Make your Election Day choices. Take time to vote.

Governor's race comes down to wire

by VICKI SMITH
Associated Press writer

BECKLEY — Democrat Charlotte Pritt and Republican Cecil Underwood crisscrossed West Virginia by bus, helicopter and airplane Monday, devoting the final hours of their rough-and-tumble gubernatorial campaigns to building voter turnout.

Both are counting on Democrats, who outnumber Republicans 2-to-1. "The opinions expressed today don't count unless they're in the ballot box tomorrow," Underwood told about 200 supporters at a rally in Beckley.

Underwood said he needs 100,000 votes from Democrats and maximum Republican turnout to win. He has predicted he will win by 10 percentage points.

Tipper Gore, campaigning for Democrat Charlotte Pritt in Wheeling, told about 200 people to make sure everyone they know votes. She said there were 47 million women who failed to vote in 1994.

"And what did we get? Newt Gingrich," Mrs. Gore said.

Pritt has predicted victory by 9 percentage points.

Mrs. Gore stopped in Wheeling on the way to meet her husband, Vice President Al Gore, and President Clinton in Ohio.

"I know her. I know her work. She's a friend," she said of Pritt.

Sen. Jay Rockefeller, D-W.Va., also joined a busload of Democrats travelling with Pritt.

"In politics there is no such thing as luck," Rockefeller said. "It's called turnout. You work all this time and it comes down to one day. You have to get people out to vote. You just have to do that."

Sunny and relatively warm weather, as is forecast, can give a Democrat up to 3 percentage points because more people will vote, Rockefeller said.

Workshop panel explores rights

by CARLEY McCULLOUGH
reporter

Solving problems, such as lack of parking, by forming student organizations and by using university facilities was the focus of Friday's "Students' Rights" workshop, part of the Tri-State Organizing Conference.

The panel for the workshop consisted of social work students Helen Shapira and Robert Williamson, and President of Marshall University Black United Students Derrick Anderson. Kevin Henry, journalism graduate student, moderated the discussion.

Each panel member defined student rights and then proposed a way to expand these rights.

Shapira defined student rights as "being able to speak, and say what is on your mind without being punished for it."

Anderson told the group that students' tuition is a major source of income for the university. He said that by withholding this resource, students could force the university to make changes.

Health services professionals to take part in honors lecture

by RICH STEELE
reporter

Fans of the TV show "ER" have an opportunity to see what the health care industry is really like, said Dr. Richard J. Badenhause, chairman of the Marshall University Honors Program.

Health care is the subject of the "What's it like?" lecture from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Nov. 6 in Memorial Student Center Alumni Lounge.

Badenhause said the lecture series features experienced, successful professionals who will discuss their dis-

For the health care lecture, Badenhause said, "We've tried to not only present a range of different disciplines within health care — nursing, medicine, family practice — but also give students a glimpse of professionals at different stages in their careers."

Vienna man alienated

VIENNA, W.Va. (AP) — Travis Rector registered for Selective Service, paid into Social Security and voted in two elections. Now, at the age of 24, Rector has discovered he's not a citizen.

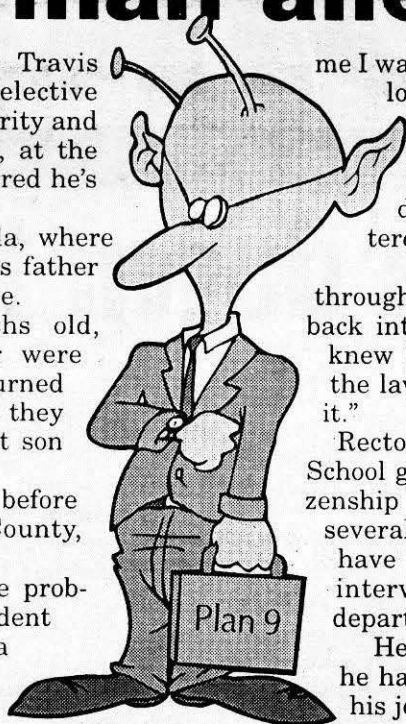

Rector was born in Canada, where his parents had fled after his father left the military without leave.

