This video summarises a small research study conducted in London, UK during the first COVID lockdown of 2020. Researchers at Justice Studio collaborated with Solace Women's Aid and Dr Camille Stengel (University of Greenwich). The research aimed to understand how the lockdown impacted both victims of domestic abuse and the charity workers responding to victims' needs. Video funded by the Faculty of Liberal Arts and Sciences Early Career Researcher Network at the University of Greenwich. To read the full study report:
