COMMUNITY CLUB HOLDS ANNUAL HUSBAND'S NIGHT

Ursinus Students Participate; Play and Music Presented

Husband's Night was sponsored by the Colledgeville Community Club on March 5 at the Hendricks Memorial. A one-act play and several musical selections featured the program.

"The Flattering Word", by George Kelly, was coached by Mrs. Reginald S. Sibbald, who was assisted by Mrs. Maurice O. Bone and Mrs. Marcus C. Old. The play told the story of a minister, the Rev. Rigely, who was very opposed to the stage. On being told that he resembled an actor he forgot his prejudices and took his wife to the theatre to see an old friend of hers act. Mr. Eugene Tesh, the actor, had told Mrs. Rigely that to tell anyone he could be an actor was "the flattering word", because everyone at sometime believes he can act.

Prof. Eugene B. Michael admirably portrayed the part of the Rev. Rigely, with Elizabeth Luther '34, as his wife. Richard Allebach '33, took the part of the actor. Comedy was ably provided by Dorothea S. Wieand '35, as Mrs. Zooker, a church worker, and Sara Jane Ennis '37, as Lena, her daughter.

After the play Miss Grace Kauffman, of Norristown, and Craig Johnston, Jr. '35, entertained with several vocal selections.

The officers of the Community Club in charge of the meeting were: Mrs. Edgar L. Longaker, president; Mrs. Edward S. Fretz, chairman of programme committee; Mrs. Thomas Hallman, vice-chairman; and Mrs. Abram T. Allebach, hospitality committee.

W. S. G. A. NOMINATIONS

Written petitions for nominations for officers of the Women's Student Council must be submitted to the Central Nomination Committee by Monday, March 12. Sara Mary Ouder Kirk '34, is chairman of the Nominating Committee.

The petitions must contain the signatures of twenty-five per cent of the women students in order to nominate the candidates.

BACTERIOLOGIST WILL SPEAK TO PRE-MEDICAL SOCIETY

The James M. Anders Pre-Medical Society has secured Dr. Randle Rosenberger to speak at its meeting on Tuesday, March 13.

Dr. Rosenberger is Professor of Bacteriology at Jefferson Medical College. Although the subject of his address has not been announced, his audience is assured of an interesting and instructive talk.

DAY CAGERS DEFEAT MAPLES

Last Wednesday the women day students threw their hat in the inter-dorm basketball ring with an auspicious victory over Maples, 17-10. The girls from the Day Study were undeniably superior in both the offense and defense. Ada Young, freshman forward, scored the majority of the points.

LANSDALE KIWANIS CLUB

HEARS URSINUS PROFESSOR

Dr. J. Lynn Barnard addressed the members of the Lansdale Kiwanis Club last Thursday evening.

The subject of Dr. Barnard's talk was: "Changing Ideals of Citizenship". He spoke of changing ideals in the home, the school, the church, the shop, and the state.

The use of leisure time, also is a new ideal, and we shall eventually think in terms of "living rather than of making a living".

Service clubs are agencies for the focusing of public opinion with regard to these changing ideals. In order that they may fulfill this purpose their members must be all-round good citizens.

VERTEBRATE ANATOMISTS

VISIT MEDICAL SCHOOLS

Twelve young women of Ursinus, under the leadership of Professor J. Harold Brownback, journeyed to the Woman's Medical College in Philadelphia on March 6, where they spent an entire day visiting the various departments of the college. These students are members of Professor Brownback's Vertebrate Anatomy class.

During the morning the students were conducted through the medical school's laboratories and lecture rooms by Dr. Martha Tracy, the dean of women. They also viewed the college library and museum. Sara Logan Wister Starr, president of the Woman's Medical College, escorted the girls through the hospital in the afternoon.

On Thursday, March 15, thirty-three members of the Anatomy class will visit the Jefferson Medical College's departments.

W. PROGRAM PRESENTED BY ROYERSFORD TRI-HI-Y

Joint Y's to Hear Chinese Student from University of Penn

The Tri-Hi-Y of Royersford presented a very interesting program before the members of the Y. W. C. A. last Wednesday evening at 6:45 in the Vest Music Studio.

