BIOGRAPHY

Mary Julia Neal was born August 15, 1905 in Auburn, Logan County, Kentucky, the daughter of Presley Taylor Neal and Nettie Pace Neal. Auburn is located near the former Shaker colony of South Union, and Neal grew up visiting the brethren and sisters and becoming familiar with her Shaker neighbors. However, it wasn't until she was in college that she began to research and write about the group that would become her life's work.

Neal received an AA degree from Bethel Women's College, Hopkinsville, Kentucky in 1925. She began taking classes at Western Kentucky State Teacher's College, Bowling Green, Kentucky later that year, graduating with a Bachelor's in English in 1931. While working on the school's newspaper, the College Heights Herald, Neal was assigned to write a feature article about the Shakers by her instructor Dr. Gordon Wilson. "Shakertown of Long, Long Ago" appeared in the January 1926 issue, the first of her many writings that would deal with this unique religious group.

Neal received her Master's degree from Western in 1933 and taught there as an instructor in the English Department for ten years. During this time the Kentucky Library was built on campus. Among the many items donated to its collections were documents from South Union which Neal utilized for her research. She also investigated collections of materials at Pleasant Hill, Kentucky, the Library of Congress, the New York Public Library, and the Western Reserve Historical Society in Cleveland. Neal visited the Canterbury, New Hampshire and Sabbathday Lake, Maine communities where she established friendships with the last twentieth century Shakers.

In the early 1940s Neal left Western to do post-graduate work at the University of Michigan. While there she completed the manuscript for By Their Fruits: The Story of Shakerism in South Union, Kentucky. This book, the result of her research into diaries, manuscripts, ledgers, and other primary sources, was published in 1947 by the University of North Carolina Press. Reviewer Adele Brandeis wrote "it is written with the honesty and dignity and at the same time with the quiet joy and occasional humor of that people...."

In 1946 she joined the faculty of Florence State College, Florence, Alabama as associate professor of English and taught there until 1964 when she returned to Western to become Director of the Kentucky Library & Museum. At the Kentucky Building, she oversaw the creation of a Manuscripts division and spoke out about the need for an addition to the building. In addition to her work on campus, Neal was actively involved in the attempt to preserve Shaker artifacts by the creation of a South Union museum. She was also part of a group that sought to purchase and to restore the remaining buildings at South Union. Julia Neal retired from the Kentucky Library in 1972, but she continued researching, writing, traveling, and volunteering at the South Union Shaker Museum.

When Julia Neal died July 22, 1995, she was regarded as one of the country's leading Shaker historians. Her writings had helped preserve America's and Kentucky's Shaker history. In addition to By Their Fruits, she edited The Journal of Eldress Nancy, Kept of the South Union, Kentucky, Shaker Colony, August 15, 1861-September 4, 1864 (Parthenon Press, 1963). She authored the text for The Shaker Image (New York Graphic Society, 1974) and wrote The Kentucky Shakers for the Bicentennial Bookshelf series (University Press of Kentucky, 1977). Her articles appeared in journals such as Shaker Quarterly, Filson Club History Quarterly, and Kentucky Folklore Record.

COLLECTION NOTES

The collection consists of the correspondence, speeches, and writings of Shaker scholar and English professor, Mary Julia Neal. Boxes 1-3 consist of Neal's correspondence from childhood letters to her later professional correspondence. The later correspondence is chiefly with personal friends, Shaker scholars, and those interested in communal or utopian studies. Of particular interest is some correspondence with Kentucky author, Jesse Stuart, and correspondence with twentieth century Shakers.

Boxes 4-5 contain drafts and galley proofs of Neal's books about the Shakers. Box 6 contains other writings by Neal, chiefly speeches and articles about Shakers or Kentucky culture. Box 7 consists of research pursued by Neal and other Shaker scholars, again chiefly related to the Shakers. Box 8 contains personal information about Neal including newspaper clippings, programs listing Neal as a speaker, notes about awards received by Neal, and information about her time at Bethel College (Hopkinsville), as well as vertical file material about Shaker villages.

Box 9 contains photographs of the Neal family as well as nineteenth and twentieth century photos of Shakers and their villages. The majority of the Shaker photographs are from South Union, Kentucky. The box also contains a number of photographs of the Shakers who lived in the later part of the twentieth century at Canterbury, New Hampshire and Sabbathday Lake, Maine. The box also includes some snapshots of the Red River Union Meeting House.

Box 10 contains information about Neal's professional associations and interests: newspaper clippings about the history of Auburn, Kentucky; her nephew, Stanley Carter Pace, St. Mark's Priory at South Union, the Kentucky Baptist Historical Society, and the Historic Communal Societies Association and its annual conference.
