From the Editors

We're celebrating. Historically, WCJ published only two issues per year. But right now, you're holding issue 35.3 in your hands. We are delighted to see so many manuscripts—and so many strong manuscripts—arriving in our inbox. This “extra” issue is our attempt to make as much space as possible available for as many important articles as possible. To that end, we'll cut short this “From the Editors” column and urge you to continue, now, to the articles ahead. You'll find a mix of familiar, established voices and up-and-coming ones; quantitative studies, qualitative studies, and everything in between; and plenty to challenge and more forward your thinking about the work we do and the community our research helps us to sustain. Enjoy!
