COLLEGE GLEE CLUB GIVES HOME CONCERT

Large Audience Greeted Performers on Wednesday Evening

The Men's Glee Club of the college made its appearance on the home platform Wednesday evening. The size of the audience proved the popularity of the concert and the applause later testified to its success, for to each number the club was called upon to respond to encores. The voices were at their best on Wednesday night and in their blending showed the result of the season's work. The harmony was at all times excellent and the parts smooth and well-balanced. The encores were most clever and humorous. The instrumental selections and the readings gave the program variety and balance.

This concert brings the season almost to a close, the club having sung previously at Tamaqua, Mahanoy City, Ringtown, New Tripoli, Hanover, Glen Rock, York, Lebanon, Boyertown, Narberth and Pottstown.

The chorus of Watson's "Anchored" which was rendered by the club proved an excellent opening number. This effective arrangement of the well-known song showed to advantage both the heavier chorus work and the expressive shading. The whistling interlude in it was most novel and pleasing. The next selection was a piano solo by Mr. Fegely. His work as accompanist of the club has contributed much to its success this year and his instrumental solos added greatly to the excellence of the program. The quartet next appeared. It is composed this year of Hayden B. N. Pritchard, First Tenor; John H. A. Bomberger, Second Tenor; Henry K. Ancona, First Bass; A Wendell Frederici, Second Bass. They rendered the ever popular "Perfect Day" and, for an encore, a series of local hits which "took" especially well with the audience. "On the Road to Mandalay" by Speak was then given. In it Mr. Ancona had the melody which was supported by the voices of the whole club in accompanying harmony. The encore in perfect imitation of a bagpipe afforded much amusement. Mr. Deininger then gave in his usual delightful fashion a reading in imitation of a negro

VARSITY NOW SHOWS MARKED IMPROVEMENT

Breaks Its Losing Streak by Defeating Lebanon Valley

The Ursinus College nine showed a marked improvement on Wednesday afternoon, when they held the strong Fordham team to three scores. The game, which was played on the Fordham field, was closely contested throughout. Johnson, who has been suffering from a sore arm, had not yet returned to his last season's form, but it was due to his ability to keep the opponent's eleven hits well scattered and his excellent support of the team in fielding that Fordham was held to the low score.

In a very interesting and well-played game Ursinus defeated Lebanon Valley on Saturday afternoon on Patterson Field by a score of 2 to 0. Johnson, returning to his old-time form, got revenge for the defeat administered to him by this team two weeks ago, by allowing them only two hits.

Ursinus registered her first score in the fourth, when, with two men down, Miller drove a three-base hit to center field, followed by Schaub's single. There was no other score until the eighth, when, through Adams' single, Mitterling's two-bagger, and Machen's bad throw to the catcher, Adams crossed the rubber with the second run.

Schaub, who played his first game for Ursinus, did very good work. Kennedy and Johnson excelled for the locals in batting; each finding White, the visitor's pitcher, for two hits. Adams, Diemer and Stugart excelled in fielding. Ziegler starred for the visitors, securing the only hits for Lebanon Valley.

On next Saturday afternoon the Varsity will cross bats with the strong Swarthmore team on Patterson Field. It is expected that many alumni will be on hand to witness this game.

ANNUAL SCHAFF PRIZE DEBATE

The Debaters Discuss a Live Question in Interesting Manner

On Friday evening the Fourth Annual Prize Debate of the Schaff Literary Society was held in Bomberger Hall. The program was well prepared and interesting throughout.

The program was opened by a piano duet by Misses Rosen and Slinghoff, which was followed by the invocation by Dean W. A. Kline.

Next in order were the direct speeches of the debate. The question "Resolved, That the best interests of the United States demand a prompt and substantial increase in her army and navy," was upheld on the affirmative side by Singley, '15, Gingrich, '16, and P. E. Deitz, '18, who brought out the following points:

I. That the best interests of the United States demand an adequate national defense.

II. That for such an adequate national defense a prompt and substantial increase in her navy is necessary.

III. That for such an adequate national defense a prompt and substantial increase in her army is likewise necessary.

For the negative side, Messrs. Light, '16, Beltz, '15, and Brown, '17, brought out the following points:

I. There is no need for prompt action; because, first, there is no danger of attack; secondly, we do not know what to prepare; thirdly, our influence for peace would be diminished if we were to spend large sums of money on new armament.

