Join us as we welcome our second guest lecturer in our course, Race and the Foundations of American Law...

Paul Butler, the Albert Brick Professor in Law at Georgetown University Law Center and a Legal Analyst on MSNBC, will visit RWU Law on Wednesday, September 28 at 12 noon.

The lecture is part of the curriculum for the Race and the Foundations of American Law course. Members of the 2L class are required to attend the lecture in person in Law 283 or to view it on Zoom at a time that is convenient to them. Zoom link will be provided by their professor.

Members of the RWU Law Community may attend the lecture in Law 283. Reception to follow - School of Law - 2nd Floor Atrium

No RSVP required.
