MALE GLEE CLUB IN HOME CONCERT

Novel Program Rendered by Male Musicians on Tuesday night

On last Tuesday evening, the Men's Glee Club rendered its annual home concert in Bomberger Hall. Through the untiring efforts of our competent instructor, Prof. J. Myron Jolls, several new features have been added this year and as a result, the repertoire is perhaps more varied than any which has been offered in previous years. The program was exceedingly well balanced throughout and so arranged that the audience experienced no fatigue accruing from monotony. The numbers were on the whole of an exceedingly high character and the encores were snappy and frequently interspersed with much local and catchy wit. The ensemble renditions of the club were appealing even to the most fastidious.

The work of the Quartette, composed of Bomberger, '17, P. E. Dietz, '18, Weiss, '17, and R. E. Wilhelm, '18, deserves to be especially commended. In the two numbers rendered by these four men the interpretation was excellent and the harmony delicately drawn out. That their efforts pleased the audience was attested by the applause, demanding repeated encores which were, for the most part, humorous in their nature. The expressive solo work of Bomberger, '17, was, beyond question, that of an artist.

The instrumental part of the entertainment was also very delightful. The enlivening work of the orchestra was of a high class and augurs well for the musical talent at Ursinus. A flute solo by Wiest, '19, was well rendered and enthralled the audience. A unique number was a cornet and trombone duet by Hoover, '16, and Johnson, '16, which proved a rare treat.

For the home concert the club had prepared an additional feature in the form of a short humorous sketch, which was rendered at the close of the main program and provoked veritable storms of laughter. J. Edward Lane had charge of the "make ups," and as his ability in this line is well known it is needless to remark anything on the ludicrousness of the characters depicted.

LEROY F. DERR

Retiring Editor of the Weekly

LeRoy F. Derr has just completed a very successful term as Editor-in-chief of THE URSINUS WEEKLY. Since Mr. Derr entered Ursinus in the fall of 1912, in all the college activities in which he has participated, including the editorship of the 1916 Ruby, the presidency of the Athletic Association, and the editorship of this publication, he has invariably met his duties with such zeal, tact and proficient endeavor as always insure success. Besides giving liberally of his time for the good of Ursinus, he has always maintained a high grade of scholarship for himself.

'VARSITY NINE WINS IN OPENING GAME

Twenty Men in Line-up When 'Varsity Defeats Spring City A. A.

The baseball season for Ursinus was auspiciously opened on Saturday afternoon on Patterson Field when the Spring City A. A. lost to the home team by the margin, 13-3.

At no stage of the game was the home team in danger, and after the second inning, when eight runs had been tallied, there was no longer any doubt as to the result. Despite the one-sidedness of the game, considerable interest was shown because several of the positions are still in doubt and virtually all the 'Varsity material was seen in action.

On the offensive the wearers of the Red, Old Gold and Black gathered a total of twelve hits off the three moundsmen representing Spring City. Ott, ex-'18, started the firing for his team and

46TH ANNIVERSARY OF ZWING SOCIETY

Excellent Literary Program Rendered to Attentive Audience

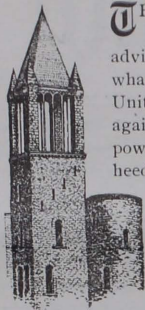

Zwinglian Anniversary has come and gone, yet there still lingers in the mind the pleasant memory of a very successful program and an enjoyable evening. The weather was ideal, and Bomberger Hall, especially decorated for the occasion, was comfortably filled with alumni and friends of the Society who had gathered Friday evening to celebrate the forty-sixth year of Zwing's activity. It was an expectant audience, and its anticipations were more than realized as the evening went on, and a well balanced, brilliantly executed program unfolded itself to the admiring listeners. According to Zwing's custom, the aim was to present a program that should be representative of the general work of the Society, and the excellence of this anniversary attests to the high calibre of the usual programs.