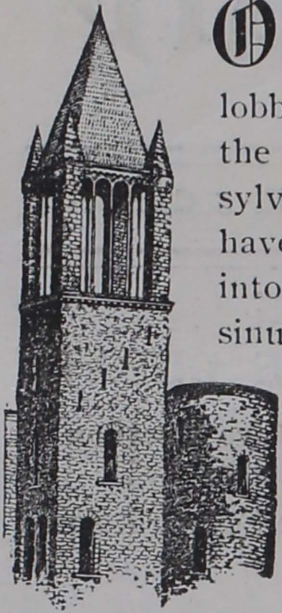

II. There is no substantial increase needed because first, unnecessary increase would be extravagant; secondly, an increase would be merely an aid to special interests.

III. Neither a prompt or substantial increase is needed because, first, our armaments are only of paper advantage; secondly, these instruments of war never reach a final decision; thirdly, the best way to precipitate war is to prepare for it.

The debaters all exhibited considerable spirit and a thorough knowledge of the question, though the debate of

The Tower Window

WHAT this week emanates from the lobby of a hotel in one of the interior cities of Pennsylvania. Official duties have brought me for a day into a section in which Ursinus College has a host of friends. The day, now spent, has been pleasant for me and profitable for the college. I have been in a number of homes, in business and professional offices, and in a pastor's study. I have talked concerning our affairs with a director, with a number of graduates, with a lawyer, with several manufacturers, and with gentle housekeepers. There is the most kindly interest everywhere, and a confidence in Ursinus that is truly heartening. I learn incidentally that there will be at least half a dozen new students next fall from this city.

There is a most striking contrast between conditions affecting our college to-day and conditions of a decade or more ago when I first began going about in the interest of the institution. Then the institution was not well known and the good things that were to be said about Ursinus College I had to say too often myself. To-day I may sit quiet and hear fine testimonies from others. Within the past twelve hours I have heard the college commended by various persons for its enterprise, for its business-like management, for its good glee club, for the enjoyableness of its commencement occasions, for its well-kept buildings and grounds, for the comforts provided for its students. In connection with the latter comment, the speaker remarked that it was doubtful if the students appreciate, as they well may, what the college does for them. Another said we should raise our rates.

For myself, I believe our students do appreciate their comfortable and well-kept quarters. I was told only a few days ago of the honest pride the boys of our baseball team felt in their Alma Mater as to these matters, when they visited a neighboring college to play a game of ball, and saw conditions there.

All will agree that the rates at Ursinus are low. Those of us who must manage its business affairs and make up deficits know it only too well. There is a possibility that those who are not familiar with the deficit may have the mistaken notion that because the rates are low, the education dispensed at Ursinus is cheap. I have observed that the student who is helped most financially is often least appreciative of his college and its fostering care. In general, however, I feel that our students, as a whole, are appreciative of the fact that Ursinus College is, in so large a measure, philanthropic. Many graduates have told me that they feel under lasting obligation to their college and these are never weary in their support. Students, as well, who carry this sentiment in their hearts always pay their bills gladly and do not mind doing an extra turn for the good of the college when they have opportunity.

A Summer Trip in Europe.

A. M. BILLMAN, A. B., '12

Syrian Protestant College, Beirut, Syria.

My purpose in writing this article is simply to set down a plain narrative of what I saw during my three-month trip in Europe last summer and not to tell what "great and sublime thoughts" come to one while traveling.

On July 11th eight of us teachers, with the care-free spirits of boys let out of school, took possession of the prow deck of a Mediterranean steamer at Beirut bound for the City of the Golden Horn. Who would sleep in a cabin in such weather, with such a bright full moon shining on the matchless blue Mediterranean? Lying flat on the deck, we were gently rocked to sleep under the open sky—sleep so deep that only the rattling of the anchor chain early next morning told us that we were already at Larnaka, Cyprus. As we could not go ashore and as little of the country could be seen from the ship, we were not sorry when the anchor was raised and we started off for Rhodes. Almost all day we were in full view of the rugged, mountainous coast of Cyprus.

