The campus of the '70s

Few physical changes are expected in this campus view during the remainder of the 1970s. The completion of the new Milner Library on the north campus in 1976 will mark the end of current plans for major buildings. Alumni may wish to obtain a color print of this August, 1975, aerial photo. (See Page 2)

American life more. The large proportion of young people in our society has brought changes in economy, in our institutions—churches, schools, colleges, in every walk of American life."

"In the first place one has to say that most young people are wonderful. They give themselves to hundreds of worthy causes with little reward and they do more of our work than many realize. So often the few who err get the headlines. . . . The big question for the last quarter of our century is whether all these young people will accept responsibility when they reach the prime years of their lives. I feel optimistic for the long run."

At present I detect a certain negativism or cynicism among young people—perhaps a result of Watergate and the seeming inability of the government to resolve problems of ecology, of environment, of social injustice, and corruption. None the less, I, too, am optimistic as Dean Helgeson is. I trust that the graduate will continue his civic interest and be a responsible citizen.

Nearly two hundred years ago one of our Founding Fathers said, "A truly democratic society is dependent upon an educated electorate." The educational institutions must prepare citizens for the world in which they live and to seek the greatest good for their fellowmen. Illinois State University is trying to educate people for our society. There are all kinds of teachers and all kinds of students; yet, I firmly believe that the vast majority are fine people seeking to continually improve the university for the benefit of the future generations in a democratic society.

Smithson named basketball coach after Robinson resigns

Gene Smithson

Will Robinson, basketball coach of the Redbirds for five seasons, resigned Aug. 18 to join the staff of the Detroit Pistons, and Gene Smithson, 36, an assistant to Robinson for four years, was named as head basketball coach on Aug. 22.

Many of the veterans returning in basketball were recruited by Smithson,

As a high school player at Paris, Smithson won all-state honors, following this up with Little All-America citation while a four-year regular at North Central College. Ten years of coaching in the Chicago suburban area were spent at Argo and Rich East.

"I shall be forever grateful to Coach Robinson for getting me into major college basketball," Smithson siad. "And I want it to be known that Robinson deserves the credit for developing the Illinois State basketball program into a recognizable factor in NCAA Division I circles today."

Division I circles today."

Robinson, 64, compiled a 78-51 coaching record at ISU since 1970. He will become director of scouting services for the NBA Detroit Pistons team. "I wish I could defer it for another year," Robinson said. "But you have to take the opportunity when it presents itself. It's a wonderful position."

Message from the President

Illinois State University is one of the strongest and healthiest public institutions of higher education in the nation as it continues to increase student enrollment and develop needed new academic programs. Among our reasons for optimism about the vitality of the University and confidence in its future are the following:

Illinois State continues to attract sizable numbers of able students. The average ACT score of the entering freshman class this fall, for example, is a full two points above the national mean and on a par with other doctoral degree granting institutions in the nation. All indications are that 1975-76 fall semester enrollments will be the highest in the history of the institution with the University serving well over 18,000 students on campus, and nearing 21,000 when off-campus enrollments are also counted. Last year we doubled the number of adult students served by continuing education programs and we anticipate another increase this year. We remain committed to an aggressive effort to attract and retain good students are are most appreciative of the assistance of our alumni in this effort.

This year the University implements several new academic programs, including new undergraduate majors in Agribusiness, Anthropology, and Office Administration. At the graduate level, we are now offering the MBA (Master of Business Administration) and MS in Accounting degrees, MFA (Master of Fine Arts) in Art and theatre, and Doctor of Arts degrees in Economics, History and Mathematics. These new programs represent the first steps in implementing our University Academic Plan for strengthening existing programs and selectively introducing new academic programs responsive to the needs of students and society.

We are pleased that the number and amount of alumni gifts to the University Foundation have increased during this past year. The highest proportion of these contributions are used to help worthy students meet the increasing costs of obtaining a higher education. Your continued support is essential in helping your University accomplish its goals, and we hope to deserve your continued support which is so vital in assuring that no qualified student drops out of school because of financial need.

If you have not visited the University recently, we invite you to do so. You might particularly like to come to attend a cultural event in the Union Auditorium, perhaps the Chicago or Minnesota symphonies or any of several outstanding programs offered in the facility. You might also want to see the magnificent new University Library now nearing completion. We particularly welcome your participation in the Homecoming alumni activities on Saturday, October 11. As alumni, we hope you are as proud as we are of the continued progress of Illinois State University.

