Trip to Italy is Topic of Series by Marian Anello

Spending two glorious months in Italy as guest of the Italian government along with other equally fortunate girls representing several American states is an experience never to be forgotten. From the moment the Rex pulled out of New York at noon on July 9 'til the time we disembarked again on August 29, we were showered with privileges, and treated royally by everyone. We realized what the proverbial Italian hospitality really meant when we sipped Vermouth and revelled in delicious caviar sandwiches on the Rex as Captain Tarabotta's special passengers; when we danced under the trees amid the lovely fountains and gardens at the Casino delle Rose at Rome as the guests of His Excellency, Giuseppe Parini, Minister of Foreign Affairs; and when we were escorted officially through Naples, Florence, Bologna, Venice, Milan, Genoa, and spent 7 heavenly days on

Hough, Dean of Drew University, Vespers Speaker

"We are not surprised when our vices betray us but when our good ideals break we surrender what is best in us." As an example of this, Mr. Lynn Harold Hough, Dean of Drew University, cites the unusual change in Mr. C. Montaigne, noted dramatic critic of The Manchester Guardian. From his book "Disenchantment" we discover that his cause and his ideal had betrayed him.

"For five hundred years the younger generation has been in danger of betraying its ideals." In Italy, Germany, Soviet Russia and the United States the youth of today has found an ideal which is vivid, alluring, vigorous and provides them with a splendor of living. Inevitably the basis of these regimes will prove to be not noble enough, not strong enough, and will lead to frustration, futility, and tragedy.

According to Mr. Hough "the most important thing in the world

Art Pictures Are Offered To Students

The Art Department is continuing its policy, begun last year, of lending pictures to the students for their rooms. The varied and selected collection contains the works of leading artists. No fee is charged the student for the use of these pictures, which may be kept until the close of the school year. We are fortunate to have such an opportunity and should avail ourselves of it. All students interested are requested to see Miss Ebert during the following hours: Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from nine to twelve or Monday and Tuesday from two to four.

Connecticut College Faculty Enriched By New Members

An interesting group of men and women have been appointed to the Connecticut College faculty this year. Persons of broad experience and excellent training, they definitely strengthen the teaching personnel of the college.

The new members are—Dr. Marjorie Ruth Dilley, instructor in history and political science; Mrs. Josephine Hunter Ray, instructor in speech; Miss Ray Ballard, instructor in music; Dr. Rosemary Park, instructor in German; Winslow Ames, lecturer in Fine Arts; Dr. Wilson M. Powell, Jr., instructor in physics; Dr. Josephine deBoer, instructor in Romance languages; Leopoldine Hisnay, assistant in Home Economics; Dorothy Lobb, part time assistant in chemistry and graduate fellow; Jean L. Pennock, part time assistant and graduate fellow in History and Political Science.

Dr. Marjorie Ruth Dilley

Dr. Dilley will teach two new courses which have been added to the Political Science curriculum. These courses which are in line with the general trend of interest at Connecticut college, in the education of women for public affairs, will be concerned with the theories of the state and their influence on governmental systems of today and the history and operation of political parties, chiefly in the United States. Dr. Dilley's interest in problems of government led her to undertake a year of research work at the London School of Economics. She is a graduate of the University of Colorado and the University of Washington, having received her doctorate at the latter institution in 1934. Dr. Dilley has had considerable teaching experience, having been on the faculties of the University of Washington, the College of Puget Sound at Tacoma, Washington, and the University of Colorado.

Josephine Hunter Ray

Mrs. Ray has had professional stage experience and has directed the work in community theatres in various parts of the country. Most recently she was associated with the famous Goodman theatre in Chicago. That she is a serious student of speech, in addition to a person of varied dramatic training is evidenced by her writings which have appeared in publications devoted to the art of speech. Mrs. Ray is a graduate of the University of Iowa and the University of Southern California, receiving her degree of Master of Arts from the latter.

