THE WILD WEST - Joe Keeslar, Murray High School industrial arts teacher, demonstrates his skill with guns to Murray High ninth grade English students taught by Peggy Brown. The students have been studying western literature and Keeslar who worked as a cowboy at Disneyland demonstrated gun tricks and showed his collection of western guns. Both students and teachers were dressed in western style clothes for the event. The students have also written cowboy ballads and made filmstrips of cowboy stories which they wrote in addition to reading many types of western literature. In background are, from left, Kim Wilham, Tracey Graves and Erin Burke.

Anticipated Revenue To Bolster Henley's Plan

Budget Proposal Includes "Cuts, Reforms"

Murray Mayor Melvin B. Henley said this morning that the budget proposal he will submit at tonight's meeting of the city council will include "a broad range of cuts and personnel policy reforms" and will be bolstered by $215,000-$225,000 in anticipated revenue that was not included in the budget submitted to the council three weeks ago.

'We are going to have about a $140,000 to $150,000 budget surplus this year," Henley said, "primarily because property tax collections are a lot better than they looked."

Henley said that the late mailing of city tax bills "made it appear that those tax collections were going to be significantly short." (The tax bills were late in going out because of a disagreement between the state Department of Revenue and local property valuation administrators over the assessment rate that should be applied to proper-

Three weeks ago Henley projected a $320,000 shortfall in 1981 because of the failure of Congress to reenact revenue sharing funds. The council, in recent years, has traditionally utilized federal revenue sharing subsidies in the city's general fund budget.

At that time, the mayor told the council he could only see two alternatives to a balanced budget for 1981. Those alternatives were:

· A new source of city revenue, or, · Massive layoffs in the fire depart-

The mayor suggested a payroll tax ranging from one to two percent would be adequate to generate the expected $320,000 needed. The other choice offered by the mayor would be to lay off 25 of the 32 employees of the fire department and three of the 22 members of the police force.

Henley said this morning that the budget plan he will present tonight, which will include $75,000 in anticipated revenue sharing funds, will be "essen-

The mayor said he will suggest the layoff of five firemen, rather than the original 25, and cutting of one policeman. The proposal will also include the transfer of one plain-clothes officer in the police department to

Meeting On Waste Disposal Set For Monday

The Murray-Calloway County League of Women Voters will sponsor an open meeting to discuss waste disposal programs in Calloway County on Monday, Nov. 17, at 8:00 p.m. in the Murray City Hall. The main speaker at the meeting will be Ken Yates, area consultant for the State Department of Human Resources and Environmental Protec-

The League of Women Voters has invited members of the city council, the fiscal court, the chamber of commerce the health department, independent garbage collectors and various industries to participate in the discussion following Yates' presentation and to answer questions from the audience concerning this important issue.

Whittaker is married to the former Rebecca Howard of Bowling Green and they have three children, John Mark, 8, Karen Marie, 7, and Mary Kaye, 4.

Henley listed several other areas that he will suggest for cuts in order to balance the 1981 budget:

Resignation from various organizations, such as the Purchase Area Development District, saving approximately $5,000 in annual dues paid

> Cutting conference and meeting expenses, currently totaling about $3,500 per year, by fifty percent.

Elimination of $15,000 in street department expense and the transfer of $3,500 from the sanitation department to the general fund budget.

Cut $8,000 from this year's $45,000 contribution to the operation of the Murray-Calloway County Parks.

 Other various and assorted cuts in police, fire, street, planning and administrative departments.

'If the council will take these actions I will be willing to anticipate $75,000 from revenue sharing," Henley said today. "This will indicate their willingness to make necessary budget

Manpower has been the primary weapon in controlling the fires, Trenholm said. He added that squad members and officials from the forestry service have been letting the fires burn themselves out by raking brush away.

Wind speed and the amount of surrounding leaves and brush are factors in the time it takes for a fire to burn out, Trenholm said.

Some of the Hamlin-New Concord fires have started by people at a garbage dump where the fire "just gets out of hand," Trenholm said. He added authorities have stated that some deer hunters, who have started fires to draw deer from the woods, also are suspected for starting some of the fires.

