Dear Ann Branigar:

Yesterday I got to the Hollins bookstore, finally, where So Ordered was on prominent display just inside the door. I grabbed my copy, drove home, and have been immersed almost ever since. Just your insightful details of life as a "southern girl" in the 50s, with its overlay of life abroad in the army, make the book worth the price!

I've seen the Women's Review of Books review; are there others? Don't you think you'd better come down here and sign some copies during alumnae weekend?

Congratulations on a good piece of work.

Best,

Anna
