Remains In Ninth Coffin Investigated By Officials

DOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Del. (AP) — While flags flew at half staff for eight Americans killed in an abortive rescue attempt in Iran, mortuary officials were investigating the possibility that the remains in a ninth coffin could be those of an Iranian civilian, sources said.

The coffins arrived here Tuesday from Switzerland to a salute from a 20-man color guard. Today, officials were working to identify the charred remains of the servicemen who died in the April 25 mission.

U.S. officials have said eight Americans were killed in the failed attempt to rescue the 50 hostages from the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. But the

Embassy Death Toll In Seige Put At Seven

LONDON (AP) — Police today put the death toll in the Iranian Embassy siege at seven — five terrorists and two hostages — after firemen removed the remains of the last three bodies from the burned-out building.

With one terrorist in custody, police said this confirmed suspicions that there were six gunmen in the Iranian Arab gang that seized the embassy last Wednesday and took 26 persons, mostly Iranians, hostage.

Iran's revolutionary government said it will ask for the extradition of the surviving terrorist, but Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher was reported determined to resist the request.

The siege ended Monday when Britain's Special Air Service commando regiment stormed the embassy, killing five of the terrorists and rescuing the remaining 19 hostages. The terrorists had threatened to kill one hostage every half-hour until their demands were met.

One hostage, press attache Abbas Lavasani, was executed by the terrorists Monday and his body was pushed out the front door of the embassy. The body of a second hostage killed, Ali Akbar Samadzadeh, was taken from the rubble today, police said. Five hostages had been released earlier.

Two hostages remained in a hospital. One, Akmed Dadgar, was reported still in serious condition with gunshot wounds. The other, Charge d'Affaires Gholam-Ali Afrouz, was said to be in satisfactory condition.

Iranians have said that nine or 10 bodies were recovered after a helicopter and transport plane collided in a ball of flame.

Roman Catholic Archbishop Hilarion Capudji of the Melkite Eastern Rite, who escorted the bodies from Tehran to Zurich and turned them over to U.S. officials, said Iranian authorities told him the nine coffins he was escorting contained nine bodies. But Capudji said some coffins contained only bone fragments or charred body parts.

He said that to his knowledge only three bodies could be identified — the rest were beyond identification.

U.S. officials opened the coffins for inspection in Zurich, sources said.

Meanwhile, sources here indicated officials were investigating whether one of the bodies could be that of an Iranian.

State Department officials declined comment.

Several top military officials — but no families — were on hand when the coffins of the servicemen returned to their home soil aboard an Air Force C-141.

Maj. Gen. Robert E. Haebel of the Marine Corps and Air Force Gen. W.L. Creech, read a proclamation by President Carter that said the dead were "valiant men" whose names "will forever stand among those of heroes."

"We mourn their loss; we admire their courage; we respect their dedication; and we reaffirm the principles for which they died," it said.

Following a brief religious ceremony conducted on the runway by three military chaplains, two pallbearer teams — one Air Force and one Marine — unloaded the coffins into nine waiting hearses.

Carter's proclamation directed that the American flag be flown at half staff until sunset Friday. A national memorial service will be held in Washington on Friday, the statement said.

Air Force officials would not say when the bodies were scheduled to leave Dover.

The bodies were taken to this Delaware Air Base because its mortuary, built to handle Vietnam War casualties. It is the largest and one of the best equipped east of the Mississippi River. It can handle 100 bodies a day. Eighteen months ago, officials here attempted to identify the remains of more than 900 victims of the Peoples Temple mass murder-suicide in Guyana.

Clark To Be Given SGA's First Max A. Carman Teaching Award

Dr. Howell R. Clark, a professor of chemistry at Murray State University, will be awarded the Student Government Association's first Max A. Carman Teaching Award.

To be presented at the university's annual Honors Day program Friday, the award was created two years ago by the students to honor Carman, whose 46 years as a departmental chairman and teacher of mathematics established a record and an example of excellence for Murray faculty members before his retirement in 1974.

The award will be presented by William M. Bushart, 1979-80 SGA president from Marshall County and for the past year the student representative on the board of regents. Bushart also will be honored as the outstanding senior man at the university last year.

A native of the Dexter community of Calloway County, Clark has been a Murray State faculty member since 1963, with exception of a three-year leave of absence, during which he earned his doctoral degree at Vanderbilt University, Nashville.

Earlier, he had earned his undergraduate degree at Murray State in 1956, and two years later was awarded a master's degree at Vanderbilt. He has held the rank of full professor since 1974.

More than 30 faculty members were nominated for the coveted and prestigious award, according to Debbie Bushart, a member of the selection committee. Clark's selection was from a group of seven finalists.

When asked, Clark said his philosophy of teaching evolves from his belief that the collegiate years should provide for the student much of the vital substance from which a distinguished career could emerge.

"The attainment of this objective involves the classroom professor as an all-important moderator for the learning and development process of students," he said. "I strive to fulfill this function by a diligent communication of the subject material at a pace that is consistently demanding of the student's effort and by following with examinations that are thorough and challenging over what has been covered."

Clark further emphasized that as a teacher he stressed the importance of independent thought and the ability to find and sort out information and to apply new knowledge. "I believe that these are really the marks of being educated," he said, "and I make no apology for asking for the student's best effort just as I pledge my best effort. This is the only way that we both can come away stronger than before."

Dr. Gary Boggess, dean of the College of Environmental Science, noted distinct similarities between Carman and Clark. "Dr. Carman always demanded the best of himself and his students, and so does Dr. Clark," he said. "Dr. Carman was respected by all as a most capable professor, and his respect extended far beyond the campus. He always had time for the student, yet he never 'over-assisted.' Such is the case with Dr. Clark."

Antifreeze Poisoning Of Dogs Becoming Common In Area

The poisoning of dogs by antifreeze is becoming more common in the area served by the Murray State University Veterinary Diagnostic and Research Center at Hopkinsville.

Dr. Charles Herren, a field representative at the center, said dogs seem to be attracted to the sweet taste of the chemical if they find it in puddles, and noted that cases of dogs being poisoned by antifreeze have a tendency to increase in the spring and summer when car and truck radiators are being drained and refilled.

The first signs of the problem, he said, are vomiting and incoordination in the animal. The dog may then recover for approximately 12 hours before suffering a relapse, which usually is fatal.

Treatment is of some value if the dog is taken to a local veterinarian before the second attack occurs, he said, but emphasized that the best preventive procedure would be to keep antifreeze out of the reach of their pets.

Rh negative baby possible

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I wish you would clarify the difference between Rh positive and Rh negative parents. Isn't it true that two Rh positive parents can have an Rh negative child? Both my husband and I are Rh positive and we have an Rh negative daughter. I wouldn't want either my daughter or my husband to think I had been unfaithful.

DEAR READER — You're absolutely right and you can rest easy. However, if an Rh positive mother under these circumstances should have an Rh negative baby it will not cause the typical Rh problems that are usually discussed. That occurs only when the mother is Rh negative and the baby is Rh positive. It is true that if both parents are Rh negative then they will have only Rh negative children.

It's rather complicated but here's the explanation. We have two genes that determine whether we're Rh positive or Rh negative. The Rh positive gene is big D. The Rh negative gene is little d. If both genes are big D (DD) such a person is homozygous Rh positive type. If both genes are little d (dd) that person is homozygous Rh negative. Now what if a person has one big D gene and one little d gene (Dd)? That person still types out as Rh positive (called heterozygous Rh positive). If both parents are heterozygous (Dd), the laws of chance say that one out of four of their offspring will have a pair of big Ds (DD), one will have paired little ds (dd) and two will be heterozygous (Dd).

If both genes in both parents are positive (DD), all of their offspring will be Rh positive. But if both parents are Rh negative (dd), both genes in all of the children will be little d genes and all the children will be Rh negative.

To give you information on the common blood types, I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-4, Blood Type, Rh Factor and Transfusions. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Blood types and subgroups such as Rh have been used to determine paternity — at least to prove that someone could not be the father or the mother of a specific child. In more recent times, tissue typing as for organ transplants has been greatly perfected. These sophisticated methods are far superior to blood types in determining paternity whenever that is an issue.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What causes itching before, during and after urination? Is there a cure and what is the treatment?

DEAR READER — It's a symptom. You might as well ask what causes part of the skin to itch. There can be a local inflammation that's irritated by the urine. That may be from mechanical factors or from an infection. Some women are prone to have yeast infections, particularly if they're diabetic, and this can cause a maddening itch. I would suggest that anyone who has such a symptom should have an examination to see if there is any local problem that deserves treatment.

Prayer was led by Wanda Walker, president, who presided. The group voted to save a dime each time she drank her favorite soft drink with the money from each member after six months to be sent to a hunger relief program.

Sharilyn Wisheart was elected secretary for the remainder of the year to replace Linda Roach who has resigned.

Rainey's Day

By RAINEY APPERSON

Roses for the 'lady'—that's the way it was on Saturday when 'Genuine Risk' won the Kentucky Derby to become the first filly to do so in 65 years.