Trenholm said that it is against the law to burn between 4:30 p.m. and midnight. He added that he felt burning should not be allowed whenever the

About midnight, the smoke penetrated central Kentucky including the Lexington area more than 60 miles from the nearest fires

State police at Hazard advised motorists to leave their headlights on and drive with caution.

Persons with upper respiratory problems were advised to remain indoors. Southeasterly winds blew smoke from east and southeast Kentucky into the state's Bluegrass section, causing eyes to itch and noses to run. Bob Hendrick of the Weather Service at Lexington said the situation was aggravated by a thermal inversion which acted as a cap to keep the smoke close to the ground. The smoke started to lift in Lexington by mid-morning and Hendrick said the situation should improve as temperatures climb, possibly dispersing by mid-afternoon. The forecast brought some hope of relief in the woodland fire area with the outlook calling for a 40 percent chance of rain by late Friday

Meanwhile, Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. declared an emergency restriction on travel and outdoor recreation in the forests in 26 counties.

Since last Friday, fires have scorched more than 45,000 acres

The order restricts travel in any state, county, municipal or private forest lands; brushlands, fields or idle or abandoned lands except on public highways or well-defined private roads. The U.S. Forest Service also has banned all open fires in the 666,000 Daniel Boone National Forest. More than 70 new fires started in the mountainous eastern counties Wednesday, most of them small, and there was one new blaze in the national forest, where crews from Kentucky and eight other states were battling fires, state and federal officials said.

The air was calm, which allowed firefighting crews to more easily control the fires but also left a pall of smoke that made them difficult, of ficials said.

'The smoke is drifting in and laying in. We're having trouble spotting especially in Perry, Knott and Letcher counties," said Mark Mataszewski of the state forestry office at Hazard.

Large fires were burning near Mud Creek in Whitley County, Middlesboro in Bell County and Highsplint in Harlan County, said state forestry officials in Frankfort.

Wrecked Auto Disaster Drill To Be Put On By EMT Classes

removal of victims from wrecked automobiles is planned in Murray Saturday with students from the Emergency Medical Technicians (EMT) classes at Murray State University and West Kentucky State Vocational-Technical School participating:

The mock drill will have some students acting as accident victims trapped in their cars while others will act as emergency personnel. Representatives of area emergency services including the Calloway County Fire and Rescue Squad are expected to attend.

Participants in the all-day mock disaster will meet at 8 a.m. at the Murray Auto Salvage yard on U.S. 641 three miles south of Murray. Twenty wrecked automobiles are being rented for use in the drill, according to Murray State EMT instructor Bennie Cooper.

Instruction and a work session are scheduled through noon. Removal of victims with competition between the two classes will be from 1-5 p.m.

OPENING PERFORMANCE - Mike Childress and Lisa Mikulcik rehearse a song from the musical comedy, "Once Upon A Mattress," which opens at 8 tonight at the Murray Middle School auditorium. The production by the Murray High School speech and theatre department will continue Friday and Saturday nights. Tickets, which are $3 for adults and $2 for students, may be purchased at the door. Children under six are admitted free.

We need your Help!

On November 27, the Murray High Tiger Band will represent the high school and our community at the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade in New York. This is a great honor and we are proud to have been selected. We have worked hard to finance this trip. The cost per student is $300.00. The students and band boosters have worked and raised approximately $40,000.00. Businesses and the townspeople have been good to us but we are still $6,500.00 short. We need your support.

If you would like to make a donation, call us or mail it to the Murray Band Boosters in care of The Board of Education.

We appreciate your help and support.

Reasonable weight loss

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm 47 years old and weigh 125. I'm 5-feet tall. How many calories can I have a day and still lose 25 pounds in three months? I can't take anything as I have high blood pressune glad you realize that it's not wise to take so-called diet pills or pills that suppress your appetite if you have high blood pressure. Frankly, I don't think they're good for anyone but they're worse for people who have high blood essure or heart disease

As a basis for a wellbalanced, low-calorie diet of about 1,200 to 1,300 calories a day, you can use The Health Letter number 4-7. Weight Losing Diet which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Now if you don't lose suffi-cient weight on a well-bal-anced 1,200 to 1,300 calorie a day diet, you probably need to increase your level of physical activity. Since you have high blood pressure, a good choice here would be a good daily walking program. If you can build up to walking a mile three times a day over a peri-od of time that would help. As your physical fitness improves, you might be able

A lot of the weight loss that people have from fad diets is loss of water and not fat. That's unhealthy and the water weight comes right back because your body needs the water. That's not real body fat loss.

