TO THE ALUMNI OF THE ST. LOUIS MEDICAL COLLEGE:

Every effort has been made to make this list of the alumni as complete and accurate as possible, but no attempt has been made to give a complete history of each alumnus. When personal information of the graduates has been used, it has been the endeavor to show something of the line of work in which the alumnus has labored, rather than to convey all his special attainments.

Competitive examinations for hospital positions have been held each year since 1877 by the Board of Health of the city. All of our alumni who have been thus appointed or who have served as assistants in the City Hospital have been, so far as can be ascertained, credited with this honorable mention. More than fifty-two per cent of all the positions so awarded have been given to the graduates of the St. Louis Medical College. (See last page.)

Great credit is due to the painstaking efforts of Dr. Joseph Grindon in revising the list and in seeking to find the present address of the graduates. Dr. G. Baumgarten has carefully examined the records of the Faculty for the list of those who have held official positions as teachers in the College. This list is accurate, but it does not include the names of some who have rendered important service in the clinics of the various hospitals at some time connected with the institution, or of all of those who have served in some capacity in connection with the out-clinics of the College. Valuable work has often been rendered where official recognition has not been a matter of record. Dr. John B. Shapleigh has rendered valuable services in revising and correcting the proof.

The delay in the publication has not been due to any fault on the part of Mr. Waterman, but rather to the many difficulties encountered in the work.

The pictures of the three buildings which the College has successively occupied during its life, indicate the modest pretensions of its early efforts, and suggest something of the greatly increased equipment demanded of a modern medical college with a graded course of four years' study. The new college building was erected by the "Medical Fund Society" in 1892. It is commodious and well planned, and liberally provided with laboratories, lecture halls, amphitheatres, and clinic rooms; and its laboratories are fully supplied with abundant apparatus for the use of both teacher and student.

The following extracts from an Historical Address, delivered by Dr. G. Baumgarten at the semi-centennial anniversary of the College in 1892, present many of the important facts in the history of the College:

"On the fourteenth day of October, 1841, the Board and Faculty of St. Louis University enacted the constitution of a Medical Department, and by this act created the institution later known as the St. Louis Medical College. Its organization was perfected on the eighth of October, 1842, when a (non-sectarian) Board of Trustees—among whose members I need mention in this place only the cherished names of James H. Lucas, its first president, Col. John O'Fallon, and the Reverend William Greenleaf Eliot—took charge of it and confirmed the Faculty already appointed by the University. This original Faculty of the Medical Department of St. Louis University consisted of Drs. Josephus Wells Hall, Hiram Augustus Prout, James Vance Prather, Daniel Brainard, of Chicago, Ill., and Moses Lewis Linton, of Springfield, Ky. This Faculty began the instruction in medicine in a small house on the north side of Washington avenue, between Tenth and Eleventh streets, owned by the dean, Dr. Prather; they delivered a course of lectures in the winter of 1842-43, the first of the fifty annual courses now completed, and conferred the degree of Doctor of Medicine on the first graduating class of six.

“Before the next session, vacancies caused by the resignation of Drs. Prout and Brainard were filled by Dr. Abram Litton, of Nashville, Tenn., Dr. Joseph Granville Norwood, of Madison, Iowa, and Dr. Charles Alexander Pope. With the farther addition, in the following year, of Dr. Moses Montrose Pallen, the Faculty was reorganized more definitely, and separate chairs were charged with the teaching of chemistry and of anatomy—the two branches for excellence in which this school soon became pre-eminent among its compeers in the Mississippi Valley. This Faculty now had the use of a small college building, erected for the purpose by Dr. Prather, on the same lot on Washington avenue—a structure which survived till our own day (1890), when it shared the fate of the old buildings of the St. Louis University.