The processional was played by the capable Zwinglian Orchestra composed of Misses Kern, Philips and Craft and Messrs. Pritchard, N. K. Wiest, E. K. Wiest, and Jones. The invocation was given by Dr. Whorten A. Kline, Dean of the College. Mr. LeRoy F. Derr, '16, made the opening address, briefly stating the history, purposes and ideals of the Society, and welcoming all to the anniversary. A reading next delighted the audience, as Miss C. Gladys Rogers, '16, recited "A Little Matter of Real Estate." The humor of this selection, combined with Miss Rogers' interpretation, gave it particular interest. "Before the Dawn" was the title of the vocal solo by Mr. John H. A. Bomberger, '17, and the rendition was so pleasing that the audience demanded an encore, which was also artistically rendered. Miss Marion S. Kern, '16, read a carefully prepared essay entitled "The Heir of All the Ages." She writes in good style, and ably developed the idea of the priceless heritage of culture. A cornet solo, "The Rosary" by N. Keen Wiest, '16 was followed by a well-chosen encore. Both numbers were performed in a superior manner.

One of the best numbers of the even-

The Tower Window

THE PEOPLE who are busying themselves advising our rulers as to what sort of campaigns the United States should wage against various foreign powers might well take heed to some words which were echoed across the forum of Ancient Rome in days of old and to which our attention was directed by President Henry

S. Drinker when he spoke here on Founders' Day a short while ago.

In the year 168 B. C., Lucius Aemilius Paulus, a Roman Consul, who had been selected to conduct the war against the Macedonians, went out from the Senate House into the assembly of the people and addressed us Americans of more than two thousand years in the future, as well as his fellow citizens, as follows:

"In every circle, and truly, at every table, there are people who lead armies into Macedonia; who know where the camp ought to be placed; what posts ought to be occupied by troops; when and through what pass Macedonia should be entered; where magazines should be formed; how provisions should be conveyed by land and sea; and when it is proper to engage the enemy, when to lie quiet. And they not only determine what is best to be done, but if anything is done in any other manner than what they have pointed out, they arraign the consul, as if he were on trial. These are great impediments to those who have the management of affairs; for everyone cannot encounter injurious reports with the same constancy and firmness of mind as Fabius did, who chose to let his own authority be diminished through the folly of the people, rather than to mismanage the public business. I am not one of those who think that commanders ought never to receive advice; on the contrary, I deem that man more proud than wise, who does everything of his own single judgment. What then is my opinion? That commanders should be counselled, chiefly, by persons of known talent; by those, especially, who are skilled in the art of war, and who have been taught by experience; and next, by those who are present at the scene of action, who see the country, who see the enemy; who see the advantages that occasions offer, and who, embarked, as it were, in the same ship, are sharers of the danger. If, therefore, anyone thinks himself qualified to give advice respecting the war which I am to conduct, which may prove advantageous to the public, let him not refuse his assistance to the state, but let him come with me into Macedonia. He will be furnished by me with a ship, a horse, a tent; and even with his traveling charges. But if he thinks this too much trouble, and prefers the repose of a city life to the toils of war, let him not, on land, assume the office of a pilot. The city, in itself, furnishes abundance of topics for conversation: let it confine its passion for talking to these topics and rest assured, that we shall conform ourselves to our military councils." The Toll of the European War

Human life does not amount to anything in the present catastrophe. When a ship, lying near other ships, is torpedoed, that ship must sink and that must be the end of it. Because two other captains rushed in to help another ship, three ships were lost instead of one. The humaneness of it amounts to nothing. The heroism of it is nil. But, what do ships amount to? Much. Men to feed cannons and to feed the fishes can be obtained by the hundreds of thousands. Ships can be made only by long process of construction. A ship is something of value for offense or defense.

Men are simply little flesh and blood units in a great scheme that does not reckon in terms of flesh and blood, but keenly computes in terms of guns and armor plate. The fact is, that the directors of this war care more for one little ship than for a thousand men. Men are the cheapest commodities of war. Men must be sacrificed to protect other men and other women, and the institutions of all men. That is the theory and practice. If you have a ship you may be able to prevent the slaughter of defenseless people ashore. So it becomes the greater good for the greater number, and the loss of seven hundred men with their ship is lamentable, but not so lamentable as the loss of two more ships and their men. That is the cold war side of it. That is part of the toll. The state is supreme. The individual is an unconsidered trifle. There is no protest when taxes are raised and no protest when the liberties of the individual are restricted in every way. There is only one concern, and that is to conquer the enemy in order to lay a heavier import to repay that side in money for what it has lost in men.