To lose about a pound of body fat a week, you need to have a calorie deficit of about 3,500 calories. That means that you need to reduce your

For walking you can use a general yardstick of 50 to 60 calories per mile. If you walked three miles a day, that would be about 150 calories a little less for someone as small as you are. That means if you would then eliminate 350 calories from your diet as well, you would be decreasing. your energy balance by 500 calories a day. This should cause you to lose about one pound of real fat a week as opposed to losing muscles or body water, both of which you need.

Availability, Cost Of Energy Are Vital

NEW YORK (AP) — The availability and moderate cost of energy, and the willingness and ability to innovate are among the most basic requirements in restoring vitality to the United States

Few knowledgeable critics dispute that assertion, but there exists great disagreement on how to bring it about. The goal is clear, it seems, but the route isn't. And maybe not even the starting

Here are two observations on the situation that might bring the starting line into better focus

-From an address by E.E. David, president of Exxon Research and Engineering Co., former science advisor to the president and former president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science:

"The problems of innovation today are usually documented by statistics on research and development budgets, particularly as a percent of gross national product. The U.S. figure has been stagnant while others have been increasing

'Actually, there is a sense of vitality in industrial research and development. Industry's R&D budgets have been rising steadily since 1972, and last year U.S. industry spent a record $24 billion of its own funds on R&D for new technologies for the 80s and beyond ..

"The problem today is not with industrial support levels. The problem is with the declining demand for what R&D produces. The symptoms are from a chance to just talk at length with a job counselor or someone from a search firm, so we will try to do a little of that," Miller said.

'People who've served in a variety of capacities are at a point in their careers when they might want to take a minute and see what they want to do."

The many religions of mankind are as fascinating to study as the term 'religion' is difficult to define. One who attempted such a definition was the cultural anthropologist Edward Sapir (1884-1939).

Religion is man's never-ceasing attempt to discover a road to spiritual serenity across the perplexities and dangers of daily

This search for serenity, however, is never the whole story. In concluding his essay, Sapir noted that "the sentiment of sin" was "a necessary shadow cast by all sincerely religious feeling." Because of this fact, "religion has Powell also was the one who broke the news of Carter's impending defeat to many of his staff early on election night. He thanked them for their efforts and said they could always be proud of the work they had done for Carter.

Powell, who has spent the last four years trying to publicize the good aspects of Carter's presidency and keep his boss from misspeaking, said that before Ronald Reagan's first televised press conference as president-elect he was curious to see whether he would be rooting for Reagan to sidestep any 'traps" by reporters, or rooting for the reporters to corner him.

After the press conference, Powell divulged that he had found himself cheering for Reagan and happy whenever the former California governor handled a potentially tricky question with diplomacy.

No, the fellow said, he hadn't met a Gary Hooker from Murray State, but it was possible that he was with one of the other Globetrotter teams. They have two or three teams traveling and performing in different sections of the country all the time. When the players learned Key and

Armstrong were from Kentucky, one, Dallas Thornton, spoke up to say he was from Owensboro. Another member of the squad, its "referee," identified himself as Bruce Briggs of Louisville and a former Kentucky Wesleyan Curly Neal, the team's bald-headed headliner, even came up and shook hands before they gathered up their gear and headed for their plane. They were on their way to LaCross, Ind., for an exhibition game. Shortly afterwards, the Keys and the Armstrongs had been checked aboard their plane and had settled into their seats when down the aisle came this big fellow in a wide-brimmed band around it, the head and open fangs frightfully displayed in front. Long, shaggy sideburns spilled down from under the hat. With his wife, the man settled down into seats just across the aisle from the Kentuckians. They had seen him before. He had to be a country music personality, but which one? First one and then the other, they guessed in whispers among themselves. His carry-on luggage was no help, nor could they catch his name when the stewardess came by to check her passenger list. Soon after they had taken off, the fellow in question, by then comfortably settled in his seat for the flight, pulled out a travel itinerary and began to study it.

Peeping across the aisle, Jerry made out the name "Bare.

