OUACHITA BAPTIST UNIVERSITY • ARKADELPHIA, AR • JULY 1984

PRIORITIES — Although she's the News Bureau secretary, and he's working maintenance this summer, Denise and Brent Fields, newlyweds, make time for some necessary studying during summer school. They both help in their respective jobs to keep the heavy schedule of summer conferences on campus rolling smoothly.

Centennial planned, chairman calls for FSA ideas

The party's almost upon us, and the planning for it is going on apace. The Steering Committee for Ouachita's Centennial celebration in 1986 has held three days of meetings since its inception at the end of March, and 10 sub-committees are beginning work on every phase of the historic observance.

Dr. Ed Coulter, vice president for administration, is chairing the Steering Committee, composed of 10 categories of membership, in addition to the Executive Committee of: Dr. Daniel Grant, Mrs. Betty McCommas, Joy Crouch, Jimmy Hoggood, Dr. Joe Nix, and Dr. Bill Downs.

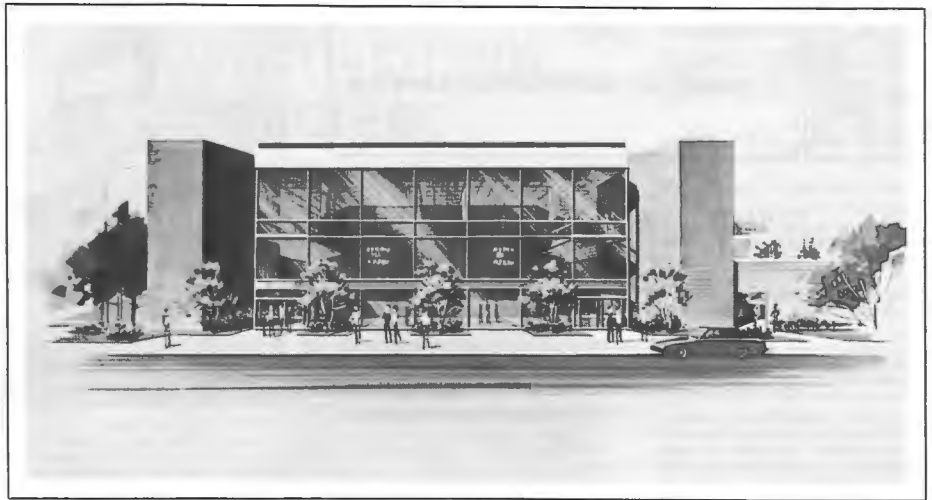

Other Steering Committee members are: Faculty, Dr. Francis McBeth and Mrs. Pam Arrington; Staff, Dr. Charles Wright and Dr. Tom Turner; Students, Kevin Heifner and Tami Snow; Trustees, Dr. John McClanahan and Edward S. Maddox; Alumni, Dr. Mark Coppenger and Dr. Wes Kluck; Arkadelphia, Mr. Hoggood; Arkansas Baptist State Convention, Rev. Don Moore; Retirees, Dr. Donald Seward; Development Council, Ed Snider and Mrs. Bennie Sue Anthony; Parents, Mrs. Kathleen Burton; and Ex-Officio, non-voting, Trustees Chairman, Earl Verser, Dr. Grant, Roger Harrod, Bill Dixon, Dr. Downs, Mrs. Agnes Coppenger, and Chairman of the Birkett Williams Lecture Committee, Dr. Joe Jeffers.

Each member of the Steering Committee serves on two of the sub-committees: Finance, Ed Snider, Chm.; Promotion & Publicity, Dr. Bill Downs, Chm.; Major Events & Special Guests, Dr. Charles Wright, Chm.; Commissioned Activities, Mrs. Betty McCommas, Chm.; Community, Jimmy Hoggood, Chm.; Faculty & Academic Department Involvement, Dr. Joe Nix, Chm.; Special Religious/Denominational Activities, Dr. Mark Coppenger, Chm.; Alumni Involvement, Mrs. Kathleen Burton, Chm.; Mementos & Memorabilia, Dr. Francis McBeth, Chm.; and Student Involvement, Tami Snow, Chm. Additional members will be named to these committees as needed.

Any member of the Ouachita family of alumni, faculty, staff, students and interested friends who has a suggestion to make concerning the Centennial observance, is invited to submit it to Dr. Coulter or any member of the Steering Committee.