Upon leaving the shelter of these hills we struck "contrary winds" and soon began to lose all our poetic feelings for the Blue Mediterranean. Again we lay down on our deep-sea cradle, but its motion had anything but a sleep-producing effect. No one was troubled by such mundane thoughts as "what shall we eat?" but all strove to lie quiet and thus steady the crazy ship. A few dashes of salt spray made all feel quite travel-seasoned, but a more insistent dash led to new thoughts that were entirely blotted out by a tremendous slap and swish as old Neptune himself came on board. Wet, miserable and sick, all made a dash for lower quarters to escape the next onslaught, leaving all baggage perishable and otherwise to its fate for the simple reason that nobody had strength enough left to carry anything in the line of excess baggage. Just then another big one came on with a slap and a shock that sent spray half way to the stern of the ship. After several hours of this the sea grew quieter and once more our party regained enough vitality and interest in life to enjoy a half-hour stop at Rhodes. Even our appetites returned at the sight of melons, grapes and other delicacies brought on board for sale by the islanders.

After touching at Smyrna and a number of other interesting oriental towns we finally passed the forts of the Dardanelles and saw the domes and minarets of Constantinople on the distant skyline. Here we visited the wonderful Byzantine church, Santa Sophia, the wonder and admiration of architects and lovers of art for centuries. The Moslems who have transformed it into a mosque have been unable to efface all traces of Christian signs and symbols with which it was decorated by the early Christians. On Friday we saw the Sultan go to worship, attended by hundreds of cavalry, infantry, palace guards, musicians and officers. One could spend weeks among the wonders, new and old, of Stamboul, Pera and Galata, but we soon had to leave its mosques, mediaeval castles, palaces and towers and its diverse peoples for other lands.

Here our party split in half and four of us took passage on a Russian steamer for Odessa. A more beautiful view cannot be imagined than that which presents itself to the traveler going up the narrow straits of the Bosphorous which separates Europe and Asia. The shores are lined with picturesque castles and forts that date back to a time before the discovery of America, but more effective modern forts lie concealed in the low hills. With the gradual widening of the channel all these dream-provoking scenes disappeared behind the horizon and we were steaming across the Black Sea.

Long before the modern city of Odessa appeared we who had been living in the soft and rather enervating climate of the East began to feel new vigor and enthusiasm as we faced the northern breezes and walked up and down among our sturdy Russian fellow-passengers. When half way across the sea we were suddenly brought face to face with the fact that we were nearing Russia by the demand of an officer for all passports. We did not see our papers again until we reached Odessa where we had to stay on board till the police of the port had examined them to see if

Among the Colleges

It is estimated that five hundred yards of window glass per month are broken by the students at Illinois University.

Dartmouth and Brown, after a long break in athletic relations, will meet again in all branches of sport.

Princeton and Rutgers were the first colleges to play football, beginning in 1856. Michigan is the pioneer among the western colleges, having adopted the sport in 1878.

According to statistics published in the Yale News, it has cost the Seniors at Yale $1,079,111 to get their diplomas. The yearly expenses range from $200 to $4,500.

President Hibben, of Princeton, has put himself on record as favoring undergraduate coaching of college athletic teams.

A great movement is on foot to place the honor system in examinations in the University of Pittsburgh. The deans of the institution have approved it, and the four classes will soon vote upon it.