"Why, it's Bobby Bare, the country singer," he whispered to Faye and the Armstrongs. Next, they plotted how to get to meet and talk with him. Urged by his wife and friends to do so,

Jerry finally leaned across the aisle and asked, "Would you be Bobby Bare, the country music singer?" "Why, yes, I am," the fellow said, visibly pleased at being recognized. One of his big hits was a ditty called "Detroit City." He and his wife, he said, were on their way to Houston, Tex., for an engagement, and they lived at Hendersonville, Tenn., near Nashville and close to Johnny Cash. These and other things our friends learned as they visited with him on the flight. "His wife didn't have much to say,"

Jerry laughed, but he was real talkative and personable. You often wonder about those folks when you see them on the TV screen or on a stage, how they are to talk with and all that. 'But they're just down to earth as they can be when you talk with them-

····· Previously recorded Dr. Charles Harold Gingles held the rank of brigadier general, however upon his retirement May 9, 1969, Dr. Gingles was elevated to the rank of major general. He was the son of the late Dr. Otis Gingles of Kirksey. Information regarding Maj. Gen. Gingles was gained from Mrs. Lochie Hart, the general's former sixth grade teacher, who had been in regular correspondence through the years. In a gallant gesture of deserving recognition, Calloway County Historical Society officially changed its name to the John C. Waters. Historical Society May 15, 1949. John had devoted untold hours in his search for Calloway history and genealogical records. Despite the widespread and bitter disappointment in cancellation of two industrial plants, citizens were made happier with the announcement June 3 by board members of Vanderbilt Chemical Company of New York for the construction of a chemical plant in Murray on a 78-acre site formerly optioned by the Eli Lilly Co., and owned by Charles T. Miller. The four-story structure would be used to manufacture chemicals for the rubber and petroleum industries and would employ 45 workmen. Two additional Calloway County members of the armed services in South Vietnam gave their all to the cause of the nation. Billy Reed, 19 year old Douglass High School graduate, son of Willie Odell Reed, died from battlefield wounds on June 6, 1969, and was buried in Murray City Cemetery June 19.

Letter To The Editor Comments On Moral Majority

To The Editor: Dr. W. Robert Parker, president of Moral Majority of Kentucky, and also the Pastor of Kosmosdale Baptist Church in southwestern Jefferson County claims that God gave us mercy and extended his providential hand in the recent election. I didn't realize that Moral Majority were hit men, as they targeted liberal candidates such as McGovern, Bayh and Church, and several others by calling them Baby Killers. They practically implied that God does not like Democrats. I too am a born again Christian, and can understand concern on religious doctrine. But I was brought up to believe that God loves us all. The Bible also tells us to judge not, lest we be judged. Moral Majority is against all principles of the American way. They are interfering in politics, and have no business doing so. Yes! I believe churches should speak out on moral issues, and try to get the people out of the thurch pews and into a voting booth. But a church has no business of endorsing any candidate, and pouring money into a hate campaign. Paul Wyrich another follower of Moral Majority told Ted Koppel of A.B. C. news that Vice President-Elect Bush had better mend his ways, or he will never make president. Now I ask you! Is this a way for a religious leader to talk? Talk such as this will only lead us to bigotry, and back to the dark ages.

I can remember years ago when Father Saughlin a Catholic Priest went on radio every Sunday night for a hour. He spoke from his church, the Shrine of the Little Flower. I'm sure many of us older people can remember him. He used this entire hour to speak on politics, corruption, etc.

I can also remember all the Protestant ministers, Catholic priests and Jewish religious leaders getting together trying to get Father Laughlin off the radio. They said then that politics and religion do not mix. This dispute went on quite some time, and Father Laughlin remained on the radio until the Pope finally decided that these religious leaders were right, and he ordered Father Laughlin to vacate his political radio program. Jerry Falwell has solicited millions upon millions of dollars. I too have contributed until I found out it was being used for political purposes. There are literally thousands upon thousands of people right here in our own country who are starving and this money can go a long way to feed those people. Jerry Falwell claims that Moral Ma jority is separate from the church. Regardless, he is still a religious leader and using money for political purposes. I say we should support our local churches, as I know where that money goes. Your local church helps the needy and supports many missionaries throughout the world. Some of our local churches are fighting for survival, and they can use these funds we tend to send to religious leaders, who in turn support politicians