Ray Ballard

A concert pianist of splendid reputation comes to Connecticut college in the appointment of Miss Ballard. She has been appearing publicly on the concert stage since 1921. During that period she has been also a member of the teaching staff of Wesleyan college at Macon, Ga. Her work at Connecticut college will be in the piano courses.

Dr. Rosemary Park

Dr. Park, a graduate of Radcliffe college, went to Germany to work for her doctorate in Germanic Languages and literature at the University of Cologne. She was awarded her degree with distinction in 1934. She has been a member of the faculty of Wheaton college, of which her father, Dr. J. Edgar Park, is president.

Winslow Ames

Mr. Ames, who has been appointed a lecturer in the department of Fine Arts at the college this year, is well known locally as the director of the Lyman Allyn museum. The interests of the college art department and those of the museum have been so closely allied that there has always been valuable cooperation between the two. The appointment of Mr. Ames strengthens the association of the college with the museum.

Dr. Wilson M. Powell, Jr.

Dr. Powell is an adventurer as well as an earnest scientist. His diversified experience includes participation in the Swarthmore eclipse expedition to Yerbanis, Mexico in 1923 and in a similar expedition to Benkoelen in Sumatra in 1925-26. He is a member of the American Physical Society and is the author of scientific articles which have been published recently. Dr. Powell is a graduate of Harvard and has been a member of the Harvard faculty. During the past summer he held a fellowship at the Woodshole Oceanographic Institute.

Dr. Josephine deBoer

Dr. deBoer is a prolific writer in several languages and has numerous publications to her credit in this country and abroad. Although she was born in the United States, she is of Belgian parentage and has spent a great part of her life in Europe. She is a graduate of Columbia University, the University of Minnesota, and John Hopkins University, where she received her degree of Doctor of Philosophy in 1925.

Leopoldine Hisnay

Leopoldine Hisnay graduated from Cornell in 1930 and received a degree of Bachelor of Science in Ed-

EDITORIAL

Not only the NEWS, but the entire college body extends an enthusiastic greeting to the Freshman Class. Probably there are many features of campus activities that are still new and bewildering as yet, but soon everyone will feel "at home" in her surroundings and will find that academic and social functions blend together without any difficulty.

After the first period of adjustment is over, many will want to take an active part in the life of the college which goes on outside the classrooms, and in each activity such participation will be welcomed. Speaking as an organization, it is not only the value that each of you will gain in meeting girls engaged in a common interest, nor the pleasure in being a very definite part of the college, that matters—it is what every individual can give of her past experience and originality that really counts. There is no student activity on campus that cannot profit by the addition of new members who can bring to it fresh ideas and a variety of experience. In other words, the Senior, Junior, and Sophomore classes need the class of 1939 to help carry out the traditions of Connecticut College, and they look forward to working with them the coming year.

—C—C—N—

This year marks the twentieth anniversary of the opening of Connecticut College and also of the beginning of the "Connecticut College News." This newspaper plays an important part in the intellectual and social life of the college community.

News To Inaugurate New Policy

As such a medium it must be accurate, alive, and interesting. With a view toward increasing these qualities, we are planning to publish the paper on Wednesdays instead of on Fridays as previously done. Another innovation will be its delivery to the various dormitories instead of through the post office boxes. The NEWS, also, intends to publish a program of the college activities each week for the convenience of faculty and students. The staff realizes that many mistakes were made in the editing during the past year, but it is making a special effort to correct the errors and lessen the shortcomings. However, students must realize that the NEWS is their paper and they must help the staff make it one that they will be proud to have for their own and to have exchanged with other colleges and professional schools. Therefore, the staff welcomes any criticism or suggestion from the students or faculty.

G. Weyhe Tells Of Plans For Library Development Told With G. Mehling By President Blunt

For four weeks last summer, Gertrude Mehling and I attended the summer school for foreigners at the University of Munich.

Of the two hundred men and women studying at the University, one hundred and twenty were Americans from all over the United States and the rest of the students represented almost every other country in the world.

We had two classes in the morning, either grammar and conversation, or lectures, depending on how much German we knew. The remainder of the morning from eleven to one, there were lectures for all the students, in German, of course, on varied topics, such as literature, history, painting, architecture and government.

