Dear Mama:-

I have the letter of Dan Banks to you and also the copy of letter of Bill Douglas to you in 1901. It seems that there is in existence a Will that was supposed to be the first Will of Douglas. I did not know this. Now have you any idea what the contents of the first Will is? If it can be obtained and its provisions are to your advantage, then it doubtless would be worth the while to look after. I shall write to Dan Banks myself and ascertain such information that I would like to have. It might be best to attempt to have the heirs at law the beneficiaries rather than just those provided for in the first Will, if we have to rely on some of their help to set aside the Will now probated. We cannot expect their aid in establishing the condition of the mind of Douglas at the time he made his last will, unless they are to benefit thereby. After I hear from Dan Banks I may decide that a trip over there would be worth the while and I then may go.

I hope you are well, with much love to all,

Your son,

Mims