The Collegiate Anti-Militarism League which was formed recently among the students at Columbia, Harvard, Yale and Princeton and other colleges to combat the activities of such organizations as the American Legion and the National Security League, is undertaking an investigation to discover the exact strength of the militaristic spirit among college men. Two hundred letters are being sent to the editors of college dailies, to find their attitude towards summer training camps, military drills and lectures on military tactics. The letters say in part: "An agitation for military service has been started by the National Security League. It is our belief that such a movement is unnecessary and to the highest degree vicious. Its advocates may declare they are opposed to militarism yet they are really fostering its spread. The proposal strikes all college men very close to home. We desire to get your opinion on this subject as we wish to publish a symposium of student opinion on military camps, drills and lectures." Eight hundred letters are being sent to instructors and professors in colleges and Universities to gauge their personal inclinations as to increased armaments and a larger army, recruited among college students. Blanks are also being sent to four hundred colleges, including every state in the Union, for the purpose of obtaining an actual poll of the students themselves. Each institution is provided with a list of questions to be submitted to individuals.

Editorial

The new system governing the election and duties of athletic managers, as proposed by the Athletic Committee, which was printed in last week's issue of the WEEKLY, will be presented to the Athletic Association in a very short time for ratification or rejection.

It seems to be the consensus of opinion among the students that the present system of election has outlived its usefulness and that a change should be instituted whereby the most deserving men may be chosen for the respective positions from the standpoint of fitness and service.

Under the new system the candidates for managerial offices will be selected on the competitive basis, which system is being followed in many of the Eastern colleges. Furthermore, they will be elected by the members of the athletic teams, who are really the most desirable men to act in such a capacity. These men, being on the field from day to day, are thus enabled to observe the work of the prospective candidates. Under the present system the whole student body takes part in elections, and it is a self-evident fact that, generally speaking, it is incompetent to select the man for the position from the standpoint of service for the reason that it does not make observations of this character. Let us take, for instance, the Fall election for football managers under the present system. The incoming Freshman class is indeed not competent to vote, as the members thereof are not sufficiently acquainted with the candidates to make a wise choice. The fault, as we all know, is in the system for by this method the Freshmen are required to cast a chance ballot or rely upon the advice of the upper classmen, which, in some cases, may involve the element of politics.

Another important fact to be noted is that, under the new system, the men who discharge their duties faithfully during their first year will be promoted to the next higher office, and so on until the highest office is reached, which will furnish a proper incentive to the candidates in office to aspire to the higher positions. In the Junior year there will be two candidates for the position of manager, the defeated candidate being made manager of the second team, in addition to receiving the Varsity insignia, which will compensate for the service which he has heretofore rendered.

The chief differences between the present and proposed systems we believe have been clearly presented. It is now a matter for the Association to decide.

L. F. D., '16.

The movement for simplified spelling is growing in the East and West, but particularly in the West. The colleges and universities are lending aid to the spread of this reform. In a list of seventy institutions in the West that have either adopted the simplified spelling in their official publications, or are officially permitting its use among their students in their written work, are found the following: University of Illinois, the Northwestern University, State Normal University of Illinois, Knox College, Illinois College, the State Universities of Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, and Ohio. There are ten colleges and normal colleges in Missouri which endorse the simplified spelling, and seven each in Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska. In the East the movement is slower, a natural result of the conservatism of the older parts of the country. Yet in a list of seventy colleges that have given sanction to the movement we find the names of the University of Ohio and the University of Pittsburgh, while leading members of the faculties of Harvard, Yale, Columbia and Johns Hopkins are among the most active officials of the Simplified Spelling Board. A number of prominent journals in the East have adopted and are using simplified spelling.

To Prospective Students.

From now until the end of the year, copies of the WEEKLY will appear at frequent intervals in the mail of many young persons whom we know to be looking forward to a college course.

These papers are sent with the compliments of Ursinus College in the hope that they will serve to give prospective students a more intimate impression of current life at this college than can be conveyed by the catalogue and other more formal publications.

May the visits of the WEEKLY bring to you an exhilarating breath from the rich and wholesome atmosphere of our student life and thus serve to lead you in time into the full enjoyment of this life in Ursinus College.

GEORGE LESLIE OMWAKE, President.

"The Poetry of the Christian Life" was the topic for the meeting this week. Miss Craft, who led, based her talk on the passage from Ephesians beginning, "For we are His workmanship."

