'62 Talisman Dedicated To Dean Raymond L. Cravens

DEDICATION Western Dean Raymond L. Cravens looks over the Talisman, yearbook at Western, recently, after discovering that the yearbook had been dedicated to him. The Talisman was ready for distribution Wednesday, May 16.

By MICHAEL STEWART

The Talisman yearbook was released Wednesday, May 16, in the basement of Van Meter Auditorium. The feature of this year's annual was the dedication to Dean Raymond L. Cravens.

Dean Cravens, who joined the Western faculty in June of 1958, received his A. B. degree from Western in 1952 and his Master's degree from Western in 1955. After earning his master's degree, he was awarded a Haggin scholarship at the University of Kentucky. There he began the doctoral program in political science in 1955.

The Haggin grant was renewed in 1956, and in 1957 he was made a teaching assistant in government at the University. In 1957, he received a Kentucky Research Foundation Fellowship for research on his doctoral dissertation.

He was awarded his doctor's degree from U. of K. in August, 1958, and he began teaching political science in the history department here at the opening of the fall term.

While Dean Cravens was attending Western, he was a Business Manager for the College Heights Herald, and a cartoonist for the college newspaper. Several of his cartoons won recognition for him.

While in the Air Force in 1953, he won first prize in a world-wide flying safety poster contest.

Campus Gets Facelifting

Have you noticed the beautiful white appearance of our front walk and pylon and the colonnade around the front of the football field? Well, at least you have probably noticed the heavy dust and the rash of no parking signs. Everyone will agree however, that the small inconvenience is well worth the tremendous addition

The booklet published recently, attempts to give many samples of the Folkways around the Mammoth Cave region. The publication will be sold at Mammoth Cave as well throughout bookstores in Kentucky.

Dr. Gordon Wilson Writes 3rd Book On Ky. Folklore

By ED HOCKER
After approximately thirty years of walking, talking, listening, seeing, and examining in and around the area called the Mammoth Cave National Park, Dr. Gordon Wilson has produced his third book.

Folkways of the Mammoth Cave Region is the result of studying folkways all of his life. Professor Wilson, the emeritus head of Western's Department of English, began a regular study of ornithology in the Mammoth Cave area many, many years ago when he was still a student at the Western Kentucky State Normal school. In later years he began to notice the similarity of the folk culture in the cave region to that of his own Western Kentucky. Consequently, the teacher began to collect information concerning language, habits, proverbs, folk medicine, and folk expressions of the cave region while also studying and keeping very accurate records on the

At last my time has come to join with Bernard Madison and do my editorial swan song. As my co-editor said in last week's Herald, goodbye's are never easily faced or said. Each senior is filled with certain inexpressible emotions that cannot be put into words, and only those who have been seniors can understand these inaudible words.

Just as each senior is filled with inward utterances, editors of college newspapers have more than their share of thoughts. Each experience, each teacher each friend becomes a part of the editor's college life. There have been experiences that each editor would like to forget, and there have been other experiences that the editor cherishes for having had some small part in. These are the memories of the college editor.

Wielding the blue pencil is never an easy job, and for the editor of a college newspaper, it becomes increasingly difficult at times. "You left my story out."

"Why didn't you use the cut?" "I thought you promised us front-page coverage." "Our organization is the most active on campus—we deserve top coverage." "What? You mean that the story concerning Jasper Klinkersnooper's being crowned king of the Sauer Kraut Festival didn't get in?" and so on to ad infinitum. But there are other compensations. "Good-looking front page." "Thanks for the publicity." "We appreciate the story about Mr. . . ." "The College Heights Herald is of vital importance to the growth of the college; keep up the good work."

May I say that in order to do all that the College Heights Herald should do, we need a four page semi-weekly with a full-fledged staff of fifteen or twenty who are thoroughly interested in the college and the college newspaper.

