Local Officials Can Go To Franklin Circuit If Slighted After Change

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Local officials can go to Franklin Circuit Court if they feel they are not receiving their fair share of money when the state takes over operation of district courts in Jan. 1, the Kentucky attorney general's office has advised.

All local courts, including police, magistrate, quarterly and county courts, will be out of business at the first of the year, when the new district court system is implemented. The money once collected by local governments from court fines, fees and forfeitures will no longer go into city or county tills; it will go to the state treasury, which will return a portion of it to local governments.

State law spells out the formula by which the money will be returned: the Department for Finance and Administration computes the total amount of fees, fines and forfeitures less the average cost of operating each city and county court for the preceding three fiscal years to obtain the net court revenue. Then the department computes the "base court revenue" of all local courts in a county to determine what each county's share should be.

The statute provides that when any unit of local government believes that "unusual circumstances" adversely affected the computation of base court revenues, it may appeal to the Finance Department and the department may adjust the computation.

Joseph L. Moore, director of county fee systems in the Finance department, asked for an attorney general's opinion on what would constitute unusual circumstances.

"The statute provides no express clue," replied Assistant Attorney General Charles Runyan.

He said the phrase would include any situation in which the normal flow of court revenue was stopped, delayed or modified for any reason during one of the base fiscal years, resulting in a "substantial departure" from the expected cash flow during the period.

Runyan said interpretation of the phrase must take into account the purpose of the statute, which is to return an equitable portion court-generated revenue to cities and counties over and above court-related costs.

"If a city or county is dissatisfied after appealing for adjustment to the Finance Department, it may take its appeal to Franklin Circuit Court even though the statutes don't provide for such an action if the local government can prove the department acted arbitrarily," Runyan said.

Non-Accredited Christian Schools Win Court Round

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Parents of children in non-accredited Christian schools have won the latest round in their battle with the state Department of Education.

Franklin Circuit Judge Henry Meigs continued Tuesday a temporary restraining order that blocks the state from prosecuting the parents on truancy law violations. Meigs set April 17 as the date for a trial to determine the state's authority over private, church-affiliated schools.

About 50 parents and children filled the courtroom for Tuesday's two-hour hearing. Some parents and Christian school officials testified.

William Ball, an attorney for the parents, the schools and the Kentucky Association of Christian Schools, asked the court "to maintain the status quo and withhold the hand of the state... to protect the religious liberty now being enjoyed by these children."

The group filed suit against the state and local school school boards after the state Board of Elementary and Secondary Education refused to accredit 20 Christian schools.

Stove Puts Out

More Heat Than

Most Fireplaces

One way to conserve energy and save money at your house might be to close up an unproductive fireplace and replace it with a wood or coal stove.

Most wood or coal stoves are far more efficient to operate than the conventional fireplace, according to Extension engineers with the UK College of Agriculture.

With a free-standing stove, more of your heat radiates out into the room and less heat goes up the flue. At night, you can keep it burning low or close up the dampers and let it go out.

If you don't want to part with the homey pleasures of an open hearth, look for a stove model that gives you that option.

You can buy a stove with a tempered-glass or thermoglass door, or one with doors meant to be left open part of the time. Some of the open-door models have a removable firescreen.

When you install the stove, be sure to allow safe clearances between the stove and stovepipe and all burnables. Remember that most construction materials are burnable if they get hot enough. Eighteen inches is the fire-code minimum clearance to observe, but safety engineers recommend 24 inches for that extra margin of safety.

Set your stove on an asbestos stoveboard or masonry platform that extends 18 inches all the way around.

It's often easiest to vent the stove into an opening in the bricked-up or metal-blocked front of the fireplace, giving the stovepipe a slightly upward slant. Install a damper in stovepipe, unless the stove is an airtight model.

Use a fire-clay thimble if you vent the stovepipe into the chimney above the mantle, and be sure to allow a wooden mantle safe clearance.

Before installing your stove, however, clean out your chimney and inspect it for soundness. If it does not have a flue lining in good condition, you'll probably need help from a local heating contractor or plumber in safely venting your stove.

A New Fireplace

If you're planning to build or do some remodeling, you might consider a fireplace engineered to efficiently heat several rooms, or even a whole house.

Wood is reasonably-priced and renewable fuel. Many "wood-burning" families further economize, and get a lot of exercise in the process, by cutting their own firewood.

last spring. The board later ordered a crackdown on parents who send their children to non-accredited schools.

The parents and church-related school officials, who call themselves "born-again Christians," contend the imposition of state standards on private schools is unconstitutional and violates their First Amendment religious freedoms.

"This case really turns on the question of state power," Ball argued. "The whole statutory scheme shows there is no power by the state to dictate standards to private schools."

Ed Fossett, counsel for the state education board, asked Meigs to dissolve his Sept. 19 restraining order.

"The main question in this case is whether those standards prescribed by the state are reasonable," Fossett said.

Parents and school officials from Owensboro, Lexington, Somerset and Louisville testified they were obeying God's will by sending their children to schools in which a fundamentalist approach is stressed. "I take accreditation as meaning licensure or approval and I don't need approval by state government to do something God has told me to do," said the Rev. C.C. Henton of Somerset. "I have chosen to obey God instead of men."