Yes! I do believe in preaching the gospel to the world. But let's do it through our local churches and support them. I also believe that a minister, priest and a rabbi should preach on moral issues, and they deserve a lot of credit for doing so. But on the other hand, I don't believe that solicited money by the Moral Majority should be used to support and endorse political candidates. I don't care if they are Democrats, Republicans or Independents. I wonder if this money is taxed by our government. If not, it should be

You might call it "The Making of a Champion American Style, circa 1980. The scene was a small hamburger emporium in the center of teeming Manhattan, a short throw from Madison Square Garden. The bill of Double-deck cheeseburgers on a sesame seed bun, domestic champagne and the towering Long Island slugger being groomed to solidify the fractured and disarrayed heavyweight boxing division.

Gerry Cooney, the guest of honor, showed up 45 minutes late, wearing an open shirt, leather jacket and cowboy boots. You would have suspected he just motorcycled in from his home in Huntington on Long Island.

You could hear the ladies sigh from all the way across the prototype of a ring hero which we have come to accept with bombastic Muhammad Ali and slightly less with the celluloid's Sylvester Stallone.

The kid from Long Island is king sized version of the teenage heart throb, John Travolta - dark good looks, flashing brown eyes and dimples in both cheeks when he smiles, which is often.

When he talks, the words come out out so soft and low they are barely audible, even when he is speaking into a microphone. As a 24-year-old professional, he already has whipped 24 opponents, 21 by scratch or bump on his Hollywood profile.

In four years, most of them in virtual obscurity, he has battled his way to No.1 contender in the heavyweight division, the logical next foe for either Larry Holmes, the titleholder, or the World Box-Association champion, Mike Weaver. But, to most of the country, he remains a virtual nonenity. This time, young Cooney didn't shove and push his way through New York's perilous transit system Wednesday noon on a mission of fistic violence. He came to be honored because he is nice to

While guests washed down their hamburgers and French fries with New York bubbly, Cooney was presented a symbolic spatula on a plaque memorializing him as the 'Big Mac Biggie.'

A correspondent from Ring Magazine enlivened the proceedings by reminding Cooney that Holmes had termed him the "White Hoax" instead of the "White Hope" and there were going to be a lot of 'white dopes" if anybody thought the kid could take

"I don't like Holmes, Cooney said acidly. "I met him four years ago. I was still an amateur, just a kid. He treated me like dirt. He's got a big mouth. He's got no class.

It's different with Weaver. "He's a nice guy," Cooney said: "He doesn't talk much." 'Which had you rather fight?" someone asked.

"Makes no difference whichever comes first," the young contender said. "But not Ali. He was great for boxing. He ought to quit.

Adrian Dantley together are averaging 55 points for the Jazz, now in second place in their division after winning 10 games this season.

'I'd say we probably would have won three games without Darrell," said coach Tom Nissalke, who had recommended that the Jazz draft Griffith the first chance they Darrell was the greatest available athlete," Nissalke, "I think Joe Barry Carroll (drafted first by the Golden State Warriors) is okay and Kevin McHale drafted third, one pick behind Griffith, by the Boston Celtics) is a nice player. But neither is All-Star caliber.

Griffith, who signed for $1.4 million, quickly learned that Nissalke is a tough coach.

"I think it's the only way," said Nissalke. "You have to make a determination: Is this guy a tough-minded person? Is he tough-minded enough to take direct criticism? You're not going to succeed in this league unless you are. And he is. I made that determination

The coach said that, offensively, Griffith "has done a good job for us, and as he gets into what we're doing, he'll do an even better one.

Nissalke said Griffith is capable of carrying a 25-point average but still needs to brush up on his defensive

In his last eight games, Griffith has averaged nearly 28 points but he is not surprised.

'I think the pro game utilizes more of my offensive ability," he said by telephone from his condominium outside Salt Lake City. "You've got the 24-second clock which makes it a fasterpaced game, and I'm more effective at that. It's a matter of adjustment and getting into the flow of the pro game. Now that I look at it. I can see that my problem

Griffith said that during his first three or four games, "I wasn't really into the system. I felt like I wasn't really part of the team. Coach was getting on me a lot. He was trying to get me to learn the plays and I was out there trying to play my game and concentrate on my defense, and still wondering if I was getting to the right place on the plays. Once I got comfortable on that, things started opening up for me.