Exciting and emotional best describes the Kentucky Derby this past Saturday. The weather was perfect and everything else seemed to fall into place. When the strains of "My Old Kentucky Home" fill Churchill Downs, you simply think—"I'm glad I'm a Kentuckian."

The people and the sights to see keep you busy. One woman wore a flaming orange wig for the occasion with a camel colored pants suit accented with matching orange accessories. From Raleigh, North Carolina, she worked for Clairrol, and was pushing a new hair color for them, but frankly, I don't believe she will have many takers.

The press was entertained in a beautiful dining room there at the Downs and the celebrities were there in droves eating delicious Kentucky-cured country ham.

I did get to meet Sandy Hill, the attractive assistant to David Hartman on "Good Morning, America." She is now doing Twenty-Two and other free lance interviews. Tall, brown-haired and beautiful, Sandy comes across "so for real." She took time to talk with me and seemed glad to do it. She had just finished interviewing former president Gerald Ford, and she had nice things to say about him.

Sandy Hill's husband, a real estate broker from New Jersey, was very flashily dressed in his ultra suede sport coat, cow boy boots and cow boy hat with the expensive feathers that are all the rage now.

Speaking of clothes—wow—Derby goers must be the biggest clothes horses in the world—if I had to pick, I would say ultra suede was the winner—you have never seen so much in your life. Second to ultra suede would be the navy blazer for women and men. Women also wore all shapes and sizes of hats sprinkled with feathers, birds, and you name it.

Eddie Arcaro, the retired famous jockey, and Howard Cosell, the sports announcer, were staying in our motel and Walt and I talked with them. Eddie Arcaro had great faith in the filly and said so. Howard Cosell said he sure and tell everybody in Murray hello for him.

Mike Shannon, the former third baseman for the St. Louis Cardinals and his wife, Judy, were guests of Coy and Virginia Stacey of Paducah. Mike does the Cardinal broadcast now, and the word from wife, Judy, is that the Cardinals are going to be tough this year. Sounds good doesn't it.

Others we saw there included Sissy Spacek, who I think of as Loretta Lynn from Butcher Hollow; and Jack Klugman (Quincy), whose horse did so well in the Derby.

Kentucky lived up to its reputation this Derby Day—fast horses, a beautiful time, and beautiful women!

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren
Gay Isn't the Same As Happy

DEAR ABBY: My heart goes out to the heartbroken parent of a gay daughter. Thank you for recommending Parents of Gays. They have been a godsend to us and other parents who ask themselves, "Where have we gone wrong?" My husband and I are very grateful that our gay daughter has found a warm and stable relationship with a person she loves and who loves her.

Her housemate is as welcome and accepted into our family as the man who married our other daughter. Because being gay has caused our daughter so much pain, I will be the first to admit I wish she were not gay, just as I wish my hair wasn't curly and my husband didn't smoke. But these are things I cannot change, so I have learned to live with them. I hope the parents of that gay daughter will accept her and the girl she loves, and get on with living the rest of their lives.

CONTENT PARENT

DEAR PARENT: Curly hair can be straightened and your husband can quit smoking if he really wants to, but in my opinion, the fundamental cause of homosexuality is biological — either genetic or hormonal. Otherwise, how can one account for the fact that homosexuals have brothers and sisters who are straight though raised in the same environment? However, it is possible for psychological factors to influence one's natural sexual preference after birth.

DEAR ABBY: I recently met a European-born gentleman (Hungarian) who, upon greeting a woman, always gently kisses her hand. I think this is a lovely gesture. Can you tell me where the custom of kissing a lady's hand originated, and the reason for it?

ANNETTE IN BURLINGAME

DEAR ANNETTE: It originated in France. And although there is nothing in literature explaining the reason for it, I suppose a man has to start somewhere.

DEAR ABBY: The other day you had a letter in your column from a woman who signed PRETTY FEET. She said her husband was crazy about her feet and was really turned on by them. She wanted to know if maybe he was some kind of "nut."

You told her that he was no nut; he had a foot fetish, and it was nothing to worry about. Well, Abby, you'll never know how much that explanation meant to me. You see, ever since I was a little kid, I'd get real excited over girls' feet. I never understood why. I used to feel ashamed when I'd ask a girl if I could kiss her foot. I'm sure a lot of girls thought I was weird.

I'm a grown man now, and I'd still rather hold a girl's foot than her hand. Thanks for printing that letter. It's a great relief to know I'm not alone.

Reagan's Blue Collar

CORAOPOLIS, PA. - A well-dressed woman, crowded to the wall at the Coraopolis Elks hall by voters trying for a better look at Ronald Reagan election eve, was the key to his defeat in the Pennsylvania primary the next day - and to his chances to become president.

The woman identified herself as a local Republican leader in this lower-middle-income Pittsburgh suburb and said she supports George Bush for president. She had come to the Reagan rally to "pay my respects." But wasn't she worried by the big turnout? "Oh, no. Almost everybody here is a Democrat," she replied, pointing to the unruly throng with seeming distaste. "These people can't vote in our primary tomorrow. Our people are for Bush."

It was "our people" who kept Bush afloat as a presidential candidate by winning Pennsylvania, where cross-over voting is not permitted. The defeat thereby pointed up how much Reagan depends on that Elks hall blue-collar vote in primary states that do permit cross-over voting and in November - more than his right-wing supporters dream and perhaps than Reagan himself appreciates.

Reagan certainly understands that his advocacy of Kemp-Roth tax reduction (30 percent cut over three years), though it bothers some of his own advisers, goes over big with working men and women. But he seems to forget how important they are to him when he lapses into reflexive labor-baiting, as he did the day of the Pennsylvania primary.

Bush's Pennsylvania win was based on a 3-to-2 margin in Philadelphia's well-heeled, traditionally Republican suburbs, where blue collars are seldom worn. Outspending the nearly bankrupt Reagan campaign better than 12 to 1, Bush successfully appealed to Republicans with a relentless attack on Reagan's Kemp-Roth support as a violation of the classical economics he learned at Yale. The first innovative Republican economic strategy since the New Deal was thereby rejected by Pennsylvania Republicans Tuesday.

That is why key Reagan backers in this state privately complain about his plugs for Kemp-Roth. But not Rep. Robert Walker, a populist conservative who backed Reagan in 1976 when Reagan's present state leadership was saving the state for Gerald Ford. "The blue-collar workers want a tax cut," Walker told us as Reagan visited his district. "It's the economists who have trouble with it."

Reagan has been 1980's only Republican presidential hopeful who consistently attacks the Carter administration's high taxes and calls for lower taxes across the board. On his last pre-election Pennsylvania tour, he triggered stormy applause from Republican audiences at Springfield in the Philadelphia suburbs and at Scranton airport. But his tax-cut pitch seemed to confuse them; it brought only silence.

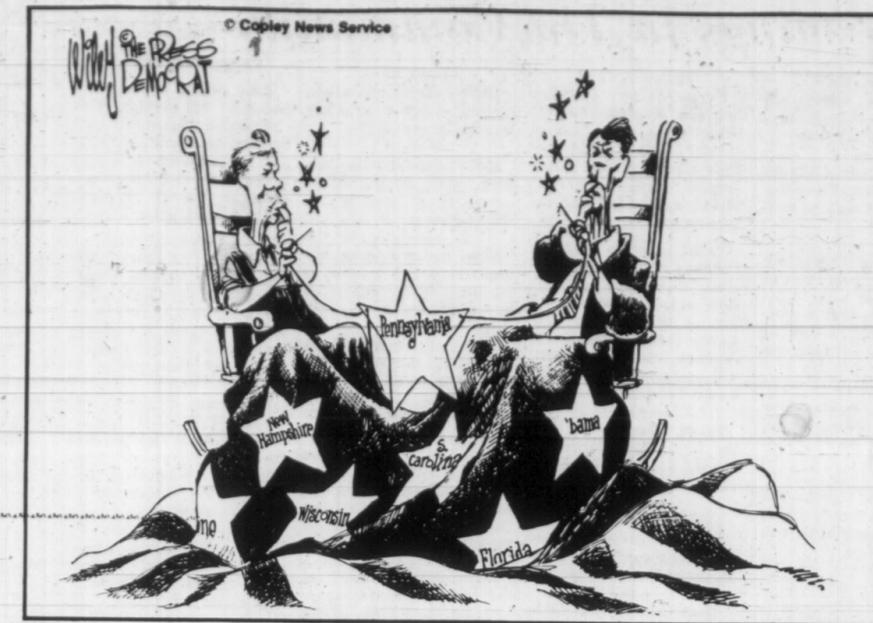

Not at the Elks hall here. The Democratic-infested audience (many without Republican ties and jackets) cheered Reagan's tax-cut promises before rushing to the fried fish and keg beer. After that rally, Reagan commented to us that one-third of all "working Americans" have entered the 30 percent tax bracket and predicted the number soon "will probably be up to half."