Guy Goodell of the Tabernacle Christian School in Frankfort testified that minimum state accreditation standards in areas such as textbooks, teacher certification and physical facilities often contradict the principles of fundamentalist Christians.

"The standards emphasize the same things as the secular, humanistic manifesto," Goodell said.

"We have someone higher than the state board getting our standards and that's God," said the Rev. Eugene Holmes of the Clays Mill Christian Academy in Lexington.

Earl Mullins Sr., president of the Kentucky Association of Christian Schools and principal of Portland Christian School in Louisville said the state is using the accreditation issue to try to put church-affiliated schools out of business.

"The state is equating accreditation with the right to exist," said Mullins, whose school is accredited.

Fossett denied that, but he argued "there has been no clear showing" that anyone's constitutional rights are threatened.

Tuesday's hearing focused on whether to continue the temporary restraining order, not on the overall issues of the case. Those will be argued in April. Meigs said there seems to be some validity to the First Amendment arguments and, at the same time, there is a threat to the public interest involving the state's compulsory attendance law. "On balance, however, the weight of the evidence falls in favor of the plaintiffs "in continuing the injunction, which Meigs ordered "to maintain the status quo."

Panel Views Pot As Treatment For Glaucoma, Asthma

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government advisory panel is considering whether doctors should be allowed to prescribe marijuana for persons undergoing chemotherapy or suffering from glaucoma or asthma.

The Food and Drug Administration's Controlled Substances Advisory Committee was meeting today to hear arguments on whether federal restrictions on marijuana should be eased.

Marijuana is now treated like heroin and LSD under federal drug abuse laws. Doctors cannot prescribe it except in federally controlled experiments.

Among the witnesses arguing for medical use of marijuana was Robert Randall, a 29-year-old glaucoma sufferer who gets a weekly supply of pot from the government in a test of its effect on eye pressure.

Also testifying was a representative of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws, which first petitioned the government five years ago to allow medical use of marijuana.

NORML also favors decriminalization of marijuana for social use, but the FDA panel has no jurisdiction over that issue.

"This is our shot. This is the ball game for us," said NORML lawyer Peter Meyers, who won a federal court battle last spring to force the government to consider reclassifying marijuana.

The Justice Department's Drug Enforcement Administration opposed any change in the law, but an appeals court said the secretary of health, education and welfare must decide whether marijuana has medical value.

The panel, composed of experts from outside the government, will make a recommendation for HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr.

Federal officials say they doubt the panel will recommend a change now because the scientific evidence on marijuana is inconclusive, despite the personal testimony of advocates like Randall.

Robert C. Petersen,

associate director for research in the National Institute on Drug Abuse, said marijuana is no panacea for glaucoma, but has shown promise in helping cancer patients avoid nausea during chemotherapy.

If that pans out, the law might be changed to allow prescription of marijuana to cancer patients "in as short a period as a year, maybe," Petersen said.

President Carter's top health adviser, Dr. Peter G.

Bourne, recently told HEW that he wants federal experts to scrutinize objectively the potential therapeutic uses of heroin and other abused drugs, including marijuana.

'Quick Billy' Film Set At MSU

"Quick Billy," a 60-minute color film by Bruce Baille, will be shown at Murray State University Tuesday evening, Nov. 22, as another offering at the Fine Arts Film Series.

Scheduled at 7 p.m. in Room 423 of the Price Doyle Fine Arts Center, the showing is open to the public at no admission charge. It is part of a series sponsored jointly by the Kentucky Arts Commission and the Clara M. Eagle Gallery at Murray State.

The 1970 film is considered by many to be Baille's most important work. Like his other abstract films, it involves the experience of transformation and centers around the psychic journeys which shape people's lives.

Done in four parts, it consists of three parts structurally derived from the Tibetan Book of the Dead and the fourth a Western segment set in Kansas in 1863.

The film series project during the year at Murray

State is designed to promote the showing and discussion of quality films and the exposure of people throughout the area to film as an art form.

Recreation Meeting Draws National Reps

WINCHESTER, Ky. (AP) — Recreation staff officers of national forests in 13 states and Puerto Rico began a three-day meeting Tuesday for a series of discussions and workshops, officials said.

The Daniel Boone National Forest's staff headquarters here were chosen for the conference because of the forest's recreational construction projects, officials said.

The conferees were scheduled Wednesday to visit recreation sites on the Morehead and Stanton ranger districts, the Red River Gorge geological area, Gave Run Lake and Natural Bridge State Park.

Evacuees Get Unexpected Treat; Spend Night In Homes

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — About 2,500 residents of western Louisville got an unexpected treat when they were allowed to spend the night in their homes.

They had been evacuated Tuesday evening while work crews righted two derailed tank cars that contained hydrocyanic acid, a chemical that forms deadly cyanide gas when exposed to air. A third derailed car was righted before the evacuation began.

Originally, police said the evacuated area, mostly to the north of the derailment site, would be sealed off between 7 p.m. EST Tuesday and 6 a.m. Wednesday and that anyone found there then would be subject to arrest.

But the Illinois Central Gulf railroad tanker cars were restored to the tracks sooner than expected and police began allowing the evacuees to return to their homes at around 8:30 p.m.

None of the hydrocyanic acid leaked from the cars during the uprighting operation, police said. Each car was full and contained about 11,000 gallons of acid, officials said.