Before the meeting was turned over to the Tri-Hi-Y, Sara Helen Keyser '36, welcomed the visitors and invited them to be the guests of the Y. W.

at the basketball game that evening.

Following the devotional service, in which each member participated, a talk entitled "Books" was given by Doris Matthews, who told how the greatest of all people are made known to us through the Bible, the most worth-while book ever written.

The World Fellowship committee of the Y. W. has engaged Mr. Chester Ting to speak at a joint meeting of the Y's next Wednesday at 6:45 p. m.

Mr. Ting is a Chinese student at the University of Pennsylvania and will be able to tell in a delightful way about his country and its people.

BROTHERHOOD OF ST. PAUL CONDUCTS TWO MEETINGS

Discussions on "Our Daily Bread" and "Why are Some People Poor?" featured the meeting of the Brotherhood of Saint Paul in the Hendricks Memorial Building on Tuesday evening, March 6.

William Tempest '35, discussed the former while Edwin Frey '36, presented his ideas on the latter. An interesting discussion by some of the members followed.

Plans were outlined for the annual banquet of the Brotherhood to be held at the College on April 24th. The Rev. W. A. Kratz of Catasaqua, Pa., will be the speaker. The officers for the coming year will be announced at that time.

On Sunday evening, March 11th, the Brotherhood conducted the evening service at the Royersford M. E. church. Charles Francis Ehly '36, spoke on "Following Jesus to the Cross", Louis Mitchell '34, Edwin Frey '36, and Harry Fenstermacher '37, sang three numbers.

The next meeting of the Brotherhood will be held at the Hendricks Memorial on Tuesday evening, April 10, one week later than usual.

CLUB WILL DISCUSS ESSAY

The essay will be the form of literature to be discussed by the members of the English Club on Monday evening, March 12.

Violet Wintersteen '34, will define the essay. Hermine Loos '34, will review "Saunterer's Rewards" by E. V. Lucas. "Collected Essays" by Williams will be treated by Isobel Wilt '34. Ruth Roth '34, will read a paper on Huxley's "Music at Night".

A Purdue professor entered a noisy room: "Gentlemen, order". "Beer!" shouted the class in one voice.

The Tower Window

At the recent banquet of the Philadelphia Alumni Association one of the speakers invited to address the gathering was Mr. E. S. Moser, editor and publisher of the Collegerville Independent. Practically every student that has attended Ursinus since the days of its founding knows of the Independent and most of them carry in their minds pleasant recollections of Mr. Moser. His address was of such interest that I asked for his manuscript and secured it without revealing my purpose. He will pardon me and you will be pleased, I am sure, if I let him speak from the Tower Window this week rather than myself.

Here is what Mr. Moser said to the Philadelphia alumni:

"The passing of years brings recollections and reminiscences of bygone days; of changes wrought in the flight of time! Change determinedly affects every human being as well as the activities of mankind everywhere. And, what changes have been wrought thus far in the life history of Ursinus College, since its birth in 1869! One June 4, 1875, when I caused The Independent to come into circulation in what is now the borough of Trappe, the College had been in existence only six years. It had not reached much beyond the stage of infancy, as an institution of higher learning. The youngster was physically pretty healthful, tho its nourishment was curtailed; at times seriously so. The chief among its founders, Dr. J. H. A. Bomberger wrestled with a perplexing and discouraging undertaking. But his zeal was unflinching. During the lapse of almost 59 years since my rather intimate knowledge of the College began I have observed the more progressive and outstanding changes that have eventualized Ursinus as it exists in 1934! In 1875 its one building and grounds attached thereto represented a total value of not much more than $25,000. To-day the college corporation has in its possession and ownership buildings and grounds of an approximate value of $1,500,000.

"The struggles of youth in the careers of the college and of The Independent, tho not similar, were none-the-less severe. The activities of the College stimulated the exertions of the editor and publisher. It impelled me to become a student outside of recitation rooms, where usually good-natured and painstaking professors in considerable measure reign supreme. It is my observation, (parenthetically stated), that students outside the college walls, however inspired, directly or indirectly, by college activities, are not much in evidence when degrees are bestowed on commencement days—a deserved misfortune, perhaps. Nevertheless, my gratitude to Ursinus College is real. It expresses the feeling within me that had I established the Independent in a non-college community, it is more than probable that my intellectual development would have been much retarded.