Nissalke said the one point he wanted to emphasize about Griffith "is that star quality thing. I don't want to demean them, but the other two guys we thought about, Carroll and McHale, just don't have that.'

Nissalke said he's giving Griffith time to mature. "We feel we've got a guard who is going to be one of the best in

A highlight of Fratianno's

Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Nearly two decades ago, a stubby minor mobster named Joe Valachi sent a chill up American spines with his sensational behind-the-scenes exposure of the organized crime syndicate.

He was the first to identify the mob by the name of La Cosa Nostra, "Our Thing."

Now, in a Mahattan federal courtroom, a latter-day snitch, Aladena "Jimmy , the Weasel" Fratianno, is updating the legend of La Cosa Nostra.

"The Weasel is singing like a canary and his tune is carrying us to thresholds far beyond those reached when Valachi ripped the veil of secrecy from the Cosa Nostra," a government source said recently, asking not to be quoted by racketeering trial of Frank "Funzi" Tieri, 76, called "the senior member of the national commission" by the prosecution - in short, the top dog of organized crime.

The New York trial should go to the jury in a week. In Los Angeles, another jury is already deliberating a verdict following a trial in which the star witness was, again, Fratianno. Five reputed California Mafia members are charged with various crimes connected with the 1977 gangland execution of mobster-turnedinformer Frank "The Bomp" Bompensiero. The jury has been deliberating six days.

At both trials, the prosecu-tion asked Fratianno how a member gets out of the Mafia. "You come in alive and go out dead," he testified each time. "There's no way out of the organization. Fratianno, a dapper, silverhaired 67, has admitted participating in 11 gangland murders. He pleaded guilty to two rubouts and became a government witness in 1974 in return for a five-year sentence.

The Weasel cast off his cloak of anonymous government informer in 1978 when he testified at a federal court trial involving a mobcontrolled theater in upstate New York.

Fratianno, who claims to have been a close friend of Frank Sinatra, testified he agreed to get Sinatra into the Knights of Malta, a Roman Catholic honor society, if he would do a benefit at the

It later developed that Sinatra never made a deal. He performed at the theater but was not linked to its fraudulent operation.

At the Tieri trial, Fratianno testified that La Cosa Nostra operates in 20 U.S. cities with New York, which has five. "Before Valachi came along, we had no concrete evidence that anything like this actually existed," said William Hundley, then chief of the Justice Department's Organized Crime and Racketeering section. Valachi named names. He showed us what the structure was and how it operates."

Valachi spent the rest of his life in maximum security prisons, his jailers always mindful of the reported prices of $100,000 on his head.

On April 3, 1971, he died in La Tuna prison in Texas, 66 years old and a forgotten man, embittered, lonely and sick.

His wife and son refused to claim his body. He was buried in a secret grave lest it be desecrated by the grim organization he had exposed.

He had, in the words of the Weasel, "gone out dead."

Scientists Say Cholesterol In One Form Is Beneficial

By WARREN E. LEARY

AP Science Writer WASHINGTON (AP) After years of cautioning that cholesterol is bad for the heart, scientists now say one form apparently is beneficial. And the more the better.

While health experts said Wednesday that a high total cholesterol level in the blood still increases the risk of heart problems, several studies show that a portion of this cholesterol is a "good" kind that apparently protects the heart

The latest evidence of this is a large government-sponsored study that indicates highdensity lipoprotein (HDL) cholesterol actually lowers the risk of heart disease

The study, which looked at the blood fats and lifestyles of about 10,000 people, indicates that risk subsides as levels of this form of cholesterol rise. Dr. Robert I. Levy, director of the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute, said the benefits of this form of cholesterol in the body were overshadowed for years by concerns about overall cholesterol content.

Aloof Husband Needs A Kick in the Ego

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 20 years. He leaves me alone a lot, refuses to even try to communicate with me, says he is not affectionate, doesn't really need me, and is his own best company. He states that he needs attention from other women to boost his ego, and he thinks I should develop my own interests to keep myself

Yet, he insists that he is happy and doesn't want me to leave him. What would you do, Abby?