"There were no leaks whatsoever," said Phil Hogan, senior production supervisor for E.I. DuPont de Nemours & Co. in Memphis, Tenn., which produced the chemical.

Police said most of the evacuees lived in the eight-block square, which one spokesman described as 50 percent industrial. Factories and businesses in the area already had closed for the day when the evacuation began, the spokesman said.

The evacuees, most of whom went to the homes of friends or relatives, didn't seem too disturbed about the minor inconvenience.

One woman, who went to a Red Cross emergency shelter, said, "I felt safer here than I would have at home." Another joked that she didn't relish the thought of returning home because of the dirty dishes that awaited her.

Signs on the tank cars read: "POISON GAS. This car contains Hydrocyanic acid, Liquefied, A Poison . . . and A Flammable Liquid."

Hogan said the derailed tankers "are heavily constructed cars — built like a tank — with an outer shell and a thick inner shell. The cars are pressurized, keeping the contents liquid."

Earlier in the day, firemen and train crew members on the scene appeared unconcerned. One said, "It hasn't leaked yet, it's not going to."

Steven Deats, head brakeman on the 46-car train, said a crew was busy with switching operations at Illinois Central's Oak Street yards "when it (the train) went into emergency."

Officials said they didn't know what caused the derailment, which occurred around 7 a.m.

One of the tankers had only one wheel off the track. It was the first to be uprighted and taken away.

Working by floodlights in a light drizzle, work crews used cranes to upright the other two cars.

The tankers were en route from Memphis to a customer in West Virginia, Hogan said. He said hydrocyanic acid, which also is called prussic acid, is used in making plastics, pharmaceuticals,

Barley Sales To

Begin Monday,

Supports Up

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Tobacco sales warehouses report heavy barley crops with supplies arriving steadily, according to the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association.

Sales begin Monday and weighing officially began last Friday. The association, citing U.S. Department of Agriculture figures, estimated this year's crop at 641 million pounds, up slightly from the October estimate, but well below last year's 654 million pounds.

Warehouses this week received new price support grade schedules from the association, following federal approval of 1977 figures.

Average supports are 8 percent higher than last year, totaling $1.17 per pound, compared with $1.09 in 1976.

poultry and cattlefeed supplement and the blue dye used in making jeans.

"It's a fairly basic industrial chemical," he said. "The range of end products is innocuous, though it is a hazardous substance."

The evacuated area was bounded by Breckinridge Street on the south, Walnut Street on the north, Seventh Street on the east and 15th Street on the west, police said.

"Because of the closing down of all the businesses (at the end of the day), we didn't have much of a problem," said Police Lt. Charles Rogers.

"It has not been an exodus of any sort, not a mass exodus. It has been fairly normal — people getting off (work) and going home."

The Red Cross set up shelters at two schools, but they received only limited use.

Two Men Rob

Lexington Hotel

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Two men, one armed with a sawed-off shotgun, robbed a hotel here early Tuesday after tying two employees with adhesive tape, police said.

Dave Beckering, who was on duty at the lobby desk of the Campbell House Inn, told police one of the thieves approached him, requested change for a dollar, and his partner then raised the shotgun.

Beckering and a bellhop then were taken into a rear office and bound, police said.

Firebugs Plague Troops In Strike Bound London

LONDON (AP) — Firebugs, hoaxers and "some idiot with a transmitter" are plaguing the 10,000 troops answering the fire alarms during the two-day-old British firemen's strike, authorities reported today.

"The soldiers are being badly hindered by hoax calls especially," said a Home Office spokesman.

Scotland Yard reported half the 296 alerts in London Tuesday were false alarms, double the normal total.

Authorities in Glasgow, Liverpool and the sprawling Midlands industrial belt around Birmingham made similar reports.

"Chasing after these false alarms is wearing my men out and sapping their morale," said Col. John Drummond, the military fire chief in Glasgow. One of his men was trapped under a firetruck that overturned on an icy road answering a hoax call.

Scotland Yard said police patrols to catch the hoaxers were being increased.

Some 30 of the military fire-fighters were injured Tuesday, the Home Office said.

Police reported several cases of arson, the worst at a school in Birmingham. The building was badly damaged before troops put out the flames.

The Home Office said a radio channel linking the London control center with mobile senior fire officers who are not on strike was jammed, apparently deliberately.

"The waveband was unusable for some time and caused a lot of problems," a spokesman said. "Some idiot with a transmitter is responsible. He caused a lot of trouble and interfered with crucial communications. We are taking steps to trace the transmitter and resolve the trouble."

Strikers began picketing the army's emergency fire stations Tuesday night to stop the 4,000 fire officers not on strike from aiding the soldiers.

"We won't stop the soldiers answering alarms," said a spokesman for the Fire Brigades' Union, "but we want to stop members of the fire service working with the army."

Some of the strikers abandoned the picket lines temporarily Tuesday to help troops fight fires where lives were in danger. But a strike leader stressed: "These were exceptional cases. The strike will go on."

The 33,000 striking firemen want a 30 per cent hike in their weekly pay which averages $115. Home Secretary Merlyn Rees told the House of Commons Tuesday the government will not lift its counter-inflationary ceiling of 10 per cent on wage increases for them.