When he was 16 months old, charges against his father were dropped and the family returned to the United States — but they failed to register their infant son as a U.S. citizen.

They lived in Belpre, Ohio, before Rector moved to Wood County, W.Va.

Rector learned of his little problem when he applied for student loans at West Virginia University.

"They called me and told me I wasn't a citizen and couldn't get the loan," he said.

Rector's mother, Shirley Terrell of Washington, D.C., said she and her ex-husband did not realize he had to be registered.

"At the time, I was going through lawyers to get my husband back into the country," she said. "They knew I had a son. You'd think one of the lawyers would have told me about it."

Rector, a 1990 Parkersburg High School graduate, now has to file for citizenship and probably will have to wait several months for a ruling. He will have to travel to Philadelphia to an interview with the immigration department.

He cannot collect more than $5,000 he has paid into Social Security from his jobs over the last 10 years.

Romeo & Juliet tops latest box office list

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "William Shakespeare's Romeo & Juliet," the contemporary retelling of the tragedy of young lovers, opened as the weekend's top film at the box office, industry sources said.

Starring Leonardo DiCaprio and Claire Danes, "Romeo & Juliet" was expected to end the weekend with estimated receipts of $11.6 million.

A brash and gaudy version, it keeps the original language but updates everything else.

The top 10:

1. "William Shakespeare's Romeo & Juliet," $11.6 million.
2. "Sleepers," $8.2 million.
3. "High School High," $5.1 million.
4. "Larger Than Life," $4.2 million.
5. "The Ghost and the Darkness," $3.685 million.
6. "The First Wives Club," $3.62 million.
7. "Stephen King's Thinner," $3.6 million.
- 8-9. (tie) "Dear God," "The Associate," $3.2 million.
10. "The Long Kiss Goodnight," $2.79 million.

Post office recognizes Lombardi

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Green Bay Packers coach Vince Lombardi never liked getting licked, but he'll have to get used to it.

Lombardi, who died in 1970, was honored Sunday at Lambeau Field with the unveiling of a postage stamp with his likeness.

The stamp, to be issued by the Postal Service next year, depicts a jubilant Lombardi being carried on the shoulders of his players.

"Vince Lombardi knew how to be number one and he shared that knowledge with those around him," Postmaster General Marvin Runyon said.

Lombardi, who coached from 1959 to 1968, led the Packers to five NFL championships, including the first two Super Bowls.

Lombardi's face will join a new stamp collection of famous coaches, including University of Alabama's Paul "Bear" Bryant and Chicago Bears coach George Halas.

NEW YORK (AP) — Phone rates are sure to cheapen. The $20.8 billion marriage of MCI and British Telecom will create a marketing free-for-all, goading global rivals to slash prices to get customers.

But wait, rates may get more expensive. A combined MCI-British Telecom could squeeze out foes from local and long-distance markets it controls, smothering the competition. Both scenarios were peddled as the likely result of the biggest foreign takeover ever of a U.S. company.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Workers at a metal stamping plant here ended a five-day strike that had crippled production of General Motors pickups and sport utility vehicles while a walkout over working conditions continued at a Wisconsin plant.

The 4,800 Janesville workers who walked off the job early last week claim that management has hired too few people to handle the workload. They said they were required to work at least 10 hours of overtime a week and had been denied vacations and time off because of labor shortages.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA Monday delayed space shuttle Columbia's science mission by at least a week because of concerns over booster rockets.

Columbia was supposed to blast off Friday. But mission managers decided this morning to spend another week analyzing information from booster tests before committing to a launch date. NASA is now targeting launch for no earlier than Nov. 15, said an agency spokesman.

Clinton campaign assaults east coast

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — Weary but seemingly unworried, President Clinton marched toward the end of his last campaign Monday with a sentimental stop in the state that helped revive his fading presidential hopes four years ago.

Bringing the campaign full circle, Clinton was up early to visit with several dozen of his early supporters from New Hampshire's 1992 primary.

"We're one day away from victory," Elaine Krasker told him inside the Merrimack Restaurant, where he had stopped for breakfast during his first presidential bid.