Among the first orders of business have been decisions about the length of the observance, the logo, advanced booking of speakers and performing groups, and commissioned works such as a musical composition by Dr. Francis McBeth and Ouachita history being written by Dr. Mike Arrington, assistant to the academic vice president.

The committee is looking at a calendar for the 1985-86 school year and for the 1986 fiscal year, to determine the appropriate dates and emphases for Centennial events.

OBU Advancement Campaign

$8 million goal set for second phase

Ouachita has announced a goal of $8 million in new endowment resources during the second phase of the Ouachita Centennial Advancement Program which will conclude at the end of the school's centennial year in 1986.

The two major objectives of the campaign, he said, are:

—to increase the level of annual operating support $1 million by 1986;

—and to continue implementation of the school's long-range campus plan with two major construction projects: a $2 million expansion and improvement of the facilities and resources of Riley Library, and a $4 million auditorium.

The success of the first phase of the campaign which has raised $6.4 million since 1981 has been "remarkable," Dr. Grant said. Among the results of the three-year effort is a $4 million physical education center, the acquisition of two apartment buildings with 51 married student housing units, a computer center for academic and administrative operations and the construction of Walton-Lamb Circle, a landscaped rest area and parking facility.

"Less visible but equally important accomplishments during the first phase," he said, have been "significant additions to Ouachita's endowment and increases in annual operating support." Included among these, he said, were two endowed chairs with others pledged or reserved in wills and charitable remainder trusts; several new scholarships; and an increase in annual operating support from the Arkansas Baptist State Convention from $1.4 million in 1980 to almost $1.8 million in 1983.

"This dependable income," Grant said, "is the equivalent of an endowment of $20 million."

Growing directly out of the Centennial program, he added, has been the establishment of two major fields of study for undergraduate students — computer science, and family life and church recreation.

Income from the endowment funds secured during the concluding phase of the centennial campaign, he said, will be used for academic enrichment, a strengthened honors program, research projects, faculty-staff development and scholarships. Also planned are career development programs for students and the establishment of a Center for Christian Ministries.

The Center, according to Dr. Grant, will be used "to stimulate and coordinate Ouachita's varied student, faculty and staff services to the churches and to the denomination."

Two major objectives:

1. To increase the level of annual operating support $1 million in 1986.

2. A $2 million expansion of Riley Library and a $4 million auditorium.

In addition to the expanded library and the new auditorium, Dr. Grant announced other needs "for new and improved buildings and grounds, which are a part of Ouachita's long-range campus plan but are not listed as specific objectives to be achieved by the end of the centennial year."

Included among these needs were improved student housing, renovation of dining facilities, further modernization of the physical facilities for the division of natural sciences, a new humanities building and University Theme Center and beautification of the river front and the ravine separating the north and south campuses.

In conjunction with the Centennial Advancement Program, Ouachita is conducting several area campaigns within the state. The El Dorado community completed its capital fund drive this spring with more than $826,000 in cash and pledges. Mr. Chesley Pruet served as campaign chairman, with Mrs. Lena Trimble Shepperson as honorary chairman. Dr. John Henry Moore, Dr. James Weedman and Tommy May were division chairmen, and vice chairmen were Martha Sue Beebe, Rodney Landes, Larry Holder, Shad Medlin, Bob Peck, Bill Prewett, Bob Shepherd and John Trimble.

Concurrent campaigns are being conducted in the Pine Bluff and Fort Smith areas, both with goals of $100,000, and challenge goals of $300,000. William K. Atkinson is chairman of the Pine Bluff drive, with Mrs. Pauline Drake Sanders as honorary chairman. Wilbur West is heading the initial gifts division and John Gardner Lile, III, and William Kennedy co-chairing the major gifts division. The vice chairmen are Jack McHaney, Charles Gordon, Gene Hoover, Del "Pepsi" Brannon, Dr. Frances "Bud" Henderson, Tom Howell, Charles Ed Olmstead, Ann Sullivant, William Fox, Jr., Tom Spillyards, Charles Whitworth, Ron Hopkins, and Jim Shultz.

Jewel Morris is chairman of the Fort Smith campaign, with John Gardner as chairman of initial gifts and Mike Carroll and Paul Gean as co-chairmen of the major gifts division. The vice chairmen are Rex Terry, Dr. John Wikman, Stan Eden, Wayne King, and Bob Robinson.