The German people welcomed us immediately as their friends, not as tourists. The professors at the University were very kind and helpful. They accompanied us on week-end excursions into the mountains, either walks through the Bavarian Alps or motorcoach tours to nearby castles and villages. A few German students also came on these outings so we had the opportunity for German conversation with them. Unfortunately this year, because of a reorganization of the University programs, the German students were on vacation while we were in Munich and we did not meet so many as we would have liked. In the future, however, the German students will be at the University while the summer courses are in session.

Munich is very beautiful and very gay. The atmosphere is more like that of a small town because everyone is so friendly, but on the other hand, some of the finest museums in the world are there, both for art and science. We were in Munich at the time of the Wagner and Mozart festivals, and heard operas by these composers in the romantic atmosphere of the original productions, sung by descendants of the first casts. Because we were students at the University, we were able to buy opera and theatre tickets at greatly reduced prices, and could always get into museums and galleries for half of the regular entrance fee.

Germany was an ideal country for travellers last summer. Everything was peaceful and orderly and the cities were the cleanest I've ever seen. No one ever saw a riot, or any form of disorderly conduct, and war was never mentioned.

One is, however, very conscious of the lack of freedom of speech and press. It was of no value to read German newspapers because they were strictly censored, and the German people cannot possibly give frank criticisms of their government at any time. The tourist can get little or no insight into the political workings of the third Reich because people may speak only favorably about the new regime.

One day we were taken to a working camp on the outskirts of Munich. It is compulsory for every young man to spend six months in one of President Blunt, in her chapel talk Tuesday, October 1, discussed several features in connection with the development of the library. As this library is the real intellectual center of the college, it is only natural that the students should have a great deal of pride in it, and be universally interested in the latest plans for its growth.

A few years ago Mr. and Mrs. Palmer set aside money for additional building, and it is hoped that two wings to the library will be possible this year. However, there are no definite plans as yet, although the original architect's design will be staked out very simply in order to show the amount of space that would be used between the Windham and Plant dormitories. Mr. Rush of New Haven, who is an advisor to the Carnegie Corporation, will bring an architect to give advice in the ultimate planning of the new construction. Among other needs of the present library are new stacks for the collection which is constantly increasing—more provision for informal seating arrangements, seminar rooms, and places for small discussion groups. When the new section is completed, the library will be able to provide for the variety of activities which now have to be grouped together.

Included in the recent gifts to the library is that of Dr. Kip, who expressed the wish that the college should receive his entire collection of books. An increase of 18% in the appropriation during the last two years, as well as donations by the American Association of University Women, The Carnegie Corporation, Governor Cross, and many others, have greatly enriched the library.

In closing, Miss Blunt reminded the seniors that the Rush prize for the best private library would be awarded again this year.

 is to find that which will not betray us." Plato said that the ideal that never betrays us is the rainbow about the throne of God, which is of endless beauty.

these camps. They work about six hours each morning building roads or houses for workmen. They have a great deal of sport and lectures on politics and geography. The men were extremely healthy and looked very happy. They get their food and a few cents a day pocket money. We talked freely to them during lunch and they seemed glad and proud to be working for the state in these camps where there is no class distinction, and the individual is subordinate to the group.

Faculty Members Engage In Varied Summer Occupations

Interesting Accounts Are Related In Connection With Vacation Activities

Miss Dederer, Miss Snider, and President Blunt spent an interesting four weeks of the summer in Mexico. They attended the seminar conducted by the Committee for Cultural Relations with Latin America.

There were a series of lectures by American and Mexican authorities on various phases of Mexican life, from art to politics. There were also numerous excursions to see government school work and to various small Indian villages where there were to be seen handicraft of various sorts—pottery, weaving, etc.

After this seminar, Miss Dederer made a special trip to the state of Oaxaca in a group under the leadership of Dr. Herbert J. Spinden. She observed the famous archaeological sites of Mitla and Monte Alban, the latter famous for the recent discovery of remarkable jewelry and objects of art.