"It's hard to believe, isn't it?" Clinton replied, clearly enjoying the moment.

At a rally in the crowded street outside, Clinton recalled that during the 1992 Democratic primary in New Hampshire he had promised to fight "till the last dog dies."

"There's a lot of life left in this old dog!" he shouted.

With a lead in most national opinion polls of 10 or more percentage points, Clinton was devoting much of his homestretch time to promoting Democrats in key congressional races, including Sen. Tom Harkin of Iowa and Tim Johnson of South Dakota, both of whom called

"We must say 'No' on Tuesday to the proposition that we are all a bunch of isolated individuals."

— Bill Clinton, Democratic Candidate for President

the president to enlist his on-scene support. Making the case for his own re-election, the president cast himself in the role of a unifier. "We must say 'No' on Tuesday to the proposition that we are all a bunch of isolated individuals," Clinton told a charged-up crowd in West Palm Beach, Fla., on Sunday.

Without mentioning Dole by name, Clinton became more pointed in his suggestion that a Republican in the White House would be a source of social division.

Dole hunting for support in the west

PHOENIX (AP) — Bob Dole jumped into a six-state final campaign dash Monday, nursing a raspy throat but asserting he's overtaking President Clinton in the homestretch of their campaign marathon.

Dole stopped at a diner to sip some hot tea — "Thank you, I'm a little hoarse," he said — and told about 500 people gathered outside in the chilly pre-dawn air that one poll even showed the race close to a dead heat.

"If that poll is accurate, if it's tied today, we'll win tomorrow," Dole declared.

Most national polls showed Clinton with a lead of 10 percentage points or more.

"A lot's been happening. But I can tell you one thing that's happening. The polls are moving in our direction," Dole said.

At every stop, Dole pressed his case that Clinton is incapable of providing the moral and ethical leadership that the voters deserved.

"I really believe the election is about, does character matter? And if the American people say it does not, I will be surprised. I will be surprised," Dole told a rally Sunday in Loma Linda, Calif.

Dole suggested in Sacramento that the Clinton White House will face increasing legal entanglements in a second term.

OUR VIEW

Voting is best way to make your voice heard

This is it. This is your day.

Today Americans head to the polls to choose who will lead their country. West Virginians, likewise, will select a governor, as well as a U.S. senator. This is Election Day, and it is one of the days that make America a great country.

The power to vote is a simple, yet powerful, responsibility given to Americans. By flipping a switch or punching a card, they can change the course of the nation or say things are fine the way they are. By re-electing President Clinton, the people reaffirm the trust they placed in him four years ago. By choosing Bob Dole, they say another way is needed.

Voting is easy, yet most Americans take their most sacred freedom for granted. Once again, turnout at the polls likely will be embarrassingly low. The best way to reverse this trend is for college-age students to make for certain they exercise their right to vote. It doesn't matter for whom you vote, just as long as you do.

The place where voting numbers start to fall may be hard to pinpoint, but the trend needs to stop. Somebody should not decide to abandon the polls just because they are fed up with politics. Like it or not, they are what drives this country, and a vote can be used as a voice saying change the system. Further, whether persons vote should not depend on whether their parents did or if their friends do. Voting is a personal matter. It may be discussed in public, but ultimately, it is one person, alone, deciding.

Polls are open until 7:30 tonight. That's plenty of time. Afterward, the results start pouring in, and before the night is through, the suspense will be over, and the leader of this country and this state for the next four years will be known.

This is a day which epitomizes America. Make certain you play your part.

SGA, student center board put idea in action together

If you read the Parthenon Oct. 29, you would have read that on the prompting of Student Government Association, the Memorial Student Center Governing Board expanded the MSC's lobby hours to meet more of the students' needs. Both groups should be commended for their actions. SGA should be thanked for coming up and proposing the idea to the governing board. The board should be thanked for listening to the idea and putting it into action.

At its Oct. 25 meeting, the governing board also made other important actions as was already mentioned in the paper, so here I'm going to just focus on two of the additional proposals enacted.

