Lebanese Leader Warns Israelis

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Premier Saeb Salam of Lebanon said today his army has been ordered to go into action against any new Israeli attack.

The country's 15,000-man army was not called in when Israel raided three villages in Lebanon earlier this week in retaliation for Palestinian guerrilla rocket strikes on Israeli border settlements.

Three guerrillas and a Lebanese woman were killed in the pre-dawn raids Tuesday and Friday. The Israelis acknowledged two soldiers killed in Tuesday's raids.

Salam told reporters in Beirut prompted by an official Israeli the orders to fight were warning that Israeli incursions into south Lebanon would continue unless guerrillas were completely banned from operating against Israel from Lebanese territory.

In Cairo, the semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram says a new Egyptian cabinet entrusted with the task of "total confrontation" against Israel will be formed by Tuesday.

The newspaper says President Anwar Sadat already has chosen a new premier but has not disclosed his name pending approval by the central committee of the Arab Socialist Union, Egypt's sole legal political organization.

Bennett Would Force Hydro To Bow To PUC Authority

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia government will force B.C. Hydro, "if necessary," to submit to the authority of the Public Utilities Commission, Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Friday.

Speaking on his return from a vacation in Palm Springs, Calif., Mr. Bennett said the provincial government will pass an order-in-council if necessary to ensure that Hydro abides by the PUC, even though B.C. Hydro chairman Gordon Shrum has claimed that the government-owned utility has statutory power exempting it from such control.

B.C. Hydro and five private companies are currently in a PUC hearing over who will build a gas pipeline to Vancouver Island from the B.C. mainland. Hydro has also insisted that it has the sole right to distribute gas to Vancouver Island, regardless of who builds the pipeline.

Asked about the distribution question, which Mr. Shrum has raised before the PUC, Mr. Bennett said only: "Dr. Shrum is a wonderful chairman of B.C. Hydro. He will push for that, of course. But these matters will be dealt with in due time."

The premier also said there would be "no new tax rates" when the provincial budget is brought down in the legislature, which opens its sitting Thursday.

Mr. Bennett, who is also finance minister, said the budget "will be the best yet."

Rail Passengers Trapped By Snowslide Near Terrace

TERRACE B.C. (CP) — Twenty-three passengers stranded aboard a train trapped by snowslides will be flown out by helicopter to Prince Rupert, a Canadian National Railways spokesman said today.

He said the passengers had spent a warm and comfortable night aboard the train, which was caught Friday by slides near Kwinitsa, about 50 miles west of this northern British Columbia community.

The train was en route from Prince Rupert to Jasper, Alta. A freight carrying logs was trapped by slides in the same area. Only the crew was aboard that train.

No one was injured in the slides and the trains themselves were not hit.

Rescue attempts Friday night were foiled by more slides and continuing bad weather. Winds up to 50 miles an hour prevented the use of helicopters.

A heavy rain was falling in the area today, after 25.7 inches of snow were recorded in 24 hours Friday, creating a danger of further slides of wet, heavy snow.

Five bulldozers were working to clear the tracks.

Truly Hot Pants So Police Found

CREMONA, Italy (AP) — Two policemen became suspicious when the powerful Alfa Romeo crawled past them at only 18 miles an hour. So they stopped the car Friday. Inside, they said, were: Walter Rizzi, 27, and his 19-year-old wife, both wanted in a bank robbery; the $12,000 loot hidden in her panties; and two small pistols hidden in her bra.

He did not get the money and the wife escaped.

Police said the gunman forced the wife of Robert Spencer, Royal Bank of Canada man-

Canadian Banker's Wife Flees Bahamas Kidnapper

FREEPORT, Bahamas (AP) — An armed man burst into the home of a Canadian bank executive Friday night, demanding $300,000 ransom and then kidnapped the man's wife, police said.

He did not get the money and the wife escaped.

Police said the gunman forced the wife of Robert Spencer, Royal Bank of Canada manager, into her car after firing several shots at police.

Joan Spencer said she escaped by opening the door of the auto as the gunman was driving along a lonely road and rolling out into "the bush."

Spencer said he and his wife, together with guests, were preparing for a party when the man broke in.

"He forced my wife and our guests to lie on the living room floor while he came to get me," Spencer said. "I was shaving and hadn't got my clothes on when this character tells me to get into the living room."

KICKED MANAGER Spencer said the gunman, aged between 25 and 30, kicked him several times asking "How much money we had."

He then ordered me to get $300,000 in cash from the Royal Bank of Canada and get back to the house inside 12 minutes." Otherwise, he would blind us all with arsenic which he said he carried in a bottle in his hand," added Spencer.

The bank manager said the gunman had a "walkie-talkie" which he used to give orders to "some other person."

Spencer said he was ordered to go to the bank by himself while the gunman stood guard over his wife, Dr. Stanley Warren and his wife of Toronto, and David Hay of Nassau, Bahamas.

As soon as he left the house, Spencer said, he stopped at some neighbors and called police.

HEADED TO CAR By the time police arrived the gunman was herding Spencer's wife and their guests towards her car.

"He apparently wanted to put them in the trunk but when he found they would not all fit in, he yanked my wife and told her to sit in front with him," Spencer said. "But when the gunman saw me approaching the house with a policeman, he fired, grabbed my wife around the waist, pushed her in the car and firing again, drove off quickly."

Spencer said he didn't know how many shots were fired but "police tried to fire at the tires" but it was impossible to hit them and "there was no point in further endangering my wife's life."

Mrs. Spencer said that after she escaped from the car she walked home through the bush.

While police set up roadblocks and searched for the gunman, Spencer said he decided to continue with the party they had planned.

"I apologized to guests for being a little late in starting," he said.

Flu Fatal For Three

SIoux LOOKOUT, Ont. (CP) — Three Indians have died and another 28 are in hospital following an outbreak of influenza north of here, Dr. W. G. Goldthorp, director of the Indian hospital here, said Friday.

Dr. Goldthorp said the deaths occurred in the Sandy Lake area and although the influenza is waning, 28 are in hospital in Red Lake.

He said flu epidemics can be expected to cost some lives in isolated, cold communities, especially among older and weaker Indians.

He said the victims were an 89-year-old man found dead in his unheated house, a woman of 72 who died in Red Lake Hospital, and another woman who did not follow treatment prescribed for her.

He said the outbreak could not be blamed on inadequate medical services in the area about 400 miles north of Thunder Bay.

He said nurses make trips to smaller "outposts" and that a Sioux Lookout doctor spent a week dealing with the emergency situation at Sandy Lake.

The school in the settlement has been closed for two weeks. Sioux Lookout is about 150 miles northwest of Thunder Bay.

Air Fair Pact Off

GENEVA (AP) — Two airlines—Air Canada and Aerolinas Argentinas—have blocked agreement on worldwide adjustment of passenger fares following the U.S. dollar devaluation, the International Air Transport Association announced today.

IATA officials told a news conference here the two airlines refused to join the world's major carriers in a proposed new international fares structure providing for a maximum seven-per-cent increase of all rates based on the U.S. dollar.

That draft agreement was prepared by 68 international air companies in a 1½-week emergency meeting that ended inconclusively Friday night. The two airlines now have until Monday, Jan. 24, to change their minds. If they maintain their opposition another meeting will be called.

It was not clear what will happen if that meeting should fail as well.

"We simply cannot say at this time," said H. Don Reynolds, IATA assistant director-general,

Controllers Across Canada Set For Walkout Monday

Unless a strike by the Canadian Air Traffic Controllers Association is averted Monday the Kelowna city airport will be shut down to commercial traffic.

Air traffic controllers voted to go on strike at 1 a.m. PST Monday, grounding almost all commercial air traffic in Canada and the Western North Atlantic.

Kelowna Airport manager, Eric Davison, said today the strike would affect seven local controllers who currently operate a mobile tower on rotating shifts. Two men work on duty with one controller on duty in the evening until 10:30 p.m., when the operation is shut down.

Mr. Davison said the airport will still be open, if the strike takes place to public weather service and the tower shutdown would not affect smaller private aircraft.

"We're still hoping it can be settled," he added.

The shutdown will freeze four commercial flights a day in and out of Kelowna Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Sunday, and two flights daily the balance of the week.

In addition to the seven air controllers, 10 Pacific Western Airlines personnel including the station manager, will also be idle, as will the airport limousine service to the city.

A spokesman for the PWA said charter flights by the airline would not be affected by the strike.

Some Stay For Emergencies

OTTAWA (CP) — Commercial airlines are preparing to ground or divert Canadian flights with a strike of air traffic controllers set for 4 a.m. EST Monday.

Major domestic airlines, including Air Canada and CP Air, said the strike would ground their flights within the country. An attempt by CP Air to use Seattle rather than Vancouver for some overseas flights failed to win U.S. approval.

Foreign airlines were preparing to adjust routes that use Canadian air space. Transatlantic flights that normally use air lanes near Gander, Nfld., would instead fly over the Azores.

U.S. airlines with flights to Canada were preparing to land instead at border points such as Buffalo, N.Y., taking passengers by bus to the Canadian landing point. Mediation between the 1,600 controllers and the federal government, their employer, began Friday and was to continue during the weekend.

Sources close to the dispute said a settlement before the strike deadline doesn't appear likely.

HARDEN POSITION The controllers have hardened their position in the three-month dispute, reverting to an original demand for a 5-per-cent wage increase, in a two-year contract, to $24,000 a year.

Transport Minister Don Jamieson said that in the event of a strike "I must take into account the safety of the travelling public and insure . . . that virtually all flying of passengers in Canada would come to a halt."

His department has issued regulations that would limit air operations to emergency and northern supply flights. Visual flights by small planes at speeds of less than 160 knots would be allowed.

Some controllers will remain on duty even during a strike to deal with possible emergencies.

Controllers now earn up to $14,600 a year with a minimum rate of $7,000. Supervisory controllers earn up to $18,000.

They monitor almost all air traffic over Canada and an area extending 500 miles into the North Atlantic.

WORK OUT PLANS In Washington, the Federal Aviation Administration said it has worked out contingency plans with British and Portuguese authorities to route transatlantic flights south of Canada air space. This might cause some departure delays at worst but would not greatly interfere with transatlantic air traffic, a spokesman said.

Meanwhile, BOAC said passengers booked to leave Montreal would be taken by bus to Boston and Toronto passengers to Detroit, boarding regular BOAC flights at those points. Similar arrangements by other foreign carriers were expected.

Air Canada said it would be forced to stop all flights if the strike occurs. A CP Air spokesman said: "Once the controllers leave the towers, that's it."

Among regional carriers Transair Ltd. in Winnipeg said its major flights will be cancelled at midnight Sunday, unless settlement is reached, but light planes ranging up to twin-engine DC-3s would be used to continue executive charter services.

Britain And Malta May Agree On New Defence Agreement

ROME (Reuters) — Prime Minister Don Mintoff of Malta today lifted the Jan. 15 ultimatum for the evacuation of British troops from the Mediterranean island off Malta and said that a new defence agreement with Britain now seemed possible.

Mintoff made the announcement in a brief statement read to reporters after almost seven hours of talks here with British Defence Secretary Lord Carrington and NATO Secretary-General Joseph Luns.

Mintoff said his government had decided to withdraw today's deadline after "having received the assurances of the British government of non-interference in the internal affairs of Malta and having seen evidence of the possibility of a new agreement on defence facilities."

Czech Delegates Leave N. Vietnam

TOKYO (AP) — A Czechoslovak government economic delegation left Hanoi for home Saturday after a visit to North Vietnam. The delegation led by Deputy Premier Frantisek Hamouz signed agreements on Czechoslovakia's economic and military aid to North Vietnam for 1972, and a goods exchange and payments agreement between the two countries.

Both Lord Carrington and Luns said after the talks that "some progress" had been made and that another meeting was expected next week.

DATE NOT SET The date of the next meeting has not been set, but Mintoff said the future of the talks depended on "certain developments" before next Wednesday.

Asked if he was happy about the results of today's meeting Mintoff replied: "not completely happy but happier than before."

Margrethe II Of Denmark Carries Out First Duties

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Denmark's pretty new Queen Margrethe carried out the first official duties of her reign today as the country mourned her popular father, King Frederik IX.

Flags on public buildings and private homes flew at half-staff. Church bells tolled. At noon naval batteries fired 81-gun salutes in honor of the dead king.