For the most part, the editors hope that the Herald has served the best interests of the college, its faculty, its administrators, its alumni, and most of all — its student body. If we have not given proper coverage to each area of the college, we apologize. If we have served your interests well, we trust that you will continue to support the Herald in the years ahead.

All in all being editor of the College Heights Herald has been a thoroughly worthwhile experience, one that I will always treasure. I sincerely thank the Herald sponsor, Miss Frances Richards, for her untiring ability and eagerness to help; Mr. Robert G. Cochran, general manager of the College Heights Herald, for his interest and for his sincere direction; Bernard Madison for those sessions of Common Commiseration, and Mr. Maxie Jackson, superintendent of the Park City Daily News composing room, and his staff for their most valuable assistance.

With these "Thank-you's" being said, I reluctantly take up the blue pencil and write my last 30.

A college newspaper requires more interested persons than just two editors or two business managers. A great many people have contributed greatly to the making of this year's volume of the College Heights Herald; the editors are especially indebted to Miss Frances Richards and Mr. Robert G. Cochran.

The editors also express their "thank-you's" to Doug Verdier, Sally Greer, Allen Pardon, and Bonnie Lyle; to Mr. Maxie Jackson and his staff, Ronnie Stotts and Paul Vinson, for their very valuable assistance at the Park City Daily News.

Freshman Is Friend Of Pres. And Mrs. Kennedy

By WILLIAM HYATT

Only a freshman and already a good friend of the president. That is Roger Futrell, a freshman from Hopkinsville majoring in French and political science. He is a good friend of President Kennedy and is on Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy's White House Fine Arts Committee. In January of 1961, Roger attended both the inauguration and inaugural ball. In April, he was informed that his name had been placed on the White House social calendar and guest list.

Roger met Mr. Kennedy when the latter was a senator campaigning for the presidency. Roger, then vice-president of the Christian County Young Democrats, aided the President in his campaign. For his efforts in the campaign, Congressman Frank Stubblefield recommended Roger to the President for an invitation to the inauguration. Since this time Roger has received several letters from both the President, the First Lady and Robert Kennedy, the Attorney General.

At the official reception for Supreme Court and top judiciary officials, Roger was the only Kentuckian invited. At the reception, Roger said that Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy showed quite a bit of interest in Western's campus and the curriculum offered.

As a member of the White House Fine Arts committee, Roger recently found a unique bed in Cadiz which will be used in

Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy's bedroom.

Here on the Hill, Roger is not only a good student but also finds time to participate in the S. N. E. A. Western Players, and of course Young Democrats. In Western Players he is active from the commercial standpoint.

As you would expect from reading his above activities, Roger's summer plans cover both a state political job and hopes to visit Washington. He will be employed in the Christian County Circuit Court clerk's office. His job will be that of deputy court clerk.

Roger also hopes to be able to attend some of the Washington functions this summer. He was recently notified that his name has been placed on the social calendar of embassy row and that he may be invited to several of the important receptions.

One of Roger's interests is genealogy, and at the age of fifteen he wrote a genealogy of his family, for which he did all the research. He sold approximately 250 copies to finance the printing.

Roger hopes to go to law school when he finishes here on the Hill but hasn't decided exactly where he will go or precisely what he will prepare for. He would like to become a foreign service officer for the United States, and from his friendly attitude to ever one he meets, he looks at though he should be quite successful as well as helpful to our foreign service.

How would one describe the new magazine USA-1 that is in our library? Handsome? Lavishly illustrated? My first impression was that the magazine was very colorful, but sophisticated. The contents — U.S. world, U.S. Times, and U.S. ways of life proved the magazine to fit all the descriptions. Articles concerning poets, Jackie Kennedy, the life of a famous oilman, and the new hope in East Africa are found in the new magazine.

Jane Jacobs points out how often the planners' low-income projects fail to convert slums into anything other than regimented-looking new slums in The Death and Life of Great American Cities. The author suggests "un-slumming" projects by making places for street vendors among them, and leaving room for ground-floor shops and workshops for residents.

