College Year Closes with Fifty=Eighth Commencement Exercises

Dr. James Francis Cooke Delivers Address at Annual Commencement

Speaker Stresses the Need of a Richer and Broader Humanitarian= Graduates Participate in Their Last ism in Education at Today's Exercises

EIGHTY DEGREES CONFERRED; SIX OF THEM BEING HONORARY

A large crowd of visitors, friends, alumni, parents and undergraduates attended the commencement exercises held in Bomberger Hall this morning when the members of the class of 1928 received their degrees.

The Rev. Albert Keigwin, a former president of the College, offered the prayer, after which Miss Cora E. J. Gulick, of Perkasie, gave the sa-lutatory oration with "Success, Real and Reputed" as her subject, in which she stressed the happiness of altruism.

The valedictory oration was pre-sented by Mr. Willard Moyer, of Quakertown, with a plea for the aristocracy of achievement in "The New Democracy"

The commencement speaker, James Francis Cooke, Mus. D., head of the Presser Foundation, had the richer and broader humanitarianism as his First Prize Won by Charles Keller; theme. He contrasted the production of brain power with our industrial production. The three ideals which seem most significant in the life and success of the individual are: first, a sound mind in a sound body; second, a firm faith in a brave soul; and third a warm heart in a cheerful spirit. The mind, body and faith are usually amply cared for in our educational systems, but we still have a neglect of humintarianism as con- orable mention was made of Harvey trasted with the humanities, in the Petrarchian sense.

'In the gorgeous phantasmagoria of youth there is a ceaseless procession of opportunity and peril, coming and going, day and night without end." Altho some souls may venture far from the path in cycles of time the procession inevitably reaches our own door.

Faced with such a procession we must appraise values if we wish to move ahead. The greatest mistake a man can make is to put a money estimate on life. One of the greatest assets we can have is the ability to make our own lives and careers.

Humanitarianism is so frequently ignored in education. Some of the greatest mentalities, the finest minds the world has ever produced are at the same time very malevolent people. On the other hand we have the instance of Abraham Lincoln who was "The Living Constitution," by Charles

In the Junior Oratorical contest held in Bomberger Hall, Friday, the first prize was won by Charles Edward Keller, of Dayton, Ohio. The second prize of the evening went to Robert Carl Roth, of Spring City, Pa. Hon-Melvin Lytle, of Sassamansville, Pa.

All of the orations of the evening were delivered in good style and faultless manner, each contestant putting forth his best efforts to win the contest.

The prizes of this annual Junior oratorical contest are contributed by Alvin Hunsicker, B. S., '84, of New York City, and by Rev. J. W. Mem-inger, D. D., of Lancaster, Pa.

Dr. George L. Omwake, presided as chairman of the contest and gave the invocation while the judges were composed of prominent men of the surrounding communities. Those sitting as judges were: the Rev. Theodore Heysham, Ph. D., of Norristown; Wallace M. Keely, Esq., Norristown; and Supt. B. Frank Rosenberry, of Pottstown.

The following are the orations and the authors and deliverers of them: creeds, who was not famed for his physical prowess, or for his great intellectual culture, but who stands

PRESENTATIONS HUMOROUS

The Class Day exercises of the Class of '28 were held in Bomberger Hall, Friday afternoon, June 8, 1928, at 2:00 d. s. t.

The organ prelude rendered by Miss Helen Lucas was followed by an address of welcome by the class president, Mr. Charles Fitzkee. The Class Diary, as read by Miss Ruth Moyer, revealed the secrets of the class' history, giving the hearer a bird's eye view of the class' activities. The selection by the class octette under the leadership of Mr. Robert Weller was beautifully interpreted. Miss La Rue Wertman was at the piano. The Class Oration was delivered by Mr. Shepherd Witman.

Charmed next by the wiles of Miss Lois Nickel, we took twenty-five short steps into the realm of future years where each member of the class was seen in "his little place in the world."

Mr. Harold Peterson's trumpet solo, a Medley of Patriotic Airs, was much appreciated. The Class Will, as read by Miss Mildred Stibitz showed the generosity of the class of '28. The resentations were unique and timely. Misses Gladys Burr, Melba Farnsler, Mabel Fritsch, Betty Layman and the Messrs. Joseph Armento, Howard Koons and Theodore La Clair were the class members who revealed the Manager Ty Helffrich's veteran Alumni aggregation bowed in defeat to the Growling Grizzlies by a 4-1 count in the annual climax of the local ball-tossing season. The game was played on the Commons Field on Saturday morning, June 9. Herby Howells pitched a good brand of ball for the old-timers, but the support which comes only from constant playing together was lacking. The Alumni were in a position to even up the score a number of times in the course of the seven-inning struggle, but they lacked the punch to knock the runs across the plate. Coach Kichline used four hurlers, none of whom were on the mound long enough for the oppo- rection of Miss Jeanette Douglas Har- lives? Why do young people hesitate

The annual Baccalaureate Service was held Sunday, June 10, 1928, at 11 a. m., in Bomberger chapel. The College Choir, led by Miss Jeanette Douglas Hartenstine, added beauty to the service by their excellent rendition of the anthems: "Lord We Pray in Mercy Lead Us," by Sibelius, and "Recessional," by Matthews. The Scripture Lesson, read by Dr. Omwake, was found in St. Matthew 19:16-30. The baccalaureate hymn was the one which has been sung on this occasion for the past twenty-five years: "Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah."

