BEAMS FOR BLACKFOOT BRIDGE—Two huge beams, each weighing more than 20 tons and measuring 141' long and 5'2" high, were transported last month to the UM Lubrecht Experimental Forest east of Missoula to serve as center spans for a bridge across the Blackfoot River. The bridge would be used to transport construction materials to the proposed conference center for the Center for Natural Resources (CNR), which would serve the entire Rocky Mountain area as a study base for conservation and use of natural resources. The bridge and conference center would be financed entirely by private funds through the UM Foundation. The donation of the beams and their transportation to the bridge site were arranged through Vic Monahan, a Grizzly Rider and president of the Cascade Pole Co., Tacoma, Wash., with the cooperation of two railroads—Northern Pacific and Milwaukee.

Dorm Contributes $1000 to Book Drive

The largest single contribution to the University of Montana Alumni Association's library support campaign was made last month by a freshman women's dormitory on the University campus. The coeds of Jesse Hall donated $1,000 from their reserve fund, giving the book-purchase campaign a much-needed shot in the arm. The decision to donate money to the book drive was made by the Jesse Hall Executive Council, governing body for the dormitory. The Executive Council decided to make a substantial gift to the book campaign to emphasize student concern and support for the library project.

Federal Cut Forces Reduction In Summer Work-Study Program

The outlook for UM's summer work-study program this year appears dim, according to Don Mullen, financial aids director.

certify students on work-study, so the increase will be easily absorbed by the students attending these schools.

Money in the reserve fund comes from a student-assessed social fee. According to Carol Derzay of Anaconda, president of the council, the group decided the money could be put to its best use by going into the library book fund.

Sen. Fred O. Broeder, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Browder, Butte-Anaconda Kappa Alpha Theta Alumni, A. R. Cable, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Campbell, Catherine Cesar, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Chaffey, Mrs. Christ Christy, City Disposal, Mrs. Glenn Clapp, Dr. W. W. Cloyd, W. R. Coombs, J. E. Corette, Mrs. John R. Cowman, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dahlen, Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Dahmer, Wade T. Dahood, Col. and Mrs. T. C. Davis;

For the current calendar year UM will have approximately $300,000 less than last year, going from an allocation of $873,000 for work study to between $640,000 and $700,000. The reduction will come from the summer work study program so that the academic year program, which employs more than 800 students, can be maintained.

Supplemental funds, left over from the previous year and usually distributed to financial aids offices in June, will also be greatly reduced this year, Mullen said.

Contributions to date total $7,126, including the $1,000-gift from Jesse Hall. The number of individual contributors stands at 384, and the average donation is $15.99. A little over $4,000 has been donated by 221 Montana residents.

Work-study is a federally funded program for college students which pays 80 cents on the dollar for wages of students who work part-time during the academic year and either part-time or full-time during the summer. Students may work on jobs approved under the program during the summer anywhere in the state.

He said students enrolled full-time for 1970 Summer Session will be considered first when making work-study allocations. They may work up to 15 hours per week under the program.

Contributions may be sent to John Delano, executive director, UM Alumni Association, University of Montana, Missoula 59801. The Alumni Association has set a goal of $2 million for the book-purchase campaign.

UM had the sixth-largest work-study program in the nation last year.

Students with the greatest financial need will be awarded the remainder of the available work-study funds.

The following persons have contributed to the library support fund since the last issue of Profiles:

Although President Richard Nixon's budget shows an increase of $6 million nation-wide over last fiscal year for the work-study program, many more institutions can now

Between 250 and 300 students will probably receive work-study allocations this summer, Mullen estimated. This compares with 800 employed on the program last summer. Work-study wages range from $1.45 to $3 per hour.

Mullen said National Defense Student loans also will take a serious cutback during the next fiscal year. Nixon's budget request calls for $20 million less than the 1970 fiscal year.

Student, Mother Airs Views

By JEAN H. ELLISON
Senior, Economics-Political Science

(Editor's note: Mrs. Ellison, a Stevensville mother of five and full-time UM student, wrote this article for "Open Forum," a column in the Ravalli Republican, a Hamilton weekly. She will graduate in June after commuting to classes from the family ranch.)

