Greener goose painting acclaimed as 'finest work on display in Center'

The following is the fifth in a series of profiles of South Dakota artists based upon the Memorial Art Center's Survey of the Visual Arts in South Dakota. This profile is written by Joseph Stuart, survey director. The survey has been funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts through the South Dakota Arts Council.

In September of 1971 Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Olson of Custer, South Dakota presented a painting by Mrs. Olson's father to the Memorial Art Center for its collections. The painting, Honkers at Sunrise, executed in 1910, was acclaimed by a visitor from the Addison Gallery of American Art at Andover, Massachusetts as the finest

'Civilisation' series to end December 5

"Heroic Materialism," the last episode of the 13-film series, Civilisation, will be shown at the Center on Wednesday, December 5th, at 7:30 p.m. The series, written and narrated by Lord Kenneth Clark, has been rented from Augustana College in Sioux Falls, where it was acquired with matching funds from the National Endowment for the Arts through the South Dakota Arts Council. Negotiations are now underway to schedule Lord Clark's series on Pioneers of Modern Painting.

Mrs. Holst appointed

Mrs. Ed (Kathryn) Holst, Pierre, is the newest member of the Art Center's Board of Trustees:

work on display in the Center. Subsequent gifts of paintings by the Olsons, the Homer Cordts of Faulkton, the Charles J. Gilberts of Brookings, and Mrs. F. T. Wall of Houston, Texas, and access to a wealth of archival material in the collections of the Olsons and the Cordts, made it apparent that Charles Theodore Greener ranks as one of the outstanding painters of this state.

Charles T. Greener was born at Lancaster, Wisconsin on March 16th, 1870, one of six children of Christian and Albina Greener. The family moved to a homestead in Hand County, Dakota Territory in 1883, and then to Faulkton in 1890, where Charles spent the rest of his life.

Displaying a strong interest in art as a youth, Greener studied at the Art School of the University of North Dakota at Grand Forks, at Galesburg, Illinois, with Anson K. Kross in Boston, at the Academy of Fine Arts in Cincinnati, and with J. H. Kaumeyer in Minneapolis.

In Faulkton he established a studio, which he maintained until his death on July 4th, 1935, and in 1900 married Florence Jones. They had one child,

Gift of studio grand climaxes Mrs. Sexauer's support of arts

Shortly before her death on Oct. 7, 1973 Mrs. E. H. (Cecile Welch) Sexauer of Brookings gave her 1916 Steinway studio grand piano to the Memorial Art Center.

The piano has been placed in the northwest gallery, where the Harvey Dunn Painting Collection is displayed. It can be moved via the elevator to the Center's Alumni Auditorium for recitals there, or recitals may be on occasion presented in the north galleries with the folding walls opened.

According to Mary Spencer, professor of music at South Dakota State University, the instrument is in "excellent condition and perfectly suitable for professional recitals at the Center."

Mrs. Sexauer studied music at Boston Conservatory and for many years taught piano in Brookings. She married Elmer Sexauer in 1916, and the couple moved into their new house at 627 8th Avenue, where they lived until this past summer. She was a 1910 graduate of South Dakota State University.

Mrs. Sexauer was an active supporter for an art center in South Dakota. Her husband was chairman of the drive that realized $500,000 for the construction of the Memorial Art Center.

Dorothy. According to a letter of recommendation from his banker, he was "a man of integrity and exemplary habits," which, one supposes, meant that among other things he paid his bills. He was indeed a model of Midwest citizenship. He served as deacon in the Congregational Church of Faulkton and sang in the choir. He served on the Faulkton City Council. He was a member of Free Masons. Being a conscientious artist, he maintained memberships in the American Federation of Arts, National Art Society of Chicago, the Artists Guild, and the American Artists Professional League.

Greener received considerable attention through his portraits of Governors Frank M. Byrne and Charles N. Herreid and U. S. Senator J. A. Pickler (all at Pierre). His greatest coup, however, was the 1928 commission from the Young Citizens League of South Dakota for a painting to be presented to President and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge following their summer vacation in the Black Hills in 1927. The painting, eventually titled Looking Towards Washington, was meant to suggest a view from the Black Hills towards the eastern prairies. On April 29th, 1929, Mr. Coolidge wrote Greener this note about the work:

"The picture which you painted for us of a South Dakota scene has been received and I cannot tell you how pleased we are with the work. I want to express my appreciation of the artistic merit of the beautiful painting."

Greener applied for copyright for this painting as well as Honkers at Sunrise, Early Start (also in the Center collection, a gift from the Cordts), and Coyote at Sunrise, and so it can be supposed that, in his opinion, these were his finest works.

His painting received recognition by being included in several major salons held in the Midwest, including the 1915 showings at the St. Paul Institute, the Minneapolis Art Institute, and at the Omaha Public Library, and in 1933 at the Herron Art Institute in Indianapolis.

Work by Greener in South Dakota is at the Faulk County Courthouse, State Capitol Building and State Museum at Pierre, the Administration Building at South Dakota State University and the Memorial Art Center in Brookings.

American environment collection slated

Forty contemporary artists, including Kenneth Callahan, Ralston Crawford, Peter Hurd, William Gropper, and Elmer Bischoff were commissioned by the Bureau of Reclamation of the Department of the Interior to paint the American environment and, we suspect, the effect upon it by the Bureau's work. This collection has been organized as an exhibit by the Smithsonian Institution and will be shown at the Center from February 24th through March 24th.

Both the national and state flags recently were presented to the South Dakota Memorial Art Center at South Dakota State University by members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) Auxiliary. This past summer the U. S. flag was a gift of the state organization, and in October the Brookings unit presented the state flag. Joseph Stuart, art center director, left, and Harold Bailey, SDSU vice president for academic affairs, accepted the flags from VFW Auxiliary members, Mrs. Harvey Schroeder, left, Brookings unit president, and Mrs. Stanley Corlett, past department president. The VFW Auxiliary also provides the Art Center with a wheel chair for use by disabled visitors.

New memorials established

Memorials are now being accepted at the Art Center for Mrs. Elmer Sexauer as well as Mrs. Herbert Cheever. A memorial from the Twentieth Century Club at Redfield was received in October in memory of Mrs. Lenna Coleman.

granddaughters Mrs. Hubert Buswell and Mrs. Wayne Fairchild of Philip.

Art Center Director Joseph Stuart said the oil painting, The French Scene, was a significant addition to the Centers' permanent collection of art by South Dakota artists.

Mrs. Weeks was born in Michigan but moved to Yankton in 1872. She painted the picture the following year. Her husband operated a business in Yankton for many years.

A nearly completed survey of South Dakota artists had not brought to light the works of Mrs. Weeks. Stuart said she would now be added to the survey's catalog. The survey was made possible by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts through the South Dakota Arts Council.

The painting was given to the Center after Mrs. Fairchild contacted Mrs. C. L. Ferguson, a member of the Center's Board of Trustees, from rural Philip.

Eskimo sculptures, prints scheduled

From January 20th to February 17th a special exhibition of 28 prints and 29 small sculptures by Canadian Eskimos will be shown at the Center. This exhibit was put together by the Canadian Embassy and comes to the Center through the Smithsonian Institution.