Yet, the next morning at St. Mary's College in South Bend, Ind., Reagan seemed to ignore his need to woo those overtaxed "working Americans" when a young questioner asked whether anti-trust laws should be applied to organized labor. That was an echo of 20 years ago when right-wing businessmen sought to checkmate labor by outlawing national bargaining.

While tax reduction would surely be high on President Reagan's agenda, anti-trust restrictions on labor would not even be discussed. Yet, Reagan could not say "no" to this old bromide. He started cautiously, saying "we should look very closely" at the idea but later in a press conference endorsed it outright.

"This hurts," one aide confided to us. Reagan had handed labor leaders a weapon to convince union members that Reagan threatens their paycheck. "I'm sure all the reporters will lead their stories with this," the aide mused. He was wrong; Reagan's defeat in Pennsylvania smoothed out the blunder.

That defeat compels Reagan to stay

HEARTLINE

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems - fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

HEARTLINE: I have a friend who was overpaid by Social Security. It seems that she has been overpaid each month for nearly two years and now their computer has discovered the overpayment, which is, according to Social Security, the result of computer error. Is this common? Are many people actually overpaid? - K.P.

Does the sun rise in the east? Is water wet? Yes, overpayments to Social Security recipients are common - extensively common.

According to statistics turned up by Heartline, some 967,000 retirement, survivor's and disability insurance benefits recipients were overpaid by more than $36 million in 1977.

The Social Security Administration identified 3.2 million incidents of overpayments to SSI beneficiaries totaling nearly $1.5 billion. Of this, $443 million was waived, $296.8 million has been collected and $148 million is now being collected. Recovery efforts were suspended on $147.7 million, and $5.9 million is being adjusted.

Most recipients of retirement, survivor's and disability insurance benefits were overpaid because they had earned more than the maximum permitted by law. As long as these beneficiaries continue to be eligible for benefits, the SSA can recover a sizable portion of the overpayment through adjustments of future benefit checks.

HEARTLINE: My husband was in WW II and he got an honorable discharge. The other day, we were looking at his discharge paper. It says that he got an honorable discharge for this reason: "C.D.D." Can you tell us what this means? - S.N.

These letters mean that he was discharged because of an injury sustained while in the service.

HEARTLINE: I am 48 years old and was recently retired on disability from the company where I worked for the past 18 years. Since I was found disabled by the company, would I also be eligible for Social Security disability? - J.C.

You are eligible to apply for Social Security disability benefits. However, the fact that you meet your company's disability requirements does not necessarily mean that you will be found disabled for Social Security. The Social Security disability law and the rules your company use may be different. Regardless of the differences, you should apply for Social Security disability benefits. The report of any examination you underwent in establishing disability for your company's retirement will be considered in determining whether you are eligible under the Social Security program.

For persons needing information on Social Security benefits we offer Heartline's Guide to Social Security. It is available by sending $2.00 to Heartline's Guide to Social Security, P.O. Box 11934, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

The Story Of Calloway County 1822-1976

By Dorothy and Kerby Jennings

Chandler and Waterfield's campaign embraced the writers in total participation. As a result, the outcome had a historical potential worthy of being fed in the gristmill of happenstance. Several years previously, one of the writers had more than a sideline bench in the successful election of U. S. Sen. James Couzens of Michigan in the preparation of a newspaper for state-wide Michigan distribution. It worked to perfection. Based upon the experience of the Michigan venture, a proposal was made to H. Glenn Doran for a similar newspaper for Harry Lee and Albert B.'s gubernatorial run. The idea was acceptable to Glenn who in turn submitted the outline to Willie Foster, influential Mayfield industrialist highly interested in Chandler's victory: This was the proposition: If Glenn and Willie would pay for paper, ink and postage, the writers would provide labor and copy for publication, subject to the underwriters' review.

Agreement was approved by Chandler and Waterfield in addition to other candidates on the Chandler slate for the publication. The slate was essential to offset the political clout of the administration in power. The Murray Democrat published 285,000 copies, the greatest number of papers in the history of the county, placed them in the mail, and they were received by rural readers over the entire state one week before the August primary. Mr. Chandler credited the little newspaper with the margin necessary for victory, amassing substantial edges up the creeks and hollows of the state in the days before television when voters were more dependent on the written word for political information.

Two representatives of Chandler and Waterfield, Messrs Davis and Sternberg, called at the county residence of the writers two weeks before the general election to inquire what position in state government did the writer want. Explanation was made the editor had pledged to the people of this county he would not accept a Frankfort position. Further the writers had two children in high school and two in the under-grades and he would not leave them to live in the state capital under any conditions, momentarily hesitant to make the final decision inasmuch as he could not overlook the advantage of a possible commissioner of conservation appointment and its subsequent benefits to Calloway County. The patronage representatives then inquired what projects did this post favor for Calloway County.

Letters To The Editor

Support For Anita

Dear Editor:
It seems there are very few programs on television anymore that I personally feel is worth watching. If they aren't using profanity you see a burlesque show.

I'm writing this to say that on Saturday night, April 19, I saw a very clean, refreshing, wholesome entertaining TV program that was pro God and America. Need I say it was "My little corner of the world" with Anita Bryant.

Knowing how Anita has been black-balled by many tv talk programs and banned by products on tv, I hope that many Kentuckians will send the required $10 to, Anita Bryant, Box TV5, Hollywood, F133022, and obtain the Anita Bryant Story and a recording of the musical part of her television program. Again I say thanks for this special program.

Mrs. Vannetta Bullard
Rt. 2
Murray, Ky.

Thanks For Program

Dear Editor,
Thank you for your recent article in praise of the Head Start program. In a time when many Americans have the feeling that their tax dollars are being wasted in many ways, it is encouraging to find a federally-supported program in which every penny is well spent.

There is one aspect of Head Start which you failed to mention, however, and that is its services to handicapped children. Head Start is required to take 10 percent of its enrollment in handicapped children but may take as many as can be adequately served by the staff and facilities.

The Murray program this year had a 20 percent handicapped enrollment. Including handicapped children in a class with non-handicapped gives the handicapped child an opportunity to observe and imitate appropriate behavior patterns. This is called mainstreaming.

Our son, who is handicapped, has participated in this program this year for the first time, and we have been amazed at the beneficial effect it has had on him.

In our opinion, the Head Start program is an excellent one, and the teachers and staff are to be commended on a job well done.

Sincerely yours,
Dr. and Mrs. Douglas Huffman

Expresses Gratitude

To The Editor:
The Disabled American Veterans (D.A.V.) Murray Chapter 50 wish to express their gratitude to all the citizens of Murray and Calloway County who gave so generously and made our Forget-Me-Not Day Saturday, May 3rd such a success, and we cannot thank you enough.

We want to thank Melvin B. Henley the major of Murray who made this day possible by proclaiming it as Forget-Me-Not Day. Thank you Paul Jerry Lee the chief of police of Murray for your co-operation and effort.

The Chamber of Commerce also deserves a lot of credit for a job well done, and I notice we have a fine one here in Murray that looks out for the welfare and the future of Murray, along with all city officials.

Then there are the merchants and stores too numerous to mention, we thank everyone of you for allowing us in your premises to pass out these Forget-Me-Not. We will never forget you.

The news media has once again come to the aid of the Disabled American Veterans, by the wonderful publicity they gave us. Gene McCutcheon the editor of the Murray Ledger & Times. We thank you for the much needed publicity you gave us, and you did a wonderful job on cablevision. It was just beautiful.

Radio Station W.N.B.S. we thank you for the numerous times you mentioned the D.A.V. on the radio. We received many comments on your radio station, and it sure helped us.

We also thank every volunteer who came out and gave their time and effort. We just couldn't have done it without volunteers passing out these Forget-me-Not.

Then again, those ladies who done such a fine job. I am referring to the Ladies Auxiliary Unit 50 of the D.A.V., without you ladies the men would be lost. Thank you.

Then we hold a very special thanks to Glenn Card who made all this possible. Glenn Card is the chairman of the Forget-Me-Not campaign, and spent many hours putting it all together. We could have easily failed had it not been for Glenn Cards tireless effort for the past couple of months getting his supplies together and contacting the many volunteers, and doing all the leg work. Glenn Card is a great asset to the D.A.V. as well as the community of Murray. He was also elected as Jr. Vice Commander only recently. Glenn Card of Murray. He was also elected as Jr. Vice Commander only recently. Glenn Card we are proud of you, and thank you all.

Velvet Jones '82 Earns Medalist Over Her Rival

By winning the individual championship of the girls regional golf tournament at Princeton yesterday, Murray freshman Velvet Jones proved herself in her rivalry with Crittendon County's Melissa Jones.

Last year as an eight grader, Velvet Jones lost to Melissa Jones by just six shots but still qualified for the state tournament with a 92. This year, she shaved 10 strokes off her score for an 82 and a two-stroke victory over her adversary.

"Velvet shot like she was capable," Miller said. "It's very rare for a freshman to be a medalist. You have to have played a lot of golf."