Age Important In Use Of Breast X-Rays

Q: Mrs. T. V., 53-years-old and mother of three children whom she has nursed, writes that she has noted that I have written occasional articles on breast cancer. But, she is confused and concerned about the use of X-rays to diagnose early breast cancer and about the potential danger of their increasing the incidence of breast malignancies.

A: X-ray technique (mammography) remains the most reliable test for diagnosing early breast cancer. It may be observed on the X-ray film when the growth is too small to be felt on manual examination of the breast.

Admittedly, X-rays have a mild carcinogenic effect that is increased slightly with each additional X-ray examination. This effect has been lessened in recent years by the use of improved X-ray equipment and filters.

All women who have a family history of breast cancer (as in a mother or sister) should have periodic examinations by a physician. He will likely recommend a mammogram about once a year or earlier if signs of trouble show up.

In women under 40 years of age, self-examination and an annual checkup by a physician are adequate. Of course, if a mass or nodul or nipple discharge appears, she should be examined promptly. Usually routine mammograms are not advised in these younger women and are reserved only as an additional diagnostic step if suspicion arises that a growth may be present as determined by manual examination.

Because the evidence of breast cancer increases with age, annual X-ray screening in women over 50 years is considered appropriate and worth the mild carcinogenic effect of the X-rays. Their risk is less than letting an early malignancy go unnoticed and possibly allowing it to spread beyond the breast.

Experts in breast cancer are debating the proper handling of women between 40 and 50 years of age who have no family history of the disease. Some physicians feel that regular self-examination and periodic (annual) palpation of the breasts by a physician are adequate and safe, using X-rays only in suspicious cases. Other physicians prefer to use periodic mammograms to supplement routine breast examinations.

Mammary cancer is less in mothers who have nursed their babies, such as you have done.

More women are dying of mammary cancer because they failed to have breast X-rays to aid in early diagnosis than are being endangered by cancers caused by mammograms. Nevertheless, this procedure, though very useful, has to be used cautiously and wisely as described above.

Other tests, such as on a blood sample, look promising in the early diagnosis of breast cancers, but these are not yet available for general use.

CONSIDER THE SQUID
WASHINGTON (AP) — Although the squid isn't the favorite dish of many Americans, it is considered a delicacy in many parts of the world.

Dr. Paul Singh of the University of California says Italians, Greeks, Spaniards, Portuguese, Chinese, Japanese, and South Americans have feasted on the squid, which is a good source of protein, for centuries.

Singh regards the squid as a valuable source of protein. He cites studies that estimate the potential global catch for squid may be from 100 million to 300 million tons a year, without depleting stocks. In 1976, the international catch totaled half a million tons.

Call Of Strike Goes Out To Traditionally Independent U. S. Farmer

By MARGY McCAY
Associated Press Writer
A call to unite and strike has gone out to the traditionally independent American farmer — and there is evidence he is listening.

The appeal comes from American Agriculture, a group of disgruntled farmers in Colorado who say they are tired of selling their milk, wheat and corn for less than it costs to produce. "We're working for one common goal — 100 percent parity for all products that we produce," said Dale Schroder, a spokesman for the fledgling group.

"We ask for no subsidies; we're willing to take our chances with the elements. But we want a contract from the government as to how much any individual farmer is expected to produce," he said. The movement to unite farmers appears to be spreading. Farmers in Washington, Nebraska, Kansas and Georgia have staged marches and "tractorcades" to call attention to their plight.

"We're getting really strong in about 30 states," said Schroder. "And I think we'll have a really good turnout on this thing. I feel we're going to come out of this with support like you wouldn't believe."

American Agriculture has named Dec. 14 as strike day. Farmers have been asked to withhold all produce from the market and to boycott all but essential goods after that date.

"We're not going to buy a damned thing," Schroder said. "We consume 40 percent of the steel made in the United States. If it goes to the 14th, this thing is going to shake this nation to the core."

Parity, the issue on which the strikers have focused, is a term to describe a "fair" price for farm products in relation to the farmer's cost of living. Farm prices in mid-October were just under 65 percent of parity for most products.

"We want a reasonable profit," said Tommy Carter of Alma, Ga. "How many common workers and laborers would be willing to get 64 percent of the salary they should be receiving? Well, that's what we get for our crops."

Georgia is a stronghold for strike supporters. Larry Lee, spokesman for the National Pork Producers Council and a former Georgian, said everything bad that can happen in farming happened in Georgia this year.

"From drought to army worms to aflatoxin (a fungus which attacks corn and soybeans) — all but about 30 counties have been declared disaster areas," said Lee. "Few observers give the strike much chance of success."

Lee said the most that farmers can do is call attention to their problems.

"I personally think that they will focus a lot of attention on the situation — and that's all they can hope to do. To excite the consumer is all for naught. They need to convince the Congressional people; they are the ones with the power," Lee said.

Consumers Don't Realize There Is Energy Crisis, TVA Board Member Says

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Consumers ignore pleas for energy conservation because they do not realize there is an energy crisis, a member of the Tennessee Valley Authority's board of directors says.

"Here sits America with Winnebagoes at 5 miles per gallon still clogging the highways in summer, with the airwaves full of CB traffic among drivers trying to beat the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit," S. David Freeman said Tuesday in a speech prepared for delivery to the Governor's Energy Awareness Conference.

Since the Arab oil embargo, Freeman said, "the Western world's other industrial powers have tightened their belts and found ways to use less oil. But not the United States."

