations and may include further specialisation, or complementary studies.

Generic learning – this will ensure that all Diploma students cover common skills essential to successful learning and future employment. It includes personal learning and thinking skills, a project, work experience and functional mathematics, English and ICT. Generic learning will often be embedded across the principal learning of the Diploma.

Diplomas will be available in 14 industry sectors, or lines of learning.

WHY

Diplomas will give young people the skills, knowledge and understanding they need to progress from one level of achievement to the next, from school or college to further or higher education and ultimately to adult and working life.

WHEN?

Phased introduction through a Diploma Gateway process:

September 2008

First teaching of first five lines of learning

September 2009

First teaching of second five lines of learning

September 2010

First teaching of final four lines of learning

September 2013

National entitlement will ensure that every young person has access to all 14 lines of learning in any local area.

SUPPORT AVAILABLE, AND BY WHO

Face to face training and online materials must be accessed by anyone teaching Diplomas from September 2008.

Support is co-constructed with input from consortia to tailor training to their specific needs.

New Secondary Curriculum

→ New Secondary Curriculum continued

A challenging two year curriculum, primarily aimed at students aged 16 to 19. It has three core requirements:

- · extended essay
- theory of knowledge
- · creativity, action and service.

The IB leads to a qualification that is widely recognized by higher education institutions internationally.

To offer more choice in post-16 qualifications.

WHEN?

September 2010

Every Local Authority (except London) will have at least one maintained institution offering the IB.

SUPPORT AVAILABLE, AND BY WHO

Through the International Baccalaureate Organisation (IBO).

WHERE TO FIND OUT MORE.

A new secondary curriculum with:

- · less prescription over the detail of subject content;
- a sharper focus on the essential concepts, skills and practical applications of subjects;
- · clearer links across subjects and between schools and the wider community;
- more emphasis on the development of personal and life skills such as initiative, enterprise, ability to work in teams, and the capacity to learn independently.

WHY?

To give teachers more time and space to personalise their teaching.

To ensure that all pupils master the basics in English and mathematics, and have opportunities to pursue particular interests and aptitudes.

To help schools and young people to make connections between the subjects and to view the curriculum as a whole.

Help young people understand the unique contribution each subject makes to their learning.

To develop essential practical and personal life skills alongside their subject knowledge.

WHEN?

September 2007

The new secondary curriculum will be available to schools for planning purposes.

September 2008

The key stage 3 curriculum is phased in over a three year period, becoming statutory for year 7 pupils in September 2008.

September 2009

Key stage 3 curriculum will apply to all year 7 and year 8 pupils. Changes to the key stage 4 curriculum begin rolling out.

September 2010

Key stage 3 curriculum will apply across years 7, 8 and 9.

Checklist

Leaders and managers

What we are asking of leaders in all institutions:

- to build a positive ethos around the reforms and to direct how they will be planned for in the curriculum;
- to allow time for relevant staff members to attend and cascade training and plan implementation in your consortium, both for curriculum and administration; and
- to review opportunities available and to develop skills for collaborative leadership and change management.

In addition, for the FE workforce requirements, we are asking FE leaders to:

• brief their staff of the new requirements and put systems in place to ensure new and existing staff are qualified according to the new regulations.

The national organisations involved in delivering the 11-19 reforms

The 11-19 reforms are being delivered through close work with a group of national organisations with significant expertise in 11-19 education. These organisations are delivering excellent professional development packages, often tailored to the needs of those delivering the reforms.

Further support that is specific to the qualifications will be made available by awarding bodies and by Diploma Development Partnerships for each line of learning.

Awarding bodies	Award qualifications. Support consortia with qualification specific guidance and training. Role in evaluation of new qualifications. Awarding bodies will contact consortia directly regarding their CPD offers.
Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) and Department for Innovation, Universities and Science (DIUS)	Sets the overarching policy for delivery and works with key delivery partners to implement reforms.
DCSF/DIUS workforce partners Training and Development Agency (TDA), Lifelong Learning UK (LLUK), National College for School Leadership (NCSL), Centre for Excellence in Leadership (CEL), Quality Improvement Agency (QIA), Specialist Schools and Academies Trust (SSAT), Secondary National Strategies (SNS) and the National Assessment Agency (NAA)	Team of organisations with expertise in school and FE education, who are providing guidance, CPD training and materials and networking opportunities across the 11-19 reforms.  More information about training and CPD opportunities for leaders, practitioners, support staff and exams officers is available in the directory listings from page 15 onwards.
Diploma Development Partnerships (DDPs)	Led by Sector Skills Councils, they also represent Further and Higher Education institutions, schools and awarding bodies, to specify the Diploma content. DDPs play a continuing role in supporting consortia with employer engagement and have a key role in the Gateway process.
Employers	Provide insight into industry for practitioners and young people through placements or learning sessions.
Qualification and Curriculum Authority (QCA)	QCA accredits and monitors qualifications and works with awarding bodies to develop new specifications. They are also supporting delivery of the new curriculum through guidance, advice and support.
Unions	Provide advice to DCSF and DIUS on workforce support attached to new reforms. Communicate developments on 11-19 changes to members.

The directory provides more details of the CPD available to support the 11-19 changes. You can use it to access the support that is most relevant to your role in the institution and the reforms for which you are responsible.

Leaders and managers in 14-19 consortia or institutions within a consortium.	Organisational development and change management	A consultancy style programme of support, tailored to help you work towards the culture you will need to deliver the new 14-19 diplomas. Focus collective effort on key priorities and issues; engage stakeholders in delivering the vision; develop a change management 'journey' and track progress; develop more collaborative and effective partnerships; and identify and resolve conflicting views and priorities.		Build strong partnerships and networks at all levels and benefit from external expert facilitation when required.
→ Leaders and managers	Collaborative leadership learning module	Collaborative leadership focuses on helping leaders and managers to develop, and excel in, the more collaborative leadership which is demanded by the 14-19 reforms.		Develop knowledge and understanding of principles of collaborative leadership, including behaviours, emotional intelligence, the capacity to lead change and build a community of practice.  Access to online networks and use of an individual learning plan and reflective learning journal.
Leaders, managers and practitioners	VLE materials	CPD resources contextualised in each Diploma line to support all practitioners and trainers to deliver the Diplomas.  Topics cover: effective integration of personal learning and thinking skills (PLTs) and functional skills; work-related learning; project management; collaborative teaching; and key areas of principal learning.		Practitioners will be able to apply different approaches and new contexts to teaching and learning. This will excite and enthuse learners.

The reforms, in particular Diplomas, have been designed with regard to the needs of employers, aiming to prepare young people for Further and Higher Education as well as for employment. This means that practitioners will need to be confident in delivering the practical and applied elements of the new qualifications, drawing in expertise from Diploma Development Partnerships and industry.