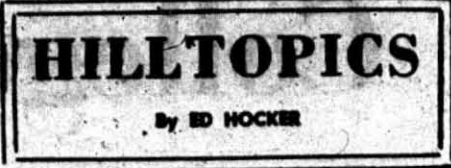

Inez and Marshall McCintock traveled over 30,000 miles to gather to their material for Toys in America. The authors visited scores of toy manufacturers, libraries, museums, historical societies, and private collectors of toys to gather history in this field. This is the story of playthings as seen in the broader framework of a changing and growing nation, up to the present time, when Americans spend a billion and a half dollars yearly on toys for children.

The authors tell of the development of hundreds of different kinds of toys, from those as basic as balls, bicycles, Teddy Bears, and paper dolls to the many whirling and often silly fads of two centuries.

The Architecture of America, A Social and Cultural History, by John Ely Rurchard and Albert Bush-Brown, tells the story of how architecture came about, of the evolution of a uniquely American architecture from derivative European forms and eclecticism. How this evolution relates to the growth of American society, to the development of arts and letters — to American intellectual life — is brilliantly discussed in this rich, far-ranging "Life on the Hill" is always a good theme for conversation, writing, and night-seeing; it is, however an exceptionally fine theme for a college yearbook. Congratulations to Mr. Millard Gibson and the Tellman staff for continuing the Western tradition of having one of the finest yearbooks in the South.

If you have been feeling showers of sand, don't become alarmed; it isn't raining solids—it is just a sand-blasting operation giving the campus a facelift. "If you can't lick 'em, pave a way for them" . . . This seems to be the case at Western. For all you people who have found taking the sidewalk via the Library or Cherry Hall enroute to the Goal Post to be too taxing, you will be happy to know that the college maintenance men have poured a new sidewalk running parallel to the west side of Cherry Hall and perpendicular to Fifteenth street. It is wide enough to accommodate any young man and his bevy.

"College Heights on hilltop fair. . ." the words to Western's alma mater seem to take on a new charm as the Class of '62 marks the days off on the calendar. To each faculty member, administrator, and underclassmen, the graduating seniors bid you a fond and appreciative valed.

By MARCUS ET AURELIUS

The world seems to be beating a path to the campus these days! Several paths, in fact. Some of these paths have become so worn, that efforts to replant grass in certain areas are fruitless.

Several weeks ago, an editorial in the Herald mentioned the presence of a small, black-and-white sign, inscribed with the word "PLEASE", located in a very prominent position at either end of a well-worn runway between Cherry Hall and the Goal Post. The sign was not intended to be an obstacle placed in the path of thirsty students; rather, it was intended as an appeal to those who had used the path in the past, to refrain from using it in the future, in order that an unsightly scar might be removed from the main entrance of the campus.

However, these efforts were to no avail, and now there is a new cement sidewalk in place of the dirt path. It seems that it was useless to attempt to persuade students to accept a small part of their responsibility to the maintenance of the campus landscape.

This has not been the only place where students have shirked their obligation to the beautification of the campus. Already, stables have been set out to mark the boundaries of a wider sidewalk behind Cherry Hall. Many visitors to Western have made the remark that Western is so much more pleasant to live and study at because of the beautiful grounds surrounding the buildings. Many campuses are almost totally enveloped in concrete and asphalt. Trees and grass are almost a rarity around academic buildings.

It is so refreshing, after a class on a hot day, to be able to step a few feet outside the buildings and find a little shade where one can relax for a minute between classes and enjoy the cool breezes that weave their way across the Hilltop; to be able to see something of Nature rather than a broad expanse of concrete, broken only by an occasional limestone or brick building.

But these things cannot be retained if thoughtless students refuse to sustain them. If selfish misuse of Western's picturesque landscape continues, more concrete will have to be poured to combat erosion and erase the blemishes which will appear after a time.

Students, please make an honest effort to KEEP WESTERN BEAUTIFUL.

social and cultural history. There are forty-eight pages of illustrations for The Architecture of America which not only presents the major architects from Bulfinch to Philip Johnson, but displays the variety of functions for architecture throughout the widely differing region of America.