Also qualifying for the state tournament with a round of 93 was Christine Spann while Jo Beth Oakley missed by just one stroke.

As a team, Murray just missed making the state by finishing third with a score of 395. Lone Oak, with a 385, and Mayfield, with a 389, will be the two region teams represented at the state tournament.

Murray (395) — Velvet Jones 82, Christine Spann 93, Jo Beth Oakley 100, Lisa Clees 120.

Boys Team 5th

Murray coach Mike Miller said Velvet was so happy after sinking a 10-foot putt for par on the last hole that she through her arms in the air for joy.

When asked how she hoped to do in the state this year, Velvet said she hoped to play decently. She later said she hoped to finish in the top 10. Miller said he believes Velvet has a chance of winning it all.

"I just knew I would have to beat Melissa Jones," Velvet said. She also added that winning the regional was probably her biggest thrill in sports.

For the regular season, Velvet had a 38.375 average per round, including an early season 33 and an early flurry of eagles.

In the boys regional golf tournament held at Kentucky Dam Village Monday, Murray finished fifth with a score of 343 to winning Paducah Tighman's 312.

Murray's Trent Jones fell just two strokes shy of qualifying for the state tournament with a score of 80.

Murray (343) — Trent Jones 80, Robert Billington 84, Mike Boggess 89, David Ryan 90.

Baseball Talks Resume

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiations continued today in the baseball contract talks with the two sides concerning themselves with mostly minor issues while the major problems wait on the back burner.

"These are not headline issues, but they're still critical," said Ray Grebey, chief negotiator for management in the talks with the union.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association, agreed with that point of view.

"We're reviewing quite a few issues which are important in and of themselves, but they would have to be characterized as not as important as others," said Miller. "They may not be of the same magnitude but they take as much time as the others."

On the agenda for today was the definition of exactly what constitutes a salary. That was the issue at the heart of the Bob Horner arbitration case against the Atlanta Braves last year. Arbitrator Raymond Goetz ruled that bonus payments had to be included when figuring a player's salary but barred Horner from free agency.

Still ahead is the question of compensation for signing free agents, an issue which has been viewed as the major stumbling block in the talks so far.

The players have warned that unless agreement is reached by May 22 they will strike the next day, halting the major league season on Memorial Day weekend.

Brady Becomes Fourth Murray State Signee

Mike Brady, a 6-foot-7 power forward from Schoolcraft Junior College in Livonia, Mich., has become the fourth recruit to sign a national letter-of-intent with Murray State University.

The husky 225-pound Brady averaged 15.2 points and 11 rebounds in helping Schoolcraft to a conference title and the finals of the Michigan Junior College Tournament where they were defeated by a team ranked 11th nationally.

"Mike is a power forward and he's the one player I've coached that is virtually unstoppable inside once he receives the ball," said Schoolcraft coach Ron Hall. "He's also a real gym rat. He loves the game and is always working and trying to improve."

Brady is a product of Mumford High School in Detroit where he was named All-City his senior year. Brady earned all-Eastern Conference and All-State honors last season at Schoolcraft and missed by one vote making All-Region 12, an honor squad composed of the top junior college players over a five state area.

Team co-captain and a two year regular for coach Ron Hall, Brady scored 19 points and hauled down 12 rebounds in the Eastern Conference All-Star game.

"We needed a strong, inside player with muscle and Mike should be able to respond to that need," said Murray State coach Ron Greene. "He plays hard and works continually on his game. He obviously has the dedication you like to see in an athlete."

Other additions to the Racer basketball roster for next season include 6-7 forward Mike McKinney, 6-3 guard Tony Slaughter and 6-2 guard Brian Stewart.

Sixers Will Have To Be More Assertive, According To Erving

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers have to stop Julius Erving. The Philadelphia 76ers have to stop Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

The 76ers, who had little success containing the Laker center in the opening game of the National Basketball Association championship series, will undoubtedly bring new strategy and new determination into tonight's second game at the Forum. The Lakers, who had more luck holding down the 76ers' high-scoring Dr. J, hope for a repeat performance.

Los Angeles, with a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven playoff final after winning 109-102 Sunday, tries to make it two in a row at home in the nationally televised contest set for an 11:30 p.m. EDT tipoff.

"We will definitely have to be more assertive and open it up more," said Erving, never much of a force in the first game although he did score 11 points in the closing quarter to finish with 20.

The Lakers — with Jamaal Wilkes and Michael Cooper sharing the defensive chores against Erving — played the Philadelphia forward very aggressively, at times leaving other 76ers open. But Erving's teammates were unable to take up the slack.

While Erving was practically neutralized, Abdul-Jabbar was going about the business of dominating the game. The 7-foot-2 Laker center scored 33 points, missing just seven of 21 floor shots, and had 14 rebounds, six blocked shots and five assists.

Darryl Dawkins, the 76ers' muscular center, picked up three quick fouls and played just 18 minutes before fouling out. That left the job to Caldwell Jones, the 7-footer who used to be Philadelphia's pivotman but was moved to power forward this season.

Although careful not to reveal much about new strategy for containing Abdul-Jabbar, 76ers Coach Billy Cunningham hinted that he might use the quicker Jones on Abdul-Jabbar from the start and put Dawkins on Jim Chones, the Lakers' power forward.

The series shifts to Philadelphia for the third game on Saturday and the fourth on Sunday. If necessary, the fifth game will be at the Forum on May 14, the sixth in Philadelphia on May 16, and the seventh at the Forum on May 18.

UK, Notre Dame To Play 2-Year Series

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The University of Kentucky and Notre Dame have signed a two-year home-and-home basketball agreement.

Their current series ends this year with the game at Louisville.

"The first game under the new agreement will be played in the Commonwealth of Kentucky," said UK athletic director Cliff Hagan, leaving open the option of whether the teams would meet in Lexington or Louisville.

Hagan said the 1982 game would be played at South Bend, Ind.

He also indicated that the Wildcats would continue to play at least one game a year in Louisville.

Murray State Has Four Players Named All-OVC

Four representatives of the Murray State baseball team are included in the 1980 All-Ohio Valley Conference baseball team selected by the league coaches.

The list of Racer all-conference performers includes three seniors and one freshman and only one of the selections is a repeat from last year's squad.

Players selected include senior pitcher Mike

Griehaber of Festus, Mo., senior second baseman Doran Perdue of Evansville, Ind., senior outfielder Tony Threatt of Paducah, Ky. and freshman outfielder Ronnie Scheer also of Paducah.

Perdue's selection is his third appearance on the All-OVC first unit. Senior outfielder Tom Fehn of Evansville earned second team All-OVC honors.

Major League Roundup

Twins' 'Traumatic' 10-3 Loss To Orioles Produces Comedy Of Errors

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Minnesota Manager Gene Mauch was on his way out of the Twins' clubhouse Tuesday night when he met members of the media coming in.

"You guys got more guts than I do," Mauch said. "I could never go into anybody's place after a traumatic experience like this and ask questions."

Mauch had just watched his team drop a 10-3 decision to the Baltimore Orioles in a comedy of errors that would have done justice to the original New York Mets.

Baltimore scored an unearned run in the first inning on two errors by second baseman Pete Mackanin and a single by Gary Roenicke, which left fielder Dave Edwards fumbled for still another error. Two more miscues paved the way for five unearned runs during a seven-run second inning capped by Benny Ayala's two-run homer.

The Twins also were victimized by a double steal, they allowed Baltimore's Al Bumbry to escape a rundown and Eddie Murray to advance a base on a foul pop caught near home plate while two outfielders collided on a two-run bloop double by Doug DeCinces.

"We just weren't too sharp," said shortstop Roy

Smalley, who botched a potential double play grounder in the second inning.

In other American League games, the New York Yankees edged the Milwaukee Brewers 6-5, the Toronto Blue Jays nipped the California Angels 3-2, the Cleveland Indians shaded the Oakland A's 4-3, the Chicago White Sox blanked the Kansas City Royals 2-0, the Texas Rangers whipped the Boston Red Sox 7-2 and the Detroit Tigers defeated the Seattle Mariners 9-5.

Minnesota's boo-boos made a loser of Geoff Zahn, who allowed eight runs in six innings but only two of them earned. Zahn's career mark against Baltimore dropped to 0-5.

Yankees 6, Brewers 5
Bucky Dent belted his second home run of the season and New York's third of the game with one out in the ninth inning to give the Yankees their fourth consecutive victory. Dent's homer came off Reggie Cleveland, the third Milwaukee pitcher. Reggie Jackson and Bob Watson hit solo shots off starter Mike Caldwell. Cecil Cooper drove in three Milwaukee runs with a double and a grounder.

Jackson left the game in the fifth inning with a strained thigh muscle and is expected to miss tonight's game.

Blue Jays 3, Angels 2
Pinch hitter Roy Howell's two-out, two-run homer in the seventh inning lifted Toronto to its fourth consecutive triumph. Howell, who didn't start because of a touch of the flu, connected off Don Aase after Damaso Garcia singled.