“During the next few years, numerous changes took place in the teaching body, Drs. Hall, Norwood and Prather resigning, and Drs. Henry M. Bullitt, of Louisville, Ky., James Blake, of London, England, Thomas Reyburn, Robert Simpson Holmes, William M. McPheeters, David Prince, of Springfield, Ill., and Willis Greene Edwards, at various times filling chairs in the Faculty, over which Dr. Linton and Dr. Pope successively presided as dean. The school had meanwhile outgrown its modest quarters on Washington avenue, and in 1849 entered a new home erected by Col. John O’Fallon on the northeast corner of Seventh and Myrtle streets (now Clark avenue), which afforded such space and accommodations as were suited to the methods of teaching in vogue at that day and to the constantly growing classes. The new college building, architecturally one of the conspicuous edifices in the city at that time, provided two large lecture rooms, a well-stocked museum, two large anatomical rooms, and a small physical and chemical laboratory for the professor of chemistry. * * *

“The now prosperous school at this time, impelled chiefly by reasons growing out of the pressure of the so-called “Know Nothing” movement in politics, was induced to sever its connection with the St. Louis University and to take an independent position. This end was attained by the incorporation of the school, which assumed the name of the ST. LOUIS MEDICAL COLLEGE, under a charter granted by the legislature of the State of Missouri, approved February 23, 1855. Under its new charter and name, to which the public renown of its dean had already added the popular by-name of ‘Pope’s College,’ it had the fostering care of the same Board of Trustees which governed it under the former regime. Among the new members at that time added to its roll I may not omit to mention Mr. James E. Yeatman and Judge Nathaniel Holmes. * * *

“With the achievement of prosperity and independence marked by the new charter and the new name, the childhood of the school may be said to have ended, and a career of youthful vigor begun that has defined its character and led to notable results.

“Under such circumstances, the personality of the teachers was of far greater importance than the contents of their instruction. What was lacking in method was supplied in a measure by their individual enthusiasm and industry, in many cases with conspicuous success. Instruction was concentrated in the lecture, and the force of the teaching lay in the impressiveness of the lecturer. The St. Louis Medical College was most fortunate in its personnel. Who that sat at the feet of those teachers does not remember the quick, impulsive precision of the elegant Pope; the clear, convictive demonstration of the pure-hearted, conscientious Litton; the philosophic condensation and homely rhetoric of Linton, the lucid anatomical descriptions of the genial Stevens, the ponderous logic of Watters, and the impressive eloquence and pathos of Pallen? The anatomical rooms were filled with ardent pupils, whose enthusiasm was kindled by the excellent demonstrators. The management of the school was intrusted to Dr. Charles Alexander Pope, renowned as a brilliant surgeon and beautiful operator, whose talent for command expressed itself outwardly in his noble physique, the grace and quickness of his movements, the terseness and precision of his language, and whose enthusiasm in the cause of medicine made him conspicuous among his colleagues.

“While the war of the rebellion did not interfere with the regular instruction in the College, nor with its prosperity, it led to a number of changes in the Faculty through the departure of some members from the city. Among those who filled their places, the College remembers with gratitude and pride the honored name of John Thompson Hodgen, who, on September 15th, 1862, was called to the chair of physiology, and was soon to take the helm in the capacity of dean.

“Let us stay a moment with his memory. Dr. Hodgen was during his later years one of the chief surgeons of the Mississippi Valley. In diagnostic ability, in soundness of judgment, in readiness of decision and fertility of resource, he lacked compeers. It was these qualities, together with his indefatigable industry, his unusual physical endurance, his firmness and rare executive ability, that made his deanship an important epoch in the history of our school. It lasted from 1864 to 1882, when death overtook him in the midst of his daily labors, such as only he knew how to compress into the twenty-four hour period, in the prime of his years, covered with all the honors our profession has in store. It was during his regime and with his powerful support that the College took the important step in reforming and advancing its method of instruction, which is its pride and glory to-day.

“The prolonged absence in Paris of Professor Pope also led to the entrance into the Faculty, in 1866, of our cherished senior surgeon, Dr. Elisha Hall Gregory, who delivered the lectures on surgery in place of Dr. Pope in 1864–65 and from 1866 to 1870, and thereafter, on the resignation of the latter, filled his chair.