Sherman said "War is hell!" If Sherman's war was hell, this war is a million hells, each one more of an inferno than the other. Even though the blood of men and the tears of women and children are necessary attendants of war and are not to be considered by the makers of war, the shedding of the blood of men and the tears of women and children are more to be regretted than the rise or fall of an empire.

Think of the toll it takes in the towers of Art and Science, of Poetry and Music, of Literature and Religion—of all the powers which are tending to good. It has caused our philosophers and men of letters, our economists and biologists and dramatists to speak in strange tongues, and to hate each other has become a holy thing among them. It has massed and exploded the causes of strife, fostering religious antagonisms, and racial hates. It has loosened the black fury of men's hearts, so that in rape, cruelty and rage we have ancient brutishness trailing at the heels of all armies. It has destroyed the opportunity of our times to reach the goal of human life. The men, who would have become famous mechanics, sculptors, singers, violinists, poets, orators and historians, are passing away. The men, who supported the state in its splendor and glory are being exterminated. The very flower of human beings, those which a nation can least afford to lose, are fading away. It has strangled truth and paralyzed the power and wish to face it. It has mutilated the human spirit, and has become a thing which passeth all understanding. It is making super-brutes from plain brutes. That is the initial and greatest toll.

What is going to happen after the war is over? Brutalized already, will the reversion hold, or shall we come back to our former standards? If it took us two thousand years and more to acquire this veneer of civilization, which even then was so thin that it cracked over night, can we recover ourselves at once or must it be a long process? Can we renew the ideals that are shattered?

Even if we can resume our former standards, the time of recovery will be slow. You can brutalize a man in a day, but it takes time to debrutalize him. That is the greatest toll this war demands—not the toll of blood and treasure, though that toll will be heavy beyond conception, but the toll that will be taken from civilization.

Smith, '16, spent the past week-end at his home in Spring City.

The cutting evil at Yale University has been eliminated by means of the "half-cut" system. If a student is unprepared, he may go to class, signifying that he does not wish to recite, and be credited with one-half cut. In this way he gets the benefit of the lecture and the recitation. The system has proved very satisfactory, both from the instructors' and the students' point of view.

Editorial

With the last issue of the WEEKLY it may truly be said that one of the most successful administrations in the history of this publication came to a close. During the past year under the able leadership of Mr. Derr, to whom we shall always be indebted, our paper has raised its already enviable position among college publications, which fact has been proved time and time again by the many favorable comments by competent judges. It is much to be regretted that on account of graduation such persons as Mr. Derr, as well as his classmates who have so loyally cooperated with him in his untiring efforts, are no longer able to tender their valuable services in this capacity. But since these unfortunate conditions actually exist, it becomes necessary that someone must relieve them of their duties, and it is our hope that each member of the new staff, inspired by the example which they have set, will put forth only his or her best efforts to uphold the high standard of a work thus far so nobly advanced. In view of all these facts, it is necessarily with a certain feeling of trepidation and inability, and yet, with a genuine hope for a successful attempt to make the WEEKLY of the highest possible value to the sons and daughters of Ursinus, that the new staff enters upon its work.

The WEEKLY is a part of the heritage we have received from former years. We recall its past achievements and scan the pages of bygone years with a feeling of true reverence and honest envy. We are aware of the fact that it has always been the cooperation and direct financial aid of our alumni which have made possible the regular weekly appearance of this publication, and therefore, realizing that this manifested interest is a measure of their appreciation of a weekly messenger which conveys to them valued news of their Alma Mater, it shall be the earnest endeavor of the new staff to make this herald all that they would have it be. We know that we owe it to these men and women and to the traditions they have established by the success which has crowned their efforts during past years, if not to ourselves, to meet our new and responsible duties in this matter of producing a paper which, if possible, will be at least equal to former numbers.