PRESIDENT'S CORNER

A need for committed service

By Mel Thrash

"Ouachita we sing thy praises." Whenever Ouachita friends gather, strains from the music of our alma mater ring out. It makes the adrenaline flow and stirs fond memories of days at Arkadelphia on the banks of the Ouachita River. But more is needed than just singing the praises of Ouachita; She needs our committed service.

There are many young people today who need and want to attend Ouachita but feel it is an impossible dream. This is where our responsibility begins. We must share our knowledge of the many ways financial aid can be obtained either through grants, scholarships, loans or work study aid. Many unsuspecting students would qualify for such aid.

One way I suggest we use in informing prospective students in the advantages of a Christian education at Ouachita is to have area meetings of former students, graduates and friends. These meetings would be planned and organized by you and would be used as a forum to renew friendships, answer questions of prospective students and rekindle our own enthusiasm for Ouachita. Your Former Students Association can help by furnishing names of Ouachita graduates in your area. But only YOU can take the initiative and sing the praises of Ouachita loud and clear so the world will know of the university with academic excellence in a spiritual environment.

IN ALL THAT IS DONE "TO GOD BE THE GLORY."

MEMORIAL SCHOLARSHIP — Laura McMurry of North Little Rock, daughter of the late Rhine McMurry of El Paso, Tex., a Southern Baptist Convention minister and a 1955 graduate of Ouachita, presents a check to endow a $5,000 scholarship in her father's name to Dr. Daniel R. Grant, president of OBU. The scholarship will be awarded to a deserving junior or senior at Ouachita, who is interested in working with special education students or retarded citizens upon graduation. Rev. McMurry died April 2 in a Little Rock hospital during a visit to Arkansas. The memorial scholarship contributions used to establish the fund came from friends and colleagues across the nation.

Fulbright Academic Exchange Program

Finnish scholar to teach at Ouachita

The Fulbright Academic Exchange Program in Washington, D.C., has announced that Dr. Martti Haikio of Helsinki, Finland, has been nominated as a Scholar-in-Residence at Ouachita for the 1984-85 academic year.

Haikio has been designated as a Visiting Associate Professor of History and Political Science, according to Dr. Hal Bass, chairman of the OBU political science department.

Haikio is scheduled to teach "World Politics," "Comparative Politics," and two "special studies" courses during his stay. In addition, he will provide guest lectures and curriculum guidance in several other courses, work with the Carl Goodson Honors Program, pursue professional development at state and regional conferences, and be available for presentations before interested groups in Arkadelphia and throughout the state.

The 35-year-old teacher serves as the Director of the Information Office at the University of Helsinki and teaches in the Political Science Department. His wife, Kristiina, and their three sons: Jusoo, age 12; Paavo, age 8, and Antti, age 4, will accompany him to Arkadelphia.

Haikio has made two previous trips to the United States, both in 1980. He was a speaker at The Center for Strategic and International Studies at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C., and was on the program at the Center for International Affairs and the Center for European Studies at Harvard University.

Haikio serves as Chairman of the Security Policy Research Group of the Finnish Institute for Foreign Affairs in Helsinki; editor of "Kanava," a cultural magazine; a regular columnist of "Uusi Suomi," one of the leading Finnish daily papers; and a contributor to weekly newsmagazines and international affairs monthlies.

Haikio is a member of the Board of Information Center of the Finnish Evangelical Lutheran Church.

GOOD CLEAN SPORT — "Tiger Tracks" offers something new each spring for "Arkansas' Most Exciting College Weekend." This year the Ouachita Student Foundation (OSF) introduced raft racing in the pool, tandem bike races and tag football in addition to the standbys of trike racing and ozeball. Coed teams of college students and junior and senior high Super Teams from the churches of the state spent Saturday, April 14, in lively competition, after a Friday night concert by contemporary Christian recording artist, Leon Patillo. Proceeds help the OSF to award approximately 30 scholarships each year to deserving upperclassmen and to add to its endowment for future awards.

Camden graduate students study 'The Immigrant Experience'

It wasn't your ordinary college classroom. In fact, the jolly little group of Camden teachers and housewives sitting in a circle in front of the professor's fireplace could just as easily have been a comfortable mixture of people who happen to enjoy each other's company.

But it was the conversation that revealed them for what they really were — graduate students from Camden enrolled in "The Immigrant Experience in American Literature," one of a series of courses offered each fall in Camden by Ouachita. For this final meeting of the two-semester course, the Camden students had traveled to Arkadelphia to meet in the home of their instructor, Dr. Raouf Halaby, an associate professor of English, and an immigrant himself from Palestine.