First, the board agreed to look into the matter of having a fitness center in MSC's basement. Several board members thought a fitness center would bring people into using MSC and that there was by far enough demand for two such facilities. (There is already a fitness center in Gullickson Hall). As a student member of board, my feeling is we should make sure that the demand for a fitness center in MSC is actually coming from the student body, and not the faculty. I want to be sure that it is something that the students want for their center. No one else. So, those students who are for or against having a fitness facility in the MSC please call me at 696-3704 and tell me.

Secondly, and briefly, the board also approved that MSC have study-and-review sessions for students and professors who wish to participate. The student center will invite professors whom students most want to hear, and then students will be free to come in and listen to the teacher whose final they need the most help in studying. In one final note as board chairman, I think student member attendance Oct. 25 was pretty good, but it did drop some from the meeting before. So, I would like to thank student members L. Lamont Reeves, Bob Dorado, Julie Brown and Eric Allman for attending. And, I would like to tell the other student members Li Dai, Justin Tenpenny, David Wickham and Gabby Sulzbach to please be at the next meeting.

Turning back to SGA for a minute, despite my long-standing respect for my Parthenon colleagues, I found the editorial Oct. 29 disheartening. It is accepted custom that a legislature, or any subdivision, may caucus — meet in private — to discuss personnel matters.

And, I offer how the leadership of the U.S. Congress is picked as evidence. Further, caucusing is permitted because it is considered inappropriate for a member of a legislature to specifically refer to and criticize a colleague in public on a personnel matter. In some instances it is permissible to criticize using generalities in public. But, never by name and never with specifics. It is a rule of every legislature I know to discuss personnel matters in private. The Parthenon should have done more research before the editorial was written.

Oh, one last thing, in the spring elections remember to vote yes on Amendment 1 and reform the student court.

Adam Dean, Kenova senior, is a student senator representing the College of Liberal Arts.

Wanting to expand your compact disc collection? You might want to check out some of these six new releases.

"No Talking Just Head" – The Heads

The two man, one woman band, The Heads have a new CD in music stores.

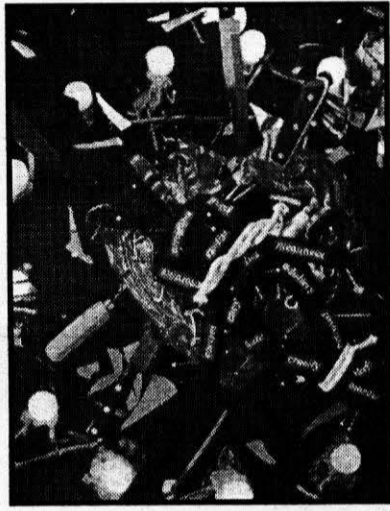

The former members of "The Talking Heads" have come together to work with 12 different vocalists, including artists Michael Hutchence, Andy Partridge and Debbie Harry.

Harry sings the title track of the album. Other tracks include, "Blue, Blue Moon," with Gavin Friday and "No Big Bang," with Maria McKee.

The end product of the collaborations, "No Talking Just Head," gives an industrial sound with a hard-edged alternative blend.

If you enjoy the past work from these veteran artists then you should check this one out.

Members of the band warn, however, the album is not nostalgic, but familiar sounds of past works are heard.

"Cinéma!" – Speedball

The band Speedball Baby's debut album demonstrates strong guitars accompanied by male vocals and lots of percussion for a classic alternative sound.

Many of the band's tunes have a gray quality to them.

Songs include "Rubber Connection," and "Toss My Salad."

"Cinéma" is out on MCA Records.

"Bleed Your Cedar" – Elysian Fields

Elysian Fields' new album, "Bleed Your Cedar" has a unique and mysterious sound.

Slower songs feature a mellow, dreamy appeal. This is partly because of the soft, melancholy female vocals of lead singer, Jennifer Charles.

If you are a fan of the less violent, more subdued tracks from the band Hole, then definitely check this new collection out.

Many of the tracks on this album were mixed by Pat McCarthy. He is responsible for mixing many of the hits by U2, R.E.M. and Patti Smith.

"Bleed Your Cedar" was recorded in the same studio as Nirvana's masterpiece, "In Utero."