"Service stations will give you a free car wash if you fill 'er up — and there's plenty of gas," Freeman said.

"As long as consumers don't feel any pinch at the gas pump, they can and do ignore the pleas for conservation and energy action," he added.

Freeman said consumers are missing opportunities to

Firefighters Plot Tactics In Raging LA Brush Fire

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Moist sea breezes replaced hot, dry desert winds early today as firefighters plotted tactics to beat a raging brush fire stalemated in a canyon only three miles from expensive beachfront homes.

A spokesman for the Los Angeles County Fire Department said that the firefighters would "throw everything we have at it" today.

More than 300 firemen used hand tools Tuesday night to hack a 20-mile fire line out of the dense, tinder-dry brush in the rugged Santa Monica Mountains just 30 miles west of downtown Los Angeles.

Six firefighters were injured. Mike Eubanks, 25, of the Los Angeles County Fire Department, was reported in critical condition in Westlake Hospital after a tractor rolled over him.

Four men received minor injuries when they were singed by a wall of fire that swept over their truck. A sixth man collapsed, apparently from exhaustion and smoke inhalation.

But early today, fire information officer Roy Talbot said witnesses saw a man start a fire in the dump Tuesday and that the area was not burning earlier.

The leap-frogging flames, which for a time Tuesday were burning 200 acres an hour, had blackened more than 2,000 acres — about 3 1/2 square miles — of brush by early today, Miller said.

Dense black smoke billowing out of the canyons was visible for more than 20 miles throughout the day, and a heavy pall hung over downtown Los Angeles.

About 200 homes scattered in the sparsely populated, rural canyons above the beaches were evacuated. Several structures had been reported destroyed, but Miller said the fire department had no confirmation of whether these were homes or other buildings.

Firefighters got the best of the fire shortly after sunset, when winds tapered off from the 20-40 mph gusts that had prevailed through the day.

Miller said humidity was 18-percent Tuesday and was expected to drop to that again today, after reaching 40 percent overnight.

"Anything below 30 percent is an extreme fire danger," Miller said.

But early today, fire information officer Roy Talbot said witnesses saw a man start a fire in the dump Tuesday and that the area was not burning earlier.

The latest blaze broke out as firefighters encircled a 1,200-acre fire which sprang up Monday in the Topanga Canyon, about 20 miles west of downtown. That fire was declared contained shortly after noon Tuesday, and men and machines were quickly shifted to the new fire.

Dairy Experts To Address Rotary

Robert W. (Bob) Basse, area manager of the Southeast Dairy Industry Association, Nashville, Tenn., will be the speaker tomorrow at the regular meeting of the Murray Rotary Club.

Basse, who was born on a dairy farm in Wisconsin, was manager of the Hermitage View Farm at Old Hickory, Tenn., for 15 years, and on two occasions exhibited the national grand champion dairy animal.

He received his undergraduate degree in dairy science from Oklahoma State University at Stillwater, and was for four years Tennessee state manager of the American Dairy Association before taking his present assignment in 1968.

To be presented by the club's Farm-City Committee, Basse has just served as state coordinator for a referendum to request dairy farmers to support the American Dairy Association program at a higher level and which passed with a 72 percent majority.

save money and energy "by their failure to invest in energy conserving equipment, and by overheating their buildings in winter, and overcooling them in summer."

Essentially, Freeman said, the "energy crisis is an oil crisis."

Quoting President Carter, Freeman said the United States will have to spend $550 billion a year for imported oil by 1985 and that "we will live constantly in fear of embargoes."

"We could endanger our freedom as a sovereign nation to act in foreign affairs," Freeman said. "Within 10 years, we would not be able to import enough oil from any country, at any acceptable price."

Carter has asked TVA to serve as a "proving ground" for various projects demonstrating energy conservation and the use of more abundant forms of energy, Freeman said.

Freeman said a major part of TVA's demonstration program involves developing methods of burning high-sulfur coal — like the kind found in western Kentucky —

Most Fireplaces Are Energy Saving Duds

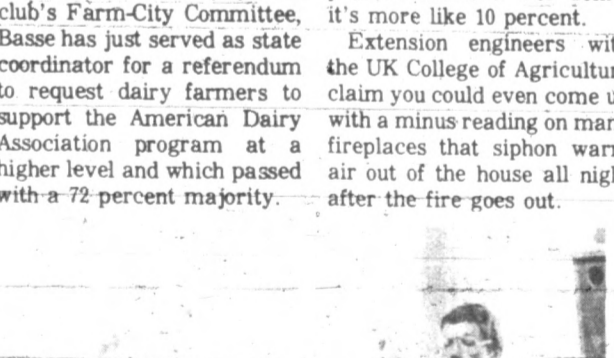

When it comes to using energy efficiently, most fireplaces are duds.

At best, a run-of-the-mill fireplace is only about 20 percent efficient. For some, it's more like 10 percent.

Extension engineers with the UK College of Agriculture claim you could even come up with a minus reading on many fireplaces that siphon warm air out of the house all night after the fire goes out.