“In 1866 the College allied to itself the Missouri Dental College, a sister institution that has endeared itself to us by loyally sharing the vicissitudes of our school for a quarter of a century. The specialty of dentistry, which may be said to have had its cradle and home in the United States, was in its origin and early traditions not a direct offspring of the institutions for medical education. But its natural position as a special branch of medicine and surgery was early recognized, as well as the need of a fundamental medical education in its practitioners; and the Missouri Dental College has the merit of being the first American school of dentistry that sought to give its students a groundwork of medical science by close alliance with a medical school. Originally established (1866) under the auspices of the Missouri State Dental Association, and later (1881) operating under an independent charter, it has now (1892) become the Dental Department of Washington University. After years of arduous work and poorly requited labor, after gradual but great changes in the direction of progress, and lengthening its course of teaching to three annual sessions, it has reached its present position of eminence and prosperity—a dental school of the first rank.

“The death of Dr. Pope, in 1870, who some years before had inherited the college building on Seventh street as a source of revenue to himself, made it necessary to acquire the building by purchase. This was done by an association composed of members of the Faculty, but which holds the property acquired in trust to be devoted forever to the teaching of medical science—the Medical Fund Society. Its plan of organization was devised by the legal adviser of the College, the Hon. Henry Hitchcock, whose kind and thoughtful services will ever be held in grateful remembrance for having led, together with the generosity and self-denial of the members of the Society, to the position of independence and virtual endowment which this institution holds to-day. The term endowment is used advisedly; for the property of this school is not held individually, but is a perpetual and inalienable property of the society founded by the wise forethought of its legal counselor; the unparalleled fact being that the permanent endowment of a school has come, not from the patronage of wealthy fellow-citizens, but from the devotion and self-sacrifice of its own corps of teachers.*

“In April, 1876, the Faculty directed that a voluntary graded course of three years be offered to such students as would avail themselves of it. The offer was accepted at once by a large percentage of the class, and in 1880 the majority of the students pursued their studies according to the new plan. Encouraged by the excellent results obtained, as shown by the greater proficiency of the graduates, which found expression in their greater success in competitive examination for hospital appointments as compared with those of other schools, the Faculty now decreed the abandonment of the old and wasteful methods of teaching, and matured the plan of education which the College had proposed to itself. From this date, April, 1880, the course of instruction has been divided into three years of progressive studies, and no student has been matriculated otherwise than for three years, and since March, 1882, no candidate has received the diploma of this school who had not followed medical instruction for three annual sessions.†

“On April 9, 1891, the St. Louis Medical College accepted the offer of alliance with Washington University as her Medical Department.

“As we have seen, the College was originally conceived and its early years were spent under the guardianship of a strong educational institution of this city, the St. Louis University. While political conditions gradually compelled a separation, the Faculty of the College has continued to feel the desirability of a university connection. In the history of medical education, evidence is not wanting of the consummate advantages to the student of a connection of the professional school with the school of general culture. Most of the great medical schools of the world have always been integrant departments of universities, and the examples which America furnishes give added testimony to the fructifying influence of the contact of students and teachers of professional schools with the workers in the universities. In our country, disconnection has tended distinctly towards degradation of medical teaching, and under this tendency the reputation of American medical schools has suffered severely. The lax provisions of the Missouri statutes, which require a degree from a medical school as a license to practice without defining the acquirements upon which the degree is to be based, have in our State so far removed the natural restraints upon abuses, so utterly banished the stimulus to perfection in teaching, that many modern colleges find their reward for inadequate work in the personal advertisement of their teachers through the self-conferred title of professor. The better schools, placed by the law of the State upon the same level with the most incompetent, must seek the attestation of their different rank elsewhere. Nearest at hand is the weight of authority of the great established centers of learning in the land, the universities, whose indorsement can serve as the outward sign of the standing of a professional school.