"Slow To Burn" – Vanessa Daou

Daou's soft female vocals give it a smooth rhythmic feel.

Many of the tracks on the album share night motif. The song's "Evening" and "Waiting for the Sun to Rise," all have the same dark, moanful theme.

Her song, "Taste the Wine," was sparked after watching some old footage Josephine Baker.

The freshness and light in the song is an attempt to capture the dancer's joy and intensity.

"Dozin' at the Knick" – Grateful Dead

"Dozin at the Knick" is a three disc recording of the Dead's last March concert at Knickerbocker Arena in Albany, N.Y.

The set features live versions of classic Dead songs such as "Walkin' Blues," "Blow Away" and "Uncle John's Band."

"The Arista Years" – Grateful Dead

"The Arista Years" consists of Grateful Dead hits recorded under the Arista Records label, between 1977 to 1995.

Ambrose is a graduate of the Duke University School of Nursing and worked as a nurse for 25 years before going into hospital administration.

O'Hanlon is a family practice physician, pediatrician and associate professor at Marshall's medical school.

The lecture is not just for medical students. Badenhausen said he would recommend the event to anyone remotely considering going into a health services related field, such as nursing, physical therapy or medical technology, because of the drastic change the industry is undergoing.

"In 10 years, the health care industry will be unrecognizable from what we have today," he said.

Badenhausen said that each panel member will make a formal 15-minute presentation on such topics as their education and experience, the evolution of the industry, and misconceptions about health care professions. Following the presentations will be a 45-minute question and answer session.

"The TV show 'ER' has created a public perception of what it means to be a doctor," Badenhausen said. "Reality is, of course, very different from the image presented on television."

Athletes and Change workshop focuses on community support

by CARLEY McCULLOUGH reporter

Helping student athletes increase their involvement in the community, their academic performance, and their awareness of university support services were some of the topics discussed Friday during the "Athletes and Change" workshop, part of the Tri-State Organizing Conference.

Professor Philip Carter, director of the social work department, led the roundtable discussion.

The panel members were former football player and Huntington business owner Orlando Hatchett, student

The audience, which consisted of interested community members and students, student athletes, and concerned faculty members, also participated in the discussion. Delegate Arley R. Johnson, (D) 15th district was also present.

Panel members established that athletes need to be involved in the community so they feel valued beyond their athletic talent.

Also, athletes need the community to support their programs.

ically, we could do a lot," Anderson said.

Williamson said students could also gain the power to solve problems by forming groups. "Too often they [students] try to work alone."

Anderson suggested the formation of a group to deal with issues similar to those of the Student Government Association, but not bound by the constitution of the SGA."

He also proposed a Unified Presidents Council which would include the presidents of all student organizations. The council would be able to involve organizations in issues.

Another suggestion was that a group be formed whose only function is to remedy the parking problem.

Anderson said such a group could organize a boycott of campus parking meters or arrange the construction of a parking garage with the city of Huntington, since the university seems reluctant to provide the service, Anderson said.

Michelle Craig, Buffalo junior, said the workshop taught her that student involvement is vital to increasing students' rights.

"Students have rights. It's just a matter of exercising them."

Where they stand

Charlotte Pritt

Democratic nominee for W.Va. governor

Cecil Underwood

Republican nominee for W.Va. governor

Overall platform

Pritt's "Triangle of Success" topped by education and based with affordable health care and new jobs; a system of fair taxation, including eliminating the food tax; and soliciting advice from community members, students, teachers and business officials to help the Legislature make decisions.

Underwood's "technological revolution" for improving existing businesses, creating new jobs, and training students for the high-tech workplace of the future; plans to modernize government, making it more efficient and less intrusive; and eliminating illiteracy to give West Virginians renewed hope in the future.

Education

Pritt: A "Team Approach" — Preparing students for high-tech, high-wage jobs of future, creating educational "think tanks" made up of students, teachers and faculty to advise government lawmakers on issues.

Underwood: A "State System" — Increasing cooperation between the two universities at graduate levels of study, making colleges and universities feeders into a bigger statewide system.