Professor Charles Frankel of Columbia presents a profile of American philosophy during the period in which it came to maturity in The Golden Age of American Philosophy. In almost all the men concerned with philosophy was found the confidence and ability to make out the true and the good and confidence in something more — in the power of the mind to make the word over. This is one of most typical emphasis of the golden age.

A moral philosophy of the curriculum by Philip H. Phenix is Education and the Common Good. The book challenges the readers to understand the major problems in contemporary culture and civilization and compels him to take a stand on the crucial question of education's basic purpose in a free society.

The book's cultural theme is a distinction between the life of desire, self-satisfaction narrowly conceived, and the life of worth, goodness and excellence, conceived in terms of a moral commitment. The author's persuasive proposals for a new curriculum are centered around his interpretation of intelligence, creativity, conscience, and reverence. From these four concepts come the human characteristics and values essential for a sound education.

More than 4,000 quotations, presented typically, from opinions and writings by justices of the nation's highest court are selected and arranged by Percival E. Jackson in The Wisdom of the Supreme Court.

Story on equity, Brandeis on labor and labor unions, Douglas on civil liberties, Holmes on the qualities of judges and lawyers — these quotations collected here reflect not only the distinguished qualities of intellect and understanding of individual justices, but also the deep and unremitting problems which face the Court-building a structure of law on the foundation of the Constitution.

Girl Watcher's Guide

Presented by Pall Mall Famous Cigarettes

LESSON 13 - A few 'don'ts'

Now that we have learned the how of girl watching, let's consider a few safety precautions. They are presented, not as strict rules (since some experts with highly developed eyeball control enjoy watching while running the high hurdles, for example), but merely as friendly suggestions. 1. Don't watch while driving. 2. Don't watch while drilling teeth (dental students only). 3. Don't watch while removing tonsils (medical students only). 4. Don't watch while mixing chemicals in the lab. 5. Don't watch girls who are engaged to the captain of the football team. Our final suggestion is a do, not a don't. Taste Pall Mall — so smooth, so satisfying, so downright smokeable!

Say, students what do YOU like to eat?

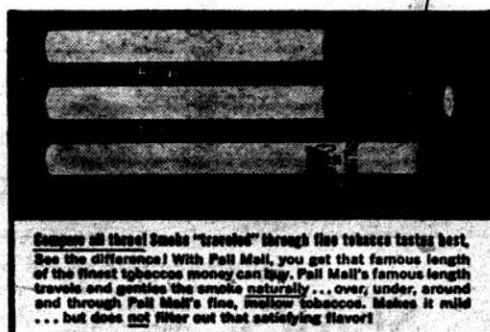

Pizza? Spaghetti? Hoagies? or a good plate lunch with vegetables and a salad?

We have them all — so come and see us.

Don't forget — we pay cab fare on orders $3 or over.

Sports Slants

This will be the last column until September, and looking back over the football, basketball, and spring sports seasons, Western has had a creditable year in athletics. The distinction of having both the OVC Coach of the Year in football and basketball plus winning the Ohio Valley Conference in basketball are high-lights of the past year.

Football

The outlook for the coming season can be expressed with cautious optimism as only seven seniors will graduate from last year's team which posted a 6-3 record. This year's team captured the mythical state championship by defeating the other three state colleges: Murray, Eastern, and Morehead. Coach Nick Denes was chosen as OVC Football Coach of the Year. The Toppers gave up fewer yards on the ground than any other OVC team.

With lettermen such as Lee Murray, the team's most valuable player last year, Jim Taylor, Paul Finestrich, Joe Suple, John Barriole, Bobby Westmoreland and Stan Napper anchoring down the front line, and with Bunny Best, Jim Daily, Bobby Mitchell, Jim and John Burt, and Carson Culler in the back field, plus some very good-looking transfer students, Coach Denes is looking forward to this fall on the gridiron.

