Issue Authors

Toran Hansen is an Assistant Professor of Conflict Analysis and Resolution at Nova Southeastern University. He has written a variety of articles in peer-reviewed journals on the topics of social movements, social justice, social networks, social capital, and conflict transformation. He has written a book set to be released by Lexington Books in December 2012 entitled The Generalist Approach to Conflict Resolution.

Karen Ross is a doctoral candidate in Education Policy Studies and in Inquiry Methodology at Indiana University. Her work and research focus on conceptual and methodological issues at the nexus of education, peace building, dialogue, and social activism. Email: ross26@indiana.edu

Ibrahim Sharqieh is a Foreign Policy Fellow at the Brookings Institution and Deputy Director of the Brookings Doha Center. Sharqieh previously served as senior project director at AED (2006-2010), where he managed international development projects in several Arab countries including Yemen and Qatar. He also served as an academic advisor to the Embassy of the United Arab Emirates in Washington, D.C. and taught International Conflict Resolution at The George Washington, George Mason, and Catholic universities. He has published extensively on Conflict Resolution and Mediation in the MENA region and is a frequent commentator on news channels, including NPR, CNN, Aljazeera (English & Arabic), BBC, France24, and CCTV. Maureen Flaherty is an assistant professor of Peace and Conflict Studies at University of Manitoba, Canada. Sonya Stavkova is an instructor at the Lviv Polytechnic University in the Department of Sociology and Social Work. She is also a professional interpreter for English/Ukrainian language and is also fluent in Russian. The authors worked together from 2001-2004 on a Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) funded project, Reforming Social Services: Canada-Ukraine during which they helped establish a new Faculty of Social Work and numerous social services in Lviv, Ukraine. Since, they have conducted workshops for service providers in Ukraine and more recently worked together on a participatory study using narrative and visioning as peacebuilding tools across diverse regions in Ukraine. They hope that their reflections on their work together may assist in furthering peacebuilding cross-language/cross-cultural work.