Jobs

Pritt: Creating new jobs with adequate pay and adequate benefits, helping small businesses with fair taxation and using West Virginia dollars to hire West Virginia workers.

Underwood: Encouraging high-tech and service sector business development, connecting all businesses and schools to the information superhighway, creating a statewide research institute that would provide more jobs and a bigger market.

Where they differ

Pritt: Supports the environment and worker's unions, stands up for individual rights of people to burn the flag and boycott the Pledge of Allegiance.

Underwood: Supporter of big business, trimming government responsibilities, and concentrating on technological advancement.

Pritt spent most of the day in the Northern Panhandle, stopping at a Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp. plant near Beech Bottom, Brooke County. There, the candidate gave a box of doughnuts to seven picketers.

Joe Kuca of Glen Dale said the strikers appreciated it. Most union employees in United Steelworkers Local 3621 vote for Democrats, he said.

Pritt was scheduled to wrap up her day with a rally in Charleston.

Underwood was scheduled to fly to seven cities Monday, starting with Bluefield and Beckley. He was to visit Clarksburg, Martinsburg, Wheeling, Parkersburg and finish his day with a rally in Huntington.

Both candidates have resorted to personal attacks in the final weeks.

Pritt challenged Underwood's stand on Medicare cuts and his military service, while Underwood questioned her patriotism through various legislative votes.

Underwood dismissed Pritt's recent negative ads.

"Everything she says now is an act of desperation," he said.

When asked about allegations that he was the first to launch negative ads, Underwood said, "That's not accurate and I've never distorted her record in my ads."

Underwood has predicted the greatest Democratic defections since Republicans Richard Nixon was elected president and Gov. Arch Moore was re-elected in 1972.

He said Pritt began attacking him when her pollsters came to the same conclusion as his: She was losing support and he was gaining support.

Unlike Pritt, Rockefeller has not criticized Underwood, whom he beat resoundingly for governor in 1976.

Rockefeller said he has a good relationship with Underwood dating from their time as university presidents. Underwood visited him in Washington, D.C., after the May primary to make sure the two could work together if Underwood wins, Rockefeller said.

"I told him I am not going to say one negative thing, either publicly or privately ... There is so much negativism going around," Rockefeller said.

Underwood also visited with seniors in Wheeling at the M.J. Viola Senior Center.

Rose Lewandewski, 62, of Wheeling, said she would vote for Pritt.

"I don't believe all those lies they've been telling about her. They're just trying to give her a hard time," she said.

But others said they are Republicans and plan to vote for Underwood.

"I just like him," said Jerri McGrail of Wheeling.

A perfect day

By completing all 10 of his passes against The Citadel, Eric Kresser surpassed Furman's Braniff Bonaventure as the Southern Conference's leader in passing efficiency. Kresser has a rating of 154.48 while Bonaventure has a rating of 151.97.

Herd ready for SC showdown with ETSU

by DAN LONDEREE
staff writer

Marshall and East Tennessee State are tied for first place in the Southern Conference, and the Memorial Center (ETSU's home field, otherwise known as the "mini-dome") awaits.

After defeating the Citadel 56-25 Saturday, the Herd put itself in the position for a tiebreaker this weekend. Marshall travels to ETSU to face the Buccaneers in a game that may determine the conference championship.

Senior offensive lineman Aaron Ferguson said the Herd will have to be well-prepared to beat the Bucs.

"A lot of people have been telling me we have to be ready to beat them," he said. "I have a good feeling, with two more big games left."

Coach Bobby Pruett said the Herd will prepare for this week like it does any other week.

"It's the next game, and that's why it's a big game," Pruett said. "We just have to heal up a little bit."

In the post-game press conference last Saturday, Pruett said although he hadn't been talking about it much, the Herd did have several players with injuries. Pruett said defensive back Melvin Cunningham didn't play, and sophomore defensive lineman Ricky Hall had an ankle injury.

"We've got a bunch of guys banged up," Pruett said. "We came out with some bumps and bruises, but our guys really stepped it up."