Miss Botsford and Miss Hausman both spent time doing graduate work at Cornell; Miss Botsford in the Ornithological department, Miss Hausman in the Biological.

Miss Hussy was studying at the Biological Station of the University of Michigan, on parasites.

Miss Rita Barnard spent the summer in England studying at the University of Cambridge.

Dr. Hunt taught at Brooklyn College and did research at the Psychiatric Institute in New York.

Dr. Kinsey studied German at Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Dr. Avery supervised the construction of the greenhouse and plant hormone laboratory, and did research work on plant hormones.

Dr. Creighton did research work on plant cytogenetics at Cornell University.

Miss B. A. Scheer studied at Cornell Summer School.

Miss Roberts went to the American Home Economics Association in Chicago. She spent five weeks in the Summer School of the University of Chicago studying nutrition and doing research on Vitamin C.

Dr. Chaney attended the 15th International Physiological Congress in Leningrad and Moscow from August 8th to the 18th. Some time was spent in Scandinavia and other parts of Europe.

Miss Burdett was dietician at Camp Watona, Brewster, Cape Cod.

Dr. McKee spent some time in Virginia and Ohio; she worked in the College Laboratory, and spent two weeks in Bermuda.

Dr. Kelly was at Columbia doing research work in colloidal chemistry.

Miss Manning was in Columbia Summer School for six weeks.

Dr. Charles G. Chakerian, lecturer and research associate in Social Sciences, is a new member of the teaching staff. Mrs. Audrey O'Shea is part time instructor in Economics.

Mr. Cobblestick worked on his Dissertation for Yale.

After the closing of school in June, Mr. and Mrs. Sanchez, Miss Biaggi and her mother, returned to Spain to spend the summer months. Miss Biaggi travelled during the vacation and spent a good portion of her time at work in the library.

Dr. Henry W. Lawrence this summer again taught history at the Hampton Institute Summer School, in Hampton, Virginia.

In Miss Beatrice Reynolds own words, she spent six weeks "rusticating and reading" during her stay in Vermont.

Miss Hannah G. Roach likewise spent part of her summer in the New England States. The larger portion of it was passed in the Adirondacks, while the latter part of the summer was devoted to a tour of Cape Cod.

Dr. Marjorie Dille, the newest member of the History department, came to us from the west. Dr. Dille taught for the first semester of the summer session at Buena Vista College, Iowa. The latter part of her summer was spent at her father's home in Colorado.

Ruth Lambert '35 Writes Of Her Summer Work

The members of the faculty and the upper-classmen will be interested to learn of Ruth Lambert's activities during the summer in the field of Social Science. We quote the following letter which was received last week:

"For the month of July I was a member of the Summer Laboratory on Social and Industrial Conditions of Greater Boston. This was a group of about ten college boys and girls who carried on projects relating to economic conditions of Boston, at South End House, under the direction of a young woman who is well acquainted with the field.

"We lived at the house and functioned fundamentally as a group, although each of us was related to some particular agency such as the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union, The Boston Dispensary, The Womens Trade Union League, The Judge Baker Foundation, Juvenile Court, Family Welfare Society, Settlement Houses. We worked with these agencies and tried to discover just what was their place in the community. I was officially with the Boston Dispensary, although I spent some time with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, getting the point of view of the workers, through helping organize Labor Unions; and some time with the Habit Clinics for children. The other days were spent in field trips.

"Evenings were generally spent in informal discussions with such interesting people as:

Professor Lincoln Fairley, Dep't. of Economics, M. I. T.

Mr. Patrick King, International Machinists Union.

Comrade Bloomfield, head of the Communist Party.

Mr. Frank Reel, Counsel for Ford Hall Forum.

Captain McKinnon of Boston Police Department.

Dr. Walter Beck, International Psychologist.

"Nor did we miss out on the pleasure side. A number of hours were devoted to Esplanade concerts, operas, movies, picnics, swims, etc. One of the most interesting things which we took in was "Waiting for Lefty", the Communist play which had recently come from New York.