The ISU Mens Glee Club, directed by Lloyd W. Farlee, is planning a Bicentennial program of "something for everyone" for presentation on the campus and throughout Illinois during the coming school year. 1974-75 Annual Fund Report

ILLINOIS STATE UNIVERSITY FOUNDATION Illinois State University, Bloomington-Normal, Illinois 61761, 309 438-2577

September, 1975

Dear Alumni:

The Illinois State University Foundation, working in conjunction with the Illinois State University Development Office, has had a most successful and active year. This was made possible by the generous gifts of alumni, parents, faculty-staff and other friends of the University. Actual cash gifts totaled $166,043.01 as compared to last year's $110,445.19. The Annual Fund, included in that total, increased by $8,882.38 and 569 donors over last year's Annual Fund. Over $47,000 was received from individuals that remembered Illinois State University in their wills. The gift report, found on this page, provides a breakdown of the sources of funds received.

These gifts received from you have been used for projects and programs of great benefit to Illinois State University. Projects approved for the 1975-76 year are outlined elsewhere in this Honor Roll report.

This year, at President Budig's request and under the direction of Dr. Milt Weisbecker, a Development Council was formed within the University to review all proposals for funds from the Foundation. The Development Council made recommendations to the President's Office where the proposals were again reviewed. The Foundation Board then had the recommendations of the University and were able to take action as they deemed appropriate as to priority and availability of funds.

The Foundation Board also has been involved in reviewing and revising the constitution which will be formally acted upon this 1975-76 year. The Development Office has prepared a "draft" of a long-range plan which the Foundation Board has reviewed and will finalize.

Thank you very much for your interest and support this past year. We hope you will again want to participate in supporting your University. If you have not previously given, your consideration this year will be most appreciated. Your gifts make possible programs and projects of great value to Illinois State University.

Honor Roll XII Decade Club

The XII Decade Club is a leadership organization extending membership to alumni, parents, faculty-staff, and other friends of the University who contribute $120 or more to the ISU Foundation during a year. You are encouraged to consider XII Decade Club membership. You may make one payment or make payments on any basis you wish ($10 a month, $30 quarterly, $60 semi-annual). The Development Office will send you reminders for each payment.

XII Decade Club members receive a small plaque commemorating their annual gift. This recognition is small in comparison to the financial assistance the XII Decade Club provides II-linois State University.

The following listing is the XII Decade Club membership for the 1974-75 year. We are most appreciative of these gifts from new members (those listed without a number by their name) and also for the continued interest and support of the others listed. Honor Roll

Annual Fund

We are changing the number following the names in the Honor Roll to indicate total number of years of giving rather than consecutive number of years. No numbers as listed this year because the project has not been completed, however, the 1976 report will carry the total number of years of giving following each name.

We are pleased with the interest and support of everyone listed. If your name is not among those listed on the Honor Roll, we hope you will want to participate in 1975-76. The Annual Fund makes possible the many programs, listed elsewhere in this issue of Alumni News, that are of great value to Illinois State University.

Mistakes are made—we may misspell or omit a name. We try to avoid errors, but when one does occur we deeply regret it and certainly hope you will let us know about it.

Varsity Club

Warren Schmakel, Director of Men's Intercollegiate Athletics, has enjoyed working with the Varsity Club, its officers, board of directors, and the total membership in his first year as athletic director at Illinois State University. Schmakel is most appreciative of the interest and support of this group and the community in general.

If you are interested in Varsity Club membership, notify the Athletic Department or the Development Office. You may not be able to attend athletic events, but there is a $25 membership fee which entitles you to receive invitations to special events and all mailings. Varsity Club funds are used for recruiting (purchase of autos and auto expense for coaches use in recruitment) and general promotion of the athletic program.

Matching Gift Programs

Ben. T. Gildersleeve

Many companies in the United States participate in a Matching Gift program. An employe makes a gift to Illinois State University and the employer matches it.

Our first Annual Fund mailing for 1975-76 will include a brochure listing all matching gift companies. If your employer is listed, obtain a matching gift form (usually from the personnel office), complete appropriately and mail with your gift. We then verify your gift with the employer, who in turn sends us a check. In this way, employers encourage support of higher education. You may be able, in effect, to double your gift to the Illinois State University Foundation.

The following companies matched gifts of donors to the 1974-

75 Annual Fund.

Abbott Laboratories Aetna Life & Casulty Arthur Anderson & Company Atlantic Richfield Foundation CNA Foundation General Electric Foundation The Gillette Company Hughes Aircraft Company Illinois Bell International Business Machines Corp. Lever Brothers Company

University Living Memorial

The University Living Memorial is a program of the ISU Foundation which gives alumni and other friends of the University appropriate ways of remembering or honoring a loved one or friend—living or deceased. The funds are endowment funds and scholarships are given from the income created by these gifts; thus, in reality, a "Living Memorial" is created to assist college students with their education.

