A Conversation with Judge Caka Nimani and Judge Yudkivska: Perspectives from the European Court of Human Rights and the Kosovo Constitutional Court

- 12:30 pm; 3130 Eck Hall of Law
- International and foreign tribunals play crucial roles in upholding the rule of law around the world and in specific nation states. Set up in 1959, the European Court of Human Rights is an international court based in Strasbourg that rules on individual or State applications alleging violations of the civil and political rights set out in the European Convention on Human Rights. The Court's case-law makes the Convention a modern and powerful living instrument for meeting challenges and consolidating the rule of law and democracy in Europe. The Kosovo Constitutional Court is the final authority in the Republic of Kosovo for the interpretation of the Constitution and the compliance of laws with the Constitution. As a relatively young court, established shortly after Kosovo's independence in 2009, it provides a tangible and timely example of the important role a foreign tribunal can play in the maintenance of the rule of law and the continuance of a country's institutions. Join Judge Gresa Caka-Nimani, the President of the Constitutional Court of the Republic of Kosovo and Judge Ganna Yudkivska, Ukraine's Judge at the European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR), as they share their perspectives on their work, the role of their courts, and insights into opportunities to clerk for international and foreign tribunals. The Skillet will be served for lunch.

SPORT REPORT:

Good morning NDLS,

This will be a short and sweet (actually that one is a lie, I've never been sweet in one of these) installments as I am currently writing it in between flights post-LSU game. Once again, a pretty boring weekend but we had some playoff ripples. Chief among them – Oklahoma finally lost!!! Thank you Baylor. Now we don't have to waste another playoff game watching OU get exposed as the team where players' championship dreams go to die. Michigan v Penn State was a good one, although the entire first half was a completion between the O lines to try and see who could protect their QB the least. Realistically, Michigan should've won by a larger margin given how Sean Clifford spent the entire game sprinting away (unsuccessfully) from defenders. This game should remove James Franklin from both the USC and LSU coaching conversations but both schools are more than capable of making a horrendous hire so I'm not holding my breath. ND keeps looking better as the season progresses but Cinci/Ohio State/Michigan/Bama all got style points this weekend so I don't have much hope in our upwards trajectory.

I'm gonna switch to the NFL to say that I'm genuinely so sad for the entire city of Detroit. We've been knowing that management is actively trying to sabotage the team (literally trading for /Jared Goff/ was basically them publicly saying we do not plan on winning anything) but that Steelers game was literally painful to watch. Spoiler alert but I'm pretty sure season one of Ted Lasso is literally currently playing out in Detroit..

Geaux Irish,

Ashley

1L OF THE WEEK:

Our 1L of the Week is Rita Lake! We love Rita's adorable doggo, Rocky. I'm starting to think every law student should have a dog? Imagine receiving a puppy with your acceptance letter instead of a scarf. Idk think about @ Dean Cole. Anyways, say hi to Rita when you see her this week and ask her how she's handling this snow.

Q. Where are you from/where did you attend undergrad?

I attended undergrad at UCSB. Definitely missing it a little more after the first snow :'(

Q. What's your favorite time of day?

My favorite time of day is probably sunrise because if I'm awake to see it, good things are probably happening that day!

Q. What's one trait you're a sucker for in a partner?

Am I allowed to say hot? I mean ... who doesn't love a good hottie!?

Q. What's better: Thanksgiving or Christmas dinner?

If I'm going to someone else's dinner, definitely Thanksgiving. But Christmas dinner at my mom's is the best. I'm a sucker for soup and she makes the best soups.

Q. Finish this sentence... I wouldn't be mad if _____.

I wouldn't be mad if we had a snow day. I know Indiana doesn't give 'em out too much, but my snow scraper from Amazon hasn't arrived yet and something's gotta give.

Q. Should professors take attendance in law school?

Everyone is going to hate me for this but yes. Cold call me. Take attendance. Do something or I will not come even at the slightest inconvenience.

Q. What's the most unnecessary invention ever made?

The Easy Bake Oven. Just use a real oven. (is it obvious that I'm bitter about never getting one?)

Q. Is Taylor Swift dramatic?

Nope, I haven't gotten over things from ten years ago either. At least she's a millionaire because of it!

Q. Anything you'd like to say to your fans?

Come up to me and say hi! If we haven't met yet, I hope me n Rocky get the chance to next semester :)

Q. Who should be next week's 1L of the week?

Anthony Krempa.

2Ls TAKING Ls:

This week's "2l taking Ls" story comes from the nicest human being in our law school, Janae Yip. Even though Janae may have poor taste in men, she makes up for it with excellent taste in best friends. Find her complaining about her splat points at the next Orange Theory class, and afterwards, grab her a large McDonald's vanilla iced latte with extra ice.

Now for our feature presentation:

Over fall break, I flew to Vancouver, Canada to see my grandparents. I had already gotten a negative COVID test before flying, so I was expecting just to cruise through the border.

But, somehow, I got chosen for random surveillance testing when I arrived. It was a really thorough test where the nurse did the swabbing. She stuck the swab up my nose and my nose suddenly started gushing blood. I've always had bloody noses, ever since I was young, but never of this magnitude. The nurse jumped up frantically and yelled for two large men dressed in hazmat suits to come over. They escorted me to a secluded corner of the airport, put me behind a glass screen, and handed me ice packs, tissues, and gauze pads. They also called over a doctor and custom agent while I tried to explain to them that this was normal for me.

Overall, I sat in the corner for an hour and a half before the bleeding stopped and I was allowed to leave. Needless to say, my friend who was picking me up from the airport was not very happy with the delay.

Laura Mahoney, you're next.

ASK A 3L:

This week's 3L feature is the queen of bar review, Jess Wolfert!!! You can thank Jess for missing any Friday morning classes this semester or any wonderful decisions made past 2 AM on a Thursday. Thank Jess when you see her at the next nonsponsored SBA social gathering:)

Question(s) & Answers:

Q. Describe your perfect man, is he an NDLS grad?

3L Advice: My love language is acts of service, so my perfect man is one who understands that. Hypothetically speaking, he may enlist in the military 1 week after we meet, "convince" me to take a 10 day ~staycation and then move 800 miles away. He probably is not an NDLS grad, but would definitely be intimately familiar with South Bend and the surrounding area. Go cavemen!!

Q. Heard you're really into reviewing for the bar. What bar exam prep course would you recommend?

3L Advice: Great question—bar prep is a topic I take very seriously. My only advice re: the bar exam is to pretend it doesn't exist until the June after you graduate. As for prep courses, I'm doing Themis for no reason other than everyone was talking about Barbri and I'm not a follower ☹️. Personally, I'm most excited to reunite with Constitutional Law during bar prep. Some people have said that I excelled tremendously in that area as a 1L. (Note: Unfortunately, none of those people were Professor Bray).

Q. Given that you won't allow bar review to be at the Linebacker, can you explain why you were there after Fall Ball anyway? .

3L Advice: Y'all are really tryna give me wrinkles over the Linebacker, but since my Botox is putting in work, I'll happily explain. I'm pro-choice on most issues, including the bars you want to attend on your ~own~ time. In my own time, I try to support many local establishments! Some of my personal favorites include: Raising Cane's Chicken Fingers, Strikes & Spares and yes, the Linebacker. On your ~own~ time, I would encourage all of you to explore what South Bend has to offer, especially the ND promotional towels—very tasty (see above)! (Note: Thursday nights are not your own time).

Submit your questions to next week's 3L, Phil "Phi Phi" Klindt, below.
(questions are anonymous)
