INTRODUCTION

This official statistics release reports the provisional number of independent school inspections that occurred between 1 October 2011 and 31 December 2011 under section 162A of the Education Act 2002, as inserted by schedule 8 of the Education Act 2005. These statistics are based on provisional data and are subject to change. Ofsted will release final statistics and findings for this period on 12 June 2012.

These inspections have two purposes: first, they report on the school's compliance with the regulatory standards for independent schools; second, they provide an evaluative assessment of the school's performance.

KEY FINDINGS

Year to date

- Between 1 September 2011 and 31 December 2011, there were 124 independent school inspections. Of these, 13% (16) were found outstanding for their overall quality of education, 63% (78) were judged good, 21% (26) were judged satisfactory and 3% (4) were found inadequate.
- Of the 124 independent school inspections, 19 were new schools being inspected for the first time and 105 were inspected again (50 with SEN provision and 55 without). Just under a third of these schools with a previous inspection improved on the overall quality of education, 62 attained the same grade (including four judged outstanding and two judged inadequate), while 10 declined.

Latest quarter

- In the three months from 1 October 2011 to 31 December 2011, 96 schools received a standard inspection. The overall quality of education was judged good or outstanding in three quarters of schools (72). Three schools were judged to be inadequate overall. This is a very similar picture to that seen in the previous quarter.
- The behaviour of pupils was the most positively judged aspect, with 32 schools being judged outstanding whilst none were judged inadequate. This was followed by the quality of provision for pupils' spiritual, moral, social and cultural development and the welfare, health and safety of pupils, where 31 and 25 schools were judged outstanding respectively.
- Fourteen schools demonstrated an outstanding quality of education. Three of these schools had integrated inspections, where they were also judged outstanding in their boarding or residential provision.
- Of the three schools judged inadequate for their quality of education, all were found to be offering both an inadequate curriculum and an inadequate quality of teaching. In addition, two were found to be inadequate for the welfare, health and safety of pupils.
- Although some schools are providing outstanding welfare, health and safety, it is still a concern that this is also the least positive judgement for inspections in this period, with nine schools judged inadequate, whilst only 41 schools were judged good.
- During this three month period, 86 of the 96 schools inspected met all regulations relating to the overall quality of education provided, with a further three schools meeting 90-99%. Of the remaining seven schools, six met 70-89%, and only one school met fewer than 50% of those regulations.

- Of the 96 schools, 72 schools met all regulations in relation to the welfare, health and safety of pupils. Of the 24 schools that did not meet all these regulations, 12 met 90-99%, six schools met 70–89%, five schools met 50–69% and one school met fewer than 50% of the regulations.
- Twenty-nine of the 96 schools inspected between 1 October 2011 and 31 December 2011 were also inspected for Early Years Foundation Stage. Three of these schools were judged outstanding for outcomes for children in the Early Years Foundation Stage. Of the remaining schools, 21 were judged good, five were satisfactory and none were judged inadequate.

IMPACT OF REVISIONS ON KEY POINTS OF PREVIOUS PUBLICATION

- Final data covering the period 1 July 2011 to 30 September 2011 have been released and can be found on the Ofsted website:

www.ofsted.gov.uk/resources/official-statistics-independent-school-inspections-and-outcomes-including-regulation-compliance

- The revised data include inspection outcomes relating to one further full inspection.
- These additions and amendments do not impact considerably on the key findings of the provisional data.

METHODOLOGY

1. The data in this release are from inspections undertaken between 1 October 2011 and 31 December 2011.
2. Statistics relating to inspections undertaken in this quarter are provisional and include inspections in the period when the report was published within one month of the end of the quarter. If, exceptionally, an inspection report is published later than one month after the end of the quarter, that inspection will be included in the final release of the statistics.
3. Revisions are published in line with Ofsted's revisions policy for official statistics. For more information about the policy please visit the Ofsted website:

www.ofsted.gov.uk/resources/statistical-notice-ofsted-revisions-policy-for-official-statistics

4. Section 157 of the Education Act 2002 specifies that regulations setting out the standards that independent schools must meet should be made on the following matters:
 - quality of education

- spiritual, moral, social and cultural development of pupils
- welfare, health and safety of pupils
- suitability staff and proprietors
- premises of and accommodation at the school
- provision of information
- manner in which complaints are to be handled.

