

Corporate Governance – Quality Issues

Danila Djokić

University of Primorska, Faculty of Management, Slovenia danila.djokic@fm-kp.si

Mojca Duh

University of Maribor, Faculty of Economics and Business mojca.duh@uni-mb.si

What is good corporate governance, who benefits from good corporate governance, how to measure corporate governance quality are important questions of corporate governance that concern the notion of good corporate governance. A series of formal regulations and informal guidelines, recommendations, codes and standards of corporate governance have been established that try to determine good governance and to prevent potentially self-interested managers from engaging in activities detrimental to the welfare of shareholders and stakeholders. Quality issues of the organizations could be evaluated with the standards of quality, such as: ISO 9001, 14001, 18001, 27001, EFQM and BSC standards. This article deals with the issues of the potential standardization of the corporate governance and the quality issues that need to be observed to be able to realize the goal of the standardization of the quality of the corporate governance.

Keywords: corporate governance, quality, standardisation, code, corporate governance code, good corporate governance, corporate governance quality