Court mourning was decreed two months. Movie houses and theatres will be closed tonight and restaurants have been ordered not to play dance music.

The king's body was quietly moved from the Municipal Hospital, where he died Friday night, to Amalienborg Palace, his home during his reign of nearly 25 years.

Widowed Queen Ingrid appealed to people not to send flowers as tokens of sorrow but to contribute instead to a charity named for her late husband.

The new queen, 31, had her first meeting with her government today. Later she presided over a Council of State. Premier Jens Otto Krag, as is customary after the death of the monarch, offered his government's resignation. Margrethe formally asked the government to stay in office.

She was proclaimed Queen Margrethe officially at mid-afternoon before a crowd massed beneath the balcony of parliament.

"King Frederik IX is dead. Long live Her Majesty Queen Margrethe II," Krag proclaimed three times as the queen's blonde curls whipped in the cold wind.

Hundreds draped a bitter cold and gathered in the palace square Friday night as the news of the king's death spread through the capital. Spontaneously, the crowd began singing a hymn known to be Frederik's favorite.

QUEEN MARGRETHE . . . new monarch

Frederik, 72, died Friday night, two weeks after falling ill just after making his traditional television greeting to the country on New Year's Eve. This was the last Danes saw of their king, who was preparing to celebrate the 25th anniversary of his reign in April.

HAD RELAPSE Frederik was stricken with influenza on New Year's Day and suffered a heart attack Jan. 3. He was taken to Municipal Hospital and for the next week seemed to rally. But on Tuesday he suffered a relapse and gradually slipped into a deep coma, never to regain consciousness.

His wife, Queen Ingrid, and his three daughters and their husbands, kept a vigil at the hospital as the king's life slipped away.

Court officials said the king's body was being brought home to his palace today, without ceremony. But after a few days his coffin will be taken to the Church of Parliament by a horse-drawn carriage.

The king's body will lie in state until the final journey by train to Roskilde Cathedral, 20 miles west of Copenhagen. Then it will be laid to rest in the royal sepulchre among the remains of 40 other kings and queens.

No date for the funeral was announced yet, but it was expected to be in about eight days.

NO CORONATION PLANNED There will be no coronation ceremonies for Margrethe, just a simple proclamation in mid-afternoon by Premier Jens Otto Krag from the balcony of Christiansborg Castle, the Parliament. No Danish monarch has been crowned since the last century.

Frederik held many titles, but it has become known that Margrethe wants to sweep them away.

Desiring to be known officially just as Margrethe II of Denmark, she is expanding upon her father's informal approach to monarchy in a democratic welfare state.

Margrethe moved into her father's $100,000-a-month job with her husband, French-born Prince Henrik, 37, at her side. Their elder son, three-year-old Prince Frederik, now is heir to the throne.

The royal couple's younger child, Prince Joachim, is two.

With the job, which involves signing about 5,000 documents and bills a year and receiving several thousand people in audience, go four castles across Denmark.

Just What 'Peg Needed

WINNIPEG (CP) — As if suffering through 35-below-zero temperatures was not enough, residents of Winnipeg's central area found themselves without power or heat for nearly 70 minutes Friday night following a malfunction at Winnipeg Hydro substation.

A Winnipeg Hydro spokesman said a porcelain insulator broke, dropping a piece of metal wire across the terminal of a circuit breaker.

The blackout occurred at 8:47 p.m., just as Friday night shoppers were preparing to head for home.

Police and fire department officials said that despite the potentially dangerous situation no major incidents or accidents were reported.

FELT IN NORTH The surge of power kicked back into the connected provincial hydro system, but the only outage reported was a 20-minute blackout in the northern mining town of Thompson.

Frigid air engulfed Winnipeg Thursday morning and temperatures have seldom been 20-below-zero since.

Winnipeg Hydro's power output reached a record high of 1,682 megawatts Thursday, but the spokesman said the increased power usage was not responsible for the blackout.

He said the extreme cold "probably popped a hairline crack" in the insulator that was not big enough to be detected previously.

Mujibur Sounds Moderate In Foreign Policy Stance

DACCA (Reuter) — Prime Minister Sheikh Mujibur Rahman of Bangladesh intends to pursue a moderate line in foreign policy, judging from his statements at his first news conference since returning home to Dhaka.

Rahman made it clear Friday that his government is willing to accept aid anywhere, including the United States, despite previous indications from some of his ministers that U.S. aid would be acceptable only through international organizations.

Mujib, who took over power as prime minister of the newly-created state Wednesday, said: "I will accept anything, anybody gives me to save my people. Without conditions, of course."

His remark, in reply to questions that he had "some resentment" about American policy towards Bangladesh was seen here as mild in the circumstances, considering the virulent attacks on the U.S. in India.

Also considered of some significance was the insertion in his prepared statement of a phrase thanking the American people for their support.

WANTS TO GET ALONG At the same time, Mujib paid public tribute to the backing given by the Soviet Union and said he hopes to have good relations with China.

Observers said he appeared to be chiding Peking for joining West Pakistan when he noted that the Chinese also had attained freedom by armed struggle against "warlords, and feudal and colonial exploiters."

Mujib, considered a practical politician, apparently realizes that the bulk of the much-needed external assistance could come from the U.S. if he shows a willingness to accept it.

But on the question of any future ties with Pakistan he was adamant that there would be none.

"The question of joining West Pakistan does not arise," he said, adding that Bangladesh is a fully independent nation.

He indicated that Bangladesh would seek membership in the Commonwealth.

Critical Longshore Haggling Resumes Amid Merger Talk

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Critical West Coast longshore negotiations resume today amid reports of merger plans between the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union and the Teamsters Union.

Unless agreement is reached in the negotiations, a strike against 24 Pacific ports is expected to resume Monday.

A jurisdictional dispute between the Teamsters and ILWU over handling of cargo containers is the main issue blocking agreement, ILWU President Harry Bridges returned Friday from Washington where he met with Teamsters President Frank E. Fitzsimmons.

The Washington Post says they signed a letter of intent to merge Friday.

Bridges said, "No comment," when asked about the report and Teamsters officials in Washington could not be reached.

Bargaining teams for the ILWU and the employer's Pacific Maritime Association today were summoned into session today by J. Curtis Counts, chief federal mediator.

A 100-day strike by 13,000 ILWU dockers was halted last Oct. 6 by a Taft-Hartley injunction. The injunction expired

Christmas Day, freeing the longshoremen to go on strike, but two contract extensions were obtained by Counts for continued talks. The second expires Monday.

The strike starting July 1 closed 24 Pacific ports. United California Bank economists computed that the shutdown cost $1.5 billion in lost income in California, Oregon and Washington.

The key container handling issues developed from ILWU determination that the stuffing and unstuffing of cargo containers is part of their traditional cargo-working job.

However, the Teamsters hold contracts for container handling in off-dock warehouses and insist that these contracts continue.

The PMA says it is caught in the middle and has proposed paying 57.8-cents-a-ton royalty for all cargo containers worked by non-ILWU men in a 50-mile off-dock zone.

The revenue would go to a fund guaranteeing 36 hours of weekly work or pay for all registered longshoremen. The ILWU has said the royalty rate is too low.

The ILWU has a 72-cent first-year hourly pay increase to $5 an hour, a 16.8-per-cent basic wage increase.

African Nationalist Chiefs Start New Rhodesia Protest

SALISBURY (Reuter) — African nationalist leaders planned a new series of political rallies today in their continuing campaign to reject Britain's proposals for settling the Rhodesian independence dispute.

A meeting organized by the militant African National Council was scheduled for the Methodist Epworth Mission—scene of previous African unrest—and meetings in other parts of the country were in the planning stage.

But council officials still waited for an official authorization—so far denied—to take their anti-settlement campaign into the tribal trust areas, where most of Rhodesia's 5,250,000 Africans live.

The council, the main rallying point for African opposition to the settlement terms, was moving ahead with its nationalist crusade risking possible government pressure following bloody rioting in the asbestos town of Shabani earlier this week.

One African miner was killed and nine others wounded when police fired on rampaging strikers in the town Wednesday night.

BECAME AGITATORS The possibility of action against nationalists followed a government accusation that African agitators were behind the Shabani riots and other recent violence involving restive Africans and police.

The council, whose leadership includes a number of former African nationalist political detainees, has denied any involvement in the troubles.

Latest reports from Shabani, 247 miles south of Salisbury, said the town was quiet but patrolling the town.

In Salisbury, there was no comment on the Shabani shooting from the British commission headquarters. Apparently it was regarded as a domestic matter that had nothing to do with the commission's inquiry into the acceptability of the settlement terms.

Pilot Wants Aircrew Armed To Put Off Hijack Attempts

TORONTO (CP) — A veteran Air Canada pilot wants flight crews to be armed with guns in an effort to discourage air hijackings.

In the current issue of Pilot, the journal of the Canadian Air Line Pilots Association, Captain J. H. K. Neener says "it is way past time that we made some positive and aggressive steps to eliminate hijacking."

In an editorial in the same issue, association president Captain Charles Simpson emphasizes the need for new legislation to close loopholes in the judicial system which make it difficult to prosecute hijackers.

School Row May End

VANCOUVER (CP) — Negotiators for the Vancouver school board and 200 janitors, members of local 392 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, reached an agreement Friday night that could avert a threatened strike at 111 Vancouver schools.

Spokesman Arthur Guttman of the school board said the negotiators were recommending the agreement to their principals and it was almost certain to be approved by the board.

The union membership was to meet today to consider ratification.

Mr. Guttman would not disclose details of the agreement, saying they would be announced after the union meeting.

The negotiators talked all day Friday under mediator Ed Sims who had brought them together in a last-ditch effort to avert a strike that would have affected 74,000 Vancouver students.

The janitors' original demands were for a wage increase of 50 cents an hour in a one-year agreement. The school board had offered 25 cents an hour.

Hydro Seeks More Time

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority has asked for a 30-day extension of the deadline for a decision on the awarding of a multi-million-dollar contract for the supply and installation of four generators at the Mica Dam power project on the Columbia River.

Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., with a bid of $14,018,400, was the low bidder when tenders were opened Nov. 23. That bid was about $300,000 below that submitted by the Soviet firm of Energomachexport of Moscow.

Whether the 30-day extension of the deadline is granted is up to the bidders and their replies are expected in a few days. A B.C. Hydro spokesman says it's not uncommon to ask for an extension.

Normally, contracts are awarded about 60 days after tenders are opened. Announcement of the awarding of the generator contract was due Jan. 22. If extension of the deadline is approved, the announcement will be made about Feb. 21.

Hydro recently split a contract for four turbines at the Mica Dam between Energomachexport and the Japanese firm of C. Itoh Company.

Energomachexport was the low bidder at $7,244,000 when tenders were opened Wednesday for the supply and installation of four generators at Hydro's Kootenay Canal project.

Canadian General Electric was second low bidder at $7,289,440. Awarding of this contract is due about March 11.

And Bennett Just Smiles

VANCOUVER (CP) — What does Premier Bennett think about Dr. G. Scott Wallace, former Social Credit member of the legislature, joining the Progressive Conservative party?

"You can say," Mr. Bennett said Friday, "that when you asked that question, the premier smiled."

And he smiled. Pressed for more comment, the premier was asked if he didn't think Dr. Wallace becoming Tory would be an embarrassment or hurt the government.

"Just say I smiled," he repeated.

Alexander Reviews Past Achievements

David Chapman became the new leader of the Kelowna Chamber of Commerce in an oriental-flavored ceremony at the Capri Friday.

The Japanese theme installation and annual meeting was designed to honor guest speaker, M. H. Miki, vice-president and general manager of Nissan Automobile Co. (Canada) Ltd., and included authentic Japanese dress and Geisha girls.

Flavored with humor, color and sentiment, the installation of the chamber's new executive council for 1972 was officiated by R. J. S. Moir.

Recounting the year's achievements of the chamber under his direction, outgoing president, Ronald Alexander, was close to tears as he concluded with "I hope I have gained by fulfilling the philosophy maintained by past presidents." He added, "maybe we are on the upswing. I hope so."

"GOOD YEAR" He described his 12-month reign as a "good year" which was "frustrating at times." This was, however, "the name of the game." As the head of the chamber, he added his feature of office in terms of education had been "pretty fantastic."

