

INDEX OF TEXAS ARCHAEOLOGY

Open Access Gray Literature from the Lone Star State

Volume 2021

Article 13

2021

Report: The 62nd Annual Caddo Conference and 27th Annual East Texas Archeological Conference, Tyler, Texas, February 28 and 29, 2020

Thomas H. Guderjan
University of Texas at Tyler

E. Cory Sills
University of Texas at Tyler

C. Colleen Hanratty

University of Texas at Tyler

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarworks.sfasu.edu/ita>

 Digital Commons at the American Material Culture Commons, Archaeological Anthropology Commons, Tyler Junior College Environmental Studies Commons, Other American Studies Commons, Other Arts and Humanities

Amanda Regnier Other History of Art, Architecture, and Archaeology Commons, and the United States History Commons
Oklahoma Archeological Survey

Tell us how this article helped you.

See next page for additional authors

Cite this Record

Guderjan, Thomas H.; Sills, E. Cory; Hanratty, C. Colleen; Eppich, Keith; Regnier, Amanda; Simmons, Christy; Souther, Anthony; and Walters, Mark (2021) "Report: The 62nd Annual Caddo Conference and 27th Annual East Texas Archeological Conference, Tyler, Texas, February 28 and 29, 2020," Index of Texas Archaeology: Open Access Gray Literature from the Lone Star State: Vol. 2021, Article 13. ISSN: 2475-9333

Available at: <https://scholarworks.sfasu.edu/ita/vol2021/iss1/13>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Center for Regional Heritage Research at SFA ScholarWorks. It has been accepted for inclusion in Index of Texas Archaeology: Open Access Gray Literature from the Lone Star State by an authorized editor of SFA ScholarWorks. For more information, please contact cdsscholarworks@sfasu.edu.

Report: The 62nd Annual Caddo Conference and 27th Annual East Texas Archeological Conference, Tyler, Texas, February 28 and 29, 2020

Authors

Thomas H. Guderjan, E. Cory Sills, C. Colleen Hanratty, Keith Eppich, Amanda Regnier, Christy Simmons, Anthony Souther, and Mark Walters

Creative Commons License

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License.

Report:

The 62nd Annual Caddo Conference and 27th Annual East Texas Archeological Conference, Tyler, Texas, February 28 and 29, 2020

Thomas H. Guderjan¹, E. Cory Sills¹, C. Colleen Hanratty¹, Keith Eppich², Amanda Regnier³, Christy Simmons¹, Anthony Souther⁴, and Mark Walters⁵

¹University of Texas at Tyler, ²Tyler Junior College, ³Oklahoma Archeological Survey,

⁴Caddo Mounds State Historic Site, ⁵Texas Historical Commission Steward

The 62nd Caddo Conference and 27th East Texas Archeological Conference was held at the University Center on the campus of the University of Texas at Tyler on February 28 and 29, 2020. The conference was dedicated to the rebuilding of public facilities at Caddo Mounds State Historic Site. These facilities had been destroyed by a tornado in 2019. The conference organizers were Thomas Guderjan, Colleen Hanratty, Cory Sills, Christy Simmons (University of Texas at Tyler), Keith Eppich (Tyler Junior College), Anthony Souther (Caddo Mounds State Historic Site), Amanda Regnier (Oklahoma Archeological Survey), Mark Walters (Texas Historical Commission Steward). Sponsors included The Center for Social Science Research and Department of Social Sciences, University of Texas at Tyler, Humanities Texas, Kevin Stingley, Arkansas Archeological Survey, Beta Analytic, Inc., Friends of Northeast Texas Archeology, East Texas Archeological Society, Maya Research Program, Tejas Archeology, Tyler Junior College, Gregg County Historical Museum, the American Indian Heritage Day of Texas organization, and the Caddo Nation. Before the formal program began, a preconference gathering was held at ETX Brewing Company at 221 S Broadway Avenue in Tyler on Thursday evening, February 27th. Approximately 250 people participated in the joint conferences.

Throughout both days, Caddo artists exhibited, sold and discussed their work with the participants. The artists included: Chase Kahwinhut Earles (Ceramics, Oral), Chad Earles (Ceramics, Oral), Wayne Earles (Ceramics, Oral), Jeri Redcorn (Ceramics, Oral), Alaina Tahlata (Oral), Michael Meeks (drummer), Caddo Culture Club (Dance, Music), Metro Culture Club (Dance, Music). A portion of the Gregg County Historical Museum's Caddo archaeology exhibit was moved to the University Center and on exhibit throughout the conference (Figure 1).

Also concurrently exhibited was a collection of Caddo pottery at Tyler Junior College. The exhibit was curated by Dr. Keith Eppich.