"The Laboratory was absolutely non partisan. We ranged from Capitalist to Communist in our economic philosophies, and from Doctor of Divinity to English majors in our specialties; and so we fittingly ended our midnight raids on the icebox with the singing of the "International".

Sincerely,
Ruth Lambert"

Dr. Maclean was in Columbia University during the summer, working on advanced topics in Organic and Physical Chemistry, doing reading in photography, and later research work at Connecticut College.

M. Anello Gave Interesting Talk To Italian Club

Describing Italy as a land combining pleasantly a wealth of natural beauty and artistic and cultural treasures with progressive and dynamic movements, Miss Marion E. Anello, '35, spoke to the Italian club Monday night on "Impressions of a student in Italy."

Miss Anello pointed out the fact that throughout all Italy, side by side with modern buildings and modern activities, stand the famous monuments that attest Italy's glorious past. Most of the country's masterpieces of art are not to be found in the museums, but are seen everywhere, along the streets, in the squares of the nation's marvelous cities, or lying modestly in little towns and villages where life flows along peacefully.

The youth of Italy, their attitude toward the impending war, their activities, and their organizations were also described by the speaker. She spoke of the G. U. F., the fascist university groups to which all the university students throughout the nation belong. As members of it, the students engage in all kinds of activities—inter-city sport competitions, the annual "Littorials" corresponding to our Olympics, take trips to various places of interest throughout the country, and hold dances and other social festivities.

Among the most interesting of the new movements indicated by Miss Anello are the Dopolavoro movement, which organizes amusements and instruction for the working classes, and the National Balilla Foundation, which gives to all children the opportunities once available only to the wealthy.

As high-lights of the trip, Miss Anello mentioned various receptions for the group in the several cities they visited, especially those given by the International Council for Women at the Palazzo della Giustizia in Rome, by the Podesta of Rapallo at the beautiful Casino of the Grand Hotel Excelsior at San Michele, and by the G. U. F. at the Giardino degli Aranci in Naples.

Miss Lucy Barrera, '37, president of the Italian club, was in charge of all arrangements.

COLLEGE FACULTY IS ENRICHED BY NEW MEMBERS

Education from Temple University last year. She will be an assistant in home economics and will act as house fellow in Mosier house, the cooperative dormitory.

Dorothy Lobb and Jean Pennock

Miss Lobb and Miss Pennock, recent college graduates, are at the college as part time assistants while working for their Master of Arts degrees. Miss Lobb graduated from Wellesley last year and is assisting in the department of chemistry. Miss Pennock graduated from Connecticut college in 1933 and is in the department of history and political science. The two young women hold the first of the graduate fellowships to be offered by the college for part time study and work in their respective subjects, which will enable them to obtain their degrees of Master of Arts in two years.

UNITED STATES AND CHINA EDUCATORS JOIN HAWAIIANS

Educators from some of the leading universities in the United States and China will join the faculty of the University of Hawaii in Honolulu for the annual summer session which will begin June 24. The summer session will end August 2.

Dr. Clyde M. Hill of Yale university, Dean William W. Kemp of the University of California college of education, Dr. Samuel Burkhard of the Arizona state teachers college, Dr. Robert Ray Scott, director of adult education for the state of West Virginia, and Dr. Jack W. Dunlap of Fordham university, an editor of the Journal of Educational Psychology, will join the faculty of the University of Hawaii teachers college for the summer term.

The university's School of Pacific and Oriental Affairs will have as visiting professors Dr. Y. C. Yang, president of Soochow university and a member of many Chinese diplomatic missions; Harry Carr, special writer for the Los Angeles Times and author of books on the Orient; Dr. Reid L. McClung, dean of the college of commerce of the University of Southern California, and Dr. Robert J. Kerner, University of California history professor who has been conducting research in Russia this year.

Dr. Albert W. Palmer, president of Chicago Theological seminary, will conduct public speaking courses. Dr. Benjamin H. Lehman of the University of California, novelist and magazine writer, will join the English department staff. Dr. Roswell H. Johnson, formerly of the University of Pittsburgh, will give instruction in social hygiene, and Millard Sheets of Scripps college, noted young artist, will join the art faculty.