“Washington University has, from its organization, given expression to the demand of this community for liberal education of every kind. Through all the struggles of this city and State toward the higher development, it has sought, in a broad sense and upon a comprehensive plan, to

[†In June 1897, the College extended its curriculum still further, and decreed that a four years' graded course, of seven months each, is the necessary requirement for graduation to all matriculants after that date.]

[*In this connection I cannot forbear to mention the liberal gift of one thousand dollars which the College has lately received from the heirs of the lamented Wm. A. Hargadine, who but a few days before his sudden death made this unsolicited offering towards the fitting of the new college building. The gift is especially pleasing as from a friend whose interest in educational matters was great and well known, and bestowed as it was as an expression of his appreciation of the unselfish action of the faculty in creating the Medical Fund Society. Mr. Hargadine was the first to openly recognize that the twenty years' contributions of money and labor on the part of its members were acts of public utility and public concern.]

furnish that grade of educational training in all departments, which in our special profession the St. Louis Medical College has aimed at and succeeded in providing. The general purposes of the two institutions were as closely parallel as the sympathy between the men in control of them was natural and inevitable. That, in filling its medical department, the choice of the University should have fallen upon our school was to us an evidence of that appreciation which honest effort is always willing and happy to receive. The Faculty gladly accepted the alliance with Washington University because it will serve as a guaranty, to the profession and to the public, of thorough work. The circumstance that at the time we had reason to take pride in our independence and self-reliance made it all the more easy to enter into the compact. The strongest unions are dictated by choice rather than necessity.

“By this connection the University has but one vital interest in its medical department, viz: to maintain the efficiency of the College on the University’s own high level; while the College has thereby published its promise to furnish in its own line the same thorough training as the departments of arts, and science, and law, in theirs. The University has reviewed the work of the College and found it satisfactory; it has expressed its faith in the ability of the College to educate men for the profession of medicine.

“The ultimate benefit of the union will be reaped by our students. They are brought into relationship with students pursuing other work; they are put in touch with university work and spirit; they are made to share in broader views and higher culture imparted by university instruction. To them we have the right to say: Ours is an educational institution pure and absolute; whatever shall come to us, whether of income or donation, to you it must and will be devoted; our merit shall be measured not by the emoluments of our teachers, but by the extent to which we shall use our facilities for the instruction and improvements of the youths who come to work with us.

* * * * *

“In its steady onward course, swayed by no mercenary considerations of immediate material success, the College meets without solicitude the competition of the annually increasing number of commercial ventures in the field of medical education;—and conscious of its successful efforts in doing good work, hopes ultimately to conquer the indifference of the medical fraternity, and to gain what it deserves, the approbation and support of the community.”

CHRONICLE OF THE ST. LOUIS MEDICAL COLLEGE.