DEAR ROOMMATE: I would tell him I am leaving anyway, because in order for me to be happy, I need someone who needs me, enjoys my company and is affectionate. I would state that I do not need a man who requires attention from other women to boost his ego, nor one who thinks I should develop my own interests to keep myself occupied. And since he refuses to communicate with me, I would tell him if he really doesn't want me to leave him permanently, he should communicate with my lawyer, and perhaps we can work it out.

DEAR ABBY: In your confidential to RETIRED AND BORED, you left out one of the great avenues for relief to boredom: Volunteering in schools, especially elementary

Notice is hereby given that on November 3, 1980, the Commission of the South 641 Water District, of Calloway County, Kentucky, adopted a Resolution authorizing the issuance and sale of $472,000 of the above-styled Bonds for the purpose of financing the cost (not otherwise provided) of the acquisition and construction of a new waterworks and sewer system for the District, including the purchase of the existing City of Hazel, Kentucky, waterworks and sewer system, and the construction of replacements, extensions, additions, and improvements thereto, under the provisions of Chapter 106 of Kentucky Revised Statutes. Said Resolution provided that it would become effective ten days after the date of adoption. It is provided in KRS 106.250 that any action challenging the validity of such a Resolution shall be brought within twenty days from the effective date of such Resolution or be forever barred. Accordingly, notice is hereby given that any action challenging the validity of said Resolution must be brought within twenty days from November 15, 1980, or be forever barred. A copy of said Resolution is on file in the office of the Secretary of the Water District, where it may be examined by any interested party. NOTICE OF BOND SALE Sealed bids will be received by the South 641 Water District at the law office of Harold T. Hurt, 105 North Sixth Street, Murray, Kentucky 42071 (address mail bids to the undersigned), until 4:30 P.M. C.S.T., on November 24, 1980, for the purchase at not less than par of $472,000 of South 641 Water District Water and Sewer Revenue Bonds of 1981, to be dated as of the date of delivery and bearing interest from that date, payable semi-annually on January 1 and July 1 of each year, maturing on January 1, 1984 through 2021, inclusive, issued pursuant to KRS Chapters 74 and 106, and redeemable on or after January 1, 1991, at par plus accrued interest, without any redemption premium.

Usual tax-exempt status. Secured by a first pledge of the gross revenues to be derived from the combined and consolidated water and sewer system of the District and will further be secured by a first statutory mortgage lien against said system.

Minimum bid, par value ($472,000) for all of the Bonds, and bidders must name a single interest rate in a multiple of 1/8% or 1/10%. No specific maximum interest rate is applicable.

The FmHA will submit a bid for the purchase of the Bonds. In the event that a bid(s) from nongovernmental bidder(s) shall be received, the rate and terms of which are determined by FmHA to be reasonable, then such FmHA bid will be withdrawn.

A 2% good faith check will be required. The approving legal opinion will be rendered, without cost to the purchaser, by Rubin & Hays, Municipal Bond Attorneys, Louisville, Kentucky. Delivery will be made after January 1, 1981. Bid Forms, the Official Notice of Sale, the Statement of Essential Facts, and other information, may be obtained from the undersigned. William (Bill) Stewart of Murray Route 6 died Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. at the Murray-Calloway County Hospital. He was stricken ill at his home on Wednesday morn-

Mr. Stewart, 68, was a farmer and boat repairman. He was a member of the Poplar Spring Baptist Church. Born March 18, 1912, in Calloway County, he was the son of the late Clint Stewart and Molly Tutt Stewart.

The Calloway resident is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lavenia Williamson Stewart: two daughters, Mrs. Doris Yarbro, Palmyra, Tenn., and Mrs. Max (Betty) Dowdy, Murray Route 6; two sons, Don Stewart and Ricky Stewart, Murray Route 6.

Also surviving are three sisters - Mrs. Evie Adams, Mrs. Frozena Owen, and Mrs. Maggie Russell, all of Murray; one brother. Wavil Stewart, Richmond, Va.; five grandsons - Gene, Jeff, Greg, and James Dowdy and Ross Yarbro.

The funeral will be held Saturday at 1 p.m. at the chapel of the Max Churchill Funeral Home with the Rev. Ronnie Adams and the Rev. Calvin Wilkins officiating. Burial will follow in the Barnett Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home after 6 p.m. tonight (Thursday).