You are encouraged to consider gifts in any amount to honor or remember relatives or friends. Families of deceased loved ones may want to name or mention the University Living Memorial, ISU Foundation, Normal, Illinois 61761 as an appropriate way for friends to remember the deceased. Other options regarding the University Living Memorial program are as follows:

Memorial in Perpetuity

A Memorial in Perpetuity will be created for a gift of $250 or more. The name of the deceased will be carried permanently and appropriately in all future Honor Rolls. The name is also added to the University Living Memorial plaque currently located in Hovey Hall (Administration Building) on campus.

Living Tribute

A Living Tribute is the way to honor a friend or loved one on a birthday, anniversary, graduation or a special occasion of achievement or affection. A gift of $250 or more will sustain a tribute in perpetuity. A gift of $5,000 or more will create a Living Tribute Named Scholarship.

Named Memorial Scholarship

A named Memorial Scholarship will be created for a gift of $5,000 or more. The gift will be invested and the earned income used to award an annual scholarship to a deserving student in the name of the deceased or the one being honored. This name is also carried permanently in future Honor Rolls and added to the University Living Memorial plaque.

3. Tutorial Program

$1,200

Support for the established Tutorial Project in which Illinois State University students provide tutoring for students in a variety of community settings—public schools and several service agencies. These funds help offset the necessary expenses, particularly transportation of students to participate in the program, incurred by the program. Actual student tutoring is a voluntary contribution by ISU students.

4. Faculty-Student Program $150

The purpose of the program is to bring faculty and students together in an informal setting. This is done through a foreign language table program where meals are purchased and also meals for faculty in residence personnel while hosting colleagues at residence hall programming events.

Bone looks at change on the campus

Editors Note: Alumni News offers this in-depth look at changes, problems and directions at ISU and other universities during the past six years by Dr. Robert G. Bone, ISU president from 1956 to 1967, and accomplished historian known and respected by thousands of ISU alumni.

When I was asked to write about today's university as I see it, I declined because I believe that one must be an active part of the university to intelligently describe and discuss it. I have not been an active part of this university for eight years. However, your editor persisted and reminded me that I had worked with a number of struggling private colleges for two years as a consultant for the Ford Foundation and then taught history in a college for two years—he persuaded me to talk on today's college student. A number of people, including quite a few of you ISU alumni, have asked my opinion of the college student today.

During the past six years many adults have become distressed as to what they read or hear about the college rebels, the undisciplined and the irresponsible college youth. As you know, it is usually the irresponsible riotous action which appears in the headlines. This picture, while true, refers to only about one per cent of college students. Yet, at the same time, it must be emphasized that this riotous action is symptomatic of an overall restlessness and concern among young people today. Ours is an age of conflict and restlessness, and our hope for the future is a restless, questioning, responsible, educated youth. Let us realize that there are relatively few irresponsible activists bent on hedonistic rebellion without social responsibility. The great majority of the youth are serious. They want to do something meaningful. They are inclined to be socially and environmentally minded. They are interested in trying to correct social ills and injustice. They are more interested in finding a job in which they find satisfaction rather than merely the money it pays.

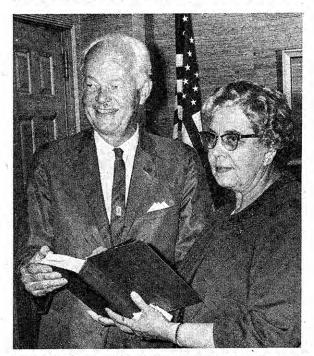

In recent years I have thought of the 1950s-a decade of satisfaction and complacency. College teachers and administrators decried what they felt was student apathy. Most of the enrollees at Illinois State Normal University were good students. They made good grades; they wrote satisfactory papers; many became excellent teachers. Yet, in educational conferences and meetings, a great deal of discussion centered around ways in which we could encourage greater discussion among students. We encouraged them to raise questions in all fields. By the mid-60s, many young people were questioning their teachers, administrators and even businessmen. Many of the questions were the result of careful thought and study. They wondered if some traditions weren't "sacred cows" and therefore superfluous; they questioned the logic of policies established many decades earlier. Some of us were delighted with this inquisitive generation; some were startled and some were indignant.