"When I ushered the Independent into existence I was headed toward my eighteenth birthday and had the background of an eighth grade grammar school education and some experience as a printer. Pardon so much allusion to myself. After a few issues of the Independent had been put into circulation my ears caught the criticisms of one or more college professors, and of a number of the knowing (?) members of the student body, concerning the bungling of English in the news and editorial departments of the Independent. The criticism burned, because I felt that it was deserved. Then what happened? I procured an old partially backless and ponderous Worcester dictionary. I fail to remember how I came into possession of it. However, I opine there was some good-will and credit involved in a particular purchasing transaction. No matter, I did put that old finger-worn dictionary to good use. Whenever I had leisure it was taken from a shelf and words, words, were studied in their meanings, in their differentiation of meanings, and the proper use of them in the construction of sentences for the expression of thoughts of whatever character.

"A special inspiration from Ursinus College came to me to dig hard intellectually. During later years, previous inspirations were augmented by attending commencement day exercises, lectures, and so forth. How I would like to meet all the former students of Ursinus College in a great hall—those whom I met, conversed with and once in a while argued with during a period of over 58 years! I observed their coming, some of their activities, and their departure as graduates—transformed from raw recruits from country-sides and towns to young men of scholarly attainments and demeanor. What object lessons in the realm of higher education! I happen to call to mind two of many Freshmen students attracting my attention. One evening as they perambulated down the middle of the old turnpike—Main street, Trappe, I noted their pedestrianic "swing", even their facial expressions of determination! Neither of them were much dressed up. The coat sleeves of the one barely reached midway between elbows and wrists, while the trousers of the other failed by several inches to hide his stockings. I kept track of those two young men until their day of graduation. They were just in the rough when they came to Ursinus to undergo the usual polishing (altogether aside from wearing apparel) process, educationally speaking. They made good during their college days and they made good in their subsequent spheres of action.

"As another illustration there is Dean Kline, who is high in honor at this dinner. When he "blew in" from Western Pennsylvania as a promising student, there was no shortage of coat sleeves and pantaloons. He was just a little different in appearance from the two Freshmen to whom I have referred. Since the trio had the gray matter required by college students, what did the difference in apparel amount to. Nix! I do not recall that the embryonic dean wore broadcloth and a tall hat, but I have observed ever since that he usually appears spic and span. Many of the boys that, through the years, came under his friendly espionage, and helpfulness, as dean, have never yet been able to tell how he has managed to escape a dart from cupid.

"All the way from 1875 I have noticed the appearance and disappearance of Ursinus College presidents and professors. Dr. Bomberger was always a marvel to me. His rather massive head and long white beard, and his extraordinary vocabulary more than once held me spell-bound. I have never known his equal in the use of commas, semi-colons, colons, and parentheses in sentence structure. And how he wrought, how he tussled with a very difficult task! But his zeal and ambition never finched. Dr. Henry W. Super, if I remember rightly, succeeded President Bomberger. And what an unassuming theologian, mathematician and scholar he was! Later came Dr. Spangler as president of the College, followed by Dr. Ebbert, Dr. Keigwin, and Dr. Omwake. As you all know Dr. Spangler and Dr. Omwake are numbered among the sons of Ursinus. Dr. Spangler's record reveals the achievements of one gifted by nature and training to accomplish superior educational results. Under the efficient educational and executive guidance of Dr. Omwake, Ursinus has attained a prominent place among the colleges of the United States.

"You, as members of the Ursinus College Alumni Association, take just pride in your alma mater, and you have ample reason so to do. I envy you the memories you cherish with relation to college life—the student activities in which you participated, and numerous incidents, pleasing in character and others not so pleasing. Quite a number of you remember sundry tricks, involving conduct that disturbed the equanimity of the president, the dean, and some of your instructors. You all owe a debt of gratitude to the institution where you obtained the educational training, and its consequent benefits. Your lives were broadened by the experiences impressed upon you during your college days. You cannot live over those days but you are privileged to linger in memory of the years you spent within the classic halls of Ursinus College."

Thank you, Mr. Moser.

