

But I Could be Marble

by Grace Miholic

I wish I was your muse
In the same way, I was you Reflected in mirrors when I modeled your rejected clothes you dressed me with But my world is no longer romanticized to think you'd carve me out of marble
I have too many jagged edges to emulate effortlessly smooth beauty