However, by 1968 some of the questioning and some of the discussions got out of hand. Very likely by the year 2000 social historians will have the perspective to explain the reasons for the riots and rebellion on college campuses. Among the reasons, they will undoubtedly include the fact that the questioning, demanding student was bringing about change—some needed change—and a few individuals decided to press for their "pet gripes." There were a few irresponsible young people who sought leadership positions, but who had heretofore been unsuccessful in being recognized as leaders. They became demagogues, stirring up emotions and hatreds. They promised others a Utopia if they joined forces to overthrow the establishment. They talked of democracy, or the right to speak out, of tolerance and understanding. Yet they were a minority. They refused their opposition a right to be heard; and they were abusive to, and intolerant of, others. They saw and obtained publicity by rash statements, by sit-ins, by abusive shouting, and even by destruction of property. Interestingly, a good many of the leaders were not enrolled in college at the time and were often disgruntled drop-outs; and, I should add, a few leaders were dedicated and sincere, but were misled by others, were immature and impatient, or became so impractical that they hurt their causes. There were many actions and policies of the mid-60s which added to the restlessness of the questioning generationchiefly, the Vietnam situation, the draft, and other associated causes.

I need not repeat reports of many of the tragic events, which occured on campus after campus, reaching its peak in 1968-71: buildings damaged, furniture destroyed, records burned, and even library file cards thrown about and torn up. As often happens in riot and revolution, the publicity sought by irresponsible leaders or by mob action is achieved, but in most cases a reaction sets in which results in the loss of some gains which were probably valuable. There are still occasional outbreaks and problems on campus, but in most such cases the administration tries to meet the faculty and students to discuss, study, and resolve the difficulty. Illinois State University has been doing this for a number of years. In fact, even during 1968-71 ISU never recessed school or dismissed classes—a situation which did occur at many colleges and universities.

I return to the questions often asked me by many alumni, "Aren't the students today awful?" "Can the university survive such riotous action?" I find answers to those questions easy. Students today are above average and, on the whole, conscientious and sincere. The university has survived. It has learned from its past experiences and is seeking solutions to the many problems it faces.

Robert G. Bone with Helen Marshall, professor of history emerita and author of the ISU Centennial History published in 1956.

One of the ways in which the alumni can help is to recognize that the riotous student, the destructive student, the student "on drugs" is a very small per cent of the student body. You may ask why does the university not dismiss problem students? An answer is that in a number of institutions where dismissed students have sued for readmission, the courts ordered the college to reinstate the student unless a serious civil law was broken and the student was found guilty by the court. The university and the president are confronted with many problems, not only with students and faculty with strong and diverse ideas, aims and opinions, but serious budget problems, a great increase in costs, a need to answer many policy questions, many curricular questions, graduation requirements, the campus social code, and major goals and purposes.

Illinois State University has long been a teacher education institution with a liberal arts and science emphasis, and from President Budig's speeches it would seem that such is still the university's emphasis. President Budig needs your support and understanding as he and his staff through numerous faculty-student committees, seek answers to numerous problems and the best education for our students.

One of our graduates, Dr. K. Patricia Cross, president-elect of the American Association for Higher Education, recently read a provocative paper entitled, "New Students in a New World." It begins with "Higher education faces a profound crisis of purpose." She is right and most universities in light of the recent difficulties, of the tightening budgets, of a critical public, are diligently studying their function and purpose in light of present needs and the purposes of community and junior colleges, professional and technical schools. vocational schools and undergraduate and graduate schools. Dr. Cross points out the different philosophies and goals which institutions of higher education must consider today as faculty, students, and administrators share in rethinking educational programs for the future. Many experienced and knowledgeable people disagree on the wisest goals for the many facets and divisions of education beyond the high school. Many of us have strong opinions as to the policies and goals which our university should adopt. I am confident that Dr. Budig has the experience, the ability, and the knowledge, so that along with his staff and faculty, Illinois State University will continue to have a fine educational program.

College students today are far better educated than those of my generation. They come to the campus with more knowledge and greater sophistication than freshmen of previous decades. They are serious-minded and concerned about social injustice and society's needs. They question the hypocrisy they see in some adults, some businesses, and some politicians. They are worried about the cost of living, unemployment, and inequality. Few of them are rebellious. Yet, today they have certain power and they are aware of it. In an article entitled, "Today's Youth to Pace Tomorrow's Decisions," Dr. Arlan Helgeson, former Dean of the University, wrote, "One striking development in the last 25 years has been the growth of the political and numerical power of youth. I say political and numerical power because it is the sheer number of young people that has affected