I believe every citizen is justified in expressing concern about his country, even if one is not a veteran but merely a housewife.

No one can understand or explain all the events that are occurring in the world today, but some of the disturbances in our country have been very carefully studied and documented. The National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders published its report in 1968.

The commission was directed to answer three basic questions. What happened during the civil disorders of that year? Why did it happen? What can be done to prevent it from happening again?

The commission's conclusion was that our nation is moving toward two separate, hostile societies; one black, one white; one well-to-do, one poverty stricken; separate and unequal.

One compelling sentence in the report states that this present course, if unchecked, will lead to the destruction of our basic democratic values. The alternative must be common opportunities for all within a single society and will require a commitment to national action from every American. This will require new attitudes, new understanding and above all, new will.

To build a better society, to meet the vital needs of the nation will require the support and dedication of every American. Scholars, young people, police and government officials cannot accomplish the overwhelming tasks facing the nation alone. They need you and me. We must be willing to help and to help we must try to understand.

A riot is a mass of frustrated, reckless, violent humans certain that they have nothing to lose. It is difficult in our beautiful, peaceful, uncrowded state to try to "walk in the shoes" of a ghetto resident.

A slum is another country, it's another world. You and I learned to respect our teacher, to do our chores, to study. We didn't just do these things naturally. If these skills and attitudes are not learned, they are not acquired, and a very different human being develops.

To many Negroes, police have come to symbolize white power, white racism and white repression, and the truth is that many police do reflect and express these white attitudes. There is widespread belief in the existence of police brutality and a double standard of justice and protection, one for Negroes, one for whites. You and I know that this is not always true, but when it is true, it cannot be corrected by denying its existence.

Peaceful demonstrations have been prohibited again and again. Demonstrations are the only resort for people who have found they have no other way to make their voices heard.

I don't believe Mr. Castro wants to take over the United States. But if he did, he could best accomplish this by dividing our country into separate hostile groups who refuse to communicate or understand one another. Individuals too often read only what they want to read and talk only to those with whom they agree. Change has occurred so rapidly in the last decade it is almost impossible to adjust. But we must adjust.

The American citizen has risen to every challenge that has faced him. But for this endeavor we need every slum dweller, every Indian, every Puerto Rican, every Negro, every hippie and even every housewife. All must become full partners, full citizens, full Americans.

The building, which will house the geology and chemistry departments and part of the forestry school, will contain 100,000 square feet of space for the sciences to enable these disciplines to expand their services to accommodate the growing UM enrollment. The total cost of the first phase of the complex, now under construction and scheduled for completion in the fall of 1971, will be $3.2 million. Funds for the project come from two sources—the federal government will provide $1.1 million, and the state government, $2.1 million.

Alumnus Donates Book To University Library

The Honorable William G. Long, retired Superior Court judge of the State of Washington, and distinguished University of Montana graduate, has presented the UM Library with a copy of his new book, "Asses vs. Jackasses."

The book is a celebration of the donkey in history, religion, music, drama, politics and contemporary life. Judge Long writes his book as though it were a legal brief in which the ass is the petitioner and the jackass (man) is the respondent. The case is meant to be presented to the "World Court of Public Conscience" and Judge Long makes a splendid advocate for the lowly beast of burden he has elected to represent.

Author Long's cynicism with man, who often makes a jackass of himself, came out of his experience. In his career, he has presided over some 25,000 divorce cases and 255,000 cases in juvenile court. He said that he has never known a donkey to get himself into anything like the stupid messes that so many people bring upon themselves.

The author complains that the donkey has not only been forced to bear man's loads, but innumerable indignities. His case for the animal is filled with tales of burros which chewed tobacco, discovered mines, outran horses and sang duets at church services. He includes a tender memoir to Caesar, one of his own donkeys, which he used on pack trips into the mountains to escape the pressures of city life.

Judge Long graduated from UM in 1916 and received the Distinguished Service Award in 1965. He is living in Seattle.