Kilauea volcano, 200 miles from Honolulu, will serve as the laboratory for the Volcano school, a special branch of the summer session which will meet in Hawaii national park from June 17 to July 26.

Enrollment in the University of Hawaii summer session has climbed rapidly since the first was held in 1927 with less than 300 students. Last year 1126 students attended the session, many of them from continental United States.

Ink Level—see when to refill!*

THE marvelous new Parker Vacumatic is no more like the pens of yesterday than your 1935 car is like a '25 model.

It's the identical pen you've often said that someone ought to invent.

Scores of inventors tried to—fully 250 sacless pens were patented before this miracle writer was born. But none found a way to surmount the mechanical faults of squirt-gun piston pumps, valves, etc.

Then a scientist at the University of Wisconsin conceived the Vacumatic. And Geo. S. Parker, world's leading pen maker, agreed to develop it because it contained no rubber sac or lever filler like sac-type pens—no piston pump as in ordinary sacless pens.

That's why Parker can—and DOES—guarantee the Vacumatic MECHANICALLY PERFECT!

Because there is nothing else like it, the United States and foreign countries have granted Parker patents.

TRIP TO ITALY IS TOPIC OF SERIES BY MARION ANELLO

the beautiful Ligurian Riviera just enjoying ourselves and drinking in the beauty of our surroundings and delighting in the friendliness and warmth of the Italian people.

Italy was ours from north to south and it asked nothing of us in return. We were students who had studied the Italian language in school and as a generous reward for our progress in the tongue, we were shown all the beauties of ancient and modern Italy with which we had heretofore been acquainted only through our books. We found Naples, the Isle of Capri and the Blue Grotto, doubly as fascinating as we had imagined them; we found Florence and Fiesole resting in quiet loveliness even more lovely than Dante had pictured them to us; we found Rome exciting as a dual indicator of a country's ancient glory and its modern progress; we found Milan not only a city of artistic and cultural treasures, but also a busy metropolis humming with industrial and commercial activities; we found Bologna not merely the site of the oldest university in Europe, but also a delightfully picturesque place with porticoed streets, red roof-tops, and lovely churches and palaces decorated with terra cotta; we marvelled at the natural beauty of Lake Como surrounded by mountainous shores and of Vallombrosa nestled in pines. And throughout all this beauty and all the memories of the times of Feudalism, of the Communes, and of the Renaissance, and amid the ruins and monuments of a far distant civilization, we found a new people and a new Italy erecting new cities, new buildings, stadiums, enormous modern swimming pools, new university cities, new railroad stations, bridges, roads, and developing new industries of all kinds.

Our tour was organized with meticulous care so that we might derive a maximum of pleasure and profit from the numerous sights we were to visit in our limited time. We were sped across the Atlantic on the fastest and largest Italian liner, the magnificent Rex where we spent six and a half very pleasant days becoming acquainted with all the members of the group, expounding to each other the virtues of the universities and colleges we represented, and discovering we were a pretty homogenous group with a great deal in common whether we came from the University of California, of Ohio, of Toronto, of Illinois, Barnard, Wellesley, or Connecticut. One hour every morning was devoted to a lecture on some phase of Italian life by the director of the group, Dr. Rina Ciancaglini of Teachers' College, Columbia, and to lively group discussions. We were thus so occupied being introduced to various aspects of the land we were about to see, making friends, and enjoying all the comforts of a large ocean liner, that before we realized it, we were entering the renowned Bay of Naples with smouldering Vesuvius to the right of us, the bluest of blue skies and waters all about us, sun everywhere, and a picturesque land ahead of us. It was a thoroughly excited and thrilled group of girls that looked down from the top deck, as the Rex docked, onto this gay and colorful city and glimpsed quaint carriages and brightly decorated horses trotting about, impressive looking "carabinieri" whose red and black Napoleonic uniforms contrasted effectively with the plumed hats and green outfits of the guards, and with the pure white uniforms and helmets of the traffic policemen. There was color and gaiety everywhere and we could hardly wait for the anchor of the Rex to drop so that we could enter this gaiety that had already taken hold of us.

