When I arrived here nine years ago, Professor Betty Taylor had already been here making an impact on our students for over 40 years. What a legacy that is! My greatest appreciation for her came when this journal, the Journal of Technology Law and Policy, was in a bind. The Journal was in need of a faculty advisor and if one could not be found the Journal was going to be ended. Knowing Professor Taylor's history in supporting technology here, I came to her with my dilemma. I asked if she would consider being their advisor on a "temporary" basis to help them re-establish themselves. She readily agreed. And the rest is history. She has been the supportive and involved temporary faculty advisor permanently! She has spent many hours working with students on the Journal through numerous "issues." I'm sure that the students she has assisted are as appreciative as I am for her help in their time of need.