"The word 'workmanship' here comes from a Greek word whose root meaning is 'poem.' Therefore we are God's poems. Now a poem is based on some definite plan, it carries a message of some kind and it must be beautiful. Our lives ought not to be haphazard affairs swayed by every influence. We should consecrate ourselves to realize God's plan for our lives. Doing so, we will no longer waste valuable time worrying over trifles, nursing petty grudges or giving way to fits of temper and depression. We, as Christians, are God's messages to the world. Constant striving to live a practical Christianity, constant revelation of His love by our love to one another is the true way to deliver it. Now in being beautiful most of our lives fail. Humdrum devotion to duty never brings beauty. To attain it we must learn to love unselfishly, must put others first. The most beautiful lives ever lived were those rich in self-sacrifice. From such we get the inspiration of spiritual beauty. But to our lot only the little undertakings usually fall. Still the dozens of things we may do to help each day will make the lives of others easier, brighter and better. Everyone may cultivate a sunshiny temperament and bring cheer in that way. God has given us His biggest and best gift in Christ and we may live to Him, in grateful return, lives sweeter than any poem."

Miss Elizabeth W. Conklin, Traveling Secretary of the Student Volunteer movement, addressed the Y. W. C. A. on Thursday afternoon.

College Co-ed Ridden On Board

The above is one of the many features of the play to be given by the 1916 class, on Saturday evening, May 8, in Bomberger Hall. The play is entitled "The Junior," and is being coached by Deininger, '15, which is sufficient recommendation of the quality of the acting.

One of our American colleges is the center of the plot. Considerable commotion is aroused among the ranks of the Seniors by the Juniors, when they announce that the faculty have admitted a co-ed. The Seniors immediately take the initiative and ride the supposed co-ed out of town on a board.

This co-ed is none other than one of our own fair sex, and this part of the performance is alone worth the price of admission. Only twenty-five cents will be charged for the tickets, so please treat the Business Managers kindly when they interview you within the next few days on the matter. Come one! Come all! Be a sport and join the crowd. A rare treat is guaranteed all who attend. 'Twill be pastime for the ladies and fun for the babies.

At the meeting of Lancaster Classis which was recently held in Harrisburg Dr. H. Hershey Farnsler, '01, delivered the address of welcome to that body. Dr. Farnsler is a successful practicing physician in the state capital.

Rev. George H. Miller, '86, delivered an address at the local institute, held at Nescopeck, Pa., on the subject: "Three Great Essentials to an Education."

Rev. H. A. Welker, '93, formerly of Royersford, Pa., but now of Salisbury, N. C., preached the sermon for the dedication of the new pipe organ at Greensboro, N. C. He also assisted the pastor, Rev. Shuford Peeler, '03, in conducting a week of special evangelistic meetings.

Clyde T. Saylor, '10, of Kenilworth, Pa., has just completed another very successful term as principal of the North Coventry High School, near Pottstown.

Rev. Arthur C. Ohl, '01, is having great success in his new field of labor at Brownback's charge, near Spring City, Pa. Quite a few members have been added to the church since Easter.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Drumm, of 3105 Diamond Street, Philadelphia, Pa., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Morea Marguerite Drumm, ex-'10, to Mr. Augustus Bergey Ziegler, also of Philadelphia.

Ivan N. Boyer, '14, who for the past year has successfully taught history in the McKeesport, Pa., High School, has been re-elected for another year at a salary of $1400.

everything in them was satisfactory and to assure himself that we were not undesirable travelers. Woe to the would-be traveler in Russia whose papers do not have all the necessary notes, appendices and stamps. He never sets foot on Russian soil. It is better to lose your money than your passport, as it is the first thing that is demanded by the hotel keepers of every hamlet and city in the land. It is then sent to the police station to be examined, and if it is not satisfactory you are quite likely to follow it and even go further.

On the Campus

The Ursinus College Y. M. C. A. will hold a fair and show on Thursday evening, May 20, 1915, beginning at 7.30 p. m. The show will be of a light nature and a good laugh is promised to all. Admission to the show will be only 10 cents. A surprise also awaits you after the show is over. Come and help along the cause of the Y. M. C. A.