The Citadel came to Huntington with a 3-4 record, 2-3 in the conference. The Bulldogs gave Marshall all it could handle in the first half, and the Herd went into halftime with a five-point lead.

"We were playing unemotional football," Pruett said. "We only had the ball three possessions in the first half."

"The second half, we got them off the field. We knew we had to get them in a throwing game."

The Herd scored 35 points in the second half, including six on a 30-yard interception return by linebacker Larry McCloud. It was McCloud's first touchdown in his college career.

"They ran a play action pass, and I just dropped back," McCloud said. "I just hoped nobody would catch me before I got to the end zone."

McCloud said he had seen the play earlier in the game, and made the adjustment when he saw the alignment again.

Eric Kresser had the first perfect day in his career, completing all 10 of his pass attempts. This performance marked the first time any Marshall quarterback has had a 100 percent completion percentage.

"This is the only perfect day I've ever had," Kresser said. "We were 11 for 11 overall, and I thought the line blocked really well."

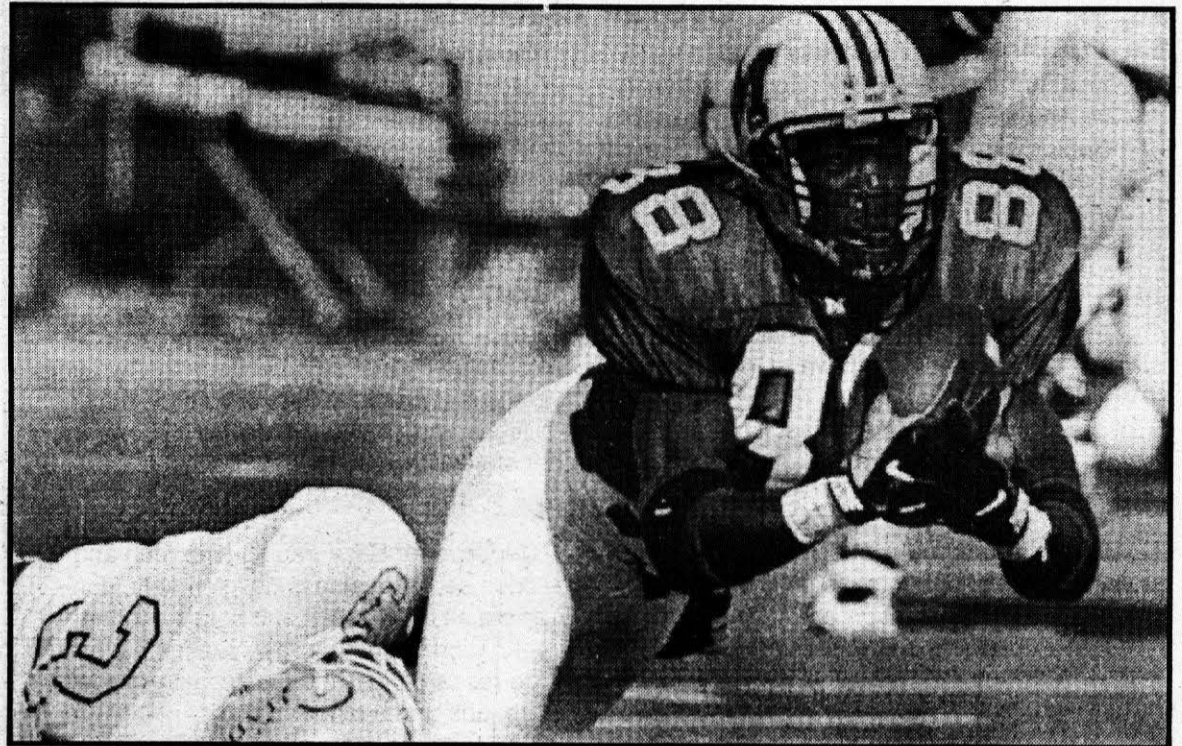

The Citadel played wide receiver Randy Moss with single coverage most of the day, allowing him to haul in five receptions, for four touchdowns. One of these came on a pass intended for Jason Wellman that landed in Moss's hands in the end zone.

Moss set a Herd record Saturday for most touchdown catches in a single season, 17, a record previously held by Troy Brown.

