URSINUS WINS PITCHER'S BATTLE WITH LEBANON, 1-0

First Victory of the Season Showed Great Team Development

An old-time air-tight pitcher's battle was staged on Patterson Field last Saturday afternoon between Isenberg and Ziegler. Each twirler allowed but five hits and only one man reached third before the eighth inning.

The game was scoreless until the eighth inning. Captain Hunter started the rally with a long hit in right center field, but was forced by Knipe at second. Moser sent a hot-liner down third base line for a hit and Knipe went to second, Grove flied out to Moore and Griffin scored Knipe, Moser taking third. Hefren closed the rally with a high fly to left field.

The Reserve team opened its season last Thursday afternoon at Pennsburg and was trounced by the Perkiomen School nine with a score of 14 to 4.

The "Weekly" takes great pleasure in announcing the engagement of Miss Susan Talmage to Dr. Samuel Randall Detwiler. Although Miss Talmage is a member of the class of 1920, University of California, and Dr. Detwiler a graduate of Yale 1914 and Ph. D. Yale 1918, both were at one time students of Ursinus; the former having been an ex-member of the class of 1915, the latter an ex-member of the class of 1913.

The first honorary degree ever given by the University of Paris was that granted to President Wilson several months ago.

LARGE NUMBER OF GROUP MEETINGS DURING WEEK

The E. H. Group Entertains the H. P. Group

Last Tuesday evening the Historical-Political Group was entertained in Zwinglian Hall by the English-Historical Group. The guests were received by Dr. and Mrs. Smith and Mr. Charles Rutschky, the President of the English-Historical Group. After the guests had arrived Mr. Rutschky called the house to order and a varied program was rendered by the hosts. Dr. Smith, advisor of the E.-H. Group welcomed the visitors in behalf of the group.

Misses Wagner and Mentzer then played a beautiful piano duet which well deserved the encore that followed. "Pa Shaved Off His Whiskers," a humorous reading, was then given by Miss Ash. Her rendition of this number brought forth great applause. Mr. Rutschky played a beautiful violin solo. Miss Lattell's chorus was splendidly trained and its work was appreciated by everyone. The parody, "I'm Always Hunting Pat Jones" was very humorous and received loud applause. The program was closed in fine form by Mr. Raetzer's reading of "The English-Historical Happenings." Mr. Raetzer included witticisms and personals in his paper and these as well as his editorial on the relationship of the groups were much enjoyed.

A social hour followed the literary program and all kinds of games were played. Refreshments were then served by Miss Shiffert and her able assistants.

The Norfleets

The Norfleet Trio of New York will give the last number in the Lecture and Entertainment course on Thursday evening, April 24. Their extraordinary ability as artists should draw a crowded house. Patrons will be interested in the following comments selected from among many:

Catharine Norfleet: "She has such mastery for her instrument, such sureness of attack, freedom of bow and fingers, that one almost believes in fairy god-mothers."—Chautauqua Press, Boulder, Colo.

Helen Norfleet: "Miss Norfleet's playing gave the complete sense of satisfaction one feels in hearing a perfect composition interpreted by a personality intellectually and emotionally big and artistically sympathetic."—Musical Courier, New York.

Leeper Norfleet: The playing of the very young cellist must be especially mentioned for its evidence of musical appreciation. His natural instinct for phrase and fine feeling of climax were very gratifying."—Texas Press.

Southpaw Titzel Held Collegeville Team Helpless

Penn opened its baseball season last Tuesday on Franklin Field and handed Ursinus a severe defeat. With a number of veterans in their lineup the university team displayed great form and seemed to have a habit of slugging. As a result Isenberg was touched for fifteen hits a few of which went for extra bases.

Titzel, the veteran southpaw twirler proved his calibre as a pitcher and held Ursinus to three hits and only one run while his team-mates were clouting everything that came across the plate.

Ursinus for some reason or other was a bit lax in fielding the ball and consequently was credited with six costly errors. Isenberg secured two hits of the three made and Griffin scored Ursinus' lone tally.

Editorial Comment

Preceding the election last Thursday evening the management and spirit of our Y. M. C. A. was discussed at great length and had to face strong criticism. The general opinion was not that the Christian association had been mismanaged in the past, but that it was not commanding the interest that it should. This seems to be in a large measure the truth. Like all religious institutions the Y. M. C. A. very easily slips into a groove in which it moves without variety and change. It is very easy for a speaker imbued with the cut and dried platitudes that are all too prevalent in the poorer religious writings to speak along for an hour or more in a series of moral phrases that sound well and mean little. It may be all very fine to recommend the better life to an audience, but if it is couched in the dryness of dogma and has none of the red-blooded virile punch of life in it the hearers will sleep and be better for the sleeping.