"I asked him if he could pinch hit and he said he could," Toronto Manager Bobby Mattick said. John Mayberry homered in the second inning for Toronto's first run.

Indians 4, A's 3
Ron Hassey and Gary Alexander singled runs home in the eighth inning and Duane Kuiper added an RBI single in the ninth as Cleveland broke a four-game losing streak behind Len Barker's seven-hit pitching. Mike Hargrove, who earlier extended his hitting streak to 17 games with a single, walked with one out in the eighth, went to second on Toby Harrah's single and scored on Hassey's single, breaking a 1-1 tie. The A's made it close with two runs in the bottom of the ninth.

White Sox 2, Royals 0
Richard Wortham allowed three hits in seven innings in his first start of the season before getting relief help from Ed Farmer, while Wayne Nordhagen and Junior Moore delivered run-scoring singles.

The loser was Larry Gura, who was bidding for a Kansas City club record third consecutive shutout. He surrendered a run in the second inning on Chet Lemon's double and Nordhagen's single.

Rangers 7, Red Sox 2

Billy Sample's two-run double triggered a four-run sixth inning that helped Texas defeat Boston behind the six-hit pitching of Doc Medich. Red Sox rookie Bruce Hurst had a four-hitter and a 2-1 lead going into the sixth but Al Oliver and Buddy Bell singled and Sample doubled, giving Texas the lead. Bell led the Rangers' 14-hit attack with four singles. In five games against Boston this season, Bell is 13-for-24 — a .542 average — with three home runs, four doubles and 10 runs batted in.

Tigers 9, Mariners 5
Detroit's Champ Summers extended his hitting streak to 16 games, collecting three hits to boost his average to .409. Summers singled a run home in the first inning when the Tigers grabbed a 3-0 lead. He added a double in the third and another in the seventh, driving in one of Detroit's four runs in that inning.

Garner's Chop Proves To Be Inartistic Highlight

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

There isn't a lot of visual artistry in his game; that's why Phil Garner is called "Scrap Iron."

The Pirates' second baseman participated in two of Pittsburgh's four double plays in a defensive struggle with Los Angeles Tuesday, but it was his Baltimore chop through the infield that proved the inartistic highlight of the night.

"It wasn't the prettiest hit that I've ever had, but I'll take it," Garner said. "I just wanted to make contact. I swung at a ball at my ankles, but it turned out all right."

Garner's chopper bounded over the head of shortstop Bill Russell and brought home Bill Robinson with the winning run in the ninth inning as Pittsburgh captured its sixth game in eight, 2-1. Robinson and Bill Madlock had singled successively, and reliever Steve Howe loaded the bases with an intentional pass to Lee Lacy.

The Pirates' four double plays, a game high this season, kept lefty John Candelaria out of trouble much of the game.

With one out, catcher Steve Yeager singled. Los Angeles starter Don Sutton then bounced one to shortstop Tim Foli. Garner took the throw and relayed to first despite Yeager's rolling body block.

In other National League games, Houston defeated Montreal 8-4, San Diego blanked the Chicago Cubs 4-0, Philadelphia clobbered Atlanta 10-5, Cincinnati outslugged the New York Mets 12-10 in 14 innings and St. Louis whipped San Francisco 10-7.

Both starting pitchers benefitted from some fine defense. Dodgers right fielder Reggie Smith threw Foli out at the plate in the first inning, and Rudy Law and Dusty Baker each made fine running catches in the outfield for Los Angeles.

Candelaria went eight innings, giving up six hits, and Sutton scattered six hits through seven innings. Kent Tekulve claimed his third win without a loss with an inning of scoreless relief, and Steve Howe, 1-1, got the loss.

Astros 8, Expos 4
Jose Cruz drilled three hits and drove in four runs to help Houston's Joe Niekro survive a 3 hour, 50 minute rain delay and beat the Expos. Enos Cabell had a two-run double and Cruz drove in two more runs with a single to cap the Astros' five-run first inning.

Niekro, 4-1, sat through the rain delay in the fifth inning and returned to complete a seven-hitter.

Padres 4, Cubs 0

2, tossed a five-hitter, and Bill Fahey drove in a couple of runs as the Padres won their sixth in seven games. Jones worked his first complete game and earned his first shutout with four strikeouts, no walks and a lot of ground balls.

Phils 10, Braves 5
Pete Rose, who came into the game hitting .203, broke out of his slump with two of Philadelphia's seven doubles, and the Phillies rallied to beat Atlanta.

Rose had a leadoff double in the first and scored, and he began Philadelphia's four-run third with his second double.

Mike Schmidt drove in four runs for the Phils, three with a bases-loaded triple in the eighth.

Reds 12, Mets 10
Pinch-hitter Harry Spilman lashed a two-run double in the 14th inning to drive in the winning runs for Cincinnati in their 4 hour, 37 minute game.

Ray Knight and Sam Mejias opening the inning with singles, and they both raced home on Spilman's double off Jeff Reardon, 1-2.

Knight had four RBI for Cincinnati with a three-run homer and an RBI double among his four hits. Dave Tomlin, 3-0, the fifth of six Reds pitchers, got the win.

Cards 10, Giants 7
Ken Reitz, leading NL hitters with a .405 average, and reliever Donnie Moore drilled tworun doubles in St. Louis' six-run fifth inning as the Giants suffered through their 14th loss in 17 road games.

Tony Scott drove in three runs with a bases-loaded double in the St. Louis second.

Pedro Borbon relieved Moore in the Giants' fourth seventh inning and got the win in his first decision of the year.

Justice Says Boycott Is Legal

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department said Tuesday the Carter administration did not act illegally in seeking to persuade the U.S. Olympic Committee to boycott the Summer Games in Moscow.

In a "friend of the court" brief filed in U.S. District Court here, the department said neither President Carter nor his representatives denied members of the USOC House of Delegates "the freedom of choice to vote for or against U.S. participation in a democratic manner." After the USOC House of Delegates voted in Colorado Springs, Colo., April 12 by a 2 to 1 margin against sending a team to the Moscow Games, a group of potential Olympians asked a federal court to overturn the decision.

The suit by the 19 Olympic hopefuls against the USOC claimed that the committee caved in to political pressure from President Carter, contending the USOC Charter requires it to "resist all pressures of any kind...whether of a political, religious or economic nature." According to the suit, Carter, in seeking to punish the Soviet Union for its military intrusion into Afghanistan, "engaged in a campaign to coerce...the USOC into compliance with the president's demand for a boycott."

In a brief submitted by Alice Daniel, assistant attorney general, the government said the amateur athletes place heavy emphasis on the fact that Vice President Walter Mondale and other administration aides were in Colorado Springs prior to the vote and that President Carter met with USOC officials to discuss the possibility of an Olympic boycott.

The government also denied the athletes' claim that their constitutional rights to liberty, to self-expression, to travel and to pursue their chosen occupation of athletic endeavor was abridged.

"At best, the Olympic athletes have lost only an opportunity to enhance their community standing as a result of the USOC action," the brief said. "No stigma attaches to their non-participation in the Olympics.

English Landscape Garden Natural Lawns Have Ancestor

Change came in the form of the English landscape garden, an ancestor of today's naturalistic style. Sweeping lawns, meandering streams, rolling hills and belts of green trees were features that caught England's attention until the Victorian taste for exotic plants and formal plantings changed the scene again. But the landscape movement did not disappear altogether, showing up, for example, in New York's Central Park, where Frederick Law Olmstead allowed the land's terrain and natural features to guide his planning.

Then, in California during the 1930s and '40s, another branch of naturalism, this one interpreted in many of today's American gardens, took firm hold. Borrowing from English, Spanish and Oriental concepts, the late architect Thomas Church planned around the idea that gardens are for recreation. His gardens required little upkeep; the natural terrain was retained and emphasized wherever possible; decks and patios replaced grass lawns, and plants were located for practical purposes, to tie functional areas together. The garden, in short, really was not for gardeners.

For the 1980s, Smithsonian horticulturists as well as private landscapers suggest that a naturalistic landscape might include these elements:

Perimeter Planting. By placing shrubs and trees along the edge of your property, privacy is achieved and a framework for the interior area is created. This is a useful alternative to old-fashioned "foundation planting," where masses of plants were located around the house to make it appear as though they "belonged" to the environment - generally an impossible task. "The majority of houses," Buckler says, "are overplanted today because of that approach."

Shapes. Let forsythia and other shrubs grow naturally (allow room for them) rather than pruning them into large balls, a look horticulturists now consider contrived. Naturalistic gardens also rely on curvilinear shapes that add interest and adventure compared to straight lines, so plan walkways and borders with this in mind.

Ground covers. Plant evergreens such as ivy, periwinkle and pachysandra that are relatively easy to maintain, unlike grass. You might also try placing ferns in one area of the garden where they can grow in what Buckler terms "controlled neglect."

Energy Savers. By planting shade trees at the south line of a property and evergreens along the north, both heating and cooling costs can be paired somewhat.