In his review of 1971, Mr. Alexander said the chamber had "tried its best to co-operate with the city." Highlights of the year included sponsorship of two forums, assistance in the formation of the Kelowna Downtown Business Association and participation in a business and education co-operative conference. The chamber also financially assisted the Jaycee Christmas light-up campaign, and "wound up the year" with the "greatest of all" jamborees.

Mr. Alexander lauded past chamber president William Knutson, whom he thanked "personally" for the "tremendous support he gave me this past year." He also praised former directors for their "co-operation and support."

He added "without you the chamber is powerless."

Mr. Alexander's accolades included the chamber staff, who he described as the people "behind the lines," as well as chamber manager William Stevenson. He also acknowledged the efforts of Japanese members for creating the oriental "authenticity" of the meeting and participation by Japanese women as Geisha girls.

SUNNYVALE NAME TO CHANGE UNDER SCHOOL BOARD WING

Sunnyvale school will be known as McWilliams School when it comes under the wing of School District 23 (Central Okanagan) September this year. The change honors Mr. and Mrs. T. F. McWilliams, two of the founders of the school.

The new name was suggested in a letter from the Kelowna and District Society for the Mentally Retarded, which currently administers the school. The move to ratify official take-over of the Bertram Street and Doyle Avenue facilities was made at a regular meeting of the board Nov. 25 last year following negotiations with Sunnyvale school officials.

Other business at the inaugural meeting of the board Thursday included the appointment of Mrs. F. E. McNair and newly elected chairman, T. R. Carter, as signing officers, with Mrs. J. H. Harland as voting agent. Mrs. McNair was also named to succeed C. D. Buckland as Okanagan College Council representative. Mr. Buckland was re-appointed to the library board and Mrs. Harland takes over from Mrs. McNair as board representative on the health unit body.

Adult Education Line-Up Next Week Starts With Yoga

Yoga for beginners will launch next week's line-up of the adult education and recreation program. The 10-session courses start Monday at Raymer Elementary School at 7 and 8:30 p.m.

Further information and registration is available by contacting the adult education office at 2-4891.

ACCIDENTS

Fred Sharpe of Kelowna, escaped injury following collision with a railway engine at Richter Street and Weddell Place. Friday about 1:05 p.m. Mr. Sharpe collided with the engine, operated by E. H. Plummer of Kamloops, as it shuttled cars across the tracks. Damage was estimated at about $500.

Jacob Kostluk of Kelowna and Jessie James Wallace of Kelowna both escaped injury in an accident at Broadway Avenue and Ellis Street at 3:35 p.m. Friday. About $600 damage resulted.

About $275 damage and no injuries were reported in an accident at the intersection of Lawrence Avenue and Richter Street, involving Brian Eldon Woods and Joseph Brown, both of Kelowna. The accident occurred at 8:40 p.m.

About $1,500 damage was reported in an accident involving Benjamin Huether of Kelowna and Brian Tait of Winnipeg at Abbot Street and Bernard Avenue at 3:25 p.m. There were no injuries.

SEVERE CONDITIONS

Concern For B.C. Wildlife

VANCOUVER (CP) — Unusually severe winter conditions are causing concern for British Columbia's wildlife population. The snowfall during December broke all records in the province. In Kamloops, which usually gets eight inches in December, 46.8 inches fell last month. A total of 51.7 inches fell in Kelowna, in the Okanagan Valley, where the average December figure is 9.9 inches.

In Vancouver, 31.6 inches of snow were recorded, compared to an average 3.5 inches. Temperatures ranged from 18 degrees below the normal average of 24 in Williams Lake, in northern B.C., to one-tenth of a degree below the normal Vancouver average of 32.5 in Seattle.

Wildlife biologists throughout the province say that if the heavy snowfalls, and colder-than-normal temperatures continue, they will take a higher winter toll than usual of deer, elk, moose and game birds.

No Deer Problem In Kelowna Area

The current incidence of orchard invading deer in the Osoyoos region poses no similar problem in Kelowna.

A spokesman for the local fish and game branch said Friday although the problem "has always existed" very few complaints have been received from orchardists about infiltrating deer damaging fruit trees.

Orchardists at Osoyoos are battling to save some 600 acres of about 200 white tailed deer, and have asked the provincial government for $7,000 worth of fencing material to protect against the antlered hazard.

They say they have tried without success to frighten the animals away with noise-making or guns and have even chased the intruders with snowmobiles.

The Osoyoos orchardists reported that although they sympathize with the hungry deer, there is no other alternative but to shoot the animals to protect investments of thousands of dollars unless a fence is built.

Special licences issued orchardists in 1967 to shoot intruding deer on their own property were revoked last weekend after abuse of the privilege by non-orchardists. Orchardists say the situation is worse than last year because a deer fence constructed by Washington State orchardists is forcing the animals north.

The Osoyoos local of the British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association, in a letter sent to Recreation and Conservation Minister, Kenneth Kiernan, urged government help in building an eight-foot fence to protect their trees. The letter, over the signature of Garth Kunz, chairman of the Osoyoos local of BCFA, said the 40-mile fence in Washington had been built and maintained by orchardists but all materials had been supplied by the U.S. government.

It turned out there were two views, one as a foreigner and the other as a "ex-foreigner."

He endeared himself to listeners early with an account of his first contact with the Canadian government when he came to stay in 1967.

Admitting to the difficulty of defining "when exactly Miki Hiraiki transformed himself to M. H. Miki," the guest speaker added "perhaps you will reach some conclusion when you have heard my entire speech today, or you might simply agree with the view of one branch of the Canadian government, namely Internal Revenue, when they bestowed upon me the privilege of paying a considerable amount of tax in April, 1967."

His other confrontation with the government of his adopted land, "another branch called immigration office" which informed Mr. Miki and his wife "after extensive questioning and thorough physical and mental examination, that both of us qualified for landed immigrant status in September this year."

Waiting for the laughter to subside, Mr. Miki added "you have heard my entire speech today, or you might simply agree with the view of one branch of the Canadian government, namely Internal Revenue, when they bestowed upon me the privilege of paying a considerable amount of tax in April, 1967."

KADAC is also sponsoring a youth drama festival at Dr. Knox school Feb. 17 to 19, to encourage students at the high school level in playwrighting pursuits to be judged by a qualified adjudicator. Seven entries have been received so far.

Pledges 'High Support'

Pledging "high support" to the provincial and national chamber, incoming president, David Chapman, said the Kelowna branch could "only be as strong as the efforts of its directors." He asked the membership for support in advising the executive "what you want, and what you want us to do."

He welcomed constructive criticism from members. Urging more efforts to increase membership, Mr. Chapman noted six years ago the Kelowna chamber was the "second largest in the province" and added the distinction has "slipped a little since then."

He said the chamber could regain its membership status by each member contacting a potential candidate.

"If we pull and work together, there's no limit to our achievements," Mr. Chapman told listeners. By their concerted efforts, members could "help the city and the community into making this the most profitable and happy place to live," he added.

Headed by Mr. Chapman the new executive comprises vice-presidents, Lawrence Salloum and John Gordon, and directors Douglas MacLachlan, Roger Cottle, Cedric Stringer, Bas Meikle, Frank Leeder, Murray Joyce, William Murdoch and Norman Williams.

Local Branch Of The SPCA Are 'Still Short Of Money'

The local branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is still adding finishing touches to its new shelter on Barnaby Road.

Built last year with a price tag estimated at about $28,000, the modern facilities will be officially opened in the spring and is currently functioning following open house ceremonies last year.

"We're still short of money," says president, Joan Hamblin, who reported at the regular meeting of the branch this week, the shelter was "most successful." She added the branch found homes for 25 dogs and 16 cats during December alone, or more dispositions than the whole of 1971. She also thanked building committee chairman, George Gillis, for his part in "getting the building almost completed."

A run-down on shelter progress was supplied by manager, Mrs. Harold Ralder, who commended several "hard-working" volunteer members for their assistance.

Percy Goldsmith was appointed to head a nominating committee to select a slate of officers at the group's annual meeting Feb. 8. Committee members include R. J. Foskett and Mrs. Michael Reid. New directors will also be appointed at the meeting.

Miss Hamblin acknowledged a donation by an anonymous number of 12 cat cages. A separate pussy cat house will be reserved for kittens which will be housed for 48 hours before disposal.

She said the branch will board cats for a nominal fee of $1 a day, adding reduced rates can be arranged for extended periods of time. Money will go towards the building fund for the shelter.

Funeral Monday For Kelowna Man

Funeral services will be held Monday at Garvon Chapel for Peter Murdoch, 63, of Kelowna, who died Friday.

Born 1908 in Caleutta, Mr. Murdoch came to Kelowna from Tumbidgee Wells, Kent, England in 1913. He moved to the Okanagan Mission in 1920 and five years later to Kimberley. Mr. Murdoch returned to Kelowna in 1935 and was commissioned as lieutenant in the Rocky Mountain Rangers Regiment and was subsequently transferred to active duty.

He ran his own insurance and real estate business, selling out in 1956. Mr. Murdoch then worked for B.C. Forest Service, then for B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

He is survived by his wife Bonney, sister Mary in Thunder Bay, son Bruce of Victoria, daughter Marjorie (Mrs. Kenneth Salveson) of Burnaby and two grandsons.

SEEN and HEARD

Director of Royalty, Mrs. Norman Hillborn, says entry time in the Lady of the Lake contest has been extended to noon, Jan. 19, when names of contestants will be released.

Japanese speaker at the installation and annual meeting of the Kelowna Chamber of Commerce, Friday, M. H. Miki, had problems with an unstable microphone during his address. When someone from the floor shouted the voice pickup "must be made in Japan," Mr. Miki examined the microphone and replied it was made in Canada. "Like me," he added.

... Milder

It will be a cloudy but warmer weekend, with a low tonight of 20 to 25 and high Sunday of 25-30. There will be a few periods of light snow and a chance of freezing rain Sunday.

REPAIR JOBS

Apparently bookworms do cause some damage to books, after all. Here Beta McKee of the Okanagan Regional Library staff checks stacks of books to see just what type of repair is needed. Keeping the books ship-shape is another part of the staff's duties. (Courier Photo)

Circulation Of Scriptures Grows At Great Speed

The scriptures are being more widely circulated, read and studied than at any time in history. This is happening at a time when the printed page is only one of many ways of communicating a message, when institutional religion is experiencing difficulties and when all forms of authority are being challenged.

An example of the demand for scriptures is the surprising circulation of the paperback New Testament in today's English version Good News For Modern Man.

This New Testament first appeared in September 1966 and with a total circulation of over 32 million it has been the publishing sensation of the century. It now enjoys the widest distribution of any paperback ever published in English.

In 1970 the 50 Bible societies which are members of the United Bible Societies distributed 173 million Bibles, testaments, gospels and scripture selections. This was an increase of 28 million over the previous year. As literacy spreads and nations develop the pressure for more scriptures each year increases.

Since Vatican II with its statement that there should be "easy access to scriptures" for all men, the Bible Society has found a great demand for the scriptures by Roman Catholics. One Canadian Bible Society book store filled a Roman Catholic order for scriptures to the value of $999. Without doubt one of the reasons for the increase in world scripture distribution is the interest of Roman Catholics in the word of God. In 110 translation projects now being carried on Roman Catholics and Protestants are working together.

The Bible Society movement throughout the world is forced to expand its activities to meet the need for new and revised translations and to provide the increased quantities of scriptures required. In Asia, Africa and Latin America 95 per cent of all scripture distribution is linked with the work of the Bible Society.

Some 40,000 Anglican and Protestant missionaries depend on the Bible Society for the scriptures they need. Many of the 40,000 Roman Catholic missionaries now look to the Bible Society for their scriptures also. This is no time to think of anything except advance. Half the people of the world have yet to hear the name of Jesus Christ. Many who have heard the name have never been confronted with the real message of the gospel.

In every area of life the message of the Bible is relevant and vital today. The developing nations need the gospel if they are to have the attitudes and values which will improve both their living standards and the quality of human life. The rich nations have found that material things alone are not enough.

The neuroses, unhappiness, alienation and hostility encountered everywhere clearly demonstrate the truth of the Biblical statement that "man does not live by bread alone."

Of all the meaningful activities in which a Christian can engage today it is doubtful if anything has a greater possibility of really helping people than placing in their hands a copy of the Word of God in their own language in which they can read for themselves the good news and meet that One who came to give life, and to give it more abundantly.