What our Y. M. C. A. needs is the interest of all and if it does not command this it can not be called a success. At its head there should be an energetic man whose interest is centered in this kind of work, but on the cabinet there should be representatives from other than the Classical Group. This seems to have been the trouble in the past. The Y. M. C. A. was entirely in the hands of the ministerial students and the others were called upon for little else save contributions and attendance. This was a wrong trend of affairs, but the results of the recent election point to a more progressive and comprehensive policy for the future. The meetings should be general and besides discussions in which all might take part, the leaders of the Y. M. C. A. should encourage speakers who never took an active part in the religious work to speak along lines of their experience and its relation to life in general. This might not be religion as we think of it, but it would be very interesting and instructive. Besides religion as it is taught by choice phrasing should never have a place in our meetings. Religion is never taught by talking about it but by demonstrating the spirit of it. Make the Y. M. C. A. a thing of life and strength rather than mere fine and empty speaking and the meetings will never lack a full attendance. The success of the various war-work associations in France came not from cant and namby-pamby harangues, but by turning the teachings of Christ into action. Let our meetings tell of the strife and competition of life in the world outside the College walls. And let the religion taught be one of spirit and vigor.

J. L. M., '20.

Y. M. C. A.

When we stop to think of ourselves and our daily contact with men, do we ever consider whether or not we are living life at its best? We are sometimes prone to forget just now we are living but at times it is indeed beneficial to stop and consider.

It was along these very lines that our discussion was led on last Wednesday evening, when H. P. Long gave us some leading thoughts on "Life at Its Best." He stated that life was at its best when it was lived so that it might well be taken as a criterion after which others could pattern their lives. But a true pattern of life is a growth, a slow process by which the true character of our lives is developed. Therefore, not by one act of kindness, nor by one day out of every seven spent in meditation with our Maker, but every day, every passing moment must have the consideration of the future.

On Thursday evening at seven o'clock the annual business meeting of the "Y" was held in the English room. The final results of the elections were: Wildasin, president; Helffrich, vice-president; Walton, treasurer; Brown, secretary; Greenawalt, musical director.

Y. W. C. A.

The meeting on Wednesday evening was termed the "Eaglesmere meeting." Miss Moul had charge and was assisted by Misses Boyd, Sheaffer and Schweigert—all of whom were delegates to the conference last June. The leaders took the association on a special "mental tour" describing the trip to the conference grounds and the hearty welcome awaiting them. After one has registered the great experience begins. The day is divided into periods of classes, lectures and recreation. The classes are intended to train Bible and missionary study leaders; give spiritual food and executive training to those who are association leaders; and give helpful and practical suggestions to those who have the social and financial responsibilities of the association. The recreation period is also heartily enjoyed. Last year what is known as the point system existed and the Ursinus delegation stood well in the lead, using to the best possible advantage all their athletic talent. The conference lasts ten days. The association last year sent five delegates, but this year that number will be doubled.

SCHAFF LITERARY SOCIETY

The program of Schaff Society last Friday evening was general literary in nature and was enjoyed and appreciated by all hearers. The first number, which engaged the attention of the audience, was an excellent paper on war literature, given by Miss Boyd. In this theme, she dealt mostly with the beauty and popularity of the new type of poetry inspired by the War. This was followed by a reading by Miss Light, which told of a roomful of Freshman chatterers. An especially original and clever paper was read by Miss Greta Hinkle entitled, "The Mock Weekly." Thru Miss Hinkle's prophecies we were able to imagine Ursinus of the future. Her alumni notes were particularly humorous and suggestive. Following this number Miss Boeshore and Mr. Stock rendered a very catching piano duet. Needless to say, everybody enjoyed this most heartily as was proved by the call for an encore. Mr. Detwiler also portrayed his originality by his interpretation of the "Evolution of the Easter Rabbit." Schaffites are now able to explain the why and wherefore of the Easter bunny. Altho the ukeles have been used a great deal, it is safe to say the the ukelele quartet, consisting of Misses Laub, Xander, Hinkle and Grim, rendered one of the best and most animated numbers of all. The songs and parodies were new and well sung, especially the solo parts.

The program concluded, the evening's enjoyment was ended by a lively social hour spent in Zwing Hall.

ZWINGLIAN LITERARY SOCIETY

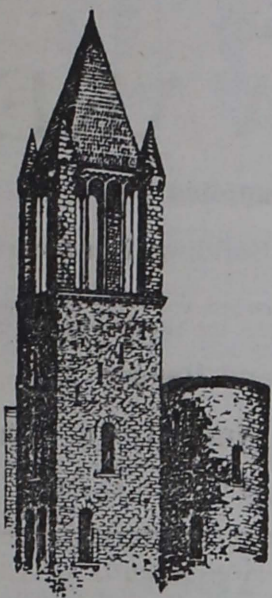

An interesting miscellaneous program was enjoyed by the Zwinglian Literary Society on Friday evening. The program was a very well balanced one, humor and seriousness intermingled thruout.