We believe that the purpose of the WEEKLY should be to reflect the intellectual, social and moral life of the college; at least that is what it has accomplished in the past, and to that end the new staff shall vigorously apply its efforts. We shall try, although we know how difficult a task it is, to keep our columns free from platitudes. In the pursuance of this ideal, realizing the value of many and varied opinions, we heartily solicit criticisms, favorable or unfavorable, from anyone who is truly interested in the welfare of our task and who, therefore, offers such criticisms with the ultimate purpose of helping to produce a better publication. But, above all things, we earnestly desire that all criticisms be frankly submitted to the persons who have authority to make the needed remedies. We need your suggestions. Our idea is to serve our college, and therefore, alumni, students, members of the faculty, we solicit your aid and hearty cooperation in attempting to fulfill our ambitions as set forth in this article and trust that we may be guided by you into the habit of doing our best in whatever we attempt and by so doing reach the highest possible degree of efficiency. J. S. G., '17.

Delaware College is about to erect a $200,000 Science building; all chemistry, biology and agriculture laboratory work will be transferred to this new building.

CHRISTIAN ORGANIZATIONS

The joint meeting of the associations was in charge of the Y. W. C. A. this month. There was a large attendance to listen to the address given by Rev. R. S. Snyder of Schwenksville. Prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Edwards.

In consideration of the approaching Easter season Rev. Mr. Snyder chose as his theme, "The Cross of Jesus" with the text, Hebrews 12:2. He said in part: Jesus spoke of the cross, which he was to endure, very early in His life. He realized His purpose and work in the world and in no way tried to avoid it. In fact, there is a triumphant note when He says, "I lay down my life." He knew the goal toward which He was going and directed everything toward its attainment.

Scott and Peary were men anxious to give something to the world which had never before been contributed. The motive of Christ was somewhat the same. It was to bring to the world the heart of God that the people might come to know and understand Him. This motive is shown in the text by the three expressions: "endured," "despised the shame," and "joy of conquest." Jesus endured life and therefore believed in it. He suffered many things but never faltered. The hard things which must be met in college are not nearly as hard as those which must be met out in the world. It is necessary to keep the head erect, with always a vision of all of life's abundance and glory and encouragements.

Again, Jesus despised the shame. And it was because of this contempt that he made the cross hallowed. He scorned the sneers and sarcasm cast upon Him by his enemies. It is through the scorn of these same abuses that we may become more like the Son of God.

Lastly, there is the joy of conquest. It is a great satisfaction and joy to know that we have completed a task for the accomplishment of which we have made such an effort. Jesus found that same joy on the cross.

It is for us to make the underlying qualities of these motives our own. This can be accomplished (1) by becoming conscious of the invisible, by realizing that there are witnesses looking down from Heaven and watching our every act; (2) by covering our baser natures—"laying aside every weight and the sin which doth so easily beset us."

The Students' Employment Bureau of the University of Pittsburg has provided students with positions whereby they have earned a total sum of $25,144.

ing was the declamation, "The Martyr President" by Preston E. Ziegler, '17. His fitting manner, flexible voice, and sympathetic interpretation lent much charm to the performance. Another musical number followed—the mixed quartet, Misses Rebecca Rhoads, '18, Frances Furman, '18, Messrs. H. B. N. Pritchard, '16, R. E. Wilhelm, '18, sang "The Sunshine of Your Smile," in a captivating way. Mr. Paul J. Lehman, '17, then read the Zwinglian Review, which sparkled with cleverness, and kept each Zwinglian wondering as to when his turn would come to be the butt of a witicism, which however left no sting. The honor of delivering the Zwinglian oration had been accorded to Mr. Jacob E. Bahner, '16, and he had prepared an able appeal for preparedness under the caption "The Unlocked Door." Mr. Bahner's material and delivery were uniformly good. The final number was rendered by the Zwinglian chorus, Mr. Harold B. Kerschner, '16, leader. The selection was "Sweet Kentucky Lady," and the rendition was faultless.