Alternative Plants. Ornamental grasses that have a soft color, loose structure and that billow in the breeze offer a welcome alternative to over-used shrubbery. They look best in small clumps or at the end of a stretch of other plants. An added dividend, landscapers say, is that they look great in the winter when they dry to tan and golden tones.

Flowers. Perennial flowers such as day lilies and daisies are longlasting and colorful. They relieve what many found to be the monotony of the low-maintenance, ever-green garden, in which an occasional azalea or rhododendron is thrown in for seasonal color.

But in planning any garden, Buckler says, decisions on which flowers to plant should be the last step. He offers potential gardeners some other advice:

- Don't let a plant or shrub dictate your landscape.

- "You'll never be pleased or satisfied."

- If you can't afford the entire landscape design you've planned, concentrate first on the private areas that you actually will use; leave the public parts till last, and then plant those simply.

- Consider a cycle of plantings that will provide color throughout the year.

- Select plants to meet an overall garden plan and its conditions. "If you love crotons, but the light is bad, or soil not right, you'll need to consider other possibilities," Buckler says.

- Rather than installing elaborate outdoor lighting systems, plant beds of white flowers that will show up at night (other colors will not).

- And avoid planting too much, because there's just no such thing as a work-free garden.

THE ACES[®] IRA G. CORN, JR.

Three bridge columnists participated in the play of today's interesting hand dealt at the recent Tri-State Regional in Port Chester, N.Y. North was Alan Truscott, bridge editor of The New York Times, South was your reporter and East was Bob Goldwater of the Gannett Westchester newspapers. As the innocent victim, here's what Goldwater wrote in his bridge column.

"West won the first trick with the club king as all four players made some rapid calculations. Both East and West knew that hearts were breaking badly and West also figured he had the diamonds stopped. Each held hope that, together, they might set the hand. South wondered if he should have stopped below game and North wondered about his raise.

"West shifted to the spade queen at trick two and declarer won the ace. None of the players realized it yet, but the defense already had all the tricks they would take until the next hand.

"Declarer led the club 10 and pitched a spade from dummy when West followed low. West covered the next

"A spade was ruffed in dummy, the diamond ace was cashed and a diamond was led to dummy's queen. Dummy's diamond king was ruffed and overruffed and declarer ruffed his last spade with dummy's last trump.

"With two cards left in each hand, the lead was in dummy and East was trapped in a trump coup. Making six hearts!

"I counted on your fine play when I made my skinny raise," complimented North. But I hardly figured on overtricks," he added.

That's the way it is when three columnists play at one table. One can be sure that at least two of them will be written up.

Food Stamp Crisis Discussed

FRANKFORT, Ky. - A state government task force examining ways of dealing with a possible food stamp crisis discussed other means of getting food to needy Kentuckians.

In a one-hour meeting, the Governor's Food Stamp Crisis Task Force looked at several community food programs that might help ease the problem.

The task force, which advises Gov. John Y. Brown Jr., was organized recently in response to the possibility that the federal food stamp program will be curtailed or suspended soon because of lack of money.

U. S. Department of Agriculture officials have said food stamp benefits must be halted June 1 unless Congress authorizes more funds for the program by May 15. Human Resources Secretary Grady Stumbo has informed Kentucky's food stamp recipients that the June allotment probably will be delayed and that families receiving food stamps may have their benefits reduced for several months.

The Agriculture Department seeks $2.5 billion to pay for food stamps through the rest of the fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30.

Task force chairman Harold Greene outlined four community programs that might offer help if food stamp benefits are affected by the funding shortage. Those programs are:

- Summer feeding program. A federally funded project run in Kentucky by the Department of Education, the summer feeding program offers funds to non-profit organizations such as churches, social service agencies and schools that provide meals to school children during summer vacation. Some of the children must be from low-income families to qualify.

- Nutrition centers for older Kentuckians. Fanny Dorsey, head of the state division for aging services, told task force members older Kentuckians can get meals from more than 200 nutrition centers throughout Kentucky.

- Summer gardening program. Local University of Kentucky extension offices offer seeds and other assistance to persons interested in starting gardens.

- Community nutrition programs run by local community action agencies. Eighty-six counties are served by community action agencies.

Task force members also said they hope to persuade grocers to donate surplus food to local, non-profit agencies dealing with the problem.

Noting that food stamp purchases account for about $18 million a month in the state, task force chairman Green said of foodvenders, "They're going to be hurting (if the food stamp program is suspended)." Since grocers may get a tax-write-off for donations, the "next best thing for them to do" would be to donate food, Greene said.

Task force members also said church and civic groups can play a major role in getting food to low-income families.

The task force plans to tap food resources through district mobilization committees formed by the task force. District program managers of the Department for Human Resources' Bureau for Social Insurance have organized committees, which are composed of state officials and community leaders.

Chairmen of the 15 counties will meet May 14 in Owensboro to discuss plans for coping with the situation. Human Resources officials will attend and offer technical assistance.

UNIROYAL ROYAL SEAL

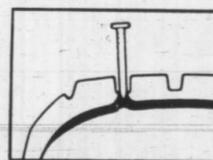

Patented Royal Seal Sealant

Two wide Steel belts

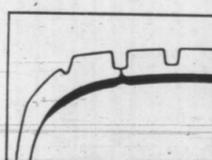

Polyester cord body piles

Nail In - As an object 1/8" in diameter or less passes through the tire tread and sealant, it becomes coated with sealant which sticks tightly to it.

Nail Out - When the puncturing object is pulled from the tire, the sealant is pulled into the hole in the tread.

Result - The sealant fills the hole, keeping the tire from going flat though there may be a slight loss of air as the object is pulled out.

HERE'S WHAT IT MEANS TO YOU:

Added Highway Safety. A flat tire is at best inconvenient and at worst can be a real safety hazard. The Royal Seal is designed to substantially reduce flat tire situations and, thereby increase highway safety. Fewer Vehicle Stops. Because most tread punctures are permanently sealed, Royal Seal reduces your chances of a flat to once every six years of driving. Long Tire Life. The Royal Seal radial is less susceptible to puncture damage so you can expect it to last longer. Tire Repair Savings. Owning a tire that seals punctures reduces costly repairs and saves you money. Temperature Dependability. The sealant does its job at temperatures from -30°F to +100°F. Tests Show It Automatically and Permanently Sealed 90% of Tread Punctures 3/16" or Less. The Royal Seal tire contains a patented rubber sealant compound under the tread area. Independent test data showed 90% of tread punctures are caused by objects 3/16" or less in diameter. Royal Seal tires are not designed to seal punctures larger than 3/16" in diameter. Plus... It's A UNIROYAL Steel Belted Radial That Offers You Better Wear, Fuel Economy, and Improved Ride & Handling Over Non-Radial Passenger Tires.

Carter, Reagan Are Three-Fourths Of Way

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
President Carter and Ronald Reagan are three-quarters of the way to rival nominations for the White House, and while their challengers insist they still can find openings, the time and the numbers are running out fast.

Democrat Carter and Republican Reagan made big leads bigger with triple landslide victories in Tuesday's Indiana, Tennessee and North Carolina presidential primary elections.

Sen. Edward Kennedy and George Bush both said they have better elections days ahead. But unless those days come soon, they won't matter. Kennedy and Bush won in the District of Columbia primaries. Kennedy easily outpolled Carter. Reagan wasn't even entered in the Republican election.

All in all, Carter gained 161 delegates Tuesday, running his total to 1,306 of the 1,666 it will take to win renomination. Kennedy picked up 62, for a total of 721.

Thus, Carter needs 360 of the 1,264 delegates still to be chosen in order to fashion a majority.

Kennedy said he has no thought of dropping his challenge to Carter.

"I never thought it was going to be easy," he said. "We realize we are the underdogs. But that's going to make us work a little harder, and that's what we intend to do."

In Tuesday's Republican competition, Reagan won 108 delegates, Bush 32. That gives the former California governor 744 votes for nomination, while Bush has 170. It will take 998 to win.

Reagan must win 254 more delegates from 930 still to be contested.

"I'll still keep on campaigning," Reagan said in Los Angeles. "I want to see that final figure."

He said he wasn't going to press Bush to withdraw as a candidate, although he already has suggested that his rival is close to the point at which there will be no mathematical excuse to keep going.

Property Owners Must Keep Lots Mowed In Summer

It will be the responsibility of property owners to keep their lots mowed this summer, according to Murray Police Capt. Dale Spann.

Spann said that in the past members of the police department had notified the owner when his lot was in need of mowing. However, because of the lack of personnel in the department, the department will no longer be doing this.

Police will continue to issue citations to owners of unmowed lots, he said.

Kentucky's Presidential Primary Is Low-Key; Carter, Reagan Ahead

By SY RAMSEY
Associated Press Writer
FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky's presidential primary is a low-key contest so far, with Democrats expected to choose President Carter and Republicans likely to select Ronald Reagan.

The outcome May 27 will decide which presidential candidates on the ballot obtain how many votes at the respective national conventions.