Why this particular course?

"Because it helps us understand our heritage," June Kirtley replied quickly.

"That's true," said Joyce Butler, a high school English teacher. "But it also helps us to understand what it is that is different about other people. Being black, I have known how it feels to be 'different' so it is interesting to read about the same thing happening to other people. The more we understand people who are different from us, the more we can accept them."

"After all," another class member observed, "we are all immigrants in one way or another, so it is fascinating to find out how all of us got here in the first place."

There were other benefits, too, such as learning more about why labor unions came about, the rigors of survival in hostile environments, man's struggle against oppression and even against himself.

"This was a real surprise to me," said one student. "Up until now, whenever I thought of immigrants, I thought mostly about New York and the West Coast. But now I realize that we have them right here in Camden."

The class met in Camden once a month in different homes during the fall and spring semesters. Students brought refreshments and maintained a relaxed atmosphere as they discussed what they had read during the previous month.

To supplement their reading assignments, the students also clipped articles concerning immigration from magazines and newspapers to share with other class members.

Halaby said he chose "The Rise of the Unmeltable Ethnics" to reveal to students what he describes as "the new ethnic consciousness." Up to the 1960s if a person was an American, he was considered to be a part of the Anglo-Saxon society. But when the civil rights movement came about and black Americans sought to establish their own separate identities, other groups which had heretofore been largely ignored began to emerge. Poles, Italians, Greeks and Slovenians, for example, from the eastern European sectors, all primarily blue-collar workers and representing second-and-third generation immigrants, declared themselves to also be separate from the Anglo-Saxon society. Rather than reacting sympathetically to the black awareness movement, however, the eastern Europeans resented the blacks' insistence on winning overnight some of the same reforms for which they had struggled for years.

"The new ethnic consciousness," said Halaby, "was beneficial to the eastern European immigrants, however, in that it did help them to emerge as a distinct and more assertive element in government and in industry."

Many of the students have been together in previous courses that have dealt with such topics as Russian and Jewish literature. As they enjoyed a Lebanese-Palestinian meal prepared by Halaby along with an assortment of dishes they had brought from Camden, the students tossed around some ideas for next year and talked more about why they had enrolled in the course.

Although some of them are there to pick up the graduate hours required by their schools, others are enrolled simply for the fun of it.

"This kind of course is so exciting," said Jean Bragg. "If you don't do this or something like it that is mentally stimulating, your mind will die, and I am not about to let that happen to mine. I just wish more retired people would enroll in these courses."

Mrs. Kirtley said she enrolls in Ouachita's graduate school because "having the opportunity of meeting with people who love to learn, under the guidance of excellent professors, is one of life's greatest treats."

Dr. Charles Chambliss, dean of Ouachita's graduate school, who was standing aside and listening to the animated give-and-take discussion, said, "If every class I taught in college was this alive, I would feel guilty about getting paid."

Halaby, overhearing the comment, quickly agreed. "This course has emphasized to me the fact that we have fine people in our public schools. The quality of these graduate students from Camden is simply superb."

Commencement Honorees

BACCALAUREATE SPEAKER — Mrs. Robert Fling, current Woman's Missionary Union (WMU) and Home Missions Board Promotional Associate in New Areas for the SBC, received the LL. She is also a former president of the WMU and served on special assignment for the Foreign Mission Board at the English-Speaking Baptist Church in Munich, Germany. She has authored several books for the WMU, SBC and mission boards and received the gold medalion for outstanding denominational service by the SBC Conference of Pastor's Wives.

HONORARY DEGREE — Rev. Dillard Miller received a Doctor of Divinity degree in recognition of his service to his denomination. Dr. Miller, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Mena, Ark., formerly served as president of the executive board of the Arkansas Baptist State Convention (ABSC) and as president of ABSC. A 1946 graduate of Ouachita, and graduate of Golden Gate Seminary, he has also served as SBC chairman of the Stewardship Development Division and on the Southern Baptist Foundation of the SBC Board of Trustees.

Patterson (l.), a dentist, cattle farmer and businessman from Searcy, and Dr. Vester Wolber (r.), chairman of the Division of Religion and Philosophy at Ouachita, were named Distinguished Alumni at the FSA Commencement buffet and annual meeting and were recognized during the commencement ceremony at 4 p.m. Dr. Patterson ('47), graduated from the Washington University School of Dentistry in St. Louis, has been practicing the profession in Searcy for the past 30 years. He is married to the former Nancy Miller, and their three daughters, Amy, Beth and Jo, are Ouachita graduates. Jo receiving her degree that day. Dr. Wolber ('38), a graduate of Southwest Baptist Seminary, served as a Chair of Bible professor at Texas Tech University before coming to teach at Ouachita. He is a former pastor and was an area missionary in Arizona. He is married to the former Frances Cantrell, an OBU graduate, and they have two sons, Eric ('68) and Noel, a former student.