Such standards are set out in The Education (Independent School Standards) (England) Regulations 2010.¹

5. The inspection of an independent school is carried out by Ofsted under section 162A of the Education Act 2002, as amended, the purpose of which is to advise the Secretary of State for Education about the school's suitability for continued registration as an independent school. The school inspection covers the school's provision for all registered pupils from the term in which their third birthday occurs to the age of 18.
6. From 1 July 2011, Ofsted will include all types of inspection activity carried out in table 1. Inspections which result in a published inspection report and outcome will be included in subsequent tables, charts and data.
7. Under the new inspection cycle which started on 1 September 2011, the frequency of inspection is proportionate to risk. The education provision of mainstream independent schools which were judged good or outstanding at their last inspection, and which meet specific criteria, are inspected at an interval of up to six years rather than every three years. There are, therefore, good and outstanding schools that will not be inspected for another six years, unless an issue arises and the Secretary of State asks Ofsted to inspect sooner. Independent special schools continue to be inspected every three years in recognition of the vulnerability of the pupils that they cater for.²

GLOSSARY

Emergency inspections

Emergency inspections of independent schools are conducted under section 162A of the Education Act 2002, as inserted by schedule 8 of the Education Act 2005. They are carried out at the request of the Secretary of State for a variety of reasons, including to investigate a complaint, concern, or the presence of an unregistered school or unregistered boarding/residential provision at an existing school and will only look into the issues raised by the DfE request. Emergency inspections may be unannounced and reports of these inspections are only published at the request of the Secretary of State.

Standard inspections

Standard inspections of independent schools are conducted under section 162A of the Education Act 2002, as inserted by schedule 8 of the Education Act 2005, at the request of the Secretary of State. The purpose of inspection is to advise the Secretary of State for Education about schools' suitability for continued registration as independent schools. In standard inspections, schools receive two days' notice of inspection and inspectors observe schools' compliance with all of the standards set out in The Education (Independent School Standards) (England) Regulations 2010, and also provide an evaluative assessment of the school's performance.³

Independent schools

Independent schools are defined by section 463 of the Education Act 1996, as amended. They provide full-time education for:

- five or more pupils of compulsory school age, or
- at least one pupil of that age for whom a statement is maintained under section 324, or who is looked after by a local authority (within the meaning of section 22 of the Children Act 1989).

It is immaterial if full-time education is also provided at the school for pupils under or over compulsory school age.

There are around 2,400 independent schools in England. Ofsted inspects the educational provision only in independent schools which are not members of independent schools associations. Schools which are members of such associations are inspected by independent inspectorates approved by the Secretary of State for this purpose: the Independent Schools Inspectorate, the School Inspection Service, and the Bridge Schools Inspectorate. All inspections are carried out at the request of the Secretary of State, which is the registering authority for all independent schools.

Integrated inspections

When the inspection of educational provision in non-association independent boarding or residential special schools is due at the same time as the welfare inspection, they are combined into an integrated inspection of the whole school. Inspections of welfare provision are carried out under the Care Standards Act 2000 having regard to the national minimum standards for boarding schools or residential special schools, as appropriate.

³ www.legislation.gov.uk/uksi/2010/1997/contents/made

Ofsted also inspects the welfare provision of association independent boarding and residential special schools, whose educational provision is inspected by the Independent Schools Inspectorate, the School Inspection Service, or the Bridge Schools Inspectorate (see 'Independent schools' above). It aims where appropriate to carry out the inspection of welfare at the same time as the education inspection, although separate inspection reports are published.

Material change inspections

Ofsted carries out material change inspections of registered independent schools at the request of the Secretary of State out of the normal inspection cycle when the school wishes to make a material change to their premises, intake or age range, or to the provision they make for pupils with special educational needs and / or disabilities.

Inspectors will consider the implications of the material change and recommend to the Secretary of State whether the material change proposed can be approved or not and, if not, what the school must do to improve. The provider cannot implement the proposed change until the Secretary of State grants permission.

Pre-registration (Academy)

Academies are publicly funded independent schools and as an independent school must be subject to an initial independent school registration inspection under s160(4) Education Act. Once open academies will be subject to regular inspection by Ofsted under section 5 of the Education Act 2005.

Pre-registration (Independent school)

The Secretary of State is the Registration Authority for Independent Schools in England, and maintains a register of independent schools. When a proprietor has made an application for registration of an independent school the Registration Authority will notify HMCI and HMCI will inspect the school and report to the Registration on the extent to which the independent school standards are met, and are likely to continue to be met, in relation to the school.

When a proprietor makes an application for a new residential special school, an integrated pre-registration inspection is made by both an education and a social care inspector.

Progress monitoring inspections

Ofsted conducts monitoring inspections at the request of the Secretary of State to check the progress made by schools to address weaknesses identified at their last inspection.

The Secretary of State issues schools identified as having weaknesses with a notice. Schools must submit an action plan to the Secretary of State setting out the steps they will take to address their weaknesses and meet the relevant regulations or national minimum standards. Action plans must specify the timescale within which the steps will be taken.

In monitoring inspections, inspectors assess and report on the amount of progress schools have made with implementing their action plan. They will check whether the previously unmet regulations or national minimum standards are now met.

Regulations

Section 157 of the Education Act 2002 specifies that regulations setting out the standards that independent schools must meet should be made on the following matters: quality of education; spiritual, moral, social and cultural development of pupils; welfare, health and safety of pupils; suitability staff and proprietors; premises of and accommodation at the school; provision of information; and manner in which complaints are to be handled. Such standards are set out in The Education (Independent School Standards) Regulations 2010, which specify the provision a school should make. Schools must meet these standards in order to register, and continue registration as independent schools.