Mr. Preston E. Sellers, '16, acted in the capacity of chairman, and invited all to remain for a social time following the program, at which time appropriate refreshments were served. Thus ended an evening of entertainment and advantage, for the program had been well arranged, and the careful work of the performers left no doubt as to the success of the occasion.

Mr. Shearer, who had the decorating in charge, deserves special mention for the excellent artistic manner in which he had prepared Bomberger Hall for the event.

Alumni Notes

Miss Sara Mayberry, '15, head of the English department of the Spring City High School, very successfully coached the cast of characters who recently gave Dickens' "Cricket on the Hearth."

Miss Edna M. Wagner, '14, for the last few days has been unable to meet her classes in the Wilmington High School on account of illness.

Dr. Francis T. Krusen, '09, and wife, ex-'10, are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter.

In St. John's Church, Chambersburg, Pa., the pastor, Rev. T. A. Alspach, '07, preached a special sermon to men.

Rev. I. Calvin Fisher, D. D., '89, pastor of St. Mark's Church, Lebanon, Pa., on last Saturday performed the marriage ceremony for three couples within one hour.

The York-Hanover District of the Alumni Association of Ursinus College will hold its annual banquet in Trinity Reformed Chapel, Hanover, Pa., on Monday evening, April 3. The banquet is in charge of the ladies of the Mite Society.

The Board of Foreign Missions of the Reformed Church at its annual meeting, held March 7-8, among other business, took up the problem of opening a station in the Moslem World. A committee was appointed to investigate the present conditions existing there, and, if possible, recommend a place where the Board may, when financially able, open a Mission Station. Harry E. Paisley, President of the Board of Directors of Ursinus, and Dr. James I. Good, '87, are on this committee.

Rev. William A. Reimert, '98, and wife sailed from Vancouver on the S. S. Monteagle on March 21. Mrs. Reimert stood the journey across the continent well, and her physical condition is improving.

William A. Yeager, '14, is having success as the leader of the Methodist choir in Phoenixville. His choir recently successfully rendered a cantata.

At the special meetings held in Linfield, Rev. Dallas R. Krebs, '02, of Spring City, and Rev. Arthur C. Ohl, '01, of Brownback's, were speakers.

Rev. Albert-G. Peters, '03, of St. Stephen's Church, Perkaskie, held a series of special Lenten services with good results.

Rev. J. S. Bartholomew, '00, of Rittersville, on his last birthday was the recipient of a well filled purse and a raise in salary.

At a meeting held recently the student body of Muhlenberg decided to send a protest to the Executive Committee of the Pennsylvania Intercollegiate Oratorical Union against the wearing of evening dress, suggesting that the academic gown would be more fitting. The reason given for this action is that evening dress gives undue advantage to a man of fine physique.

On the Campus

The regular monthly meeting of the English-Historical Group was held in Shreiner Hall last Wednesday evening. A Shakespearean program was rendered in commemoration of the 200th anniversary of England's greatest dramatist. The first number was a vocal solo with violin obligato by Misses Seiz and Kern, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Miss Butler gave a clear idea of the character of "Hamlet." Profitable as well as interesting was the reading from "Songs from Shakespeare" by Miss Rayser. Miss Tyson then rendered a beautiful piano solo. Dr. Smith made some interesting remarks on the program and mentioned especially Stratford-on-Avon. After a special good time refreshments were served.

Professor Hirsch was unable to meet his classes on Monday and Tuesday of last week on account of the death of his mother.

Mrs. A. B. Seiz of Mont Clare, Pa., spent Thursday of last week at the college as the guest of her daughter, Miss Mary Seiz, '16.

Beltz, '15, and Hartranft, '15, were seen renewing acquaintances about the college during the past week.

Miss Thomas, '19, has been able to return to her college duties and activities, after having suffered with a severe attack of scarlet fever.

Miss Bickel of Pottstown visited Miss Wickersham, '19, over last week-end.

