Fiscal Court OKs city-county loan to be used to renovate community center building

By KRIS FAZI
Murray Ledger & Times Staff Writer

The Calloway County Fiscal Court approved a resolution Friday at its monthly meeting which will enable the city and county to receive a three percent interest discount on a $50,000 joint loan for renovations on the old Seventh and Poplar Church of Christ building.

The loan, $25,000 of which came from People's Bank in Murray and $25,000 from the Bank of Murray, is seed money to begin renovations on the building, which will be used as a community center. The resolution also gave Sue Outland, county treasurer, sole authority to sign checks from the Murray-Calloway County Community Center account.

Judge/Executive George Weaks said meeting the fire code is the top priority on renovations.

Weaks said a fire wall must be built and a sprinkler system must be installed.

"We want to get people in there as fast as we can, but we have got to comply with the fire marshal first," he said.

Weaks said he hopes agencies planning to move into the building can do so before Christmas. Among those planning to occupy the center are the Murray-Calloway County Senior Citizens, Need Line, American Red Cross, United Way and the YMCA.

Weaks said a drive will be held in the near future to raise funds from the community to help pay for renovations.

The court also approved a resolution to collect the $208,000 Community Development Block Grant, which was used to help purchase the $215,000 church building Thursday.

In other business the court:

- approved a 4.6 percent raise for all county employees, including temporary help.
- approved Harvey Ellis to serve a four-year term on the Board of Study: school districts will reap widely varying windfalls from education reforms

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — School districts will reap widely varying windfalls from the new education-reform law — from $54,240 in a tiny Campbell County district to nearly $15.7 million in Jefferson County, a school group says.

The Kentucky Education Association estimates that Jefferson County will get $15,683,767 in additional state funding for the next school year. That is easily the largest infusion of state money to any of Kentucky's 177 school districts under the education-reform law enacted by the 1990 General Assembly.

But the new funding for Jefferson County represents only a 9 percent increase for the district.

The tiny Southgate district in Campbell County will receive the lowest award of $54,240, KEA officials estimate. That's a 13 percent increase.

John Wilkerson, manager of field services for the KEA, said Friday Jefferson County's increase was not out of line.

"It's because of its size," he said. "That turns out to be less in terms of the closest city in size, which is Lexington in Fayette County. ... In terms of percentages, they're really comparable and essentially the same."

According to the chart, Fayette County will receive almost $5 million in added state funds, also a 9 percent hike.

Under the law, every district must get 8 percent to 25 percent more state money this coming school year.

Wilkerson said his organization, which represents teachers throughout the state, worked up the table to help local administrators plan their finances.

"We've just done our best to put together projections," he said. "We have locals out there that need the information because they're setting salary schedules."

The chart will be part of a booklet the organization is sending out to all of its local presidents.

Wilkerson called the KEA figures "preliminary estimates." He said the official estimates from the state Department of Education are due out by mid-August.

The legislation also requires school districts to raise local taxes to pay for school reform. Each district must raise the equivalent of a property tax of 30 cents for every $100 of assessed valuation.

That is 5 cents higher than the Chamber to begin gearing up for Goals Program work in fall

By MARK COOPER
Murray Ledger & Times Staff Writer

The Murray-Calloway County will begin gearing up next week for a more intensified look at its Goals Program, a list of over 55 economic, social and educational goals for the Murray-Calloway County area.

Chamber Executive Director Steve Zea said Chamber members will each begin receiving letters early next week soliciting their help on working committees to address the Goals Program areas of interest.

Those areas include cultural affairs, economy, elementary and secondary education, local government, health and welfare, recreation and transportation.

Work on the Goals Program, which was formulated during two half-day public forums in July of last year, won't pick up steam until the fall when residents are back in town from vacations and school is in session, according to Chamber Executive Director Steve Zea.

"We knew that to get work started on this thing during the summer would not be to our advantage," Zea said. "In the fall, we hope to have these committees set up and doing some substantial work on these projects."

Many of the goals suggested last year by area residents, such as a regional landfill and possible expanded air service to the area, have grown into their own categories, Zea said.

"Some of these suggestions

Successful play to become locally-produced TV movie

By TODD O. ROSS
Murray Ledger & Times Staff Writer

After a successful debut at the West Kentucky Playwright's Festival last year, Becky Reynolds' one-act play, "Graveyard Cleaning-Off Day," is being performed again, this time as a television movie.

Randy Herndon of Murray, who is directing the movie, said he mentioned the idea of directing a movie here in Murray to Reynolds last year.

"I've been working on several things," he said, "but none are anywhere near being done. Becky had talked with KET about producing her play last year after it was staged, but they wouldn't produce it. I said I would do it, and she was interested."

Herndon said he began working on the screenplay, which he wrote, back in early February. "I mostly added to it (Reynolds' play)" he said. "Two thirds is her script and one third is what I added, arranged or changed around."

Actual shooting of the movie began June 20 in the Old Salem Cemetery in Calloway County. Herndon said all the graveyard scenes were shot in eight days. He said six to seven days remain in the shooting of the movie, but schedule conflicts will delay the shooting.