Short of closing off your fireplace completely and replacing it with a far more useful wood or coal stove, there are several ways the engineers say you can boost its energy efficiency:

- Install an "energy" or "thermal" grate — or another type of unit designed to circulate heat back into the room.
- Fit your fireplace opening with a tempered-glass door, designed to be used with a circulating-heat grate. Many models feature damper controls.
- Burn mostly seasoned hardwoods like oak, hickory, ash and sycamore. They burn longer and more slowly than soft woods like pine. A roaring fire doesn't use wood economically. It also deposits more soot on the inside of the flue.
- When your fire is out, close the damper to stop the siphoning action of the flue. If there is no damper, stuff the opening with insulation batting or wadded-up newspapers (but don't forget it's there). Or, instead of closing damper, cut a piece of metal to fit over the fireplace opening, so you won't have to hang around until the fire is out.
- Install a fresh-air duct to the fireplace, if possible. A burning sets up a draft that can keep pulling furnace-heated air out of the rest of the house. Unless you supply combustion air from outdoors, that cozy fire often uses up more warm air than it gives back.
- Otherwise, lower your thermostat setting and close doors to the rest of the house when you're using the fireplace.

Hena Canavier, NEA, Washington, D.C. leads a group discussion on the "Future Role of State Arts Agencies in Crafts Programming" during the recent meeting of State Arts Agency Administrators Conference on Crafts, held at Brandon Spring Group Camp in TVA's Land Between The Lakes. The attendees discussed audience development, marketing, and field services at the conference, sponsored by TVA and the Arts Commissions of South Carolina, Tennessee, and Kentucky.

ture, education can even mean learning about photography.

Your Individual Horoscope

Frances Drake
 FORTHURSDAY,
 NOVEMBER 17, 1977

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

ARIES
 (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20)

Old routines may prove more effectual than certain new ones which may be suggested. However, be an astute judge - considering every factor, angle, clue.

TAURUS
 (Apr. 21 to May 21)

Start out on your own power, build up momentum, and you can make your own "breaks." A new turn of events should not deter you from following through on your program.

GEMINI
 (May 22 to June 21)

You may receive helpful backing in a business venture from persons you were not counting on. Gains also indicated through correspondence.

CANCER
 (June 22 to July 23)

Good aspects. Do not become involved in the confusion prevalent in certain areas. Stride forward with a firm, steady step toward sound objectives.

LEO
 (July 24 to Aug. 23)

Avoid present tendencies to scatter energies and to start too many "things at one" time. Recognize a need for changes in plans previously considered perfect.

VIRGO
 (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Avoid emotionalism. You may be opposed, but you have been before and succeeded where you had to. Seek wise counsel when stymied.

LIBRA
 (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Neither renege on promises nor attempt too much. Both extremes are likely now. Accept only what better sense recognizes will suit the day and good purpose.

SCORPIO
 (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Mars, favorable, suggests that you put forth the very best efforts possible, but without overtaxing yourself. Just that one extra try may turn the tide for you.

SAGITTARIUS
 (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Because you did not succeed before at what you believed a worthwhile endeavor does not mean you will not now - IF it is still worthwhile.

CAPRICORN
 (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Matters may get off to a quick start in the a.m. Look carefully over your system, methods; try harder for surer satisfaction. The effort alone will reward.

AQUARIUS
 (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Mixed planetary influences. Right plans and moves at the right times and places will keep you in the lead for gains, with ease of effort.

PISCES
 (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20)

Good Neptune influences favor normal routine, as well as the launching of new enterprises. Deliberate, then act. Try a master stroke.

YOU BORN TODAY are surely among the do-ers, not just the dreamers. But you have your moments of dreaming, too. However, it is in the nature of the Scorpio-born to achieve, keep reaching for new heights, so your dreams often materialize in unexpected fashion, and you can catch others off guard with bright ideas and unusual plans. Both music and the theater are excellent outlets for your emotions and talents, but you could also succeed in the law, medicine or science, depending upon your inclinations and education, of course. Birthdate of: Rock Hudson, film star.

Music Row Is Pulse Of Nashville

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)— Boots Randolph plays his saxophone every night at a downtown night club bearing his name. Nashville calls itself "Music City U.S.A." And without music, Nashville would be another Montgomery or Charlotte or Little Rock. In the word-association test, "Nashville" is followed naturally by "music." The combination would make for a sure 10 points on the TV show "Password."

The aura is borne out by the musical linescore: 1,007 members of the Nashville Songwriters Association; 2,500 members of the American Federation of Music, Local 257; an estimated 2,000 song publishing companies and more than 30 recording studios.

The pulse of the Nashville music industry is Music Row — an explosion of guitars, denim and dreams. It's roughly a four-square block area near downtown that's made millionaires of a few and nobodies of many.

The first time you see it, you're disappointed. There are no skyscrapers, no intriguing architecture. It's mostly Victorian houses that have been renovated and effectively enscened the celebrities.

Some of the business practices by the music industry defy traditional concepts. Many of the businesses have no signs. It's nearly impossible to find an office open before 9 a.m. because most songwriters and musicians do not work from 9 to 5. They write when inspired whether it's 2 p.m. or 2 a.m. It's not unusual to find a musician or songwriter who doesn't know what day it is. Their lives are not dictated by clocks and calendars.

But you'll find a dedication to profession matched by few others. Find a couple of musicians engaged in idle chatter or relaxing over beers and the topic usually is music — not football or television or politics. And everybody in the music business reads the trade publications. There's at least one in every office.