Deep Economic Crisis

The latest coup in Ghana reflects a deepening economic crisis in that Commonwealth country and extends still further the power exercised by army officers in the states of black Africa which achieved independence in a flush of civilian enthusiasm more than a decade ago.

An army-backed takeover in Uganda was the last previous military coup in Africa. The pattern on that occasion was similar to the Ghana revolt. Uganda's Milton Obote was out of his country for the 1971 conference of Commonwealth leaders in Singapore when officers at home unleashed their successful rebellion.

In Ghana, Prime Minister Kofi Busia was absent in London when the army seized power in the name of economic solvency and anti-corruption. It was the West African nation's most recent political convulsion.

Six years ago, Kwame Nkrumah also was out of Ghana when the army struck, ending his period of authoritarian control as president.

The fact of army supremacy has been repeatedly demonstrated throughout former colonial Africa, from the equatorial areas of which Ghana forms a part to the Arab nations of the north.

Probably Busia's sole claim to African fame lies in the contention that the 1969 election which returned him to office was an almost unique example of democratic polling so far as the black states of the continent are concerned.

Nkrumah, still in exile, may be savoring the news of Busia's overthrow, especially since the ex-president was reviled as an arch-enemy of the now-deposed prime minister.

The fact is that Busia's government survived only through army acquiescence, despite its claims to be democratically elected.

Nkrumah, pioneer symbol of African independence in the 1950s, had accumulated vast debts for Ghana through his giant public works program, which included such projects as a palatial assembly building in Accra and a big highway traversing the largely undeveloped country.

Busia found himself saddled with the immense foreign financial obligations incurred by Nkrumah's extravagance. These debts he tried to honor. But in doing so he apparently neglected inflation, which has ravaged the Ghanaian domestic economy.

Moreover his detractors insist that he showed little sympathy for demands that the nationwide wage rates should be raised as a means of enabling hard-pressed Ghanaian workers to cope with the steep increases in their cost of living.

Adding to Busia's troubles was the sharp drops in the world market for Ghana's chief product, cocoa. And as part of the same general crisis, the Ghanaian currency has suffered a stiff devaluation.

The military rebels maintain that civilians as well as soldiers are involved in the revolt against Busia. But the army is certain to retain supreme control, even if this is exercised in the name of proletarian rights or other radical-sounding causes.

BYGONE DAYS

(From Courier Files)

10 YEARS AGO January 1962

Maurice Lane, a crippled air force veteran, a victim of polio while serving with the RCAF, passed away at the age of 52. He is survived by his wife and a brother Jack, both of Kelowna. He was born in Grand Forks. A brother, Sydney, was killed in a bombing raid over Holland in 1942.

20 YEARS AGO January 1952

Rev. R. C. S. Crysdale, minister of the Rutland United Church, has accepted a call to the Colborne Street church in Brantford, Ontario. This was announced by Mr. E. Mugford, secretary of the church board, at a congregational meeting. While here Mr. Crysdale was the moving spirit in the construction of the fine new church.

30 YEARS AGO January 1942

With the Services: Sergt. Air Gunner D. G. Bush, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Bush, Rutland, spent two weeks' leave at home, and has now returned to Calgary. Lieut. Gordon Haug, Rocky Mountain Rangers, is visiting his father William Haug, Signaller Ted Weddell, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Weddell, is home on leave from Camp Debert, N.S.

The annual meeting of the A and T Association elected as officers Messrs. W. R. Barlee, Felix Casorso, W. J. Coe, G. D. Cameron, J. N. Cushing, S. T. Elliott, Michael Hererson, C. B. Latta, Robert Lambert, F. A. Lewis, E. B. Powell, F. W. Pridham, James Spall and Gen. A. R. Hartman, G. A. Fisher was re-elected auditor.

60 YEARS AGO January 1912

Mr. H. H. Millie consummated the sale of his telephone system to the Okanagan Telephone Co. The consideration is understood to be in the neighborhood of $55,000. The company will assume possession at an early date. T. E. Cooper sold his harness business to Messrs. P. J. Lewis and Glenn. He will continue to remain in Kelowna, his many friends are glad to learn.

Quebec Press States Views On Assortment Of Events

This is a selection of editorials on current topics, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Quebec Le Soleil: In 1972, the Americans are entering a presidential election year. With the presidency occupying the important place that it does in political life south of the border... we can expect a period of frenzied activity among our neighbors until Nov. 7.

The two big American parties are polishing their weapons for the final confrontation at the end of the year. The candidates are especially numerous among the Democrats, seven of whom have already officially made known their intentions to run.

The latest, Senator Muskie, is one of the main announced or potential candidates among the Democrats. Other serious contenders are former vice-president Humphrey and Senator Edward Kennedy.

Among the Republicans, the candidates will be less numerous and less spectacular. It is rare that a president does not win his party's nomination. We do not see why Nixon would be the exception, especially since... his chances of leading the Republicans to power are above those of any other candidate in his party.

An October poll conducted across the country indicated that 43 per cent of voters favor Nixon against whatever candidate the Democrats choose to run against him.

Edward Kennedy received 38 per cent, Humphrey 37 per cent and Muskie 36 per cent respectively against Nixon.

It seems, however, that Muskie, because of his appeal to the moderates, would be the most serious competitor for Nixon... Hubert Humphrey suffers from the handicap of already having lost an election to Nixon... Edward Kennedy's chances appear to have been affected by a personal affair.

As for President Nixon, the success with which he has set out to re-establish the American economy... by the adoption of rigorous measures to correct the deficit in the country's balance of payments, and his adroitness... in negotiations with the country's principal commercial partners, strengthened his prestige with the American people.

The announcement of his trips to Peking and Moscow and the realization of these trips in 1972 play the same role.

As for the Vietnam problem, which has poisoned American life for several years, Mr. Nixon, more than any of his predecessors, involved himself in de-escalation... The public is weary of this conflict and Nixon is aware of the electoral advantages he would gain by leaving Vietnam with no stir on the nation's honor.

The end of 1971 and the beginning of 1972 are presenting themselves as a favorable turning point for the American president. Everything indicates that he now has wind in his sails, and he is not a man liable not to take advantage of it.—Gilles Boyer (Jan. 10)

Sherbrooke La Tribune: Politicians are often funny persons. One must not always believe what they say publicly. These men have a double face—the first official, the second official.

Thus, President Richard Nixon asserted himself officially in 1971 as a promoter of peace in the world. The American head of state made concrete moves... to bring men closer together, the most convincing undoubtedly being the opening of diplomatic relations with Communist China.

Political observers saw in this move a concrete step towards an eventual peace in Vietnam and all of South East Asia.

So the president officially asserted himself as a man of peace in 1971.

But an American journalist has put his hands on secret White House documents... concerning the recent India-Pakistan conflict.

We find in these documents quite another Richard Nixon. He, who publicly works for peace adopts quite another attitude in the wings. The president of the United States demanded that his country supply weapons to Pakistan and adopt a harder line with India.

One may recall the publication of equally secret documents several months earlier which did not give a very nice role to former president Lyndon Johnson and his advisers in the Vietnam war.

What can we conclude from these events? At least that the public image of politicians does not always correspond to what they are in reality. In President Nixon's case we may excuse him knowing that elections take place this November, and any means are justified to obtain the electorate's favor.

Maybe, after all, his journey to China has nothing to do with peace, but only with next November's election? You never know...—Alain Guilbert (Jan. 7)

Granby La Voix de l'Est: The federal government has just informed manpower centres that there are no more funds for part-time adult education at the secondary and junior college levels.

Such a decision makes no sense because by nature it compromises the efficiency of education services which adults benefit from to obtain new knowledge and thus ensure continued employment in industry.

It would be simpler and more effective if Ottawa totally recognized Quebec's primacy in the field so clearly tied to the primacy of the provinces in social policy matters. It would be more sane, from a political point of view, if this primacy could be exercised without offending anyone.—Claude Ryan (Jan. 10)

Montreal Le Devoir: Nothing says more about the waste involved in putting federal system into actual practice than a comparative reading of federal Bill C-264 and provincial Bill 285 (concerning family allowance distribution in Quebec).

The two bills literally deal with the same matters. This reveals an incredible confusion in the sharing of power. It taxes the imagination even further to find that identical problems are treated with only subtly different solutions, only adding to the confusion of the contributors.

It would be simpler and more effective if Ottawa totally recognized Quebec's primacy in the field so clearly tied to the primacy of the provinces in social policy matters. It would be more sane, from a political point of view, if this primacy could be exercised without offending anyone.—Claude Ryan (Jan. 10)

Mr. Moir also said the professional criminal or the person who would become a perpetual litigant in civil cases if he could get free legal aid easily would make it difficult to operate a wide-open judicial system.

Mr. Sadownik's response about the difficulty of selling legal care insurance was that it could be imposed by the government just as medical care had been.

Mr. Sadownik said the complaint about the professional criminal or the perpetual litigant had been threatened long ago in the case of medical care. Mr. Sadownik said he doesn't care if his plan leads to socialism.

It also makes no sense because the government, after inviting adults to accept re-training so as not to be victims of modern technology, abandons them to their own fate.

Now, would they take the courses if they had to pay for them themselves? It is to be feared that many will drop out of these courses this year simply because they are unable to pay for them.

This decision is all the more amazing because, according to the department of education, Ottawa was to increase its contribution to adult education at the junior college level by from 80 to 100 per cent at the beginning of the year.

Saying there is no more money for these courses does not justify the government acting this way. There are reasons it is keeping secret. It is unthinkable that federal coffers are emptied like that from one day to the next.—Roland Garne (Jan. 7)

Edmonton: Should Alberta have a legal care system similar to medical care instead of its present legal aid plan?

Yes, says Edmonton lawyer Rostyk Sadownik. No, says Arnold Moir, the lawyer who is chairman of the Edmonton legal aid committee.

No, says Tom Mayson, president of the Edmonton Bar Association. Mr. Sadownik says society must simply decide its priorities.

"Already we have accepted medical care and since the province started footing the bill for legal aid on July 1, 1970, there is acceptance of the principle that at least some legal help should be provided for those in trouble with the law, or embroiled in civil disputes who can't afford to pay a lawyer themselves," said Mr. Sadownik.

Under the present Alberta legal aid plan, operated by the Law Society of Alberta with $900,000 in provincial taxpayers' money, lawyers contribute their services at a reduced fee.

Mr. Sadownik said lawyers should be paid their full rates for the services they provide, just as doctors are under the medical care scheme.

"Why should a lawyer work for free when a plumber, an electrician, a doctor doesn't?" Mr. Sadownik asked.

Mr. Moir said he believes it the duty of the Law Society to

CANADA'S STORY Canadian Habitants Were Proud People

By BOB BOWMAN Yesterday's story described how Canadian seigneurs made a great deal of money when they were given fur-trading rights by the French Company of 100 Associates.

The seigneurial system in Canada began in 1606 when King Henry IV confirmed the appointment of the Sieur de Port-Royal, now Annapolis Royal, N.S.

Louis Hebert, the first doctor in Canada, was given a small seigneurie at Quebec in 1623, but the first seigneur who established habitants on his land was Robert Giffard on Jan. 15, 1634. His seigneurie was the picturesque Beauport area of Quebec City.

The old French system continued in Canada until 1854, long after the British took over. However, many of the seigneurs began changing to the British system of freehold when the Canada Tenures Act came into effect in 1826.

The system was not always the same in all seigneuries, but usually the seigneur obtained his land on condition that he made sections available to habitants. He was expected to build a mill at which they could grind their grain into flour and the habitants paid him rent, usually in kind. They also worked for him several days a year. Each habitant family had about 100 acres of land, and they were far better off than they would have been as peasants in France. The seigneur held authority over them but they did not regard themselves as vassals. They could hunt and fish on the estate, raise their own cattle, sheep, pigs, poultry, and grow their own crops.

The habitants' lands were passed along to their children who also divided their possessions.

Although the seigneurial system ended in 1854, the old estates with their lands running like ribbons from river frontages can still be clearly seen in Quebec.

OTHER JAN. 15 EVENTS 1540—Jean Francois Roberval was made viceroys of Canada.

1635—Charles LaTour was granted land in present-day Saint John, N.B.

1820—Formation of a remedial groups was prohibited in Lower Canada.