Moss also kept his consecutive streak record going. He has caught at least one touchdown in nine straight games.

The Herd running game produced 266 yards, and Erik Thomas accounted for 105 of those yards, plus one touchdown. Doug Chapman rushed for 85 yards, Llow Turner ran for 59, and both scored touchdowns.

With another conference opponent down, the Herd has two left, and both pose threats to Marshall's perfect record. After this weekend's contest at ETSU, the Herd returns home to face Furman in the final game of the season.

Brett Hall

Randy Moss (88) caught four touchdown passes Saturday and also returned a kick 88 yards to set up another score. He has caught 17 touchdowns this season, which is a school and a Southern Conference record. For his performance against The Citadel, Moss was named the Southern Conference freshman of the week. It is the third time he has won the award.

Ferguson said this weekend's game will be one of the toughest so far this year, and not just because of the team the Herd is facing. Marshall will play its first game indoors since the last time it traveled to ETSU.

"They always play well in their own environment," Ferguson said.

"Inside, there's hot, stale air, and I think they need to turn the air conditioning on in there. We played well down there last time, and hopefully we can come out of there with a win."

Marshall is now 9-0 for the first time in school history, and is looking for its first undefeated season ever. This weekend's game is not scheduled to be televised by any local stations, and the radio broadcast can be found on affiliates of the Thundering Herd Network.

Soccer team to wrap up regular season

by ROBERT McCUNE
reporter

Marshall's Thundering Herd soccer team has been riding a rollercoaster.

The Herd started this season at the back end of a long and curving track. Since the beginning of its season, Marshall has had its ups and downs.

After its first four games, the Herd was at its lowest with a 0-3-1 overall record.

It began its ascent after a win against Wofford College. It went on to win against long time in-state rival West Virginia University before shocking the soccer community with its win against nationally ranked Duke University.

With its loss to the University of Charleston last week and its more recent loss to the University of Louisville, the Herd could be experiencing a down side.

"It's like the roller coaster I've been talking about all season. Right now, I think we're in a bit of a rut," coach Bob Gray said. "We can't seem to find the net."

In its match against Louisville, Marshall was shut out 1-0. Louisville's defense limited the Herd to two shots on the goal but Marshall's defense played equally strong as they limited the Cardinals to six shots.

Gray said the weather was also a factor going into the match. "It was cold. We all froze.

I think the bitter conditions that we had to play in contributed to the outcome of the game," he said.

Four and a half minutes into the second half, Louisville senior Michael Kim took a corner kick and sent it into Jared Goldberg. Goldberg then hit a header into the right bottom corner of the goal past diving Marshall goalkeeper Richard Orrick to finish the game 1-0.

Shots for the Herd were taken by sophomore Stephen Toth and junior Eric Jones. With the loss, the Herd dropped its record to 9-6-2 overall, but will remain in second place going into the Southern Conference tournament.

Louisville closed out its regular season with the win, upping its record to 6-10-2.

"I was pleased with the way we played for the most part," Gray said. "We dominated most of the game and had possession of the ball. What's disturbing to me is that we created good stuff building the ball up, but the end result was that we didn't get off any shots."

Marshall is scheduled to finish its regular season this

"Going into the tournament, I am hoping that our rollercoaster will be at the top. We've got a shot at winning. We've just got to take it one match at a time."

—Bob Gray
soccer coach

week with a home match against the University of Kentucky. The match is scheduled for 4 p.m. Wednesday.

"Kentucky is a good side. They are a strong side and I think it will be another tough match for us. They are a well coached and very fit team," Gray said.

"However, I plan to let a lot of players play and I will do that for two reasons. First, I want to rest some players for the conference tournament. Second, I hope to find a good combination to take into the weekend."

After its match against Kentucky, Marshall will begin play in the Southern Conference tournament Friday at 4 p.m. against The Citadel.

The tournament will be in Greenville, S.C., and Furman will be the host.

"Going into the tournament, I am hoping that our rollercoaster will be at the top," Gray said. "We've got a shot at winning. We've just got to take it one match at a time."
