Class on Thurs, Feb 15th
(Karl Haushalter - Feb 14, 2007 7:06 pm)

We will be meeting in the Parsons PC Lab tomorrow, Thurs, Feb 15th for biochemistry class. We will finish Case #8 - Crocodile Hemoglobin. The computer lab will let us use Chimera to look at some more structural details of hemoglobin up close and personal.

With the added material to case #8, we will not start case #9 until next week. The reading response for case #9, therefore, does not need to be completed until next week. Sorry for the late notice

Submission of formal writing assignment
(Karl Haushalter - Feb 13, 2007 7:56 pm)

As of this evening, several formal writing assignments had not yet been posted. Please double-check that your assignment is marked as submitted. If you submitted your file but for some reason it is no longer being marked as submitted, please let me know. If you have not already submitted your file and have not talked to me directly about an extension for an approved reason, then a late penalty may apply. The submission window is still open and the files will simply be time-stamped when they come in.

Immune system
(Karl Haushalter - Feb 7, 2007 2:47 pm)

Tuesday's class generated a lot of discussion and question about the immune system. If you are curious to learn more, Section 5.2 in Lehninger has some additional information. The process of