FOUNDERS' DAY OBSERVANCE HONORS FELIX E. SCHELLING

tor of Pedagogy; the Doctor of Science degree was awarded to Miss Irene F. Laub, a former Ursinus student and prominent physician of Easton, Pa.; the degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon Dr. William L. Mudge, Executive-Secretary of the Pennsylvania Council of Churches; and the guest speaker, Dr. Schelling, received the degree of Doctor of Letters. Besides these honorary degrees, a B. S. degree was given to Donald H. Wasley '33.

The program was concluded with the presentation of baskets of roses to two members of the Board of Directors who have served the College in that capacity for a great number of years. These men were Dr. James M. Anders, a prominent physician of Philadelphia, who has completed a term of forty years as a director of Ursinus, and Dr. Henry T. Spangler '73, former president of the College, who has just completed fifty years of service on that body.

Family Dinner

The annual Founders' Day Family Dinner was held Thursday evening, March 8, at 5:20 P. M. The directors, faculty, administration, students and friends of Ursinus assembled, according to custom, in the two dining rooms, for the dinner and for the informal after-dinner speeches made by the guests of honor.

After the dinner had been served President Omwake introduced the speakers, to whom Ursinus had presented honorary degrees in the afternoon.

Dr. Albert Oswald Michener was the first speaker. He gave a very humorous and brief talk recalling a little incident of "Pip", and referring to himself and the other speakers as "museum exhibits", cautioning the audience, "Don't laugh; you'll be old yourself some day." Dr. Michener stated that he felt quite at home at Ursinus, as he saw here many old friends and former students. Dr. Michener closed his speech with a very fitting tribute to Dr. F. E. Schelling, the speaker of the afternoon.

The second speaker was Dr. Irene Frances Laub. Dr. Laub gave a delightful talk thanking Ursinus for the degree conferred upon her. She remarked that since she had heard that age was a factor in the choice of the recipients of degrees, she would announce that her age was thirty-four.

Dr. William Leroy Mudge, a frequent visitor at Ursinus, was the third speaker. Dr. Mudge told of the incident of a gentleman to whom was offered the degree of D. D. by a college. The degree, said the representative of the college, could be had for fifty dollars. As the gentleman concerned had but twenty-five dollars, the representative offered him half the degree, saying that he could obtain the final letter and period the following year for another twenty-five dollars. Dr. Mudge concluded his talk by expressing deep appreciation for the honor conferred upon him by the College.

Dr. Omwake then introduced Dr. Felix Emanuel Schelling, not as the scholar who had spoken in the afternoon, but as the friend and son of Ursinus. Dr. Schelling told his listeners that he was like the great actor Jefferson in that he wished the audience not to believe half of what they had heard about him. He closed his brilliant and witty speech by saying that "of the four sons of Ursinus, behold, I am the youngest!"

MODERN LANGUAGE GROUP HEARS DR. CALVIN D. YOST

At a meeting of the Modern Language Group held on Tuesday evening in the lecture hall of the Science Building, Dr. Calvin D. Yost, group adviser, delivered an enjoyable and instructive lecture on his trip abroad last summer.

The lecture was supplemented by slides, showing views of London and Edinburgh, with their castles, and universities, Kensington Gardens, Cambridge, rural England, Nimes and other localities in southern France, Holland, and Germany. Facades and interiors of lovely old cathedrals were shown while Dr. Yost pointed out the fine points of the types of architecture employed therein. He spoke also of several experiences with which he had met.

The meeting, which was open to visitors as well as the group, was well attended.

THERE'S ONE BEST TIME To Telephone Home!

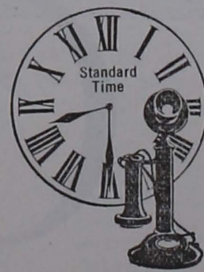

You'll agree, once you've tried it, that half past eight is the time to telephone home.

At half past eight the day's rush is over. Your time is free for a leisurely telephone chat.

At half past eight the same is true at home. It's the best time to catch the family all together.

At half past eight (and this is most important) low Night Rates go into effect on Station to Station calls. You can then save as much as 40% on your call. For example: If your home is 100 miles away, a three-minute connection will cost only 35 cents!

TO TAKE ADVANTAGE of the LOW NIGHT RATES ...