1841. Oct. 13.—The Board and Faculty of St. Louis University enact the constitution of a Medical Department, elect a Board of Trustees, and appoint Drs. Hall, Prout and Prather members of its Faculty.
1842. April 1.—Faculty organized with Dr. Prather as Dean.
Oct. 7.—The Medical Department of St. Louis University is given into the care of its Board of Trustees, and a Faculty of five members.
Oct. 8.—The Board of Trustees organizes with James H. Lucas as President.
November.—First session of instruction begins.
1844. March 4-6.—Faculty recast.
First College building erected on Washington avenue.
1847. Jan. 2.—Dr. Linton elected Dean.
1849. Jan. 3.—Dr. Pope elected Dean.
New College building erected on Seventh street, corner of Myrtle street (now Clark avenue).
1855. Feb. 23.—The Legislature of the State of Missouri incorporates the St. Louis Medical College. The charter is accepted by the Faculty, April 2.
April 9.—Board of Trustees (of the Medical Department of St. Louis University) organizes under the new charter.
March 6.—Dr. John T. Hodgen elected Dean.
1866. Oct. 2.—Arrangement of association with the Missouri Dental College.
1872. Incorporation of the Medical Fund Society of St. Louis.
- 1872-75. Purchase of the College building on Seventh street by the Medical Fund Society.
1876. April 11.—Optional graded course of three years offered to the students.
1878. Reconstruction of the College building. Chemical Laboratory built.
1880. Jan. 17.—Graded course of instruction of three years made obligatory as a requisite for graduation.
1881. June 21.—Appointed a corps of instructors, additional to the Faculty, who participate in the regular course of instruction.
1881. New building erected for the O'Fallon Dispensary.
Clinics instituted for Diseases of the Eye, Diseases of Women, Diseases of Children, Diseases of the Nervous System.
1882. May 2.—Dr. Alleyne elected Dean, vice Dr. Hodgen deceased (April 28).
1883. May 5.—Chairs of Hygiene and Forensic Medicine, and of Pathological Anatomy created.
May 28.—The appointment of Lecturers, additional to the Faculty (1881), made permanent.
1886. March 29.—Chairs of Ophthalmology, Genito-Urinary Surgery and Gynæcology created.
1887. Laboratories for Histology and Pathology instituted.
1889. Bacteriology introduced as a study. Physiological Laboratory instituted.
1890. Chair for Diseases of the Nervous System created.—The Medical Fund Society sells the College building and Dispensary on Seventh street.
March 17.—Dr. H. H. Mudd elected Dean.
1891. Association with Washington University as her Medical Department, April 9-20.
1892. Erection of new College building on Locust street.
October.—Fifty-first course of instruction begins in the new College building.
Oct. 18.—Semi-centennial celebration, with public exercises in Memorial hall.
1892. Chair of Diseases of Children created.
George F. Gill scholarship and prizes established.
1893. A Maternity Out-Clinic established.
1894. Clinical instruction in Mental Diseases begun.
1895. Created an additional Chair of Clinical Surgery, and chairs of Dermatology, of Orthopædic Surgery and of Otology.
1897. Chair of Bacteriology and Hygiene created.
June 29.—Four years' Course of Study established as a requirement of graduation for all matriculates after this date.

CHRONOLOGICAL LIST OF TEACHERS IN THE ST. LOUIS MEDICAL COLLEGE (AND MEDICAL DEPARTMENT OF ST. LOUIS UNIVERSITY), 1842-98:—