Big stars like Loretta Lynn and Ernest Tubb are constantly on the road doing concerts — prisoners of their shiny touring buses. They are closely identified with Nashville, but, ironically, spend less time in Music City than on the interstates.

Recording artists, unlike those in most other professions, must endure the twisting tides of success. A journeyman plumber doesn't have to worry about his skills deserting him. But a singer must constantly make sure that the records keep selling. Jeannie C. Riley, for instance, recorded the classic "Harper Valley P.T.A." in 1968 but has had no record approaching its success since.

COOKING CORNER

Ann Uddberg, TV Cook, Shares Recipes

MSU-TV has added a new weekly segment to their regular "Focus" program. It is a cooking show currently featuring Ann Uddberg doing fast French cooking on Tuesdays between 5:00-5:30. The show exemplifies Ann's style and approach to good cooking. Because she spends her day at the Uddbergs' store, The Panhandler, and likes to entertain as well she depends upon recipes that can be partially prepared in advance and refrigerated or frozen until needed.

Her biggest advantage is in having homemade stock reduced and frozen ready to be used in sauces, soups, and in cooking meats. The taste and texture of homemade stock cannot be duplicated with bouillon cubes or canned broth. It is a bit of a bother to make it, but Ann always makes it in big batches so that she only has to go through the process a few times a year. Tart-ouille dough is also kept in her freezer for emergency use. Then with a few fresh ingredients she can whip up dinner in a hurry if necessary.

This confidence in the kitchen has evolved gradually since her marriage. As a new bride she had one stock company dinner menu, which was fine until it came time to entertain the same people for the second time. Husband Jack, on the other hand, was an accomplished cook who enjoyed dinner parties and expected his food well prepared. Together they developed new menus and experimented on good friends.

Ann was also motivated to spend a year learning the techniques of French cooking under the tutelage of Master Chef John Snowden. And she got accustomed to having people around her while she cooked, making meal preparation a very social occasion. Therefore, guests and friends often find themselves in the kitchen chatting and helping.

The TV audience is just like having friends in the kitchen, and Ann is trying to make the point with her show that there are no mysteries and nothing to be nervous about in preparing all kinds of dishes. Ann is an avid cookbook collector and because of the nature of her business, is always trying something new from a new source. She likes to be able to point out especially good recipes in each book she sells. One of her newest favorites is "From Julia Child's Kitchen," which she finds very adaptable to her life-style.

For dinner parties, which both Ann and Jack, a stock broker for I. M. Simon & Company, plan, the menu usually revolves around chicken or fish. The recipe included in today's column for Sole Almondine is a favorite. Because of the small size of their dining room they find that three couples make an ideal size for a dinner party. However, they also enjoy doing buffets or setting up small tables in the living room for larger crowds. They do like to vary their guest lists and mix people who might not know each other.

Ann reports that the chillest dinner party she ever attended was one where she and Jack were the only non-dentists present. Conversation was virtually all shop talk, and this can happen with any group—be it predominately farmers, bankers, or school teachers. Ann breaks all the rules and fearlessly tries one in a few surprises each year. One year it was leaf mints in fall colors at the end of the meal, last year it was the addition of both cranberry bread and sweet potato bread to go with the prescribed sour dough rolls.

A carry over from Ann's childhood, which she likes to continue doing each year, is to have the youngest child present make the placecards for the dinner table. Construction paper, appropriate stickers, and colored pens are provided. The results are always festive, imaginative, and conversation pieces the guests may take home.

This year Ann's family from Iowa will join them as well as various relatives in the Murray area. The Uddbergs' have enjoyed Murray so much in the short time they have been residents they are anxious to show off their new hometown. Today Ann is sharing some of her fast TV recipes and wishes you all a "Bon Appetite."

Filling
2 T. minced shallots or scallions
6 T. whole unsalted butter, softened
 $\frac{1}{2}$ c. ground almonds salt, pepper, lemon juice
Sauce
 $\frac{1}{2}$ c. almond flakes, browned lightly in oven
1 T. minced shallots or

scallions
 $\frac{1}{2}$ c. fish stock or bottled clam juice
2 T. unbleached, all-purpose flour
 $1\frac{1}{2}$ T. soft butter
 $\frac{1}{2}$ c. heavy cream
Fillet of Sole for 4 people (1-2 large size per person or 2-3 small ones) Sprigs of fresh parsley for decoration.
Each Thanksgiving since their marriage Ann and Jack have hosted the family dinner. Usually they have a dozen or more assorted relatives in attendance. Ann feels that Thanksgiving is one of the easiest meals of the year, because all the good cooks in the family contribute to the meal, making it very easy on the hostess. The menu itself is traditional. Ann does squeeze

Soak frozen filets briefly in milk to freshen. Drain and squeeze out as much moisture as possible. Score the white side of the filets lightly to prevent curling during cooking. Season each fillet lightly with salt and pepper. Spread 1-2 t. sauce, fold each fillet once from end to end and arrange in a buttered baking dish so that they slightly overlap. Sprinkle with shallots and a dusting of salt and pepper. Pour wine around the fish and enough juice or stock to almost cover the fish. Top with heavily buttered wax paper.