Call after 8:30 P.M., and be sure to make a Station to Station call.

That means, ask the Operator for your home telephone, but not for any specific person.

If you've fixed a date in advance, the family will be sure to be there.

Charges may be reversed.

roduced in the "Sonata in G" by Gal- liard Salmon. The Largo by Eccles was justly beautiful, rendered with a sym- pathetic touch and depth of color. The familiar Beethoven "Minuet in G" ac- claimed deserving applause for its fresh and graceful interpretation.

Carl Goldmark's "Concerto in A Minor" for the violin displayed Mr. Feher's exceptional technical skill, a remarkable audacity which rarely sac- rificed the fullness and distinctness of each tone. The second movement, the famous air, was performed with feeling and exquisite lyric quality. The Bach-Siloti "Adagio" in his sec- ond group was outstanding for the sonorous richness of the strings. In Schubert's "Ave Maria", arranged by Wilhelmj, Mr. Feher reached a height of interpretation which he per- haps did not surpass in the evening. He attained a spiritual purity of tone and feeling, and performed the diffi- cult feat of playing a passage in par- allel octaves with admirable facility.

The program was concluded with three short pieces by Corelli-Torello in contrapuntal form for unaccom- panied violin and contra-bass. In many respects these were the most interesting numbers.

The Ursinus Music Club sponsored the recital.

PHI ALPHA PSI REUNION

The annual reunion of the Phi Alpha Psi sorority alumnae was held in the form of a luncheon at the Phila- delphia College Club on Saturday, March 3. During the business session the following officers were elected for the year: President, Miss Edna Wag- ner; vice president, Miss Elizabeth Yaetes; secretary, Miss Anne Ulrich; treasurer, Miss Florence Brooks.

COMMITTEE CHOSES PROBLEM

dent objective, with a corresponding lack of interest in college.

On the other hand, more women than men considered as serious the need for change in chapel services, the need for intellectual integrity, for a better- planned and more balanced curricu- lum, and for a program of social edu- cation.

The most marked differences be- tween the sex groups appeared in the problems of gambling and of the need for a program for social education. Only 30 per cent of the women re- plying to the questionnaire considered gambling a serious or very serious problem on the campus, while 69.4 per cent of the men replying so con- sidered it. But 89.4 per cent of the women rated the need for social edu- cation as serious, compared with 67.8 per cent of the men.

Sex seems to be more significant than pursuit of any particular group of courses in determining the attitude of students toward campus problems. The graphs of the English and Mod- ern Language groups, which are com- posed largely of women, show a dis- tribution similar to that of the women as a whole, while the distribution within the Chemistry-Biology group is similar to that of the men as a whole.

There are, however, some marked group differences. The Physical Edu- cation group does not consider lack of objective nor the need for a better- planned curriculum very serious. The Modern Language group, to a greater extent than any other group, consid- ers lack of objective serious, but on the other hand is little concerned about the curriculum. The Chemis- try-Biology group as a whole rates gambling and chapel as serious prob- lems, but the percentage of its members who consider lack of objective serious is relatively low. Few mem- bers of the English group are dissat- isfied with the curriculum, but many of them consider the need for social education serious.

the Board who, together with the President of the College, should con- fer with the Executive Committee of the Alumni Association with reference to the problem.

The Instruction Committee report- ed some additional information with reference to Retirement Allowances for Professors and Officers of the Col- lege. No action was taken but the Committee was instructed to continue its study of retirement systems in other institutions.

It was agreed to accept for the Col- lege an oil portrait of Cyrus H. K. Curt's executed by John R. Pierce and to present it as a gift to the institu- tion from the members of the Board. The portrait which will be presented at commencement will be placed in the lobby of the new Science Building. At the same time a painting of the late Dr. J. M. S. Isenberg will be unveiled in the Library, the gift of the Isen- berg family.

The snow storm interfered with the attendance of some members. Those present were: Mr. C. C. Burdan, Rev. I. C. Fisher, D. D., Mr. E. S. Fretz, F. J. Gildner, Esq., D. L. Helffrich, Esq., A. H. D., and Rev. C. D. Yost, D. D.

The meeting adjourned at 3:15 to enable the members to attend the Founders' Day exercises.