The votes will be apportioned on the basis of the primary results, though a candidate must receive at least 15 percent of the total primary vote to obtain any delegates.

The Republicans will have 27 and the Democrats 50 voting delegates to the national conventions this summer.

The state primary will bind those delegates only on the first ballot at the national conventions. After that, if there still is a contest, they can vote their preference.

Kentucky voters cannot cross party lines in the primary, as is possible in some other states.

The presidential primary is being held May 27, the same day as the usual primary, but this is the only real connection with the regular slates.

Each major party is operating differently on the delegate matter.

The Republicans already have chosen their delegates and alternates in district conventions and a state convention — with those delegates required to tell their preference on the first ballot.

To no one's surprise, that turns out overwhelmingly to be Reagan. But theoretically, if, for example, George Bush took half the votes in the May 27 primary, many delegates to the national convention would be forced to vote for Bush on the first ballot even if they preferred Reagan.

The Democrats have not picked their delegates and will not until after the primary, which makes things a bit simpler.

Instead, the Democrats are receiving bids from potential delegates, who must state their presidential preference.

When the presidential preference primary is over, the Democrats will select delegates according to the outcome. It will be easy because each potential delegate's choice will be known.

There will be input from followers of the presidential candidates, although party leaders are not required to adhere to the advice.

Obviously, spokesman for Carter and Kennedy are going to favor delegates they know will stick with their candidates past the first ballot at the national convention.

On the other hand, any number of GOP delegates will be reluctant first ballot voters ready to switch at the first opportunity.

Thus, the Democratic delegate selection will be a truer reflection of the May 27 primary outcome.

Months ago, some observers forecast a heated presidential primary in Kentucky among Democrats.

It's turning out differently, and races within both parties seem to parallel the national outlook.

Giant Balloons Prove To Be Boom For Astronomers

By William Waller
Smithsonian News Service

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — High-flying helium-filled balloons, at times the domain of party-going children and globe-hopping explorers, today are providing astronomers with a view of the heavens impossible from even the tallest mountaintop observatories.

With the help of telescopes aboard giant unmanned balloons, scientists have gained new insights into a wide variety of earthly and celestial phenomena — from the chemical reactions taking place in the Earth's protective ozone layer to the sequence of events leading to the birth of distant stars.

"Balloons offer one of the best ways to take telescopes above the Earth's thick, obscuring layer of air," says Dr. Giovanni Fazio, a scientist at the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics in Cambridge, Mass.

The Earth's atmosphere not only protects us from the sun's harmful radiation, Fazio explains, but it also distorts and filters out the light from more distant stars. For an astronomer, looking through the atmosphere can be as difficult as peering through a steam bath. For certain wavelengths of energy, such as gamma- and X-rays and ultra-violet and infrared light, the atmosphere can completely block any view.

"In addition to overcoming these obstacles, balloons are also the most efficient means for lifting heavy scientific payloads," Fazio says. "In fact, without them our 4,000-pound telescope would never get off the ground."

Moreover, unlike jets and rockets, balloons are non-polluting and vibration-free, thereby providing a clean and stable platform to carry out sensitive experiments. And, compared with satellites, balloons are relatively inexpensive — several hundred balloon-borne missions can fly for the price of one satellite mission.

Constructed of thin polyethylene plastic, the balloons might be described as "overgrown dry-cleaning bags." They measure 20 stories tall when first launched, but as they ascend into thinner air, the initially underinflated balloons expand against the decreasing atmospheric pressure until they reach the diameter of a football stadium.

The typical altitude for a scientific balloon flight is about 20 miles, or well into the Earth's upper atmosphere, the stratosphere. By comparison, this is about four times higher than the highest altitude reached by the Double Eagle II during its historic voyage over the Atlantic in 1979.

Over the past 7 years, such balloons have provided Fazio's telescope with 14 high-altitude observing flights — and an equal number of crash landings. Fortunately, the telescope survived all 14 impacts, a tribute to its exceptionally sturdy construction.

Jointly operated by the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics and the University of Arizona, the reflecting telescope and its detectors are specially designed to observe infrared light from celestial bodies. Loosely termed "heat radiation," infrared radiation is an invisible form of light that is redder than the deepest red detectable by human eyes.

"Since infrared radiation gets absorbed — or blocked — by the Earth's atmosphere before ever reaching the ground, we are absolutely dependent on high-altitude observations," Fazio says.

"With balloons, our program of mapping the infrared sky has become an exciting reality."

By tuning into the far-infrared, or deepest, portion of the infrared spectrum, the balloon-borne telescope has revealed striking and new information about the atmospheres around other planets, of regions where new stars are forming and of distant galaxies, including some where violent activity has been detected. On one flight, the infrared telescope found based on measurements of infrared radiation — that both Saturn and Neptune seem to have internal heat sources; but, somewhat surprisingly, the planet Uranus, usually considered a "twin" of Neptune, apparently has none. Rather, its heat comes solely from the sun.

Some far-infrared observations have also complemented ground-based optical and radio observations to produce comprehensive maps of identical sky regions. By using these multi-frequency maps, it has now become possible to reconstruct the complex sequence of events leading to the birth of stars within dense clouds of gas and dust. For example, the balloon-borne telescope has produced some of the highest resolution maps of the Milky Way in infrared light, which is the main source of energy coming from the center of our galaxy.

During the two most recent balloon ascents, the telescope was pointed sideways to look at the stratosphere itself, site of the ozone layer which protects the Earth from the sun's harmful ultraviolet radiation. The experiment produced valuable information on the complex chemical reactions taking place within this fragile and possibly threatened layer of the Earth's atmosphere. Such data are used by many scientists trying to determine the possible danger from a breakdown of the ozone layer.

The Smithsonian-Arizona telescope experiments, along with most of the world's scientific ballooning, are carried out at Palestine, Texas, home of the National Scientific Balloon Flight Facility. For the past 16 years, this facility has played host to a potpourri of experiments requiring high-altitude observations. Ultraviolet, X-ray, gamma-ray and cosmic-ray astronomy all have benefited greatly from such experiments.

From the payload's release out of the monstrous jaws of the special launch device called "Tiny Tim," to its unpredictable landing somewhere in East Texas, balloon-borne astronomy has a unique character that sets it apart from both the mountain top and satellite-borne versions.

"You haven't tasted the true flavor of balloon astronomy until you go out with the balloon facility's 'Roadrunners' when they recover your experiment," Fazio points out. Armed with tracking aircraft, four-wheel-drive vehicles and special cranes, this team of intrepid payload-retrievers frequently ends up waist-deep in muck or 25 feet off the ground in treetops retrieving their precious quarries.

Sometimes, the Roadrunners arrive too late. On one such occasion, a 20-foot-tall gamma-ray experiment landed upright on some ranchland in Texas. The frightened rancher, startled by a whirring and clicking metal cylinder in his backyard, riddled it with buckshot until he was sure it was dead.

According to Fazio, "There is no such thing as a routine balloon mission." So, despite 14 successful balloon flights behind him, he still gets "enormously excited" on each new mission. (Two flights are scheduled for this fall). Indeed, for astronomers such as Fazio, scientific ballooning offers opportunities and adventures as uplifting as the balloons themselves.

Shaker-Made Items To Be Displayed At Logan Museum

By Jo D. Neace

Clothes pins, folding beds, the double stove, the broom press and the poplar wood splitter are only a few inventions of the Shakers. These and other Shaker-made items are on display in the Shaker Museum at South Union in Logan County, Kentucky, where for more than 100 years the Shakers lived (1807-1922).

The Centre House and several other buildings are all that is left of the once-thriving community of 350 Shakers.

At the height of their prosperity, the South Union Shakers owned 6,000 acres and their neat and attractive village contained more than 200 buildings.

Although there is little left of their village, the Shakers' influence is widespread, especially in the design of furnishings and architecture. Simplicity and practicality were the Shakers' key words; they were qualities woven into their dress and built into their furniture, buildings and lifestyle. Their superb craftsmanship and ingenuity are seen in the items displayed at the Centre House museum.

At one time the Centre House, which has 42 rooms, was home to 90 members. It is an excellent example of Shaker architecture. The Shakers' sense of order is seen in the multidrawer and shelved wall cabinets, and the peg strips on the walls of rooms and halls where they hung hats, capes, tools and even chairs when not in use. The double staircases in the halls, which run from the basement to the top floor, and the two doors leading into meeting and dining rooms reflect their principle of celibacy and separation of the sexes.

Even the windows in the house are uniquely functional. Set in thick brick walls, the frames flare out to provide more light. Window sills in the storage rooms on the ground floor slope down to allow for easier moving of fruits and vegetables from wagons to storage area.

Antique enthusiasts enjoy browsing through what was once the Shakers' general store. Tucked into a corner of this building is the only Shaker post office in operation in the world today, and it's been operating since 1826.

The store, open year round, is on Highway Ky-73 about one and one-half miles south of the museum.