Baseball

The Hilltoppers picked to finish second in the OVC in a preseason poll, came back from a disastrous December in which they lost four of seven games to win the OVC by a record breaking margin of four games. Western finished with a 11-1 record in Conference play, the lone loss being to Tennessee Tech. at Cookeville. Coach Diddle sent his team in action for the 1000th time on January 6, 1962 against New Mexico State. The Toppers won the game 71-67.

For only the second time in history, all five starters averaged in double figures, and all five starters were named on the first three All-OVC teams, with Bobby Rascoe and Harry Todd selected on the first team.

Bobby Rascoe virtually rewrote the record books as he closed out a brilliant four years by averaging 25.7 points a game and being selected as an All-American Honorable Mention, All-Mid East NCAA, and on the Converse Magazine All American first team. Coach Diddle was selected an OVC Basketball Coach of the Year.

This year's freshman team compiled a surprising 11-4 record. Ray Keaton from Portsmouth, Ohio led the team in scoring and rebounds with an average of 21.7 points a game. Keaton was followed closely by Ray Shover and Mickey Brown as they averaged 19.6 and 16.7 points a game. Two of the eleven victories came over Murray's highly touted freshman team.

Spring Sports

The brightest spot in the spring sports has been the track team. Mickey Brown, an outstanding freshman from Campbellsville, went undefeated in the high jump and was defeated only once in the regular season in the high and low hurdles. He set school records in the high jump and the high hurdles. Also setting school records were the 440-yard relay team and the mile relay team.

The baseball team finished with a 10-13 record. Wesley Carroll led the Toppers in batting as he had 16 hits in 38 times at bat for a .421 average. Following Carroll was Jerry Schureman .384; Lee Murray .368; and John Burt .352.

The golf team finished 17th in the Southern Intercollegiate Golf Tournament as they defeated four Southeastern Conference Schools. This year's linksmen were led by Joe Jagers, a senior from Princeton.

The Tennis team lost seven matches which was something that has happen before. Don Meyer, the OVC's No. 1 singles champ along with Danny Day, Don Trau-

Bobby Rascoe To Play For Oklahoma Oilers

Bobby Rascoe, senior All-American basketball player, will continue his playing career with Bartlesville, Oklahoma Oilers.

The number three draft choice of the Professional New York Knicks, Bartlesville, has come to terms with the petroleum company which sponsors the Oilers.

One of the all-time Hilltopper names, Rascoe will receive a Bachelor of Science Degree in Commerce at the May 21 graduation exercise. He will work this summer for the company which sponsors the Oilers, being employed in the sales division at his home town of Grandview.

The 6'4" ex-Owens County High School standout will report to the Oilers squad in September. He will join two other OVC Cam-pusians going on the cheap A. A. U. club—Carl Cole of Eastern and Jim Hayes of Charlotte Kentucky and Tennessee Tech.

A three-year regular on Coach Ed Diddle's Hilltopper squad, Rascoe averaged 23.7 last season and 23.4 for his career—tops in Western's history.

Long regarded as the nation's No. 1 amateur cage team, the Oilers last to only one collegiate club last season—Eastern Kentucky.

TILL WE MEET AGAIN

This is the final column of my eighth year of writing for the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes, and this year, as in every preceding year, when I came to the last column of the season, I come to a problem.

My contract with the makers of Marlboro calls for me to write a humor column and, truly, I do the best I can—all things considered, I am not, I should explain, a jolly man by nature. Why should I be? First of all, I am shorter than everybody. Second, there are moths in my cashmere jacket. Third, I wait in television.

All the same, when it comes time to write this column, I light a good Marlboro Cigarette, put aside my anxieties, and try with all the strength in my tiny body to make some jokes. Sometimes it works better than others, but on the last column of the year, it just flatly doesn't work at all.