The first session on Friday morning included a welcome by Tom Guderjan, followed by three presentations: (1) Paying History Forward: Engaging the Public in the History of Place by Gary Pinkerton; (2) The Past, Present, and Future of Aerial Archaeology at Northwestern State University of Louisiana: Looking Back, Looking Ahead by Tommy Ike Hailey and J.D. Cox; and (3) Interpreting Caddo Effigy Vessels through Technology, Stories, and Dance by Mary Beth Trubitt, George Sabo III, and Teka McGlothlin.

After a coffee break the presentations continued with four presentations: (1) Biologically Available Pb: A Method for Ancient Human Sourcing Using Pb Isotopes from Prehistoric Animal Teeth by John R. Samuelsen and Adriana Potra; (2) Update on the Analysis of the A.S. Mann Site (41AN201), a Late Caddo Village in the Upper Neches River Valley, Anderson County, Texas by Waldo Troell, David Kelley, Erin Phillips, August G. Costa, Leslie L. Bush, Melanie Nichols, and Timothy K. Perttula; (3) The Anthropology/Archaeology Lab at Stephen F. Austin State University, 2019 by Jennifer Luce, Ezra Jennings, Brian Cox, Michael Andrews, and George Avery; and (4) Archeology at Amos, 1976 and 2020 by Tommie Cotton and Mary Beth Trubitt.

Figure 1. Caddo mural at the University of Texas Institute of Texan Cultures by George C. Nelson.

Lunch was hosted in The Met, the University Center cafeteria. The proximity of lunch to the meeting locations meant that no one had to leave the building or be late for the afternoon sessions.

In the afternoon, four presentations were offered: (1) A Multi-Sensor Geophysical Survey of the Brackett site (34CK43) in Eastern Oklahoma by Alexandra Flores; (2) Examining Neosho Peoples and their Regional Interactions through Ceramic Design by Paige Ford; (3) The Dauber Site (34LF1624): Emergency Data Recovery Excavations at a Fort Coffee Phase Site on the Arkansas River by Scott Hammerstedt, Amanda Regnier, Kary Stackelbeck, and Debra Green; and (4) Understanding the Organization of a Pilgrimage at Spiro by Patrick C. Livingood, Scott W. Hammerstedt, Jami J. Lockhart, Tim Mulvihill, Amanda L. Regnier, George Sabo III, and John R. Samuelsen. This was followed by a meeting of the membership of the Caddo Conference Organization.

At 4PM, the invited keynote address was presented by Dr. George Sabo III, Director of the Arkansas Archeological Survey (Figure 2). The topic was The Archaeology of Caddo Storytelling. Storytelling is a powerful instrument for teaching, learning, and creating new knowledge and information among communities around the world, including Native Americans past and present. Storytelling is primarily a dramatic performance that does not often yield a diagnostic material signature; to what extent, then, might such performances be reflected in the archeological record? This presentation explores links between Caddo narrative traditions and artistic representation, using examples from fifteenth-century storytelling performances at the Spiro Ceremonial Center and early seventeenth-century performances by a coalescent community resident in the Carden Bottoms locality of central Arkansas.

Figure 2. Dr. George Sabo III presenting the keynote address.

On Saturday, the first session in the morning included presentations: (1) The Long Site (41CE330), An Ancestral Caddo Site on Box's Creek in the Neches River Basin, Cherokee County, Texas by Kevin Stingley and Tim Perttula; (2) Jowell Knives in East Texas Caddo Sites by Drew Sitters; and (3) The Savoy Site (41LB27): A Major Trade Entrepot for Southeast Texas by Wilson W. Crook III.

Following a coffee break, three presentations were offered: (1) Interpreting Troy Adams (34FL33): A Fourche Maline Mound in Eastern Oklahoma by Candace Parker; (2) Introducing the Center for Environment, Biodiversity and Conservation by Josh Banta; and (3) Caddo Language & Songs: Ha'ahut danayoh, Hasinay dohkana'ah (Sing well, talk Caddo) by Alaina Tahlate and Chad Earles.

Lunch was again held in The Met inside the University Center.

After lunch, the conferences were given a status report on the restoration work at Caddo Mounds State Historic Site: The Disaster at Caddo Mounds and Future Plans by Jeff Williams and Anthony Souther. This was followed by a roundtable discussion by artists: Jeri Redcorn, Chase Earles, Wayne Earles, Chad Earles, Yonavea Hawkins, Tracy Burrows, Jenifer Reader. The discussion was led by Merrie Wright, Chair, Department of Art and Art History, University of Texas at Tyler.

After the roundtable discussion, the Caddo Culture Club, the Metro Culture Club and friends of the tribe, led by drumming by Michael Meeks, performed traditional Caddo Dances, in the new Patriot Plaza in front of the University Center, enhanced by spectacular weather (Figure 3).

Figure 3. Members of the Caddo Culture Club and Metro Caddo Culture Club exhibited the Caddo Drum Dance at the conclusion of the 62nd annual Caddo Conference and 27th annual East Texas Archeological Conference in Tyler.