Across the road from the antique store is the tavern, the last large building constructed by the South Union Shakers, built in 1869. It has such Shaker features as arches, a bentwood staircase and three-cornered fireplaces; it is privately owned.

Other Shaker buildings at South Union are the Wash House, built in 1854; the Ministry's shop and dwelling, built 1846, and the preservatory. The Wash House is now a dormitory owned by the Order of St. Benedict, an order of Roman Catholic monks, while the Ministry's shop and dwelling is a private home. The preservatory, where the Shakers canned and preserved fruits and vegetables, is the home of the South Union groundskeeper.

Each year the South Union Festival is held to commemorate the Shaker lifestyle with an outdoor drama, "Shakertown Revisited," and, on weekends, various craftsmen exhibit their wares at the Centre House. The festival begins on the second Thursday of July, running for ten days. A la carte lunches and a buffet dinner are usually served during the festival.

A gift shop at the museum features a large collection of Shaker reproductions and books on the Shakers. The museum is open Mother's Day through Labor Day, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. daily and 1-5 p.m. Sunday, and on weekends in September and October.

Governor Has Named New State Racing Commission

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. has named a new Kentucky Racing Commission, enlarging its membership from five to nine to provide broader scope and input from the state's various horse racing interests.

The new commission, Brown said, not only represents those who know best the industry's needs, but also is reflective of the geographic areas where Kentucky horse racing is most prominent.

The new group represents the Kentucky horse racing families whose legacies have given great pride to horse racing, Brown said. At the same time, the new commission provides for representation for small horse farm owners, for horsemen and women from the geographic areas of northern and western Kentucky, and for non-horse industry interests in the government and public sector.

Brown named the following members to the commission:

Robert C. Stiltz, Lexington; Brownell Combs II, Lexington; William M. DeHart, Louisville; Arthur B. Hancock III, Paris; Edward J. McGrath, Louisville; R.C. Durr, Walton; Dale Sights, Henderson; Robert Luis Green, Lexington; Anita Madden, Lexington.

Edna French Johnstone, Versailles was named to serve as secretary of the commission.

Stiltz and Combs currently are members of the commission.

Brown praised the work of the commission outgoing chairman, William H. May, of Frankfort, who Brown said had served the commission with very great distinction for the past twenty-one years.

"Bill May has made an outstanding contribution to our state's racing industry over the last two decades," Brown said. "He as much as any other individual has kept Kentucky in the lead in the horse racing industry nationally."

Gardening Program Gets Good Response From Senior Citizens

West Kentucky Allied Services, Inc., said that the Elderly Gardening Program, announced in April, has had a good response from the Senior Citizens of the County.

Several people who are 60 years old or older and have met the income guidelines have been issued a voucher that will enable them to purchase up to $13 worth of seed, plants and fertilizer and/or

Fur Takers To Have Fish Fry
The West Kentucky Fur Takers Association, Chapter 12-A, will have a fish fry Saturday, May 10th, at the Pavilion, next to the Tennis Courts at Kenlake State Park.

The fish fry starts at 1:00 p.m., and there will be games and drawings. A short business meeting will follow. All members are urged to attend. Further information may be obtained by calling Earl Allen at 436-2686.

Brown said that May will continue to advise him on matters relating to the Kentucky horse industry.

For the first time, Brown said, the commission will have a state and federal government liaison to keep the commission abreast of matters in Washington that may affect the Kentucky thoroughbred industry.

Sights, a Henderson banking executive, is President Carter's closest personal and political contact in Kentucky and would be an important liaison between Kentucky and Washington, Brown said.

Mrs. Madden, long active in Central Kentucky thoroughbred, government and social life, is believed to be the first woman ever appointed to the Kentucky Racing Commission since its formation in 1906.

Mrs. Madden has been praised for her work as a member of the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Planning and Zoning Commission, to which she was appointed three years ago.

Mrs. Madden and her husband, Preston Madden, own Hamburg Place near Lexington, where they breed thoroughbreds.

DeHart a member of the Horseman's Benevolent and Protective Association and the American Horse Council, is representative of the industry's small owners and breeders, Brown said.

Durr, a Northern Kentucky contractor, also is a small owner.

McGrath, Brown said, is a well-known Louisville business and insurance executive who is familiar with the Kentucky horse industry.

Green, manager of Treentree Stables in Lexington, is a veteran Kentucky horseman.

Hancock and Combs, each from respected families long prominent in the Kentucky thoroughbred industry, own and operate two of the nation's most respected and successful horse farms.

From Lehigh University

Brooks To Receive Honorary Degree

Cleath Brooks, Gray professor emeritus of rhetoric at Yale University, will be one of four persons that Lehigh University will confer honorary degrees on at its 112th commencement on Sunday afternoon, June 1.

Brooks, a native of Murray, will receive the Doctor of Humane Letters degree.

Henry A. Kissinger, who served as U.S. secretary of state between 1973 and 1977, will give the principal address at the exercises to be held in the Stabler Athletic and Convocation Center, according to Dr. Deming Lewis, president of Lehigh.

Dr. Kissinger received an honorary degree from Lehigh in 1977, at which time his wife, Nancy Maginnes Kissinger, also received an honorary doctorate. Her late father, a Lehigh alumnus, also served as a Lehigh trustee as she currently does.

Others to receive honorary degrees are William O. Baker, chairman of the board, Bell Telephone Laboratories, Murray Hill, N.J.; Alfred G. Blake, retired chairman of the board, Engelhard Minerals and Chemicals, Edison, N.J.; and Fazlur R. Khan, partner in Skidmore, Owings & Merrill Architects and Engineers, Chicago.

Some 1,000 men and women will be awarded degrees from Lehigh's undergraduate colleges of Arts and Science, Business and Economics, and Engineering and Physical Sciences or from the Graduate School and School of Education.

Brooks is one of the country's leading scholar-critics. Author of several books and articles on literary criticism, he has lectured widely in this country and in Great Britain.

A member of the Yale faculty since 1947 when he was appointed professor of English, he became the first incumbent of the new Gray Professorship of Rhetoric in 1961. He retired in 1975.

Cleath Brooks

He currently is a Mellon Foundation Fellow at the National Humanities Center at Research Triangle Park, N.C. In 1964-65 he was on leave from Yale to serve as cultural attache in the American Embassy in London.

Brooks received his B.A. degree from Vanderbilt University and his M.A. from Tulane University. He attended Oxford University in England as a Rhodes Scholar from 1929 to 1932 and was awarded the B.A. degree, with honors, and the B. Litt. degree.

Upon his return to the U.S. in 1932, he was appointed to the faculty at Louisiana State University, where he rose from the rank of lecturer to full professor. He has also taught at the Universities of Texas, Michigan, Chicago, and Southern California.

He served as a managing editor of the Southern Review from 1935 to 1941, and as editor in 1941-42, in addition to teaching at LSU.

Brooks, author of many articles, is best known for "The Well Wrought Urn" (1947) and "Modern Poetry and the Tradition" (1939). He has collaborated with Pulitzer Prize-winning author Robert Penn Warren on several works, including "Understanding Poetry," a popular college textbook, and he collaborated with Warren and Richard W. B. Lewis on "American Literature: The Makers and the Making" (1973). In 1963 the Yale University Press published Brooks's book "William Faulkner: The Yoknapatawpha Country," a critical analysis of Faulkner's books. In 1972 "A Shaping Joy: Studies in the Writer's Craft," a collection of essays in literary criticism, was published. In 1978 he published his second book on Faulkner, "William Faulkner: Toward Yoknapatawpha and Beyond."

He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, national scholarship honorary, the Modern Language Association (MLA), and the English Institute. In 1949 he was appointed a member of the Yale Advisory Committee for publication of the Boswell Papers, one of 24 leading British and American scholars who make up the committee.

Brooks was appointed a Fellow of the Library of Congress in 1952 and served in this post until 1962.

Appointed a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences in 1966, he was also a member of the Committee for the International Exchange of Persons, which handles international grants, from 1966 to 1969. In 1970 he was named to the National Institute of Arts and Letters, and in 1973 he became a member of the American Philosophical Society.

He has received two Guggenheim Fellowships to work on the book on Faulkner. In 1978 he received the Jay B. Hubbell Medal of the MLA, an annual award presented to a noted scholar for distinguished service to the study of American literature.

Among Brooks's most recent honorary degrees are a Doctor of Humane Letters from St. Louis University in 1968; a Doctor of Letters from Tulane University in 1969; and a Doctor of Humane Letters from Centenary College in 1972. He is a resident of Northford, Conn.

This Poem was written for all "Moms" Both young and old

MOTHER

Mother is the one we love so dear
So why show our love just once a year
A mother is like spring, so pure, so bright
With the love of her heart she molds us to be right
She is there when you're happy and when you're blue
There's almost nothing a mother can't do
She believes in whatever you do
When you're a parent you will too
Let's show them we love them while they're still here
Cause they have loved us and held us so dear
These feelings I express to my own mother
She inspired this poem twas none other
