Article 1. This Law has been formulated to improve and perfect the labor contract system, to make explicit the rights and obligations of both parties of the labor contract, to protect the lawful rights and interests of laborers and to build and develop harmonious and stable labor relationships.

Article 2. This law is applicable to enterprises, individual economic entities and private non-enterprise organizations (“Units”) that establish labor relationships and conclude, perform, modify, dissolve, or terminate labor contracts with laborers in the People's Republic of China.

This law is also applicable to state authorities, public institutions and social organizations that establish labor relationships and conclude, perform, modify, dissolve and terminate labor contracts with laborers.

Article 3. When a Unit and a laborer conclude a labor contract, they shall abide by the principles of legitimacy, fairness, equality, voluntariness, unanimity through consultation and good faith.

A labor contract that is lawfully concluded shall instantly become legally binding, and both the Unit and the laborer shall perform their respective obligations there under.

Article 4. Units shall establish and improve labor rules and regulations, so as to ensure that labor rights of the laborers are safeguarded and laborers perform according to their labor obligations.

When a Unit formulates, revises or decides on rules and regulations or material matters that have a direct bearing on the immediate interests of its laborers concerning labor remuneration, working hours, rest and vacations, occupational safety and health, insurance and welfare, employee training, working discipline or work quota management, etc. the same shall be discussed by the assembly of laborers' representatives or all the laborers. The assembly of laborers' representatives or all the laborers, as the case may be, shall put forward a proposal and comments, whereupon the matter shall be determined through negotiations with the labor union or employee representatives conducted on a basis of equality.

If, during the implementation of a Unit's rule or regulation, the labor union or a laborer is of the opinion that the rule or regulation is inappropriate, it or he is entitled to communicate such opinion to the Unit, and the rule or regulation shall be improved by making modifications after consultations.

A Unit's rules and regulations that have a direct bearing on the immediate interests of the laborers shall be announced within its organization or distributed to the laborers.

Article 5. The Labor Administration Department of people's governments at the county level and higher, together with the labor union at the same level and enterprise representatives, shall establish a comprehensive tri-partite mechanism for the coordination of labor relationships, in order to jointly study and resolve major issues concerning labor relationships.

Article 6. Labor unions shall assist and guide laborers in the conclusion of labor contracts with their Units and the performance thereof in accordance with the law, and shall safeguard the legitimate rights and interests of laborers.

CHAPTER 2. CONCLUSION OF LABOR CONTRACTS

Article 7. The labor relationship between the Unit and the laborer is established on the date when the laborer is recruited and/or works in the Unit. The Unit shall establish a worker recruitment register for future reference and review.

Article 8. When a Unit concludes a labor contract with a laborer, it shall truthfully inform him as to the content of the work, the working conditions, the work site, occupational hazards, production safety conditions, labor remuneration and other matters the laborer wishes to know. The Unit has the right to know basic information about the laborer which directly relates to the labor contract, and the laborer shall truthfully provide the information.

Article 9. When hiring a laborer, a Unit may not require him to provide any guarantee or collect property from the laborer as collateral, nor may it retain the laborer's resident identification card or other papers.

Article 10. To establish a labor relationship, a written labor contract shall be signed.

In the event that a labor relationship has been established but the Unit and the laborer have not concluded a written labor contract, a written labor contract shall be concluded within one month after the date the Unit starts using the laborer.

In the event that a labor contract is reached before the laborer starts working, the labor relationship is established on the date the laborer starts working.

Article 11. In the event that a Unit fails to conclude a written labor contract with a laborer when carrying out the employment formalities, and it is not clear what labor remuneration is or has been agreed upon with the laborer, the labor remuneration of the newly recruited laborer shall be decided pursuant to the standard specified in the collective contract. Where there is no collective contract or the collective contract does not specify, the Unit shall give the laborer equal pay for equal work.

Article 12. Labor contracts are divided into three types: fixed term labor contract, non-fixed term labor contract and project-based labor contract based on the completion of a specific amount of work.

Article 13. A "fixed term labor contract" is a labor contract whose termination date is agreed upon by the Unit and the laborer.

A Unit and a laborer may conclude a fixed term labor contract upon reaching a negotiated consensus.

Article 14. A "non-fixed term labor contract" is a labor contract for which the Unit and the laborer have agreed not to stipulate a termination date.