Even in the very beginning this was true—and that, you will recall, was eight years ago when I was relatively young and strong and had not yet developed that nasty knock in my transmission. Will do I remember sitting down to write the final column of my first year. Day followed barren day, and not a yack, not a boff, not a singer did I produce. I was about to give up humor and take a job selling mechanical dogs when all of a sudden, in a blinding flash, I realized why I couldn't think of any jokes!

I leapt up from my typewriter and ran as fast as my little fat legs would carry me to the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes, and I tugged my forelock, and I said, "Sirs, I am well aware that you have engaged me to write a humor column, but today, as I approach the final column of the season, I am far too misty to be funny, for the final column of the season is, after all, a leave-taking, and when I think of saying goodbye to my audience—the swellest audience any columnist ever had—the college students of America—wonderful human beings, every man and woman of them—wise but kindly—astute but compassionate—perceptive but forbearing—when, sir, I think of saying goodbye to such an audience, I am too shook up even to consider levity, and so I ask you, sirs, to let me, in the final column of the year, forego humor and instead write a simple, dignified, straightforward farewell."

Then I took out my bandanna, wiped my eyes, ears, nose, and throat and waited for a reply from the makers of Marlboro. They sat around the polished board room table, the makers, their handsome brows knit in concentration, gazing thoughtfully on the Marlboros in their tattooed hands. At length they spoke. "Yes," they said simply.

I never doubted they would say yes. People who make a cigarette as good as Marlboro must themselves be good. People who lavish such care on blending tobacco so mild and flavorful, on devising a filter so clean and white, on boxing a flip-top box so flip-top, on packing a soft pack so soft—people like that are one hundred percent with me!

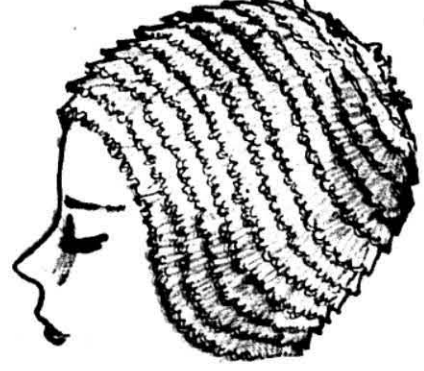

And so from that day forward, the final column of the year—including the one you are, I devoutly hope, now reading—makes no attempt to be funny, but is instead a simple thank you and au revoir.

Thank you and au revoir, makers of Marlboro. The memory of our eight years together will remain ever fresh in my heart, and I would like to state for all the world to hear that if you want me back again next year, I shall accept a substantial raise in salary.

Thank you and au revoir, college students of America. May good luck attend all your ventures. Stay well. Stay happy. Stay loose.

Small Max has said it all. We, the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes, can only add a heartfelt second cheer: Stay well. Stay happy. Stay loose.

Murray Clips Tennis Team

Western has lost six tennis matches this season—something which apparently never before has happened to Coach Hornback.

The sixth loss in 12 matches came at Murray May 8, 4-3, but ace Don Meyer avenged one of his four losses by clipping Bobby Cooper in straight sets, 6-2, 6-4.

Western won three of the five singles, but dropped both doubles. Don Traugbher and Don McElhane lost a three-setter in the No. 2 doubles after holding match point almost a dozen times in the second set.

Hornback's tennis teams have won right at 80 per cent of their matches in the 25 years he has been coach of the squads. Two of the losses this season have been to Murray, both by 4-3.

- Summary:
- Don Meyer (W) def. Bobby Cooper, 6-2, 6-4.
 - Danny Day (W) def. Dave Payne, 6-1, 3-6, 6-1.

A skit entitled "Romance at the O-Bar-O," or the "Woes of Fio and Joe" was presented by the members of the football team. It was about a rancher played by Ollie Newell, and the lovers of his daughter, Flo, played by Joe Bugel. The lovers were: Denny McAtee as "Two-Gun" Jim McGee, Bob Mitchell as "Buck-toothed Sam," and Joe Ircane as "Hansome Joe." The narrator was Bill Mumford.