Dr. Omwake and Dr. Smith were absent from the college on last Thursday to make final plans for the installment of the Clark Memorial pipe organ.

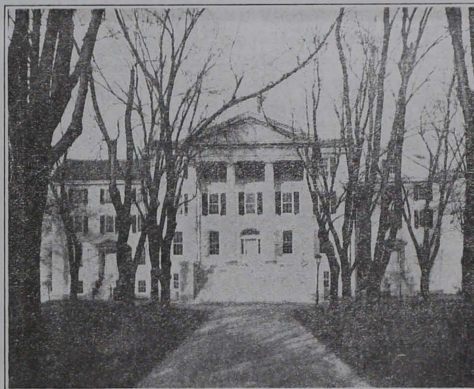

Miss Brooks, '12, of Palmyra, N. J., and Miss Ellis, '13, of Phoenixville were the guests of Miss Kern, '16, over the week-end.

The campus has begun its annual spring transformation. The robins, the blackbirds and others of the feathery tribe are here with their enlivening song. The buds are almost ready to unpack their twisted bundles and soon we will witness the unfolding of the leaves and the covering of the trees with beautiful blossoms. Does not this expression of the rhythm of the year recall to some extent the development of the earth from chaos to perfection.

The members of the Junior Cast are busily rehearsing the play which will be given in several weeks, for the benefit of the 1917 Ruby. Definite announcement will appear in the WEEKLY at a later date.

FREELAND HALL

THE CURRICULUM

embraces four years of work in the arts and sciences leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science, and includes

SEVEN GROUPS OF COURSESI. THE CLASSICAL GROUP

This is a course in the liberal arts with special emphasis upon the Latin and Greek languages. It is specially adapted to fit students for the theological schools and for general work in the teaching profession.

II. THE LATIN-MATHEMATICAL GROUP

This group has exceptional disciplinary value and provides a broad general culture. It constitutes an excellent group for students expecting to make teaching their life work.

III. THE MATHEMATICAL-PHYSICAL GROUP

This group includes advanced courses in mathematics and the sciences. It is designed for students who wish to teach these subjects, or who wish to pursue courses in high grade technical schools.

IV. THE CHEMICAL-BIOLOGICAL GROUP

This group is designed primarily for students who expect to enter the medical profession and for persons who wish to become specialists in chemistry and in the biological sciences.

V. THE HISTORICAL-POLITICAL GROUP

This group furnishes thorough preparation for the study of the law, and enables students who expect to teach to become specialists in history, economics, political science and public finance.

VI. THE ENGLISH-HISTORICAL GROUP

This group fits the student for a life of letters in general and offers exceptional advantages for persons expecting to enter the educational profession.

VII. THE MODERN LANGUAGE GROUP

This group affords special advantages to students who expect to enter the field of literature, or who desire to become specialists in teaching the modern languages.

'Varsity Nine Wins in Opening Game

would have pulled through his tight places had his team mates given him more fortification afield. He was relieved by Wunder and Pollick respectively.

For the home team, Peterson started on the mound and during the first five innings which he worked, allowed only three singles. Ziegler pitched the remaining four frames and held the enemy to one lone tally. To Rutledge goes the distinction of making the first hit and scoring the first run on Patterson Field this spring. The longest drive of the game was a three-base hit by Kerr to deep center field. The work of Stugart as catcher and at the bat was particularly noteworthy. The Slippery Rock Normal product played his position in big league style and connected for three singles.

With the score standing twelve to two at the end of the fifth inning, Coach Griffith sent an entirely new team in, which held the visiting team in 'Varsity-like fashion. Of the new men, Ashenfelter, Barkley and Deisher showed up well. Twenty men were used by Coach Griffith during the entire game. Score:

The Students' Association of Haverford College has determined to adopt some system which will prevent a student from entering too deeply into extra-curriculum work.

"The things we do for our customers are more important to us than the things they do for us."

THAT'S the way we like to feel in serving you with good things to wear; we cultivate always this spirit of service—if the spirit is there, the act just-naturally follows.