A Unit and a laborer may conclude a non-fixed term labor contract upon reaching a negotiated consensus. If a laborer proposes to or agrees to renew his labor contract under any of the following circumstances, except when the laborer proposes to sign a fixed term labor contract, a non-fixed term labor contract shall be concluded:

- (1) the laborer has been working in the Unit for a consecutive period of no less than 10 years;
- (2) when his Unit introduces the labor contract system or the state-owned enterprise that employs him re-concludes its labor contracts as a result of restructuring, the laborer has been working for the Unit for a consecutive period of no less than 10 years or is less than 10 years away from his statutory retirement age; or
- (3) the renewal occurs after the consecutive conclusion of two fixed term labor contracts and the laborer does not fall under any of the circumstances specified in Article 39 or the first and second items of Article 40 of this Law.

If the Unit fails to sign a written labor contract with the laborer within one year of the establishment of the labor relationship, it will be considered that the Unit has already signed a non-fixed term contract with the laborer.

Article 15. A labor contract whose term is based on the completion of a specific amount of work is a labor contract in which the Unit and the laborer have agreed that the completion of a certain job completes the term of the labor contract.

After consultation and agreement, the Unit may reach a contract with a laborer whose term is based on the completion of a specific project or amount of work

Article 16. A labor contract shall become effective when the Unit and the laborer have reached a negotiated consensus thereon and each of them has signed or sealed the text of such contract.

The Unit and the laborer shall each hold one copy of the labor contract.

Article 17. A labor contract shall specify the following clauses:

- (1) the name, residence and legal representative or senior leadership in charge of the Unit;
- (2) the name, residence and resident identification card number or other valid identification documents of the laborer;

- (3) the term of the labor contract;
- (4) the job description and the work site;
- (5) working hours, rest and vacation;
- (6) labor remuneration;
- (7) social insurance;
- (8) labor protection, working conditions and occupational hazard prevention; and
- (9) other matters which laws and regulations require to be included in labor contracts.

In addition to the requisite clauses mentioned above, a Unit and a laborer may agree to stipulate other matters in the labor contract, such as probation period, training, confidentiality of trade secrets, supplementary insurance and benefits, etc.

Article 18. If a dispute arises due to the fact that the rate or standards for labor remuneration or working conditions, etc. are not explicitly specified in the labor contract, the Unit and the laborer may renegotiate. If the negotiations are unsuccessful, the provisions of the collective contract shall be applied. If there is no collective contract or the collective contract is silent on the labor remuneration rate, the Unit should offer the laborer equal pay for equal work; if there is no collective contract or the collective contract is silent on the working condition standards, the relevant regulations of the state shall be applied.

Article 19. If a labor contract has a term of less than one year, the probation period may not exceed one month; if a labor contract has a term of more than one year and less than three years, the probation period may not exceed two months; and if a labor contract has a term of no less than three years or is non-fixed, the probation period may not exceed six months.

A Unit may stipulate only one probation period with any given laborer.

A probation period shall not be stipulated in a contract whose term is based on the completion of a specific amount of work or is less than three months.

If a labor contract provides for a probation period only or if the term of the probation period is the same as that of the labor contract, such probation period shall be invalid and the term concerned shall be the term of the labor contract.

Article 20. During the probation period, the wages of a laborer may not be less than the lowest wage paid for the equivalent job post within the Unit or less than 80 percent of the wage agreed upon in the labor contract, nor may it be lower than the minimum wage standard of the employing Unit site.

Article 21. During the probation period, a Unit may not dissolve a labor contract unless there is evidence proving that the laborer meets any of the conditions specified in Article 39 or the first and second items of Article 40 of this Law. If a Unit dissolves a labor contract during the probation period, it shall explain the reasons to the laborer.

Article 22. If the Unit pays for specific vocational training expenses and provides the laborer with professional vocational training, it may sign an agreement with the laborer agreeing upon a term of service.

If the laborer breaches the agreement on the term of service, he shall pay damages to the Unit as agreed. The amount of the damages stipulated for breach of the agreement on the term of service may not exceed the training expenses paid by the Unit. In the event of a breach, the damages paid by the laborer may not exceed the portion of the training expenses allocable to the unperformed portion of the term of service.

The Unit's gradual increase of the remuneration rate of the laborer during the term of service according to a normal wage adjustment mechanism shall not be influenced by an agreement on the term of service.

Article 23. A Unit and a laborer may include provisions concerning the safeguarding of trade secrets and intellectual property of the Unit in the labor contract.

If a laborer has an obligation to maintain the confidentiality of his Unit's trade secrets, the Unit may agree with the laborer on the inclusion of non-competition provisions in the labor contract or a separate confidentiality agreement, and stipulate that the Unit shall pay economic compensation to the laborer on a monthly basis during the term of non-competition after the termination of the labor contract. If the laborer breaches the non-competition provisions, he shall pay damages to the Unit as stipulated.