The sermon was preached by the Rev. Albert Edwin Keigwin, D. D., of the West End Prebyterian Church in New York City. Dr. Keigwin was president of the College from 1907 to 1912. His sermon was a personal message to every heart. In it everyone found some counsel and comfort. His purpose, as he explained it, was to see the vision of the Lord Jesus Christ and to see life in its relation to His life. The text was from St. Paul's epistle to the Romans: None of us liveth to himself. Life is a prophecy, in the cradle and in the grave. We start, but we do not argrave. We start, but we do not ar-rive. Every achievement is only a foregleam of larger accomplishments. Each time we arrive, we push the horizon of life farther away. The sense of onwardness grows upon us with the years. Finally, when the physical faculties wane, the spiritual faculties take on a new divineness, a prophecy of the life to come. Dr. Keigwin based his sermon on the personal question which faces the graduate on the threshold of life, as well as everyone else, at any time of life: How am I to fulfill the largest promise of my life? His answer was: I must live my own life. This is a rationally, plausible reply, but it depends upon three questions: Do you live your own life? Can you live your own life? Will you live your own life? If the text is true, no one does live his own life. Dr. Keigwin confronted the congregation with stirring, thought - inspiring questions: How much is you and how much of what you say and do is the reflection of the GIVEN BY COLLEGE CHORUS age? How much of your thinking is your own? How can you explain the On Sunday evening, June 10, the dissatisfaction of the young people Ursinus College Chorus, under the di- with their lives, if they live their own

FINIS CORONAT OPUS!

TODAY is the celebration of the fifty-eighth commencement of Ursinus College, and the close of another academic year. Today about four hundred and fifty students of Ursinus have completed another year of instruction, and about seventy-five of this number have passed from these walls of education, having completed the fourth and final year of college work. Ursinus can rejoice in the result of those fifty-eight years of effort and service, and the undone. present student body should take pleasure in the accomplishment of the past nine months of the college term.

As we look back over the year just passed, memories of each day spent here comes before us. Each day of the year has added its portion to the sum total of our work and pleasure. Every moment has increased our knowledge and have given us new outlooks upon life. The passing of the year has endeared us to our Alma Mater, because it has made it more and more a part of us, inasmuch as we have become a part of it.

Every student now here, looks forward to the day when he or she will graduate. It is quite agreed upon, that a college commencement carries with it a significance worthy of mention. The real value however to be derived varies with the individual. To some it is a time and place to receive a diploma; to others it may be the end of happy and well enjoyed year, and to others a bigger and better future lies in the distance.

As each of us, who have been students at Ursinus, sits in retrospect on the past year of college life we question and rightly too, what have we actu-ally obtained from our connection with the College? The past year also brings to mind the question, what is the purpose of all this outlay of expense, of work, of sacrifice and devotion of the best there is in a great many people in establishing and conducting a college like this? It hasn't been to furnish an occupation for our instructors-nor is it to provide a place of amusement and entertainment for ourselves.

The first and truest answer one finds to the question is, we have come here for an education. Everyone, if we think upon the subject has a different definition of a college education. One never becomes fully educated-no matter how much one knows-there is still more to learn, more than the human mind can encompass. Some say college education is the preparing of oneself for the necessary things of life. Spencer said, "Education is a preparation for complete living."

We believe education is to teach us to know and appreciate life, to raise our standards, to establish our principles and ideals, and to show us the beauty in all things. If as we approach the end as the present Senior Mary Shade Price, '05, as toastmisclass of 1928 has done, and realize that in some measure at least we have accomplished these ends, our college education means something, is worth striving for, and pays in the end, for as Schiller says: The Goal is worthy M. To you seniors it is the beginning of a new exploit that will call forth to practical application every resource that has been stored up in theory. The meaning of a day so significant in college life will doubtless be brought to you in many and varied ways but what does it mean to the three classes you leave behind?

Three times you have welcomed the juniors with smiling faces and this group will find your familiar faces among the missing when its final step has begun. Each year you have helped us in many ways to follow the path toward the goal. You have set standards for us to use as a stepping stone to further the ideals of educated men and women. The class of 1929 will catch the "torch" and bear it high for you have given us the trust of leadership which with true endeavor we will carry on to keep the faith.

The president's annual reception was held in the Alumni Memorial Library last Saturday evening. Doctor and Mrs. G. L. Omwake, Former President Keigwin, and Prof. and Mrs. Norman E. Many alumni and friends met and had further pleasant reminscences of their days spent at Ursinus, enjoyed the orchestra and refreshments provided for the occasion and wound up a very eventful day.

Some call it mellowness.

Some say that Camel is the mellowest cigarette ever made. Some that it's mild and smooth. It's really all good things in one, and that is why it is supreme upon the pinnacle of modern favor. Camel's popularity today is the largest that any cigarette ever had.

And, it costs something to make this kind of a smoke. It costs the choicest tobaccos that money can buy, and a blending that spares neither time nor expense. Each Camel cigarette is as full of value as the world of tobacco can give.

You can be sure of smoking pleasure, serene and full, in these quality cigarettes. Smoke all of them you want; they simply never tire the taste.
