Claiming Truth: Heresy and Blasphemy in Religion, Law and Literature Colloquium

March 3-4, 2019

Cardozo School of Law, Moot Court Room

Sponsored by Cardozo Law Institute in Holocaust and Human Rights (CLIHHR)

Prosecutions based on alleged violations of "anti-blasphemy laws" continue to grab international headlines, as evidenced by Asia Bibi's acquittal by the Pakistani judiciary. But Pakistan is not alone. Today, dozens of states across the globe still have anti-blasphemy laws on the books, and a good number continue to enforce those laws. Several others, like Ireland, have decided to get rid of their anti-blasphemy laws altogether.

Please join the Cardozo Law Institute in Holocaust and Human Rights (CLIHHR) to further explore the motivations behind these laws, their consequences, and the challenges faced by those working to abolish them. The colloquium will convene three expert panels to further discuss these issues, and will feature a keynote address by Professor Deborah Lipstadt.

"Visual Imagery & Human Rights:"

A Book Talk with former Cardozo Dean Monroe Price and Professor Sandra Ristovska
Tuesday, February 12th at 6PM
Room 1008

Sponsored by the Cardozo Law Institute in Holocaust and Human Rights

Join former Cardozo Dean Monroe Price and his colleagues from the New York Times and the NGO "Witness" to discuss how new imagery developments are impacting human rights issues such as photography's effect on transitional justice, data collection through body cameras, and aerial photography in refugee camps.

Visual Imagery and Human Rights Practice examines the interplay between images and human rights, addressing how, when, and to what ends visuals are becoming a more central means through which human rights claims receive recognition and restitution. The collection argues that accounting for how images work on their own terms is an ever more important epistemological project for fostering the imaginative scope of human rights and its purchase on reality.

Philosophy and Law Society General Body Meeting

2/7/2019, 12:30pm-1:30pm

Philosophy and Law Society

The Philosophy and Law Society invites you to attend our first meeting of the semester!
During the hour, we will be focusing on this hypothetical:

Suppose that a device is invented that allows one to go back in time by overwriting the consciousness and memories of the older version of yourself. The old version of the future is then gone-as though it never existed, aside from the memories of the time traveler. A new future will develop based on the present timeline.

First: suppose that a device is invented that can tell when an individual has traveled back in time (and who they are) but no other information. How should we think about this? Is it murder of their past self? Of their entire timeline?

Second: suppose that we can tell what they did in the now deleted timeline. Should we find individuals liable for actions committed in said timeline? If so, under what theory?

Come ready to discuss the intersection of philosophy and law!
Pizza will be served.