Article 24. The personnel subject to non-competition provisions shall be limited to the Unit's senior management, senior technicians and other personnel who have knowledge of trade secrets of the Unit. The scope, territory and term of the non-competition provisions shall be agreed upon by the Unit and the laborer, and such agreement shall not violate laws and regulations.

The term, beginning from the termination of the labor contract, for which a person shall be subject to non-competition provisions in terms of his working for a competing Unit that either produces the same type of products or is engaged in the same type of business as his current Unit, or in terms of his establishing his own business to produce products or engage in business competing with his current Unit's products or business, shall not exceed two years.

Article 25. With the exception of the circumstances specified in Articles 22 and 23 hereof, a Unit may not stipulate with a laborer damages which the laborer is required to bear.

Article 26. A labor contract shall be invalid or partially invalid if:

- (1) one party uses such means as fraud, coercion or taking advantage of the other party's unfavorable position to sign the labor contract against his or her genuine will;
- (2) the Unit disclaims its mandatory liability and denies the laborer his rights;
- (3) the labor contract violates laws or administrative regulations.

The invalidity or partial invalidity of a labor contract shall be confirmed by a Labor Dispute Arbitration institution or the People's Court.

Article 27. If certain provisions of a labor contract are invalid and such invalidity does not affect the validity of the remaining provisions, the remaining provisions shall still remain valid.

Article 28. If a labor contract is confirmed as invalid and the laborer has already performed labor, the Unit shall pay the laborer labor remuneration. The amount of labor remuneration shall be determined with reference to the labor remuneration of laborers in the same or similar position with the Unit.

CHAPTER 3. PERFORMANCE AND MODIFICATION OF LABOR CONTRACTS

Article 29. The Unit and the laborer shall each fully perform its/his obligations in accordance with the labor contract.

Article 30. Units shall pay labor remuneration on time and in full accordance with state regulations and the labor contract.

If a Unit is in arrears or fails to make full payment for the labor remuneration of a laborer, the laborer may apply to the local People's Court for an order to pay. The People's Court ought to issue an order to pay under law.

Article 31. Units shall strictly implement the work quota standards and may not force laborers to work a disguised form of overtime. If a Unit arranges for a laborer to work overtime, it shall pay him overtime pay in accordance with the relevant state regulations.

Article 32. It is not regarded as a breach of the labor contract if the laborer refuses to perform dangerous operations which violate regulations as directed or ordered by management staff of the Unit.

Laborers have the right to criticize, report to the authorities or lodge accusations concerning working conditions that endanger their lives or health.

Article 33. A change in the name, the legal representative, the main person in charge, investor, or the registered or recorded particulars of a Unit shall not affect the performance of its labor contracts.

Article 34. If a Unit is merged or divided, etc., its existing labor contracts shall remain valid and continue to be performed by the Unit(s) which assumes its rights and obligations.

Article 35. A Unit and a laborer may modify the provisions of their labor contract if they so agree after consultations. When a labor contract is modified, the amended provisions shall be recorded in written form.

The Unit and the laborer shall each hold one copy of the modified contract.

CHAPTER 4. TERMINATION AND DISSOLUTION OF LABOR CONTRACTS

Article 36. A Unit and a laborer may dissolve their labor contract if they so unanimously agree after consultations.

Article 37. A laborer may dissolve his labor contract by giving 30 days notice in writing to his Unit. During his probation period, a laborer may dissolve his labor contract at any time by informing his Unit.

If a Unit uses violence, intimidation or unlawful restriction of personal freedom to compel a laborer to work, or if a laborer is instructed in violation of rules and regulations or peremptorily ordered by his Unit to perform dangerous operations which will endanger his personal safety, the laborer may dissolve his labor contract forthwith without giving prior notice to the Unit.

(3) a major change in the objective circumstances relied upon at the time of conclusion of the labor contract hinders continued fulfillment of the original contract and, after consultations, the Unit and laborer are unable to reach agreement on amending the labor contract.

Article 41. If any of the following circumstances obstruct implementation of the labor contract and make it necessary to reduce the workforce by 20 persons or more or by a number of persons that is less than 20 but accounts for 10 percent or more of the total number of the enterprise's employees, the Unit shall explain the circumstances to its labor union or to all of its employees 30 days in advance, and it may reduce the workforce after considering the opinions of the labor union or the employees and subsequently reporting the workforce reduction plan to the labor administration department:

Article 48. If a Unit dissolves or terminates a labor contract in violation of this Law and the laborer demands continued performance of such contract, the Unit shall continue performing under the contract.