On Thursday evening, the English-Historical Group entertained the Historical-Political Group in the Freeland Hall reception rooms. An interesting program was given as follows: Piano Duet, Misses Rahn and Wiest; Talk, Mr. Boyer; Cornet Solo, Mr. Wiest; Vocal Solo, Mr. Ancona; Talk, Mr. Light; Impromptu Speeches, Prof. Hirsch and Dr. Smith. After the program refreshments were served and a pleasant social hour enjoyed.

Miss Ebright, '14, and Miss Furman, ex-'16, were visitors at the college last week and attended the Glee Club concert.

Miss Paul, '16, spent several days at her home in Paulsboro, N. J., last week.

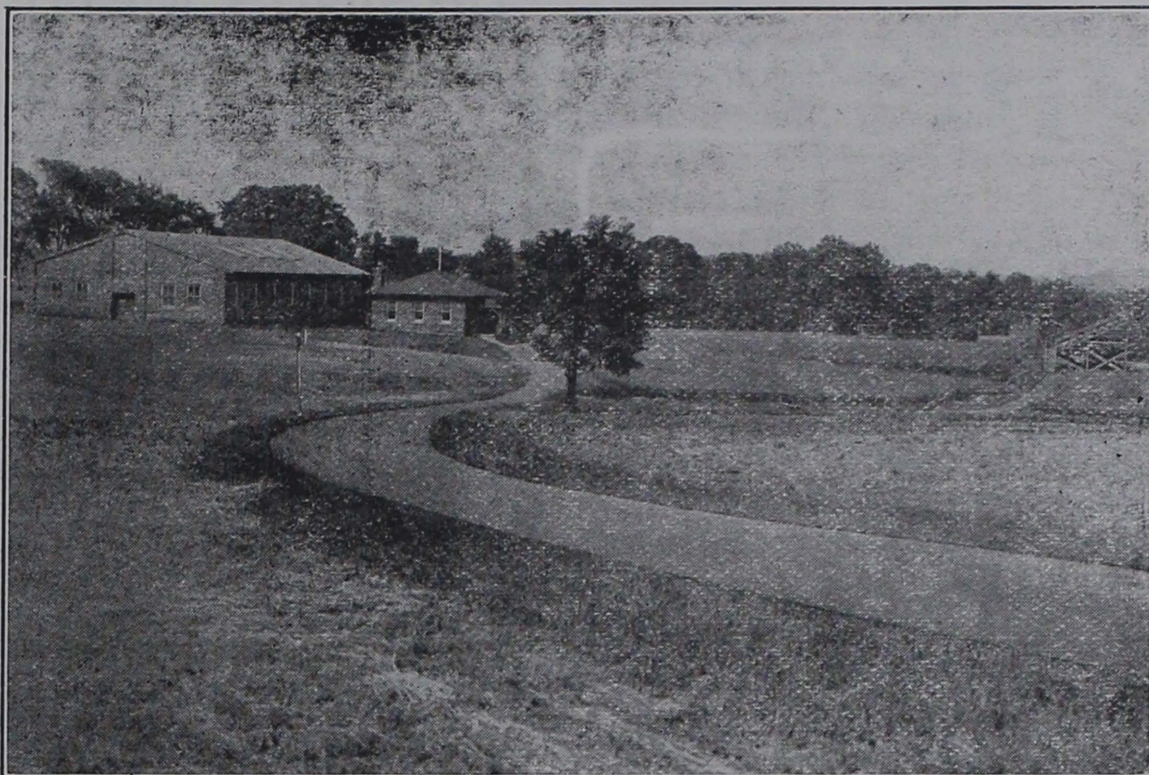

Miss Rahn, '15, spent a pleasant week end with Miss Brandt, '18.

The Freshman pennant made its debut into the college world last week, and since then has taken up permanent residence in the rooms of the loyal '18-ers. The style of the pennant is unique and pleasing, having been chosen as the best of a number of pretty designs. The pennant is, of course, in the official 1918 colors, Turquoise and Black. G. A. and P. E. Deitz, '18, college pennant agents, supplied the pennants through a Philadelphia firm.