1852—Trinity College opened in Toronto.

1878—Conservative convention in Toronto adopted "national policy."

1901—Manitoba government leased railway line for 999 years.

1915—Last spike of Canadian Northern transcontinental railway was driven at Esquive, B.C.

1916—Private Louis Rieli, a nephew of famous Meis leader, was killed in action in France.

1931—Airmail service began between Calgary and Lethbridge, Alta.

1962—RCMP Musical Ride was placed on permanent basis.

Doctors From Britain Sought To Ease Newfoundland Lack

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Newfoundland's department of health is short on medical men and there has been increased activity in 1971 to recruit more doctors, especially in Great Britain for the island's cottage hospital service.

Health Minister Ed Roberts recently announced that two senior medical officers from the provincial department of health were interviewing and assessing prospective candidates in London, Leeds, Manchester, Newcastle, Edinburgh, Glasgow and Dublin.

Earlier in 1971, the department recruited 34 doctors in Great Britain who took over their duties in July.

Mr. Roberts said: "It isn't easy to attract doctors to Newfoundland." But he was optimistic over the results of last year's recruiting campaign. The number of applicants and their qualifications were the highest since the campaign began.

He credited most of the success to the government's indenture arrangement with graduating medical students. The financial assistance program, started in 1959, offers medical students grants up to $2,500 a year to help them with their education and living expenses.

Practises One Year In return for each two years a student accepts government financial assistance he agrees to practise in government service for one year, and practise an additional year in any area of Newfoundland and Labrador he wishes, not necessarily in government service.

Last year there were 19 medical graduates joining the island's cottage hospital system to begin their terms of service in return for the financial assistance provided by the government during their years of study," Mr. Roberts said.

This was the largest influx of new graduate medical doctors into the government service since the financial assistance program began. In 1970 17 graduating medical doctors entered government service and this year 19 are scheduled to do so.

With fewer recruits this year and the scheduled retirement of seven senior medical officers the recruiting campaign is expected to be intensified.

There are 19 cottage hospitals in Newfoundland with two or more resident doctors. The largest, James Patton Memorial Hospital at Grand Falls, has 12 doctors on staff. About 120 of the province's 46 practising doctors are government-employed and 55, or almost half, have been imported from outside Canada.

HAS LOW RATIO Newfoundland has the lowest ratio of doctors to population in Canada. The Newfoundland Medical Association rates it as one doctor to every 1,600 or 1,700 people compared with the Canadian average of one to 800 people.

During the last 10 or 12 years there has been a tremendous increase in health services.

costs. Added to considerable hospital construction and improvements are comprehensive hospital insurance and free diagnostic services with medical care superimposed in 1969. In the same period, the population increased by about 100,000 persons.

The government's contribution jumped from about $16 million in 1960 to $30 million in 1965. During the next five years it doubled again to $60 million and Health Minister Roberts says in the current financial year a well over $80 million will be spent to help provide good health services.

The average gross fee for service payments to doctors during 1969-70 was: general practitioners $45,500; medical specialists $46,800 and surgical specialists $56,000. However, one GP earned more than the highest paid specialist, $142,688 as compared with the specialist, a surgeon, earning $131,541. The lowest payment, $16,610, went to a surgeon.

NET INCOME HIGH Dr. W. David Parsons of the Newfoundland Medical Association says the shortage of doctors in the province is the main reason why the average net professional income of Newfoundland doctors is the highest in Canada.

He said: "The fee schedule is much the same as Ontario's, but because of the shortage, Newfoundland doctors see more patients, work longer hours and consequently receive higher earnings."

Dr. Harry Roberts of St. John's, president of the Canadian Medical Association, says doctors must take the lead in curtailing exorbitant medical-care income among some colleagues.

The development of a medical college was helped to attract more doctors to the province and is also an inducement for young Newfoundlanders considering the profession.

Dr. Ian Tuttle, dean of medicine at Memorial University's school of medicine, says 33 of 43 students accepted for first-year studies last fall are Newfoundlanders.

THE HEALING CHRIST

Scripture—Luke 5:12-26; 8:26-39

Before a multitude, Jesus cured a leper with a touch of his hand, and restored him to his former physical condition — Luke 5:12-26.

At the Sea of Galilee Jesus drove demons from a man possessed into a herd of swine, causing them to stampede over a cliff. — Luke 8:26-39.

A woman with a chronic bleeding problem touched Christ's robe and was instantly cured. — Luke 8:43-48.

Jairus, ruler of the Capernaum synagogue, asked Jesus to save his dying daughter. Jesus restored her to life. — Luke 8:40-42, 49-56. Golden Text: Luke 8:48.

Two Ontario Theologians Pay Kelowna Flying Visit

CWL Leader Joins Up

Two Ontario theologians made a brief stop in Kelowna this week, returning after a whirlwind 14-day tour of the Western provinces. The two, Dr. Murray J. S. Ford, a field education director with Hamilton's McMaster University and the Toronto School of Theology and Prof. Bud Phillips, a lecturer in the department of Christian Ministries at McMaster, spent much of their time speaking to laymen, students and ministers on the introduction of continuing education programs. They also spent time introducing a soon-to-be released book entitled Church Vocations — A New Look, which deals with church-related vocations, including "experimental" ministries, chaplaincy, corrections, work with the disadvantaged and the development of "house churches," a reaction to institutionalized religious structure.

Other discussions have been held with a view to encouraging young people to get into the missionary field in underdeveloped countries, regardless of their vocation. The tour has included visits to the University of Victoria, the University of B.C., the University of Alberta at Edmonton and Brandon University.

WINNIPEG (CP) — The executive secretary of the Catholic Women's League of Canada has joined the league... on her third attempt for membership.

Valerie Fall, the main administrator of the league for the last two years, twice tried to gain membership in the Ottawa branch for business and professional women "but they ignored my letter both times so I just gave up."

Miss Fall was accepted into the league last fall after supervising the transfer of the league's national office from Ottawa to Winnipeg. Her position as executive secretary is a paid one and does not require league membership.

Miss Fall co-ordinates the work done by the national office's five-member staff, prepares the annual report sent to the league's parish councils, keeps the minutes of annual meetings and helps direct the publishing of the mailing of the league's magazine.

Miss Fall said the movement of the head office to Winnipeg was necessary for economic reasons. Costs of running the office and publishing the national magazine will be lower in Winnipeg and rising costs of office maintenance are expected to be halted.

Miss Fall said the cost of maintaining the offices in a 90-year-old house in Ottawa owned by the league was increasing annually. She said snow removal alone cost $742 last winter.

It Was A Remote Event And Mostly Ignored

By GEORGE W. CORNELL AP Religion Writer

It was a remote, mostly ignored event. Yet its implications permeated the world. Christians consider it the greatest occurrence of all time, the marvel of the ages, the supreme revelation to man.

Yet when it happened, few noticed or cared—only a rustic, midnight crew of susceptible shepherds, some distant students of the stars, accounts say. It was an isolated, mostly disregarded affair, in a tiny mountain town.

But that is the kind of obscure, unfrequented frontier where man encounters new surprises about reality. It is seldom in the spotlight.

It comes at "the boundary of our consciousness," yet at the "hidden centre" of actuality, says Dietrich Bonhoeffer, the German churchman martyred by the Nazis. It shows what one should know or be, even while unable to do it, a flash of further possibility.

The "self-disclosure of God," the great Swiss thinker, Karl Barth, called it the enfleshing of the divine purpose for manhood, in Jesus, the "Incarnation."

It is "the foundation of Christianity," says Roman Catholic theologian Karl Rahner, and he observes: "Ideas only become truth in earnest when they stand forth in flesh and blood."

And that is the substance out of which have come the convictions of Judeo-Christianity, the world's oldest and largest religious lineage affirming one universal God of all creation.

The rudiments of the faith were spun out of the unfolding chronicles of mankind and inspired insights into concrete events, their implications, motivations and consequences.

Other major religions, such as Buddhism and Hinduism, draw their concepts from inner contemplation and regard earthly history as a confining burden, seeking release from it.

But Judeo-Christianity considers it the matrix of enlightenment and growth, of commitment to a purpose, with human decisions affecting its movement toward God's ultimate perfection of it.

The context for it is earthly reality itself, whose basic inexplicability first poses the question. That reality has man in its power, not vice versa. And the objective dynamics of that very fact impels man first to ask in order to be answered.

The prompting, the invitation, is implanted in the sheer mystery of existence. Why? From whom? For what? But learning from it always is a two-way proposition of invitation and response, of submissive alertness to those aspects of reality that tell of God.

"Revealed truth always is relative to the minds that receive it," says British Methodist Kenneth G. Green. As Goethe once put it, "Had not the eye a sunlit nature, the eye could never see the sun."

As in any field, however, objects, events, words, persons and the design of history itself take on meaning only through interpretation of them, and the interpretations can be entirely wrong, mere illusions.

What then distinguishes and confirms the divine intimations to man? Basically, they are considered "self-authenticating," a quality that validates them in the testing of human experience.

Clergyman Must Also Practice What He Preaches Says Priest

TORONTO (CP) — The clergyman thundering from the pulpit at a congregation which will not live up to the ideals he sets for them is a dead image, says Canon Owen Pritchard of Toronto, looking back on 3 years as an Anglican priest.

"No true priest would ever get any personal charge out of a Thus Saith the Lord attitude. We are only messenger boys for the Commandments, you might say."

Canon Pritchard gives every appearance of being a happy man, even though he is part of a profession that has gone through profound change during the last decade or two. He has been rector at Church of the Redeemer in mid-town Toronto for 17 years.

It was the Roman Catholic priest in the plays of Sean O'Casey or in rural Canada who being among the two or three educated men in the region could presume to tell people what they should do, how they should vote what career to follow and even whom to marry.

But there were counterparts in other denominations, preachers calling down the wrath of God on members of the congregation, sometimes by name.

ROLES CHANGED

With increased education and a tendency toward separation between the sacred and the secular the roles of the priest and minister changed. Instruction and counselling were increasingly shared with social agencies. The church was no longer the centre of urban life and so the function of bringing people together into a community of interest no longer falls primarily to the clergy.

In an age of anxious self-doubt and the periodic re-evaluation of even basic knowledge, an authoritarian preaching too sure of itself may not be heeded.

One possible consequence of this wrestling with identity is the exodus of clergymen from all denominations.

Canon Pritchard appears not to be bothered by this. "I know there is some uncertainty about religion and the clergy. But do I look unhappy?"

He looks around at his large but severe office and smiles. "I know who I am. You'll go 'Yugh! when I say it. I'm a member of Christ, a child of God, a member of the kingdom of God. I have a sense of belonging to Christ and to the Christian church, right from the apostles."

RELATES TO PEOPLE

Canon Pritchard thinks it's fine that professionals other than the clergy are counselling groups in society. "But the priest relates to people always. He's the one who listens, who takes time to listen. People need time to be listened to and no one but the priest can really fill the bill. The priest is to be everyone's friend."

"What is the role of the clergyman? His own thing. Help others, even when they take advantage. We're born losers. My picture of the clergyman is faithfulness. . . ."

"Of course the priest can't do everything. You only do what you can. God doesn't expect a priest to do it all. And in these days you also need a sense of humor."

Canon Pritchard says the clergy who leave are not leaving a sinking ship. "For all of us there are dry periods when it's hard. . . . Those who leave should get from the Christian community as much companionship and concern as any unordained member."

"But myself I like what I'm doing. . . . It's a great thing to tell people they are greatly loved."

'Sister Fuzz' Will Fight

GRANITE CITY, VIL. (AP) — "I certainly am going to fight this," a Roman Catholic nun known as Sister Fuzz says of a decision to suspend her indefinitely without pay from the Pontoon Beach police department.

Sister Mary Cornelia Hawkins, 46, who was a gun-toting juvenile officer with the small force, learned of the decision at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, where she is being treated for virus pneumonia.

She earned the nickname Sister Fuzz from youths in Pontoon Beach, a 2,448-population suburb of St. Louis.

Thursday night the village board of trustees issued the suspension on the grounds Sister Cornelia had violated police regulations by attending a Nov. 9 meeting of local government officials and a member of the Madison County grand jury.

The meeting was followed by a grand jury investigation of alleged irregularities in Pontoon Beach, including charges of gambling and narcotics use. The jury exonerated the village after several weeks' investigation.