- Josephus Wells HALL.—Professor of the Theory and Practice of Medicine, 1842-44. Professor of Physiology, Pathology and Clinical Medicine, 1844-46.—Died Dec. 6, 1873, aged 69.
- Hiram Augustus PROUT.—Professor of Materia Medica, Chemistry and Pharmacy, 1842-43.—Died April 21, 1862, aged 54.
- James Vance PRATHER.—Professor of Surgery, and of Surgical and Pathological Anatomy, 1842-44. Professor of the Principles and Practice of Surgery, 1844-47. Dean of the Faculty 1842-46. Professor of Surgery, Emeritus, 1847-49.—Died Aug. 26, 1849, aged 39.
- Daniel BRAINARD.—Professor of Anatomy and Physiology, 1842-43.—Died Oct. 10, 1866, aged 54.
- Moses Lewis LINTON.—Professor of Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and Children, 1842-44. Professor of the Principles and Practice of Medicine, 1844-70. Professor of the Principles and Practice of Medicine, Emeritus, and Lecturer on General Pathology, 1870-72. Dean of the Faculty, 1847-49.—Died June 1, 1872, aged 65.
- Abram LITTON.—Professor of Chemistry and Pharmacy, 1843-92.
- Joseph Granville NORWOOD.—Professor of Materia Medica, Therapeutics and Medical Jurisprudence, 1843-47.
- Charles Alexander POPE.—Professor of Anatomy and Physiology, 1843-44. Professor of Anatomy 1844-47. Professor of the Principles and Practice of Surgery, and Clinical Surgery, 1847-70. Dean of the Faculty, 1849-64.—Died July 5, 1870, aged 54.
- Moses Montrose PALLEN.—Professor of Obstetrics and of Diseases of Women and Children, 1844-70.—Died Sept. 23, 1876, aged 66.
- Henry M. BULLITT.—Professor of Physiology and Pathology, 1846-48.—Died Feb. 5, 1880, aged 63.
- James BLAKE.—Professor of Anatomy, 1847-50.—Died ———
- Thomas REYBURN.—Professor of Materia Medica, Therapeutics and Medical Jurisprudence, 1847-51.—Died April 8, 1857, aged 38.
- Robert Simpson HOLMES.—Professor of Physiology and Medical Jurisprudence, 1848-54 (56).—Died June 25, 1856, aged 38.
- William Marcellus McPHEETERS.—Professor of Clinical Medicine and Pathological Anatomy, 1848-51. Professor of Materia Medica and Therapeutics, 1852-62.
- Charles Whittlesey STEVENS.—Demonstrator of Anatomy, 1849-51. Professor of Anatomy, 1851-68. (Lecturer on Diseases of the Nervous System, 1878-79).—Died Feb. 17, 1890, aged 72.
- Willis Greene EDWARDS.—Professor of Anatomy, 1850-51. Professor of Clinical Medicine and Pathological Anatomy, 1851-53.—Died Dec. 7, 1861, aged 39.
- Elsworth Fayssoux SMITH.—Demonstrator of Anatomy, 1851-55. Professor of Physiology and Medical Jurisprudence, 1868-70. Professor of Clinical Medicine and Pathological Anatomy, 1870-1886. Professor of Clinical Medicine and Pathological Anatomy, Emeritus, 1886-96.—Died August 19, 1896, aged 71.
- John Bates JOHNSON.—Professor of Clinical Medicine and Pathological Anatomy, 1853-70. Professor of the Principles and Practice of Medicine, 1870-93. Professor of the Principles of Medicine, 1893—date.
- John Henry WATTERS.—Professor of Physiology and Medical Jurisprudence, 18(54)56-62.—Died Sept. 1872, aged 45.
- Elisha Hall GREGORY.—Demonstrator of Anatomy (pro tempore 1852-53) 1855-67. Adjunct Professor of Surgery, 1866-70. Professor of the Principles and Practice of Surgery and Clinical Surgery, 1870—date.
- John Thompson HODGEN.—Professor of Physiology and Medical Jurisprudence, 1862-68. Professor of Anatomy, Military Surgery, and Clinical Surgery, 1868-74. Professor of Surgical Anatomy, Special Fractures and Dislocations, and Clinical Surgery, 1874-82. Dean of the Faculty, 18(64) 65-82.—Died April 28, 1882, aged 56.
- Frank W. WHITE.—Professor of Materia Medica and Therapeutics, 18(62)65-67.—Died Feb. 15, 1870, aged 40.
- Jeremiah Smith Bois ALLEYNE.—Professor of Materia Medica and Therapeutics, 1867-90, and of Diseases of Children, 1877-90. Dean of the Faculty, 1882-90.—Died May 2, 1895, aged 68.