If on one of these glorious spring afternoons you should chance to see a stately figure striding across the campus, followed by a host of young ladies and gentlemen, do not be alarmed: The days of the Pied Piper have not returned, it is only Prof. Crow leading the Biology II class on a trip to study the trees on our campus.

On Wednesday evening, May 5, at 8 Mr. Byron S. Fegely, '15, organist in Augustus Lutheran Church, Trappe, will give a recital on the Kimball pipe organ in that church. Admission free, silver offering at door.

Rev. E. J. Bond and wife of Pottstown attended the Schaff Prize Debate on Friday. Rev. Bond served as one of the judges. Mrs. Bond was formerly Miss Green the preceptress of Shreiner Hall.

THE CURRICULUM

embraces four years of work in the arts and sciences leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science, and includes

SEVEN GROUPS OF COURSES

I. THE CLASSICAL GROUP

This is a course in the liberal arts with special emphasis upon the Latin and Greek languages. It is specially adapted to fit students for the theological schools and for general work in the teaching profession.

II. THE LATIN-MATHEMATICAL GROUP

This group has exceptional disciplinary value and provides a broad general culture. It constitutes an excellent group for students expecting to make teaching their life work.

III. THE MATHEMATICAL-PHYSICAL GROUP

This group includes advanced courses in mathematics and the sciences. It is designed for students who wish to teach these subjects, or who wish to pursue courses in high grade technical schools.

IV. THE CHEMICAL-BIOLOGICAL GROUP

This group is designed primarily for students who expect to enter the medical profession and for persons who wish to become specialists in chemistry and in the biological sciences.

V. THE HISTORICAL-POLITICAL GROUP

This group furnishes thorough preparation for the study of the law, and enables students who expect to teach to become specialists in history, economics, political science and public finance.

VI. THE ENGLISH-HISTORICAL GROUP

This group fits the student for a life of letters in general and offers exceptional advantages for persons expecting to enter the educational profession.

VII. THE MODERN LANGUAGE GROUP

This group affords special advantages to students who expect to enter the field of literature, or who desire to become specialists in teaching the modern languages.

woman telephoning. Mr. Harrity followed with a flute solo, "Intermezzo" from "Cavalleria Rusticana" and for an encore "Valse Bleue." The novelty of the last number "Twilight Bells" and the fine harmony of its parts was much appreciated by the audience.

The second part of the program, a new venture for the Ursinus Glee Club, was "Thirty-five Minutes of College Life" given as a miniature minstrel. This was exceedingly humorous and the club acquitted itself especially well in this new feature. The director, Prof. Jolls, acted as interlocutor and Deininger, '15 and Pritchard, '16 as end-men. The rest of the club, dressed in natty white, rendered several popular songs as "Back to Carolina" and "Tipperary" between the witty jokes of the end-men. Messrs. Pritchard, Bomberger, and Deininger in a humorous parody, sang solos during this portion of the program. A "Vocal March" by the club brought it to a close after which the audience joined with the performers in singing the "Campus Song."

Messrs. Light, Singley, and Deitz was especially clear and forceful.

A violin duet by Mr. Lape and Miss Shaner was now rendered in a very pleasing manner. The rebuttals, which followed were not as good as the direct speeches.

While the judges retired, the Schaff orchestra rendered several numbers.

In behalf of the judges, Prof. W. W. Rupert, of Pottstown; Nelson P. Fegley, Esq., '07, Norristown; and Rev. E. J. Bond, of Pottstown, Rev. Bond announced that they had decided in favor of the affirmative side, and awarded the prizes as follows: First prize, ten dollars in gold, to Mr. Singley; second prize, five dollars in gold, to Mr. Deitz; third prize, two and one-half dollars in gold, to Mr. Gingrich.

The Massachusetts Institute of Technology gives away $23,000 annually in form of scholarships.

Brickley of Harvard has been offered $2,500 a season to coach the Ames (Iowa) College football squad.

Cornell University decided to give two years military training of a serious character to her students instead of confining the drill to the Freshman class. If every college and university were to give two years drill, in ten years a million trained men would still be young enough for service.