Sister Cornelia appeared before the grand jury. She has been at odds with police officials over law enforcement practices.

A RICH FARE ON THIS CRUISE

LONDON (CP) — The world's most expensive ocean cruise—and that's official—started Wednesday from La Havre, France, and Southampton, England.

The 1,150 wealthy passengers aboard the French Line's 66,000-ton flagship France will be able to make a stop in China, the first ever for a luxury cruise.

When the France ties up in Hong Kong—one of the 27 ports of the 91-day voyage—her passengers will have a chance to join an excursion train into China.

The lowest fare for the cruise is nearly $5,200 and the highest—for four persons in a suite—nudges $75,000.

A French Line spokesman described the cruise as "without doubt the most expensive ever."

Women outnumber men on the passenger list and there are 412 unmarried persons on board. But the average age of the passengers is 67. Two extra doctors have been taken on for the three-month voyage, plus a batch of coffins.

Four hundred passengers will board in New York when the France arrives there Monday, joining 650 from Europe and 400 from Britain.

Churches Vote On Merger

LONDON (Reuter) — Presbyterians and Congregationalists in England have voted to combine into a single church with a membership of about 200,000.

A joint announcement by the Presbyterian Church of England and the Congregational Church of England and Wales said they will join in October to form the United Reformed Church.

The announcement was made after a poll of the Presbyterian Church's 59,000 members and the Congregationalists' 167,000 broadly endorsed approval of the merger, given by the assembly of each church last May.

The merger does not affect either Northern Ireland or Scotland, where Presbyterians are the predominant Protestant group.

ANKLE TO MINI-LENGTH INCLUDED

Department stores are going in more and more for special boutiques catering to certain fashion tastes. What is the reason behind opening the boutique within a department store? As one commodity manager of junior fashions puts it: "The Bagatelle line sets a very good pace for young Torontonians. It's a fairly high-styled line in good taste. We have been selling the line mixed in with other merchandise for about two and a half years and it has customer appeal. Prices range from $8 for a shrink sweater to $80 for an ankle-length suede skirt." The designer creating the fashions for the boutique is 27-year-old Margaret Godfrey who travelled from her home in Montreal to be on hand at yesterday's opening. She was named one of the 1970 Women of the Year Designers by Women's Wear Daily, a New York trade journal that is the voice of the garment industry in the United States. She has the first Canadian designer boutique in a major American department store. And she is one of a selected group of Montreal designers who is being featured in a concentrated campaign backed by the Quebec government to create an awareness in the United States fashion press of Montreal's growing potential as a world fashion centre. Mini and ankle-length skirts share the spotlight in her spring collection. "Personally, I don't like the mini," says the designer. "But so many girls want to wear it. The length that are selling best for spring are either very short or very long like the ankle-length." She doesn't stick to any particular theme in her fashions for spring. "It's mainly a nautical look with red, white and blue. The fabrics are crisp, such as white linen and seersucker. I'm putting cuffs on Oxford baggy pants and there are lots of accordion-pleated skirts. All the old classics such as blazers, pleated skirts and vests run throughout the collection."

Get Into High Gear When You Cross Bernard

By MARY GREER

Pedestrians hoping to cross Bernard Avenue at the St. Paul crosswalk have to be prepared to nip right along if they hope to make it across on the legal Walk sign. My regular shopping partner and I have always prided ourselves on our brisk pace, but we didn't make it across on Thursday afternoon. Even though we made a "pistol start," we only reached the middle of the avenue. It was a cold, cold afternoon so we joined the rest of the pedestrians, who continued on across against the Hand signal. Whatever do our elderly citizens do? Walk an extra block and cross at an intersection where the timing allows a pedestrian to make it all the way across? One of these days someone is going to be struck. Those fault will be, the motorist—no, the pedestrian—well, maybe it could be the fault of whoever installed the light. Maybe someone should pace it out and see if it is possible to make it at a normal gait.

Maybe it's the cold weather that makes everyone feel snarly. We'll give the new manager of a Kelowna apartment block the benefit of the doubt. Previous to his tenure, children living in this block loitered in the hallways, which we'll agree is not a good situation—untidiness, unnecessary noise and inconvenience of others, were a few complaints. The new manager made it clear there would be no loitering allowed. This everyone agrees is proper. But when three little girls were waiting recently for a few minutes while their mother came to pick them up, they were booted outside and told they couldn't wait in the lobby; they had to wait outside, even though it was that snowy stormy day. They are incidentally, tenants in the block.

Does society in general and landlords in particular, really hate children that much? The excuse that children cause damages, just because in some instances there has been lack of parental control, is not valid. You don't condemn all young bachelors if you happen to get a sloppy one or a young couple because you had a couple who wanted to party day and night, or play records loud and clear, do you?

It's about time the Valley had a consumer bureau or action group of some kind, isn't it? There are a number of repair services in this area, who apparently work on the premise that there are enough "suckers" to go for, (because once stung, you'll never call them twice, but they could care less) if the population keeps on growing. There is always a new crop each month.

We heard of one television repair service that charged an $8 service charge twice, although the set was only charged in operation two days before it conked out again. Charges for more parts, okay, but when the first check was obviously not too thorough, we wonder about the second service charge. We hear the same complaints about electricians and plumbers and garage mechanics. A good reputation lasts forever, but a sneaky one gets around.

Watch For Seam Finishes When Purchasing Ski Pants

Ski pants, which may be worn for a variety of winter sports, require a warmth, type of fit and toughness of wear that isn't required for less strenuous recreation or casual wear, according to the Consumers' Association of Canada. The fabric must have considerable weight and body since these ski pants will be worn in cold weather without bulky clothing underneath. A satisfactory fabric will weigh 16 to 19 ounces per square yard, have a two-ply stretch nylon warp (lengthwise yarn) and be closely woven. Warp stretch pants have a "strut" or under-instep strap. There is also a two-way stretch available in a few of the active sportswear pants.

In the most suitable type of fabric the filling yarns running across the stretch warp are usually non-stretch wool, or viscose or a blend of the two. The percentage of stretch yarn, usually stretch nylon, in the fabric is a good guide to fabric quality. For both the amount of stretch and recovery as well as wearing qualities. Look for at least 30 to 40 per cent in ski pants.

Workmanship quality will affect the life of your pants. Look for seams that are wide and carefully finished. Make sure there is no ready seam slippage. Look also for a reinforced crotch plus a well-fitted waist band and zipper opening. Check the stretch carefully along the leg seams. Examine the ankle for a smooth, flat fit without turn-up on the foot and a comfortable strap.

All stretch pants will bag at the seat and knees after heavy and prolonged wear but a good quality garment should recover its shape in about half an hour. However, if the processing of the stretch yarn has been poor or workmanship inferior, the garment may not recover its shape. If the stretch fabric was cut before it had fully relaxed, the garment may shrink later in dry cleaning. These, unfortunately, are factors you cannot check in the store.

If you are paying top price in the hope of getting top quality, you would be well advised to buy from a reputable manufacturer or retailer who will stand behind the product. When it comes to caring for your purchase, check the labels and hang tags. If there are no care instructions included, protect yourself by getting the sales clerk to write on your purchase slip whether the fabric should be washed or dry cleaned.

Manitoba Historical Society Honors Two Kelowna Women

Two Kelowna women were among citizens and former citizens of the provinces of Manitoba who were honored with centennial medals and citations by the Manitoba Historical Society. The two women who conduct the Canadian School of Ballet here received medals in recognition of their contribution to the Winnipeg Ballet, which they founded in 1938, and which later became the Royal Winnipeg Ballet. They also received centennial books of remembrance in which their names are recorded along with others, selected by a special committee and a broad canvassing of the province at large.

Dr. Lloyd and Mrs. Farrally are looking forward to the performance of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet troupe at Vancouver on Jan. 20, prior to their departure for a tour of Australia—another first for the province, who according to an article in the December Reader's Digest, have continued the tradition of performing works for the ordinary working class. "Ballet is no longer champagne and caviar," Miss Lloyd once said, "but beer and skittles for the people."

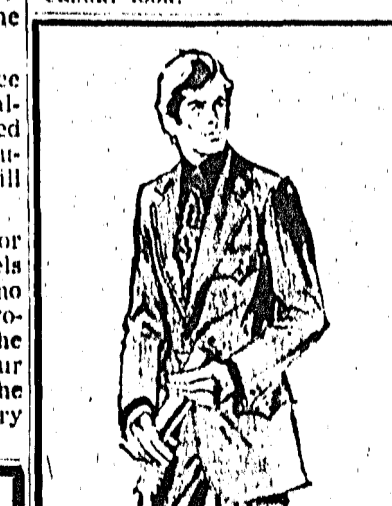

Jacket Costume Tops For Spring Pussy-Cat Bows Another Love

NEW YORK (CP) — The dress or skirt-with-jacket costume is a top wardrobe item for the spring of 1972. It is either knee-length or ankle-length. Oddly, it is the more casual outfit that seems to be teaming up with the longer skirt, rather than the reverse. These are both daytime costumes. Typical of the neat, put-together look that dominates spring clothes is a dress-and-jacket costume by Malcolm Starr. It also includes all the newest fashion features.

First, the dress is a neat black-and-white print, popular for spring. The skirt pleats are stitched down over the hipline for a flat effect before breaking into soft pleats to the knees. White collar and cuffs add the pristine and demure spring accent that will be seen on many dresses and suits.

There's a pussy bow, another spring love, with Starr doing it in red satin for a splash of color. And the black linen jacket is the new short mess-jacket length. Neat black pumps and Adolfo's large off-the-face hat complete the costume. It's the total look for spring.

The other costume look is casual, with important spring news in Anne Klein's blue-and-white, bias-cut skirt at ankle length. The separates look is carried out by the long and slightly fitted, single-buttoned jacket and vest in popular white, with contrast navy turtle neck sweater. A small white head-burger and white ghillie shoes provide the final casual look.

HITHER and YON

Back from attending the 1972 convocation of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of British Columbia at the Hotel Vancouver are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pettman, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Kerr and Mr. and Mrs. Royce Bazett, all of Kelowna. Among the graduates receiving certificates were Donald Arthur Pettman and James Douglas Kerr. Convocation speaker was A. Maxwell Henderson, auditor general of Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Worley were pleasantly surprised when 20 of their friends gathered at their home on Monterey Crescent to wish them a safe and happy holiday trip to Hawaii. After an evening of fun and a sumptuous lunch served by the ladies present, Dick and Edna were presented with a lovely Hawaiian L.P. record and a large bottle of champagne. They leave for Hawaii on Jan. 15 and will be accompanied by their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Stan Neid of Rosedale.

ANN LANDERS Baby Sitter Used By Selfish Mother

Dear Ann Landers: Can I borrow your space for a few minutes? What I have to say can be said only by me. Thank you. Dear Mother: Are you a working woman who drops her pre-school child off at a sitter's house five mornings a week? If you are, then I am talking to you.

Your hours are from 9 till 5. You get a coffee break at 10:30 and a lunch hour from 12:00 to 1:00. There's another coffee break at 3:00. You are finished at 5:00. When you drop your child off at my place at 8:45 a.m., the poor kid's hair isn't even combed, he has yesterday's dirt on him, and he hasn't had an adequate breakfast. I feed him, wash him up and play with him. I read to him, I cuddle him, I love him and listen to him. I have no coffee breaks, no lunch hour, I am with that child continually. If I am busy or not feeling well I do not call you and say, "Don't bring the child today." I manage somehow because I know you need me.

All I ask in return is that when 5:15 comes, will you please be here for the youngster? It isn't fair to go shopping or to the beauty shop or for a drink with the girls, or the boys, and tie me up for another hour or two. Thank you—Last Legs

Dear Legs: I hope the mothers get the message. It comes through loud and clear. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I was interested in the letter from the woman whose husband needed a blood transfusion and you pointed out the need for healthy donors. Here's an experience which says something about the quality of medicine we are getting in hospitals today.

I was hospitalized for a minor ailment. A technician took a blood sample for typing and asked if I would be a donor if needed. I said yes. Later that day I mentioned this to a member of my family and was reminded that I had had yellow jaundice forty years ago and therefore my blood couldn't be used for transfusion. I had forgotten about the old illness and asked a doctor if it would eliminate me as a blood donor. He said it certainly would. My question is this: Wouldn't it have been terrible if I had given yellow jaundice to an unsuspecting patient? Please comment.—Not Eligible

Dear Not: The technician who asked if you'd be willing to be a blood donor was doing a routine check. Before the actual procedure you would have been asked several questions—and been eliminated if you had reported your bout with yellow jaundice.