- John James McDOWELL.—Demonstrator of Anatomy, 1867-71. Professor of Practical Anatomy, 1871-74. Professor of Anatomy, 1874-80.—Died March 27, 1880, aged 47.
- James Wolf CLEMENS.—Professor of Physiology and Medical Jurisprudence, 1870-73.—Died Aug. 7, 1873, aged 41.
- Louis Charles BOISLINIÈRE.—Professor of Obstetrics, 1870-86, and Diseases of Women, 1870-81, and Children 1870-77. Professor of Obstetrics, Emeritus, 1886-96.—Died Jan. 13, 1896, aged 79.
- Henry Hodgen MUDD.—Prosector to the Chair of Practical Anatomy 1872-74. Demonstrator of Anatomy, 1874-83. Professor of Anatomy, 1880-83, Professor of Anatomy and Clinical Surgery, 1883-86. Professor of Surgical Anatomy, and Clinical Surgery 1886-90. Professor of Clinical Surgery, (and Special Fractures and Dislocations, 90-96) 1890—date. Dean of the Faculty 1890—date.
- Gustav BAUMGARTEN.—Professor of Physiology, 1873-87. Professor of Special Pathology and Therapeutics, 1887-93. Professor of the Practice of Medicine, 1893—date.
- Henry Thatcher Boutwell.—Assistant Demonstrator of Anatomy, 1878-79.
- Jacob Friedlan.—Demonstrator of Chemistry, 1878-89. Adjunct Professor of Chemistry, 1889-92.
- John GREEN.—Lecturer on Ophthalmology, 18(74)81-86. Professor of Ophthalmology, 1886—date.
- William Lee BARRET.—Lecturer on Diseases of Women, 18(74)81-86. Professor of Gynæcology, 1886.—Died Aug. 20, 1886, aged 43.
- James Murphy SCOTT.—(Lecturer on Physical Diagnosis, 1874-81.) Lecturer on Clinical Medicine, 1881-86. Professor of Obstetrics, 1886—date.
- Gratz Ashe Moses.—(Lecturer on Diseases of Children, 1874-81.) Lecturer on Clinical Gynæcology, 1881-85.
- Norman Bruce CARSON.—(Surgical Dressings etc. 1874-77.) Assistant to the chair of Surgery, 1881-86. Adjunct Professor of the Principles and Practice of Surgery, 1886-95. Professor of Clinical Surgery, 1895—date.
- William Carr Glasgow.—(Laryngological Clinic, 1874-81.) Clinical Lecturer on Physical Diagnosis [Diseases of the Chest, and Laryngology], 1881-86. Adjunct Professor of the Principles and Practice of Medicine, 1886-90.
- Washington Emanuel FISCHER.—(Medical Chemistry, 1874-75. Materia Medica, 1875-79. Special Therapeutic Methods, 1879-81). Lecturer on Therapeutics, 1881-83. Professor of Hygiene and Forensic Medicine, 1883-86. Professor of Clinical Medicine, 1886—date.
- Edward Evers.—Lecturer on Histology, 18(80)81-88.
- William Archibald McCandless.—(Recitations in Anatomy, 1875.) Assistant Demonstrator of Anatomy, 1881-83. Demonstrator of Anatomy, 1883-86.
- Francis Rhodes FRY.—Assistant Demonstrator of Anatomy, 1881-83. Demonstrator of Anatomy, 1883-88. Clinical Lecturer on Diseases of the Nervous System, 1887-90. Professor of Anatomy, 1888-90. Professor of Diseases of the Nervous System, 1890—date.
- Robert LUEDEKING.—Lecturer on Pathological Anatomy, 1882-83. Professor of Pathological Anatomy, 1883-92. Professor of Diseases of Children, 1892—date.
- John Paul BRYSON.—Lecturer on Diseases of the Genito-Urinary Organs, 1882-86. Professor of Genito-Urinary Surgery, 1886—date.
- Charles Hamilton Hughes.—Lecturer on Nervous Diseases, (Mental Diseases and Electrotherapy), 18(75)83-89.
- Edward Mills Nelson.—Assistant to the chair of Obstetrics, 1884-86.
- Henry HODGEN.—Curator of the Museum, 1884-95. Clinical Lecturer on Orthopædic Surgery, 1888-92. Clinical Professor of Orthopædic Surgery, 1892-95. Professor of Orthopædic Surgery, 1895-96. Died Aug. 29, 1896, aged 41.
- Frederick William Wessler.—Lecturer on Clinical Medicine at the Alexian Brothers' Hospital, 1885-87.
- Frank Joseph Lutz.—Lecturer on Clinical Surgery at the Alexian Brothers' Hospital, 1885-87.
- Benjamin Joseph PRIMM.—Prosector and Assistant to the chair of Anatomy, 1885-86. Professor of Anatomy, 1886-88.—Died Aug. 25, 1888, aged 27.
- Frank Adams GLASGOW.—Clinical Lecturer on Gynæcology, 1885-90. Professor of Clinical Gynæcology, 1890—date.
- George HOMAN.—Professor of Hygiene and Forensic Medicine, 1886-93.