Miss Closson opened the program by reciting one of Riley's humorous poems. Her splendid interpretation of it was very much enjoyed. This was followed by a violin solo by Mr. Farley, who ably upheld his established high standard. Mr. Arms then entertained the society by means of a chalk talk. His sketches were the first proof he ever gave of his artistic ability. Mr. Hunter then gave an impromptu talk on baseball. A declamation, Patrick's Henry's "Speech," was well delivered by Mr. Zendt. Following this a mixed quartette, Mr. Heffelfinger, leader, sang two beautiful selections. Mr. Helffrich then spoke impromptu on the League of Nations and Miss Snyder followed him by talking, also impromptu, on the advantages of the Navy. The orator of the evening, Mr. Long, delivered a well written oration, "Glorious France." His splendid delivery held everybody's attention thruout the entire oration.

Mr. Canan then read his first Review. The editorial, "A Nation's Love of Sport," and the jokes were greatly enjoyed. Mr. Leiphart then read his excellent criticism of the program.

The treasurer of the Coal Fund reports recent contributions from Dr. Lewis R. Thompson, '00, of Sheuchowfu, China, and Private Leo I. Hain, '17, of the A. E. F. in France.

The Tower Window

TWO important topics discussed by educators at the Schoolmen's meetings at the University of Pennsylvania last week were the High School Course of Study and the Use of Educational Tests.

The former topic as considered in the high school principals' section was viewed wholly from the social standpoint. Schoolmen today have their eye almost exclusively on community needs, and the endeavor is being made to make the schools contributory to all kinds of social welfare. The main ideals are health, vocational efficiency, preparation for civic responsibility, and the like. Few people, I think, realize the significance of what is going on in this regard. Instead of teaching in the schools the things that cannot be learned in practical life as in the past, all the latter are crowding themselves into the school course, with the result that, for most pupils, liberal education must go. Whether these familiar things of everyday life can be made materials of education and whether they can be taught so as to serve the interests of mental development remains to be seen.

It is fortunate for education, that while the schools are thus aiming for new objectives, and employing materials of uncertain educational value, there is a rapidly spreading interest in measurements by means of psychological tests. Although this work is yet in its pioneer stages it gives promise of considerable helpfulness in the grading and promotion of pupils and in guiding teachers as to methods of dealing with particular pupils.

The latest inquiry with reference to these tests is as to whether they can be used in determining the fitness of candidates for admission to college. One institution, has already announced that candidates may choose between the usual examinations formerly required of all applicants and submission to a system of psychological tests. In Pennsylvania a committee is at work studying the possibilities along this line. It is expected that this committee will make at least a preliminary report at the next meeting of the State Educational Association. G. L. O.

 ed the other members this month, at a "hard times" party. The invitation read: "Don old togs and look a fright and come at eight on Monday night." The affair was certainly very aptly termed "hard times," for in the very beginning they had a hard time finding the place of meeting, assembling at Olevian, proceeding to Shreiner and finally reaching Bomberger, where the meeting has held. The first half was enjoyed in Zwing hall. Prof. Clawson gave a very witty and humorous talk or "address of welcome." Greta Hinkle and Emily Philips "executed" a piano duet—a very classical selection entitled "Chopsticks," accompanied by appropriate gesticulations, guaranteed to create gales of laughter. Guiliam Clamer gave a "serious?" talk in the form of a Jewish monologue, which of course had a sorrowful effect on the audience. Then there was a quartette, composed of the five seniors, one, however being at the piano. The harmony they produced was excruciating and the tune very conspicuous by its absence. As an encore the Senior Swan Song was sung. This, in reality, was rather sad, as it was a farewell to the group. As the final number, Marion Grater played a very beautiful piano solo, which every one enjoyed, as it was the only real performance of the evening.

After the entertainment they all adjourned to the day study where an old fashioned taffy pull was undertaken. But again "hard times" were encountered in getting the candy hard and later in getting it separated from the fingers.

Those elected to offices for next year were: President, Miss Hook; vice-president, Miss Heindel, treasurer, Mr. Arms; secretary, Miss Louise Hinkle.

Modern Language Group Entertains Classical Group

Last Wednesday evening the Classical Group was entertained by the Modern Language Group.
 An extensive program had been prepared for the entertainment of the guests and it proved to be very entertaining and in a large degree novel. Dr. Baden made the "Address of Welcome" and incidentally defended the classics. A recitation in French was then given by Miss Mitman following which Misses Danehower and Boeshore reneared a pretty piano duet. Miss Harclerode next gave a reading of a poem—"The World's All Right" and Miss Shirey read a paper on "The Advantages of the Study of Spanish." The next number was a recitation of a Spanish poem by Miss Clapham after which Miss Slamp played a very pretty piano solo. An excellent sketch (Miss Kunkle, leader) followed this while Miss Keely read "The Modern Language Echo." As the last number a musical novelty, a parody on "There's a Long, Long Trail" was given under the directorship of Miss Sheaffer. Professor Yost and Dr. Omwake each gave a short talk and with these the formal part of the program closed to be followed by games and refreshments in which both hosts and guests participated with equal enjoyment.