Betty and Dolores Bush presented a song and a dance routine, which they also presented in the play, "White Nine Music."

Charlie Fierer and the "Accents" sang "Something on My Mind." To highlight the evening, a style show of the latest campus fashions was presented by the members of the football team. Since Dr. Wilson's retirement from active teaching to professor-on-change-of-status two years ago, he has devoted most of his time to his many Mammoth Cave studies. Folkways of the Mammoth Cave Region is based upon over 12,000 items of authenticated folklore which the many-faceted professor has collected. Some of the material that he has collected has been used in his weekly newspaper column, "Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore," which appears in nearly one hundred newspapers throughout Kentucky. The column, now in its twenty-seventh year as a weekly feature, has also been a source for recording some of the material included in two other books by Dr. Wilson, Passing Institutions and Fidelity and Folks.

Dr. Wilson graciously gives credit to a great many people who have helped him with his studies. Miss Mary Alice Hanson, a former student of Dr. Wilson and a native of the Mammoth Cave region, has given a great deal of assistance to the author; her name appears on the title page.

Folkways of the Mammoth Cave Region contains sections on the people of the cave region, the language and pronunciation of the cave area, regional words, superstitions, folk medicines, folk expressions, and many other topics about the area that is so rich in folklore.

The book has been published to sell for $1.00 per copy; it will be available in the hotel at Mammoth Cave, in the College Heights Bookstore, and at Herman Lowe's in downtown Bowling Green.

Dr. Wilson has become such a well-known figure at Mammoth Cave that he has been the guest speaker at the Mammoth Cave Homecoming for many years; he has, in effect, been adopted by the natives of the region and their descendants.

As a frequent companion to Dr. Wilson on his expeditions to collect folklore, this writer would like to add that there are few people in the world who know as much about this area as the professor. May I also say breathlessly that there are fewer people in the world that can keep-up with his pace.

Lt. Col J. F. Marquis To Retire June 30th

the U.S. Air Force Academy where he is a medical officer.

The son of Mrs. Margaret Maxwell Marquis, 335 Irvine Road, Lexington, Colonel Marquis entered the military service in June, 1933. He received his B.S. degree in commerce from the University of Kentucky in 1934 and was commissioned a second lieutenant through the ROTC program. The officer studied law at U. of K. for one year prior to receiving his B.S. degree. In 1938, he attended Georgetown College for advanced study in education and did post-graduate work at Western during the summer and fall of 1961.

While serving in the Army, the Colonel has attended service schools at Ft. Benning, Ft. Leavenworth, and chemical school at Edgewood Arsenal near Baltimore.

During the Second World War, Colonel Marquis served in the European Theatre of Operations in 1944, with service in England, France, Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg, Germany, and Austria. From 1952-55, he served in Hawaii while the fiftieth state was still a protectorate of the United States. In 1957-58, the Colonel served in Korea.

He was promoted to first lieutenant in 1940, captain in 1943, major in 1946, and lieutenant colonel in 1955.

Among the Colonel's several decorations are: five campaign stars, the combat infantryman's badge, the bronze star with oak leaf cluster, and appropriate theatre ribbons.

Concerning his life with the military, Colonel Marquis states: "My association with the United States Army has been inspiring, worthwhile, and very broadening. I consider the military a noteworthy profession."

Realizing that everyone has a certain duty to himself, his family and his country, Colonel Marquis firmly believes that the training received through the ROTC will help young men realize what that duty is and prepare them for doing it. "Every person has a certain hole that they must fit into. People must fill that hole, or the water will begin to leak through and very soon, the dike will burst."

Colonel Marquis states that Western now has one of the finest Military Science programs available and that there is plenty of room for anyone who is interested. "Whether he plans a military career or not, the training and experience a young man receives through the ROTC program will aid him no matter what profession he may choose. Even out of uniform, the ROTC cadet has about him an air of confidence and ease that marks him as a leader and distinguishes him from the rest of the crowd."