Burch estate leaves $700,000 for pre-med chair

A gift of more than $700,000 has been left to Ouachita by the estate of Alice L. Burch of Hughes for the establishment of an endowed chair of instruction for pre-medical studies.

The chair was placed in Mrs. Burch's will to honor her husband, Dr. William D. Burch who was a practicing physician in Hughes up to the time of his death in 1948. Mrs. Burch died in 1983.

Although neither Dr. Burch nor his wife attended Ouachita, they were active members of the First Baptist Church of Hughes, where Mrs. Burch taught Sunday School, was active in the Woman's Missionary Union and served as treasurer for several years.

A niece, Betty Rea Allen, who is a 1959 graduate of Ouachita, said Mrs. Burch had taught in elementary school and had provided for the endowed chair not only as a way to honor her husband but also to strengthen Christian higher education.

Expressing his gratitude and noting "the tremendous impact of such a gift on the future of Ouachita," Dr. Daniel R. Grant said more and more alumni, former students and other friends of the University are including Ouachita in their wills.

"Such gifts," he said, "are exceptionally powerful ways for people to express their belief in Christian higher education in general and in Ouachita Baptist University in particular."

The choice of an endowed chair also makes it possible, he said, to strengthen significantly a particular academic discipline that has special meaning to a family.

"The William D. and Alice Burch Chair of Pre-Medical Studies," he said, "is a living memorial that does great honor not only to these two fine people but also to Ouachita."

Dr. Ouida Keck 'Musician of Year' for Arkansas

Dr. Ouida Keck of Arkadelphia, Ark., a 1971 graduate of Ouachita, was named Arkansas Musician of the Year at the annual meeting of the Arkansas Federation of Music Clubs in April in Blytheville.

The award is presented annually to a musician of renown from Arkansas who has made an outstanding contribution to the field of music. Nominees are submitted by all music clubs in the state, and for the first time the award was presented to a member of a Federated Music Club.

Dr. Keck, who has been a member of the Ouachita music faculty since 1972, will devote full time to her home studio beginning this fall.

She has performed as guest artist on the Piano Recital Series at the Arkansas Arts Center, made a solo recital tape for AETN, served as guest soloist with the South Arkansas Symphony, presented numerous campus and solo recitals throughout the state and has been a chamber recitalist and accompanist. She has further judged many piano competitions and festivals in the state.

She received her M.M. from the University of Arkansas, 1974, and her D.M.A. from the University of Iowa, 1982.

Student serves as nurse's aide

While most of his fellow-students spent their after-midnight hours in bed or cramming last-minute homework, Johnny Gosser, an '84 graduate, might be changing baby diapers, bathing newborns, or taking them to their mothers at feeding time as part of his responsibilities as a nurse's aide at Twin Rivers Medical Center in Arkadelphia.

Johnny worked from 10:45 p.m. to 7:15 a.m., alternating working two or three nights a week. He usually was assigned to the nursery where the hospital averaged three or four babies a month, rarely more than one at a time. When there were no babies, he was on duty in a wing where he took care of other patients.

This bi-vocational role started when Johnny heard about a job at Memorial Hospital in North Little Rock, Ark. through his dad, Dr. Bob Gosser, the summer before he entered Ouachita as a freshman. Thus started the job that lasted for three summers. Before his junior year in college, the Baptist Medical System that owns Memorial bought Twin Rivers in Arkadelphia, and he began work there under his same supervisor. Johnny was the first male nurse's aide in Arkadelphia. There have been up to 10 since then.

"Since I was a pre-med major, I felt it would help. You really learn to appreciate doctors and nurses," said Johnny. He later changed his major to economics and business administration but feels the job was a real asset. "I've learned to discipline my time. I write down a list of what needs to be done each day."

The benefits have proven much more than monetary, Johnny attests. The job hasn't always been pleasant, involving accidents and even death. The accumulation of experience however has provided what he feels is the greatest reward, a new appreciation for life itself.

