

AUTHOR'S NAME AND SURNAME:Ayşegül TEMEL

TITLE: ALABANDA PİLLARED CİSTERNHELLENİSTİC AND ROMANIAN PERİOD CERAMİCS

ABSTRACT

Alabanda Pillared Cistern Hellenistic and Romanian Period Ceramics, thesis study is the findings of 2013 are evaluated. Primarily working on drawings made by subsequent comparison with these ceramic examining the Typological characteristics of the environment.

These comparisons Pillared Cistern sherds unearthed as a result of the excavation has provided important data on revealing the relationship is close to the center as well as in both of dating. The data obtained as a result of the Anatolian cities have understood that the relationship with the West and South coasts. Of evaluation, unearthed ceramic from the Pillared Cistern excavation finds its place in the Hellenistic and Roman period were studied to determine.

After reviews and comparisons it was found that The Alabanda Buttress was constructed between Hellenistic and Roman periods. Addressed by examining the group of the earliest ceramic was in 3rd century BC and in the 5th and 7 th centuries AD, there had been an increase in the density of the ceramics.

KEY WORDS: Caria Region, Alabanda, Pillared Cistern, Hellenistic, Rome, Type, Ceramics.