This is a convenient place to stop, and keep fish in refrigerator until needed.
To cook: bring stock and wine to a simmer on top of the stove. Immediately place baking dish in 350-deg. oven and bake for 8-10 minutes. Drain the cooking liquid into a saucepan and rapidly reduce to $\frac{1}{2}$ c. Drain fish again pouring juices into reduced stock. Blend flour and butter together into a beurre manie in a small dish. Remove liquid from heat and with a whisk add the beurre manie a bit at a time. When blended bring to a boil stirring constantly. Thin out with spoonfuls of cream. The sauce should be just thick enough to coat a spoon. Season carefully with salt and pepper and lemon. Add almond flakes, and remaining almond butter. Spoon sauce over fish. Decorate with sprigs of parsley and serve at once. A lovely light supper, luncheon dish, or the fish course for a formal dinner.

FRENCH ONION SOUP

 $1\frac{1}{2}$ c. thinly sliced onions pinch of sugar
2 T. clarified butter
1 clove garlic, finely minced
 $1\frac{1}{2}$ T. unbleached flour
1 oz. cognac or brandy
 $1\frac{1}{2}$ c. beef stock
 $1\frac{1}{2}$ c. chicken stock
1-3rd. c. dry vermouth or white wine salt, black pepper, nutmeg, and Worcestershire Sauce
4 slices French bread or rusks
Grated Gruyere (Swiss may be substituted) and Parmesan cheese, natural NOT processed.

Slowly brown the onions in butter. Add sugar and garlic. Sprinkle with flour and cook at least 3 minutes. Raise the heat and add the cognac. Ignite and let burn down. Add the stocks. Cover and bring soup to a boil. Let simmer 20 minutes.
Cool and refrigerate over night to mellow flavor. Reheat and season to taste. Add the wine or vermouth, and Gruyere cheese. Butter both sides of the bread rounds. Dip into the Parmesan cheese. Place on cookie sheet under the broiler for a few minutes until golden brown on both sides. Place one round in each bowl. Ladle on the hot soup. Place under the broiler momentarily until cheese is bubbly.

Sprinkle top with chopped parsley. Serve at once.
(It is not necessary to clear stock for onion soup)
Serves nicely for supper with a salad and fresh bread. It may be used for the soup course in a formal dinner, but traditionally this is not done. It is a bit hardy to be merely one of several courses.

"QUICHE"

Pate A Fonceur Fine The Crust makes 3-9" crusts
 $3\frac{3}{4}$ c. flour
 $1\frac{1}{4}$ c. (10 oz.) butter, softened to ointment consistency
 $\frac{1}{2}$ c. water
3 oz. sugar
 $1\frac{1}{2}$ t. salt
Spread the flour in a ring on the table. Put the butter, egg, water, sugar and salt in the center of the ring. Mix just the ingredients in the center with your hand. When completely combined begin incorporating the flour in a circular motion with your hand, mixing from all sides. Knead the paste and roll it into a ball.

Refrigerate until ready to use. Should be wrapped in plastic, not aluminum foil.
The dough may be kept in refrigerator up to a week, well wrapped or frozen up to 6 months.

The Filling

3 "jumbo" eggs
(For liquid quiches, (i.e. cheese) bacon, onion, mushroom, or ham)
Approximately $\frac{1}{2}$ c. heavy cream
(For solid or pureed fillings, ie spinach, chicken livers, or crab)
Approximately $\frac{1}{4}$ c. light cream
Salt
Pepper
Nutmeg
 $1\frac{1}{2}$ T. butter

Roll out pastry dough and place in appropriate pan. Rub the bottom with softened butter or egg whites to seal. This prevents the crust from becoming soggy when served. Mix eggs, cream, and seasonings well. Place the grated cheese (never more than $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. per quiche), onion, spinach or whatever in the shell. Add the cream mixture. Be careful not to "top" the crust. It is always better to have too little liquid than too much. If more liquid is needed, add a bit more cream directly to the quiche. Dice the $1\frac{1}{2}$ T. butter over the top of the quiche.

Bake in preheated 425-deg. oven for 15 minutes, the reduce the temperature to 300-deg. for about 40 minutes.

The quiche filling will swell as it cooks and then recede. It is done when the cake tester comes out clean. Do not overcook as it then becomes tough.

Serve Quiche as a first course, or it is especially nice as a luncheon dish. For cocktails cut into small bite size pieces that are easy to nibble. Completed quiche may be frozen. Do not thaw, but place directly in 425-deg. oven until warmed through.

QUICK AND EASY LIVER PATE makes 2 cups

1 lb. chicken livers
1 small onion
2 ribs celery
1 hardboiled egg
3 oz. whole unsalted butter
1 oz. Madeira, Brandy, Cognac, or sherry salt, pepper, nutmeg, cloves clarified butter

Slide chicken livers into gently boiling salted water and simmer until done. Drain and set aside. Chop onion and celery coarsely and saute in clarified butter, until barely soft. Alternately put livers, vegetables, and egg through the fine blade of a meat grinder. To the ground mixture, add softened butter, the liqueur, and season to taste with salt, pepper, ground cloves and nutmeg.

Serve chilled with freshly baked French bread or unsalted crackers. Traditionally French pickles are served as an accompaniment and are a snack.

nice touch of color and crispness.
Use clarified butter to seal top of pate' if not used at once. It will keep this way up to a week under good refrigeration.
Pate' may be served as an appetizer, first course at a formal dinner, or a light
