The Editorial Board of Diffractions would like to express its gratitude to the following people, without whose help producing this issue would not have been possible:

Prof. Isabel Capeloa Gil: For her constant encouragement and support of student-led activities at UCP;

Prof. Peter Hanenberg: For always being available to guide and advise us while the preparation of this issue started in his capacity as the former director of CECC;

Prof. Alexandra Lopes: For continuing to provide us with much-needed support in her capacity as the current director of CECC.

We would also like to thank our contributors for their interest in Diffractions, their compelling research and ideas, their illuminating articles and texts, and for taking our feedback and comments on board. We also cannot be thankful enough to the peer reviewers whose help and input, although often uncredited, remains the most crucial part of producing our journal.

Special thanks go to our colleagues from UCP for their voluntary assistance:

Samuel Miller and Matthew Mason: For offering their time and excellent proofreading skills;

Victoria Marie Page: For an impressive cover design.

And from outside UCP, we would like to deeply thank Guy Howie for his immense help with the layout of the issue.

Last but not least, we are grateful to artists Rafael Ibarra and Manuel Canseco for allowing us to use their exceptional work for our cover page and the back page, respectively.