Ouachita yearbook wins top awards

The 1983 "Ouachitonian" yearbook has been selected as one of the six national winners in the Associated Collegiate Press's Pacemaker competition.

The university earlier received notification that for the second year in a row, the Columbia Scholastic Press Association of New York City had conferred its Gold Crown Award on the "Ouachitonian," a distinction given to only five yearbooks, nationwide.

To qualify for the Pacemaker competition of the ACP, a yearbook must earn four or five marks of distinction in the Yearbook Critical Service and be named an All American.

The award will be presented to the "Ouachitonian" staff at the National convention of the ACP and College Media Advisers in Louisville, Ky., in October.

The editor of the 1983 "Ouachitonian" yearbook was Tim Wooldridge of Bryant, Ark.

Ouachita involved in Summer Olympics

When the Home Mission Board set up its Summer Games Ministries Program for the Olympics in Los Angeles this summer, they "went for the gold" (and purple) in enlisting Dr. Elmer Goble, Ouachita's Baptist Student Union Director, on a two-year assignment.

Dr. Goble and his wife, Jacque Sutley ('79), a speech pathologist, moved to California in 1982 when he undertook to set up a first-time program that has mushroomed in responsibilities and opportunities.

In the process, Todd Turner ('81) has joined him in public relations, and Cheryl Warren ('83) served a time as Goble's administrative assistant. Most recently, Steve Phillips ('80), instructor of speech and drama, and his wife, Tina Toiver ('81), will be with the program throughout the summer, working with the athletes assembled for the Games.

The Summer Games Ministries of the SBC is a cooperative effort of the Home Mission Board, the Southern Baptist General Convention of California, and the six Southern Baptist Associations in the Los Angeles basin area.

The two-year assignment has involved locating a Center and outfitting it, largely from donations. It has become the base of an on-going ministry which will continue in strength after the Games are over.

The complex organization has eight main headings: Prayer (monthly newsletter for prayer support); Volunteers (processing, assigning, and training); Direct Witness (evangelism training and literature distribution); Housing/Transportation (for volunteers, shuttle services and bed and breakfast for visitors); Events (drama and music, tours, and movies); Communication (for area churches and media); Language (coordinating helpers for language groups); Visitor Relations (information packets, emergency services, area ministries); and Ministry Center (Sonshine and weightlifting clubs, a Masterlife Seminar, coffeehouse, dinner theater, "Lightbulb Factory" bringing Sunday School to neighborhood children, and hospitality center during the games).

In addition numbers of Ouachitonians are involved as area pastors, directors of missions and volunteers from local churches.

In addition to on-the-scene ministries, Dr. J. Randall O'Brien, assistant professor of religion at Ouachita, has been chosen chairman of a committee to prepare a book of Scriptures and other materials to be used in the Games by the American Bible Society.

Singing Men

The Singing Men of Ouachita toured five nations, May 28-June 13, performing in churches, military installations, schools, and public concerts. The 32-member group, under the direction of Dr. Paul Hammond, sings both sacred and secular music and last toured Europe in 1980.

Countries included in the tour were West Germany, Austria, Switzerland, France, and Holland. Various stops included Frankfurt, Bad Kreuznach Army Post, Baumholder Army Post, Rothenburg and Munich in West Germany. In Austria they visited Vienna, Salzburg, Innsbruck, and Garmisch. They also toured Zurich, Switzerland, Paris and Versailles in France and Amsterdam, Holland.

Miss Ouachita Pageant

MISS OBU — Lisa Elizabeth Stevens of Daisingerfield, Tex., a senior speech and drama major, was selected as the new Miss OBU in the annual pageant held April 7. She will represent the school at the Miss Arkansas Pageant, July 11-14, in Hot Springs. Proud grandparents Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Smith (he is a former student) of Stamps, Ark., are shown with Lisa following her crowning. Ouachita will have four other coeds competing in the contest representing various cities and counties in the state.

CAROLYN MOFFATT: Tigerette leader 'stepping down' after two decades of coaching

By Rex Nelson

The question was inevitable.

After all the years, all the long afternoons spent on the practice course, all the too-long, late-night rides in too-small vans, will Carolyn Moffatt miss it?

The woman who is retiring this summer after having guided the women's basketball program at Ouachita for almost two decades shifted a bit in her chair. She stared out the window of her office as students walked across campus on the sunny spring morning.

Then, slowly and deliberately, she spoke.

"It must be like breaking a drug problem," Moffatt said. "You don't just cut the habit off. You taper. It takes time. When fall comes, I'm sure there will be a certain restlessness to be down at the gym working with the team. But then I'll remember all those hours of travel, all those hours of paperwork, all the times I woke up in the middle of the night screaming at one of my girls. This is a job you have to take home with you."

So it is that Carolyn Moffatt is stepping down, handing over the program she gave national recognition to. She leaves with few regrets. She leaves with bright hopes for the future of the program.

"The facilities we have now are great. Nobody could ask for more. For years, we wondered where we would find a court to practice on. Now, we have to decide which court to practice on. We also have tradition."

Finally, she leaves with the memories. Always the memories.

"I hear from a lot of the old Tigerettes. It would be great to have a reunion one of these years. I guess the thing I have enjoyed most is watching them go out and be successful. The coaches at Kansas State and Texas A&M are former Tigerettes."

What was it that possessed the Crossett native to decide on coaching as her life's profession?

Moffatt said, "I came to Ouachita (following high school graduation in 1952) on a choir scholarship. People have a hard time believing that. Those who have heard me sing have even a harder time believing it. The choir was the organization at Ouachita back then. They used to come to our church and sing every year. My pastor's daughter and I were recruited as part of a trio. I was in the choir for three of my four years at Ouachita, but I also became quite interested in tennis. That was the only sport offered for women. My roommate and I won the doubles at the state tournament for three years. She won the singles and I was second in that."

The interest in sports finally led to basketball. Let Moffatt explain: "I lived around several girls in the dorm who had played basketball in high school. We didn't have it at Crossett. I'd go over to old Walton Gym (which a year ago was torn down) at night and shoot with them. We got an invitation to go to Texarkana Junior College and play in a benefit basketball game. We were not a sanctioned team. In fact, we had to slip out of the dorm to go. Down there, we found out fast how little we knew. They were good. That was my sophomore year. My junior year, we got an invitation to play in the state AAU tournament at Cabot. We asked Coach (Bill) Vining (who is still the head men's coach at Ouachita) to go with us and he did. Ouachita let us be a team my senior year, but we had no money. Boyfriends would carry us to games in their cars. Nick Carter (one of the first Ouachita football greats, who is a member of the Arkansas Hall of Fame) was the business manager and he would tell us to look in a drawer in his desk before leaving on road trips. We would always find enough money to eat on in that drawer. I later found out that it was coming out of his pocket. I was kind of the honorary coach that senior year. Hazel Goff came the next year and was the first real coach."

Although she was a physical education major from the start, Moffatt says that she didn't start at Ouachita with the specific idea of becoming a coach. Yet some of the injustices she saw in that day and time caused her to decide to wear a whistle. All through her college years, the memory of an incident in high school kept bothering her.

COACH RETIRES — Carolyn Moffatt, head coach of the Tigerette women's basketball program at Ouachita for the past 19 years, has announced her retirement from OBU due to health reasons, effective at the end of the current 1983-84 academic year.

"The administration was going through one of those stages when they felt the girls just couldn't do anything. I particularly recall a day back in the 10th grade when they opened the gym for recreation. My friends and I were all so excited until we found out they weren't letting girls in. I'll never forget how mad that made me."

Following graduation from college, Moffatt coached for seven years at Holly Grove. Next, she entered one of those periods of inner conflict — questioning whether coaching was the right thing for her to do. Thus she left Holly Grove and moved to Springfield, Mo., where she gave up coaching for a year in order to concentrate on teaching physical education.

"In about December of that year in Springfield," Moffatt remembered, "it hit me hard. I missed coaching. I would go out looking for games to watch. That was the first place I ever saw girls' volleyball. I would watch it so I could be around competitive athletics. I needed to be around sports. Near the end of that school year, I got a letter from the junior high girls at Holly Grove saying how much they missed me. That same night, the superintendent called and told me to come back where I was needed. I always figured those two events were planned together, but the superintendent claimed he knew nothing of the letter. I worked in Holly Grove another year before Coach Vining and Dr. (Ralph) Phelps (the Ouachita president at that time) called and talked me into taking this job. I came here in the fall of 1965."

The rest, as the worn-out saying goes, is history.

It took some time to install Moffatt's new system, and in '66, Ouachita failed to win the Arkansas AAU title for the first time since 1959. Needless to say, a number of Tigerette followers were disappointed. Little did they realize at the time that Moffatt was in the process of building one of the nation's most powerful women's basketball programs.