We were officially welcomed to the country by Signorina Taussig, our escort sent by the Italian government, and by a delegation of university students of the G. U. F. ("Gruppo Universitario Fascista") After we posed importantly for the newspaper photographers and passed the customs without even having our baggage inspected, we got on the bus that was awaiting us and rode to the Grand Hotel de Londres where we found to our great delight that our rooms had balconies opening out onto a very romantic-looking park. We could imagine almost anything happening in a place like Naples and unconsciously pictured ourselves the personages in all kinds of adventures.

A sight-seeing trip that afternoon doubled our enthusiasm for Naples. Looking down upon the city and its wonderful bay from Posillipo, Arenella, Camaldoli; visiting the Island of Nisida where, tradition has it, Brutus and Cassius secretly met to plot against Caesar; skirting along the wide curve of the beautiful coast; and prowling around old castles and palaces were fascinating experiences for all of us. A perfect day was made complete by a most hospitable reception by the university boys at their clubrooms followed by a lovely evening at the Cafe Caffische on the Via Caracciolo which overlooks the bay—a gorgeous spectacle at night in full illumination. As we sat there eating our delicious gelati, listening to the sweet melody of "Santa Lucia," gazing upon the breath-taking scene across the bay while Vesuvius smoked silently in the background, we found it difficult to make ourselves believe it was actually we who were partaking of all this beauty. We suddenly felt the full meaning of the romanticist's exclamation: "See Naples and die!"

The next morning we were up bright and early and off to the ruins of Pompeii. Everything was fun—riding for the first time on a European train, looking out the windows at the picturesque farms along the way, and listening to our thoroughly Italian guide tell us in eloquent phrases the thrilling history of Pompeii. "Eccoci nella citta morta!" he pronounced impressively as we entered the ancient city through the Gate of Nola. Passing through the stone streets of the tragic city, we tried to imagine ourselves ancient Romans living way back in 63 B. C. visiting friends at the Casa del Centenario, or calling upon Loreto Tiburtino in the beautiful gardens of his home, or talking with Bulwer Lytton's hero of the "Last Days of Pompeii" at the Casa del Poeta Tragico. We saw temples to the Roman gods, the Forum, the amphitheatres for tragic and comic performances, all remarkable monuments of a by-gone civilization. And just as we were almost feeling ourselves a part of that wonderful civilization, we looked up and there was Vesuvius, ever smouldering in awe-inspiring grandeur, guarding the city it so quickly destroyed. We shuddered and were immediately brought back to the twentieth century, glad that we were not ancient Romans.

As a light and pleasant contrast to our day spent among the ruins of Pompeii, the university boys came over to the hotel that night, sped us away to the "funicolare", and we were drawn up the hillside of Naples to the "Giardino degli Aranci", Garden of Oranges, a pretty cafe situated way above the city and commanding an excellent view of all of Naples. Bulbs simulating oranges lit up the trees in the garden, while pools and fountains, music and dancers added to the enchantment of the place. We knew then it was going to be difficult to leave Naples.

The Isle of Capri and the Blue Grotto the following day were other high-lights of fascination and pleasure. Lemon trees, olive trees, cactus, jasmine, wisteria, cobble-stone streets, quaint shops, sandalled natives, the old fisherman of the Island, shaded walks, the Faraglioni, the famous rocks that jut out from the clear blue waters of the Mediterranean — all contribute to the miniature paradise that forms the Isle of Capri. Add to these the amethyst waters that stretch below you in the Blue Grotto and you find yourself wishing you were a poet.

We had, by this time, seen so many lovely things that we hadn't realized we had really spent only 3 days in Italy and that the whole peninsula still lay before us. We had to pack once more and the next morning we were off to Rome!

(The next article will be about an exciting week spent in Rome.)
