

An experimental approach to analyzing gender, sex appeal and idealized bodies in advertising

Willian Feitosa

IFSP

Susana Silva

Universidade Católica Portuguesa

Carlos Lourenco

Fundacao Getulio Vargas

Noemi Sunago

FGV

Ligia Resende

FGV

Cite as:

Feitosa Willian, Silva Susana, Lourenco Carlos, Sunago Noemi, Resende Ligia (2020), An experimental approach to analyzing gender, sex appeal and idealized bodies in advertising. Proceedings of the European Marketing Academy, 11th, (85178)

Paper presented at the 11th Regional EMAC Regional Conference, Zagreb (online), September 16-19,2020

An experimental approach to analyzing gender, sex appeal and idealized bodies in advertising

Abstract

This study evaluates the effect of using sex appeal on advertisements through two experiments, comparing gender perceptions. It was observed that advertisements with low sexual appeal were better evaluated, however, men better evaluate those with idealized female models, and women, with female models and with a non-idealized profile.