The 1967 season was one which saw the Tigerettes go undefeated against Arkansas competition, a feat that would be repeated in the future. Ouachita regained the Arkansas AAU crown as Downing's Southern squad fell by a score of 59-53 in the state championship game. That win enabled the Tigerettes to advance to the AAU nationals in Gallup, New Mexico. With a record of 41-3 against Arkansas teams over the previous five years, little Ouachita took on the best the nation had to offer.

Ouachita won its second straight Arkansas AAU crown, the eighth in nine years, in 1968. Again, Southern fell in the final game, this time by a score of 66-52. And again, the Tigerettes made the trip to Gallup. It was there that Ouachita stunned women's basketball observers across the country by knocking off third-seeded Wayland Baptist, 42-40, to advance to the semifinals.

More victories were in store in 1969. The Tigerettes once more were undefeated against Arkansas teams as they climbed to fourth in the national polls. A regular-season record of 15-5 was compiled with losses coming to powers Wayland, Nashville Business College and John F. Kennedy of Nebraska. The state tournament was held in Cabot and Ouachita won the AAU title for the 10th time in a dozen meetings. Southern was the victim in the finals, this time by a count of 62-57. Ouachita went to Amarillo for the National College Women's Invitational and defeated JFK in the semifinals before losing to Wayland in the title game. The Tigerettes were back on the road a week later for the AAU tourney in New Mexico, where they advanced to the quarterfinals before losing to Wayland. The 1970 team was second nationally to Wayland and the '72 squad moved as high as third in the national polls.

Perhaps the best indication of the type coach Moffatt was lies in the women she turned out. A vivid example came in the semifinals game at Gallup in 1968. Ouachita was playing Raytown of Missouri in a heated game. The crowd was supposed to have been a neutral one, but officials had to intervene in order to keep the fans from booing Raytown.

Moffatt later explained to reporters, "Our players are young and attractive and so many bad things have been associated with college people that the crowd enjoyed seeing a nice, well-dressed group."

Ironically, the work she did to increase interest in women's basketball hurt her own program. For years, she had seemed to have almost a monopoly on recruiting in this region. Now this coach who was around and thriving before most even recognized the sport existed was having to battle the young Turks of women's collegiate basketball. Ouachita did not have the funds to compete with some of the newer programs. The school ended AAU competition in 1976 and joined the state's other colleges in the Arkansas Women's Intercollegiate Sports Association. Scholarships were added for women at Ouachita in 1978 and this past season the Tigerettes competed for the first time in the women's division of the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference.

With it all behind her, Moffatt now has room to smile at the transportation problems, the scheduling problems, the budget problems.

"When I started, there were very few colleges to play. Wayland was one of the few. We were in something called the National Girls Basketball League. There were eight teams and they were all independent except for Wayland and us. When we would go someplace to play, we would almost always have two straight games — one on a Friday night and the other on a Saturday night. You had to do that to justify your travel expense. Wayland had it made. They had a 'sugar daddy' who owned a flying service there in Plainview (Texas) and they would fly to all of their road games in several chartered planes. They would buzz Walton Gym and that was our signal to go out and pick them up at the airport. They would always stay in the dorm with us here and we would always stay in the dorm with them there."

Thinking back over so many good teams and so many talented athletes, it was difficult for Moffatt to point out the best. Finally, however, she seemed to settle on the 1970 team and three players off that squad — Myrna DeBerry, Lin Gamble and Carol Bollinger.

"We had the two best guards in the United States (Gamble and Bollinger) on the same team. Within about a four-year period, we had four All-Americans. Those were the days when girls would call and ask me to allow them to come here and play. There was never that much recruiting to it once our tradition was established. What people don't understand is that we didn't have any money or any scholarships to recruit with. Girls came to Ouachita simply because they wanted to. Now, Wayland had some scholarships. And I know Nashville Business College would pay to put some of their players through school. But we couldn't offer ours a thing."

Despite all the obstacles, Moffatt continued to further establish herself as one of the nation's foremost authorities on the sport.

Moffatt predicts a bright future for women's basketball.

"It has grown even faster than any of us ever believed it would when we were struggling for recognition back there in the 60's. We saw the first girl dunk this season and I think we'll see more of that type of thing in the future. People are more interested now. And with so many more scholarships, it can mean something for a girl to excel in basketball."

Any regrets that all the progress made it harder for little Ouachita to compete?

"No."

For Moffatt, the sport has always come first. It will miss her.
