Introduction

- Concentrated disadvantage within metropolitan areas has been a focus of scholarship and policy interventions for decades
- Landscape of metropolitan areas has changed drastically, due to demographic shifts and economic restructuring
- We examine incidence, location, and concentration of under-resourced communities over the past forty years and the ways in which these trends vary by race/ethnicity

Under-Resourced Community (URC) Definition

An under-resourced community is a group of two or more tracts with a minimum population of at least 8,000 people, located in a metropolitan statistical area of at least 250,000 people. Each tract must meet the following criteria:

- Student Population  $\%_{tract} \leq 65\%$
- Group Quarters Population  $\%_{tract} \leq 65\%$
- Area  $_{tract} \leq 15 \text{ mi}^2$
- Population Density  $_{tract} \geq 100 \text{ people/mi}^2$
- Primary commuting flow to an urbanized area ( $RUCA = 1$ )
- Household Median Income  $_{tract} < \text{Household Median Income}_{US}$

And must meet one of the following criteria:

Poverty rate
 $\geq 20\%$

OR

Poverty rate
 $\geq 18\%$
and contiguous to a 20% poverty rate tract

Data and Methods

- Descriptive statistics using tract-level data from the 1980, 1990, 2000 Census and 2008-2012, 2015-2019 5-Year ACS from Social Explorer with consistent (2010) tract boundaries
- Metro areas with a population of at least 250,000 in all five time periods (188 metros)
- Central city and suburb definitions developed by Kneebone and Garr (2010)

Findings

Proportion of Population Living in URC Grows Over the Past Four Decades

Trends in URC Population and Poverty Rate

	Proportion of Population in URC	URC Poverty Rate	Non-URC Poverty Rate	URC Poverty Rate/Non-URC Poverty Rate
1980	.147	.302	.079	3.841
1990	.160	.317	.082	3.876
2000	.172	.294	.082	3.590
2008-2012	.213	.310	.099	3.136
2015-2019	.180	.289	.094	3.082

Note: Weighted by total population

Proportion of URC Population Living in Suburbs Grows

Central City Population and Poverty Trends

Suburban Population and Poverty Trends

	Proportion in URC	URC Poverty Rate	Non-URC Poverty Rate	URC Poverty Rate/Non-URC Poverty Rate
1980	.320	.312	.164	1.895

Conclusion

- Growth in the proportion of metro residents living in a URC
- Growth in proportion of suburban residents living in a URC
- Concentrations of poverty in central city URCs continue to be disproportionately Black and Hispanic/Latino
- Hispanic/Latinos are the largest group in URC suburbs at the end of the time period