Dr. Knox Chapter, IODE Donates To Community And National Projects

The monthly meeting of the Dr. W. J. Knox Chapter IODE was held on Jan. 11 at the home of the Regent, Mrs. John Kropf. A letter from Orchard Park stated that the chapter will receive money from the Wishing Well in February. A large coffee urn was purchased by the chapter, and delivered to the Kelowna General Hospital, and it was reported that it was already in use.

Year-end disbursements of funds was discussed. The usual IODE projects, such as the Jessie R. Burke Memorial, the shipping fund; Canadian Scene; Provincial Education Fund and Exchange Funds, etc. Larger donations to the Okanagan Neurological Society were voted on, and also to the South Okanagan Union Board of Health. For use in projects such as Medical Library Sound Pollution Study and Audio Visual Equipment for Family Life Program.

The meeting then enjoyed a guest speaker, Mr. Donald Keith, who was junior chaperone for "Atlantic Adventure" and who gave a very interesting talk on places visited, and his experience with 23 boys on the trip, and explained how worthwhile the whole venture was to all concerned. Mr. Keith also showed colored slides to illustrate the adventure.

The annual meeting of the chapter will be held on Feb. 8.

Radio-Stereos Sent To North. IODE members have purchased five radio-stereos for nursing stations in Faro, Haines Junction, Old Crow, Teslin and Watson Lake in the Yukon Territory. In the area served by these nursing stations, radio plays an important part in communications. Patients seldom receive visits from family because of the distance and isolated living conditions. Many Eskimo and Indian patients speak only their local dialect and radio provides an important link with relatives and friends. As entertainment the radio stereos will help to relieve the monotony and loneliness of convalescence.

BARLEYCORN BOOTS. Shoes sizes were originally based on barleycorns, says the Canadian Consumer, official publication of the Consumers' Association. In 1324, King Edward II decreed that three barleycorns from the centre of the ear of corn equalled one inch. It was found that 39 of them equalled the longest normal foot length. This is how size 13 shoes were born. CAC headquarters is at 100 Gloucester Street, Ottawa.

Bucks Outstanding Team Effort Overwhelms Kamloops Visitors

Kelowna Buckaroos came up with a sterling team effort and only some fine goaltending by Kamloops' Garth Malarchuk kept the score from going any higher, as Bucks thumped Rockets 6-1 before 500 fans at the Memorial Arena Friday night.

Bucks will meet Richmond Centennials at 8:30 p.m. tonight at the arena, and a win over Cents will put Bucks to within three points of breaking out of the cellar.

Bucks' relentless pressure paid off as they dominated the play for the entire game and let the visitors have few chances to give Kelowna goalie Ron Bourcier.

Ken Selinger broke out of a scoring slump in fine fashion as he picked up points on the

Rutland Voodoos Late Surge Moves Them Past KSS Owls

Rutland Voodoos had already claimed two wins over their Kelowna Owl counterparts, but it was the AA division that everybody was waiting to see.

Voodoos came up with a 13-4 fourth quarter comeback while Owls lost their scoring punch and the Rutland squad carried off a 45-38 triumph.

Voodoos senior A boys had an easier time against Owls as they romped to a 58-27 win, and the junior Voodoos outscored their Kelowna visitors 30-17 in games played at Rutland Friday.

pair in the fourth quarter, while Doug Grey and Brian Vetter each contributed seven points.

Voodoos had little trouble in senior A division play, as they roared to a 15-2 first quarter lead and carried a comfortable 27-8 margin into the dressing rooms at halftime. Owls came up with their only strong quarter of the game after the half-time break as they outscored their hosts 15-12, but still trailed 39-23 heading into the final eight minutes of play.

The main event was a closely contested battle, as each team led after two of the quarters.

Owls moved into a 12-7 first quarter lead, but fell behind as Voodoos came on strong to post a 20-19 halftime score.

Owls again outscored their hosts by five points, as they took a 36-32 lead into the final quarter.

Voodoos dominated the frame, as their opponents could pick up only a single basket by Lloyd Leyden while the Rutland squad breezed past and on for the win.

Darrel Weninger scored 10 points to lead Voodoos while Terry Rieger had nine points, and Ken Angus and Ken Bartel each had eight points. Leyden added six more points to his

Rocket Coach Defends Action

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — Jack Tennant, general manager of Kamloops Rockets, Friday defended actions by the coach of his British Columbia Junior Hockey League club in the face of a protest by Kelowna Buckaroos that he attempted to control a game while serving a two-game suspension.

The Buckaroos, who lost 4-3 to the Rockets Wednesday night sent a letter to league president Dennis Coates, accusing Kamloops coach Joe Tennant of attempting to coach the club verbally from the vicinity of the bench and later with a walkie-talkie and pre-arranged hand signals.

Coates said Friday that he's "requesting Kamloops to forward a written reply to the accusations and will obtain a written report from game officials before making a decision."

"Though these actions are not specifically referred to in B.C.J.H.L. regulations, the rule does state that suspended coaches are not allowed to control their team either directly or indirectly."

The Rockets general manager claimed "any fans in the arena are allowed to yell advice to the players and it is completely up to the players to decide whether or not they wish to pay any attention."

"The walkie-talkie was inoperable," added Tennant, "and Joe has a right to cheer like any other fan."

Rossland Skiers Show Way In Pontiac Cup Competitions

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP) — Capturing two of the top three places in both men's and girls' giant slalom events during the first race in the western section of the Pontiac Cup, Rossland, B.C., skiers served notice Friday that they'll be tough to beat in the competition.

In the girls' giant slalom, one run down the speedy Apex Mountain course, Jill Gatin of Kamloops, B.C., led two Rossland skiers over the finish line.

Miss Gatin sped down the course in 1:07.5, less than a second ahead of Marlies Joseph, who finished in 1:08.2. In third spot was Janet Mason, finishing in 1:09.1.

Of the top 10 girls, only four were from outside British Columbia. There were 28 competitors.

In the men's race, B.C. domination was even more obvious, with only two racers from outside the province finishing in the top 10. John Hilland of Alberta finished third, trailing two Rossland skiers, and Ken Read, also of Alberta, was 10th in the field of 58.

Grant Rutherglen of Rossland was first, completing two runs in a combined time of 2:07.79, for a healthy margin over team-mate Gary Aiken, second in 2:09.45. Hilland was third in 2:11.74.

Regina Rookie Beads Pat Win Blades Keep Pace With Leaders

Rookie goaltender Eddie Stanowski led Regina Pats to a 4-0 victory over Winnipeg Jets Friday night and helped the Pats retain first place in the Eastern Division of the Western Canada Hockey League.

Stanowski, 16, playing only his second game at home, faced 26 shots, 12 in the second period, as the Pats took their 24th win this season.

Immaculata basketball teams took two losses in four games against Dr. Knox, but their senior girls' team took one of the wins to move into first place while handing their counterparts their first loss of the season.

Immaculata pulled off a 37-14 win to take over first place in the league while handing Knox their first loss. M. Gregory scored 11 points in the win while Wendy Evans scored 10 points for the losers.

Immaculata's other win came in senior boys' action, with a 24-point output by Brian Brooks leading the way to a 65-43 win. Tom Ehmann had 14 points for Immaculata while Rick Emery scored 12 points in a losing effort.

Real Indians Sue Mockery

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The director of the Cleveland American Indian Centre says the symbol used by the Cleveland Indians professional baseball team is racist, degrading and demeaning to the American Indian and plans to file a law suit to collect damages and halt use of the symbol.

"How long do you think the stadium would stand if it were called the Cleveland Negroes with a caricature of Aunt Jemima or Little Black Sambo, and everytime a ball was hit some guy would come out and do the soft shoe?" Russell C. Means asked Friday.

Means, a Sioux who directs the centre here, said a Legal Aid Society attorney would file a $9 million suit against the baseball team and its owner, Vernon Stouffer, Tuesday and also will seek an injunction to halt the use of the symbol.

Knox stayed in first place in the league boys' loop as they thrashed Immaculata 65-33. Dave Robinson, with 13 points, and Bill Plyton with 12 led the attack. Bill Sullivan had seven points for Immaculata.

Bev Kelle scored 16 points in leading Knox junior girls to a 21-15 win over Immaculata. Karen Spiringer scored seven points for the losers.

Two Rinks Left Undeclared

Two Kelowna rinks remained in the A side of 'Indies' zone competition in Summerland after Friday's first round of curling action.

Marion Ballachee of Mountain Shadows and Rita Bernrot of the Kelowna Curling Club met this afternoon to see which one would advance undefeated.

Seniors Curling Two Close Races

Earl Parsons and Bob Atkins came out on top of a tight race in the A division of senior men's curling, as they tied for leadership with eight wins and three losses each in the second round robin event.

Stan Burch came close to joining the co-leaders, as he won seven games, tied one and lost three to finish only a half behind Parsons and Atkins.

The B division was a different story, as Irwin Studer led the way and was followed closely by a pair tied for second. Studer grabbed top spot with nine wins, a tie and a loss while Les Roadhouse and Ron Weeks each had nine wins and two losses.

Bernrot won two games, defeating past Ruth Truckey of Penitence in her first game, then beating Barb Steed of Mountain Shadows club in her second match.

Steed won her first round game, a decision over Pearson of Penitence. She then beat Bastion of Oliver before losing to Bernrot.

The final round robin competition started Friday, and games are Tuesday, Thursday and Friday mornings, and Tuesday and Friday afternoons.

Ballachee defeated Kay Laface of Kelowna in her first match, then went on to sideline Bepelsberg of Summerland in the second round. Ballachee beat Neuls of Osoyoos in her third match.

Bernrot won two games, defeating past Ruth Truckey of Penitence in her first game, then beating Barb Steed of Mountain Shadows club in her second match.

Steed won her first round game, a decision over Pearson of Penitence. She then beat Bastion of Oliver before losing to Bernrot.

The winner of the bonspiel goes into district playdowns.

New Heights For Golden Seals Colorful Crew Beat Canucks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
White skates are big for the first time in the National Hockey League. California's Golden Seals, already the height of sartorial splendor in the major league of hockey, donned the white boots Friday night and skated off with a 5-3 win over Vancouver Canucks on the strength of four third-period goals.

Whether the Charles O. Finley-inspired footwear had anything to do with it, the sometimes explosive Seals took sudden command of the game on goals by Stan Gilbertson, Walt McKechnie, Joey Johnston and Gerry Pinder.

The win, in the night's only scheduled game, settled the Seals more firmly into third place in the West Division, four points up on St. Louis Blues, while the Canucks continued to trail in the East, one point behind Buffalo Sabres.

A full schedule is set for tonight with the Seals and Canucks returning to Vancouver, Buffalo at Montreal Canadiens, New York Rangers visiting Toronto Maple Leafs, Philadelphia Flyers at Pittsburgh Penguins, Los Angeles Kings in Detroit against the Red Wings, Boston Bruins entertaining Chicago Black Hawks, and the Blues at home to Minnesota North Stars.

LEAFS HOME SUNDAY
The Maple Leafs, plagued by injuries and flu, play a rare home Sunday night with St. Louis while Montreal visits Buffalo, Detroit goes to Boston, Minnesota to Chicago and the Kings to Philadelphia.

When Finley, the benefactor of ailing professional sporting clubs, took over the financially-plagued Seals last year it was a promise that there'd be some changes made right at the start.

His initial move to attract paying customers was to change the club's name, from California Seals to the Golden Seals and replace the dark, sombre green uniform with one of Kelly green trimmed with California gold, including skates.

The colored-skate innovation was an instant success, adopted by several other NHL clubs although the pastel attire is still a novelty.

Special deals for homeowners at Associates

If you're buying your house, you're eligible for a special Homeowner Loan at Associates any time you need cash.

That means we may be able to give you a better deal. Lower rates... or longer terms... or even both.

The amount you can borrow is limited only by the equity you have in your home. $5,000, $10,000, maybe $25,000 or more.