Leon Bailey Dies At City Hospital

Leon Bailey, formerly of Murray, now of St. Louis, Mo. died at the St. Louis City Hospital on Tuesday. He was 67 years of age.

The body is being returned to Murray with the funeral and burial arrangements to be directed by the Rutledge Funeral Home of Murray.

Air Force Transport Plane Crashes, Kills 13 Americans

WASHINGTON (AP) - An Air Force transport plane crashed outside Cairo, Egypt, late Wendesday night, killing all six crewmen plus seven passengers, a Navy spokesman confirmed here.

The plane, a C-141, was deployed as part of the first overseas test of the United States' new Rapid Deployment Force. About 1,400 American Army troopers and airmen are taking part in the exercise with Egyptian military forces.

Details of the accident were sketchy and the cause was not immediately determined.

The plane, dispatched from McChord Air Force Base in Washington state, apparently crashed while attempting to land at the Cairo West Airport 20 miles from the Egyptian capital, Navy Lt. Michael E. McCage said.

The names of the victims were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

The training exercise, called "Bright Star," is designed to last about two weeks. Its lb 61.25; grade 1-2 1000-1685 lb 55.25 main force is comprised of a 60.75; grade 2 800-1200 lb 50.75-53.50; main force is comprised of a battalion and supporting units from the Army's 101 Airborne Division based at Fort Camp-

The Rapid Deployment Force is designed to be dispatched rapidly in case of a crisis, specifically in the oilrich Persian Gulf region.

Woman's Co-Workers Testify In Suit Against State DOT

DANVILLE, Ky. (AP) Several co-workers of Lydia Mitchell have testified in her discrimination suit against the state Department of Transportation.

Mrs. Mitchell, 28, the first woman to work on the state's Boyle County road crew, charged that she was a victim of racial and sexual slurs and harassment almost from her first day on the job.

She filed suit last February after being fired for unsatisfactory performance of assigned duties but was reinstated by Boyle Circuit Court pending outcome of the Carl Shepperson, a light equipment operator, told the court Wednesday that Mrs. Mitchell was able to perform most of her duties, including shoveling blacktop and pick ing up trash and limbs.

Shepperson said, however, she couldn't drive any standard equipment trucks.

Earlier, Mrs. Mitchell said she had applied for a job as a laborer but for some unexplained reason was assigned as an equipment operator.

Gurmann, Henry Transportation Department attorney, attempted to show that jokes of a sexual nature and nicknames represented essentially the same conditions that prevailed before Mrs. Mitchell was hired Aug. 9, 1979.

She is seeking $125,000 in punitive damages and $96,000

NEW LIEUTENANT - Lynn W. Adamson, a senior majoring in Recreation and Parks Administration at Murray State University, was recently commissioned a Second Lieutenant in the U.S. Army Reserves under the early commissioning provisions of the University's Reserve Officers' Training Corps (R.O.T.C.). The son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Adamson, 612 South Morgan, Morganfield, (shown pinning on his bars) he has been assigned to the 2nd Battalion, 398th Regiment of the 100th Training Division in Madisonville, where he will drill one weekend per month while completing his course work for the B.S. degree, which he will receive next year.

learned the whereabouts of her stolen car when her son received a letter from Jones Brothers saying that unless he paid towing and storage fees to get the car back, it would be sold at auction. Ronnie Jones, owner of the wrecker service, said his company towed the car in on instructions of Kentucky State Trooper McKinney Brake, who found the abandoned automobile. Nashville police said they have no record of a Kentucky State Police report on the car's recovery July 4 "We checked back through July and we can't find anything," Detective Larry King of Nashville said. KSP Lt. Gerald Johnson said, however, his department's records show the car was recovered and reported into the National Crime Information Center computer. Ron Eberhardt, special assistant to Tennessee Safety Commissioner Gene Roberts. said Wednesday the problem is common. "We recently put out a memorandum to all state troopers advising them that they are personally responsible for notifying a car's owner that a stolen vehicle has beenrecovered."

After learning of Mrs. Cunniff's predicament, Jones said he wouldn't auction her car and is willing to negotiate with her on the towing and storage
