BIOGRAPHY

Guy Hess Herdman was born in Bowling Green, Kentucky, on 28 May 1875, the son of John M. and Camilla (Hess) Herdman. His undergraduate education was received at Ogden College in Bowling Green, after which he earned a law degree at the University of Virginia.

Returning to his hometown, young Herdman began his law practice with Benjamin Franklin Procter. Later he had his own firm prior to various partnerships with Judge Nathaniel Porter Sims, John Levette Stout, and Otho P. Roper. Herdman served eight years as city attorney of Bowling Green and also was an active member of the Common Council and Board of Education.

Herdman married Lula Gaines of Biloxi, Mississippi, and they were the parents of a daughter, Camilla (b. 1909?), and a son, Walter C. (b. 1916). Among his interests were his family, stamp collecting, and sporting activities.

Herdman was respected throughout the state for his legal abilities. He lost his hearing completely following a sinus operation in 1934, thus he was forced to relinquish his court practice. Despite his deafness, he was appointed assistant attorney general of Kentucky in 1936, whereupon he and his wife moved to Frankfort and he retained this position until his unexpected death on 14 December 1947.