So if you have high-interest debts outstanding, or if you need cash for a second car, a boat, or any other good reason, talk to Associates about a low-interest Homeowner Loan. See how much better off you'll be—long-term.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

It's Been Called A TV Bottom

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: From an old injury I have much pain as a result of a fractured coccyx. No doctor ever seems able to help me, saying there is nothing they can do. They say they have found surgery not advisable.

Is there anything a person can do for relief from this pain? I am also very weak in the upper part of my legs. Can this have anything to do with it? I am 64 and have always had good health.—Mrs. V.D.

The coccyx is the vestigial "tailbone" at the base of the spine, and pain there, usually from an injury, is not uncommon.

In point of fact, the bone is not fractured as often as folks commonly suppose. Bruising, straining of the muscles, and such injuries are more likely to be the real trouble. After all, if the bone is fractured, it knits again—but you are one of many people who find that the pain persists.

Very seldom is surgery the answer. There just isn't much a surgeon can do to alter the situation.

But there are things you can do for relief. The way you sit is distinctly important. It is hard to persuade patients of this, but it is true.

Never slouch when you sit. Avoid soft seats. Avoid overstuffed furniture. You may think offhand that, since the area is painful, you should therefore sit on soft things. That's not so. What you need is to sit on a chair that gives you firm support. Sit with buttocks against the chair back. That puts you in a posture in which excessive strain is not exerted on those painful muscles.

One doctor, incidentally, coined the phrase "television bottom," because so many people slouch while watching the tube—and for long hours, sometimes. That's about the worst thing you can do for your type of trouble. Much of the trouble really comes down to a matter of spasm of certain small muscles in the area, so besides sitting in a posture that relieves them of strain, you can help relax them by sitting in hot water.

Finally, massage of these muscles can help. This has to be done by a physician, through the rectum. (It is not merely a matter of massaging the lower back.) Reports indicate this type of treatment has been helpful in 80 per cent of cases in which it has been used.

Yes, pain and weakness in the upper leg or buttocks can result from a problem with the coccyx, so pay particular attention to my suggestions of proper posture, the right kind of chair, and sitting in hot water.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: With the new generation we hear much of drug abuse. One drug which is often used and not often discussed is alcohol. Could you please state some of the harmful effects of chronic addiction to alcoholic beverages?—J.A.C.

Surely you're either kidding me or just trying to coax me into propaganda to suit your opinions. I've discussed abuse of alcohol many times in this column in relation to cirrhosis of the liver, gastritis, messed-up families, poverty and any of the obvious social and economic consequences of being a drunk.

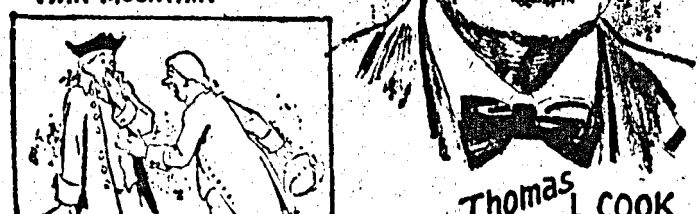

I don't know whether lecturing has any more effect on chronic alcoholics than it does on drug addicts, but anybody past the age of 11 certainly knows that alcoholic addiction is dangerous.

Note to Mrs. S.M.: No, rubbing baby oil on will not prevent stretch marks. They occur when the skin (which varies from person to person) is stretched to the extent that fibers are broken.

TELLING A JOKE THAT MADE A CHURCH DEACON SMILE ON SUNDAY WAS ONCE A MISDEMEANOR IN NEWARK, N.J.

CONTRACT BRIDGE By B. JAY BECKER

A CHOICE OF PLAYS West dealer. Neither side vulnerable.

NORTH: ♠ K 8 6 2, ♥ A K J, ♦ K J 10, ♣ A Q 5. EAST: ♠ A 9 5 3, ♥ Q 8 4, ♦ 7 6 3, ♣ 10 6 2.

WEST: ♠ Q J 10 4, ♥ 10 6 5 2, ♦ 7 4, ♣ 9 8 3. SOUTH: ♠ 9 7 3, ♥ A Q 8 5 2, ♦ K J 7 4.

The bidding: West 2NT, East 3♦, Pass 3NT, Pass 4♦, Pass 4♦, Pass 6♦.

Opening lead—queen of spades. Let's assume you're in six diamonds and West leads the spade queen. East presumably has the ace, so you duck the queen, as well as the jack, when West continues the suit.

You ruff, of course, and it is obvious that the only other possible loser is a heart. There are three ways of escaping the heart loser, and they each have some merit. You can: 1. Take a heart finesse, after drawing trumps.

2. First ruff another spade, hoping that East started with A-x-x, in which case the ace will fall and the king will become a trick. 3. If the ace does not fall, attempt a dummy reversal, in which case the heart loser may be saved without risking a finesse.

Plan 1 is strictly a matter of luck and should not be attempted before testing the other two plans. Since Plan 2 and 3 both rely on a 3-2 trump division, the first thing to do is to learn how the trumps are divided.

Accordingly, you play the A-K with everyone following suit, you are practically home. When you now ruff a spade and the ace does not fall, this knocking Plan 2 out of the box, you invoke Plan 3. You enter dummy with a club and ruff dummy's last spade with your last trump.

Then you lead a heart to the ace and play the jack of trumps, discarding your heart loser as East follows suit with his last trump. The rest of the tricks are now yours. Your twelve tricks consist of two hearts, four clubs and six trumps. It is not easy to visualize at the start of the hand that your heart loser can eventually be discarded on one of dummy's trumps, but that is precisely what takes place.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

MONDAY, JAN. 17 Aries (March 21-April 19): Start your week in high good humor, determined to remain cheerful, regardless.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Put in steady endeavor throughout, then change your pace and scene altogether for an early rest.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Proceed tactfully but get quickly to the main issues. Pose a good question; have the patience to await a considered answer, the firmness to reject a nasty one.

Cancer (June 21-July 21): Your persuasive powers improve along with valid motivation. Find time for serious reflection.

Leo (July 22-Aug. 22): You can consolidate the basis of your vocational enterprises now. Ask for deserved increases, more space, better tools.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Ask for what you've earned and would like to have. Listen while you make your pitch; something you hear opens a secret to you.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Correct intuition comes naturally as you begin the week fresh. Feast your senses with good music, pursue a romantic attraction.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Competitive activity stirs you to efficiency. Put in a bid for your share of whatever is going on, get started with what you already have.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your companions show enterprise and imagination. People from distant places have information you can put to good use.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A bold front and lively mood.

Color Bright For Economy

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia Finance Minister James Chabot painted a bright economic picture here for members of the Truck Loggers' Association of B.C. at their annual convention.

Mr. Chabot said the province's unemployment rate at the end of December stood at 6.9 per cent, a considerable reduction from the eight-per-cent figure recorded in December, 1970.

The encouraging trend in employment figures, said Mr. Chabot, mirrors the increased economic growth in the province with a corresponding increase in investment activity.

In another speech, Vancouver economist T. C. Reed of the Vancouver and District Chamber of Commerce said that the forest industry, such as the forest products, will be even greater in the future.

He said the government has made a mistake in providing funds for secondary industry in the naive belief that it will prosper independently of a strong primary sector.

The forest industry, Mr. Reed said, has given B.C. "a remarkably high standard of living and leisure by North American and world standards."

About 50 per cent of the B.C. dollar comes from the forest industry, he said, and the industry will be even greater in the future.

These Species In Danger

MORGES, Switzerland (Reuter)—Two leading conservation organizations have named great apes, whales, seals and rhinoceros as the world's most threatened mammals.

The World Wildlife Fund and the International Union for the Conservation of Nature placed them at the head of a list drawn up to stimulate action by governments and international agencies to help save the world's wildlife and natural resources.

Among the priorities is the conservation of endangered habitats, particularly in wet lands, rain forests, oceanic islands, regions around the poles, deserts and high mountains.

The two organizations also listed environmental planning, conservation education and conservation programs in key areas including East Africa, Brazil, Middle America (Mexico to Panama), Peru, India, Indonesia, Pakistan and the Philippines.

GETS FREE OXYGEN
VANCOUVER (CP) — Deputy health minister Dr. J. A. Taylor said Friday the B.C. health department will supply oxygen, free of charge, to Cyril Pearce, 62, a heart patient who is on welfare. Mr. Pearce has been using oxygen since last June, paying $11.25 for a tank which lasts about two weeks.

DIES IN FIRE
VANCOUVER (CP) — Norman D'Arcy, 52, of Vancouver, died early Friday in an apartment fire. Fire officials said the fire may have been caused by smoking in bed. The eighth-floor apartment was burned out but the rest of the building was not damaged.

Indian Bands Work Projects

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fifteen Indian work projects in British Columbia were approved Friday under the federal government's local initiative program, creating 169 jobs at an expenditure of $299,000.

The projects, announced by Canada Manpower, bring to 22 the number of Indian schemes approved in B.C. and the Yukon under the program begun last fall.

Forty-five non-Indian work schemes were also approved, but program officials said the list of them has not been compiled for release.

In all, a total of 288 projects have been approved so far in B.C. and the Yukon at a cost to the federal government of $7.1 million. More than 3,000 jobs have been created by the projects.

—Cowichan Indian Social Centre, $21,654 for construction of a social centre. Nine jobs, 44 man-months;
—Okanagan band, $35,169 for improvements to a ballpark, children's playground and community hall, 19 jobs, 76 man-months;

Rattlesnake Island Project Topic For Council Meeting

PEACHLAND (Special) — Aid, Desmond Loan, a new member of the Peachland municipal council, read at Wednesday's municipal council meeting, a recent interview given by Mayor Harold Thwaite, pertaining to the development of Rattlesnake Island which appeared in the Summerland Review.

Ald. Loan stated he felt that in fairness to the residents who voted for him in the December elections it should be made clear that all council members do not share the mayor's enthusiasm for the development of Rattlesnake Island across from Peachland.

He also felt the mayor's endorsement of this project puts this municipality in a poor position, by supporting a developer who has repeatedly flouted authority.

Mayor Thwaite stated, he expressed his own views, and had perfect right to state them. He said when A. E. Haymour came to council to outline his plans in August, the council had given approval in principle to his plans as they concern the municipality, subject to his complying with the requirements as outlined by council at that meeting.

Ald. W. L. Lawrence said he was not at the meeting in August and agreed with Ald. Loan on the matter.

Mayor Thwaite said, "we have never in this municipality been against progress and he hopes this council would, when it becomes necessary, take a sound look at this development which could, he felt, bring benefits to the community."

Barrett Questions Decision By Bennett On B.C. Hydro

VANCOUVER (CP) — Opposition Leader Dave Barrett said Friday Premier W. A. C. Bennett's decision to force B.C. Hydro under Public Utilities Commission is a reflection on the abilities of Hydro Chairman Gordon Shrum.

Mr. Barrett also questioned Mr. Bennett's decision Friday to pass an order-in-council if necessary to put Hydro under PUC control in the Vancouver Island gas pipeline dispute.

The government should not be advocating more orders-in-council to get it out of a spot," Mr. Barrett said. "The session of the legislature is coming up and the government should stand up in front of the assembly and announce what its intentions are."

He said the legislature should hear both sides of the issue through an inquiry by a legislative committee.

"I don't know what the premier's intention is, but his action gives rise to the question, is he holding back Hydro to help private companies? There is enough mess around this without giving cause for that question to be asked."

Earlier in the day, Mr. Barrett said he has a new idea to increase co-operation between the governments of B.C. and Washington State.

Returning from a three-day visit to Olympia, the Washington capital, Mr. Barrett said he will spell out his proposal in the legislature Jan. 24, when he replies to the government's throne speech.

"It will be a new concept of a regional voice in common problems without the loss of national identity," he said.

Mr. Barrett said the visit to Olympia by eight members of the New Democratic Party caucus was "successful beyond my expectations" and he has invited members of the Washington legislature to make a reciprocal visit to B.C.

The visit, during which Barrett became the first B.C. legislator to address both houses of the Washington legislature, ended Friday morning with a meeting between the NDP delegation and Governor Dan Evans.

During the meeting, Evans called for closer and more formal co-operation between the two governments on mutual pollution, economic and tourist problems.

SEARCH CONTINUES
SECHLETT (CP) — Two RCMP tracking dogs brought in from Vancouver on Friday failed to turn up any clues to the whereabouts of Rene Van Arsdell, 4, missing from her home near Pender Harbor since last Sunday. The search continues.