Craigheads Shoot Rapids, Help Produce National Geographic Television Special

Two UM faculty affiliates helped produce the National Geographic Society film special, "Wild River," which was shown on television nationwide Feb. 10.

The special was the third of the National Geographic 1970 series shown on stations associated with the Columbia Broadcasting System. The faculty affiliates involved in the TV production were Dr. John J. Craighead and his twin brother, Dr. Frank C. Craighead Jr.

Dr. John Craighead is the leader of the Montana Cooperative Wildlife Unit and a UM professor of forestry and zoology. He is also a wildlife biologist with the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife.

Dr. Frank Craighead is research associate for the Montana Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit at UM and president of the Environmental Research Institute at Moose, Wyo. He is affiliated with the State University of New York.

"Wild River," according to the Craigheads, was presented to express the need for river preservation.

Last summer the Craighead families rode rafts down two of Idaho's primitive rivers, the Salmon and its Middle Fork. The families were accompanied by television cameramen who filmed the trip for the television special.

The film shows the contrast between the free-flowing waters of the Salmon and the now-polluted waters of the Hudson and Potomac Rivers.

The Craighead brothers were instrumental in the passage of the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act, which provides that certain free-flowing rivers of outstanding value, or sections of them, will be protected for use by present and future generations.

A river classification system has been established by the act for determining the eligibility of any river as wild, scenic or recreational. The importance of the act, Dr. John Craighead says, is that the act delegates the power for river preservation to the American people.

He said that such rivers as the Blackfoot, the Swan and others can be incorporated in the wild river system if the local people organize and express a desire to preserve the water areas.

The Craigheads helped the National Geographic Society produce another television special, "Grizzly!" in 1967. That special dealt with a study of grizzly bear habits in Yellowstone National Park.

The men have also written 11 articles for National Geographic Magazine. The most recent article, "White Water Adventure on Wild Rivers of Idaho," appeared in the February issue of the magazine.

Edward Kennedy Will Speak In Mansfield Series April 17

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D.-Mass., will be the third speaker April 17 in the Mansfield Lecture Series on International Relations at the University of Montana.

The time and title of the assistant Senate majority leader's lecture will be announced at a later date.

The lecture series was established as a permanent program to bring prominent international authorities to the University to speak on foreign affairs.

Kennedy will be on campus April 17 and 18. On the 18th he will keynote the second annual Kyi-Yo Indian Youth Conference. The conference originally was scheduled for April 2-4, but the dates were changed to April 16-18 to coincide with Kennedy's visit to Missoula for the Mansfield lecture.

Kennedy also will meet with UM students and faculty informally and in classrooms during his campus visit.

The Mansfield program was started two years ago in honor of Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield's quarter century of congressional service and the University of Montana's 75th anniversary.

The series, established under the Maureen and Mike Mansfield Endowment of the University Foundation, is being financed with $118,000 raised through an art sale, private donations and two testimonial dinners.

Mansfield, a UM alumnus and a professor of history on leave from the Missoula campus, launched the lecture series himself two years ago at UM when he discussed "China: Retrospect and Prospect."

The second lecture in the series was presented a year ago by John Kenneth Galbraith, an economist and author who was ambassador to India during the administration of the late President John F. Kennedy. Galbraith discussed the "New Industrial State: The Case, Criticism and Consequences."

UM Dorm Slated for Conversion

Turner Hall, a dormitory built at the University of Montana in 1938 at a cost of $230,868, is scheduled to be converted into office facilities this summer.

Announcement of the tentative conversion plans was made recently by George L. Mitchell, UM administrative vice president. The change hinges on a tentative okay from the University Bond Co.

Mitchell said the minimal remodeling required to convert Turner Hall from a freshman coeds' dorm into office facilities "will enable us to tear down several University-owned houses in the University area to make additional vehicle parking facilities."

The houses now accommodate a number of office personnel.

Mitchell said the coeds living in Turner could stay in other dormitories on campus without overcrowding those facilities. A number of the dormitories on campus have room for students because many of the older students live off campus, he said.