Katherine Ballard, who plays the main character, Joan, said the idea for the play and its title, comes from an old, rural tradition of caring for family graveyards.

"The tradition, which dates way back, is that on the first Saturday in June (which is the case in the script), all the families who have someone buried in the cemetery get together to do spring cleaning and get the graveyard looking real nice," Ballard said. "It is a combination chore and family get-together — a reunion, almost."

Reynolds said the tradition began in her family on her mother's side. "The play is fiction, but I have always liked graveyards, and I always thought that graveyard cleaning-off day was so interesting."

"The premise of the play came about when I realized that neither my sister or I could drive to the cemetery without one of the older family members," she said. "One

Scouting Museum to offer camping workshops in July

The National Scouting Museum at Murray State University will conduct a "low-impact camping" workshop each Saturday in July in an attempt to educate campers about the importance of preserving America's wilderness.

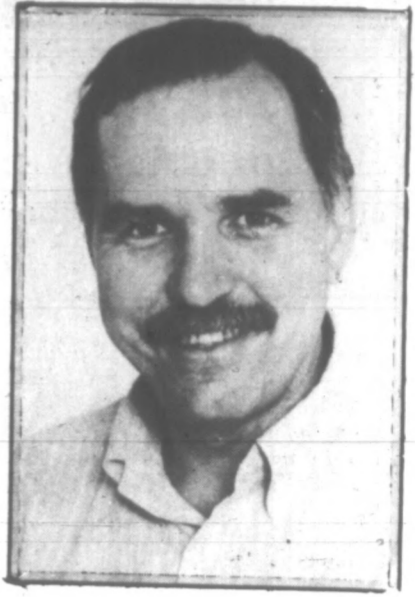

Open to the public and museum visitors at no charge, the first workshop is scheduled at the Museum at 3 p.m. July 7.

The first program will be conducted by staff members of the Scouting Museum on July 7, with scoutmasters from the Four Rivers Council to lead subsequent programs in July.

Scoutmasters and the dates they will lead sessions include Randy Walton of Paducah, Troop 22, July 14; Eddy Kaletch of Wickliffe, Troop 21, July 21; and Chuck Morgan of Clinton, Troop 35, July 28.

"The U. S. Forest Service has turned to the Boy Scouts of America to help initiate new camping techniques which will allow a lower impact on the environment," said Linda Horner, curator of interpretation at the National Scouting Museum. "Low-impact camping is intended to allow the use of wilderness and back-country areas of camping, while leaving no visible evidence that a campsite existed in a particular area."

Additional information may be obtained by calling Ms. Horner at (502) 762-3185.

Portions of Marshall, Ballard and Carlisle counties are going to the dogs

Parts of Marshall, Ballard and Carlisle counties are going to the dogs. Buzzards, bullfrogs and buffalo rule in Calloway and Trigg. The way to Ireland, France and Cuba is through Graves County.

That's if you believe road signs in western Kentucky. Roads usually are named for people, places or things. But there's one in McCracken County named for nobody, no place — nothing.

It's Said Road. Retired western Kentucky journalist Bill Powell thinks it's the most interestingly-named road hereabouts.

That's not because the former Paducah Sun-Democrat editor and Louisville Courier-Journal reporter happened to live on Said Road when he was a kid.

Powell explained: "Before the 1920s, some people were reading a deed that said, for example, something was so many rods from a tree to a post and back to said road. 'Said road' meant the road in a legal sense, but they thought that it was a proper name."

Powell added that his uncle lived on a Marshall roadway that suggested a canine community — Dogtown Road. The road actually starts right in Benton, off Poplar Street just south of the courthouse square and winds into the countryside.

Carlisle countians point to their Yellow Dog Cut-Off Road and Ballard countians cite Dog Kennel Road.

Other McCracken roads hint at both sectional harmony (North and South Friendship Road) and tough times (Hardmoney Road). The latter leads to the Hardmoney community, which straddles the Graves County line.

Back in McCracken, though, one wonders if there's a champion on Contest Road. Do dukes and duchesses inhabit Noble Road?

For road name variety, however, it's hard to beat McCracken's neighbor to the east and south. Marshall County names also include Slick Back, Steamboat, Tiger and Running Bear. There's a Monkey Den Road, which isn't to be confused with Monkey's Eyebrow, a Ballard County town.

Ballard offers a Coon Trail Road, which mustn't be mixed up with Possum Trot, that famous Marshall County village. Bicounty kinship seems to continue with Smokestack Road (Marshall) and Smokey Road (Ballard).

Graves County is no slouch either with Old Dublin, Cuba and Paris roads, which lead to Dublin and Cuba, Ky., and Paris, Tenn.

Rule Shack Road, near Fancy Farm, might perplex some people. But the Graves blacktop runs by a little grocery once run by a man named Rule. For the record, Rule Shack is also called Slapout and Pumpkin Center.

Dukedom Road maybe ought to link up with Noble Road. But it doesn't; it's in south Graves County.

In southern Graves, too, is a road with the same name as the Southern Confederacy's president: Jeff Davis.

In addition, Graves has a Baltimore Road, which doesn't end in the Orioles' hometown. It goes to Baltimore, Ky.

Graves is bordered on the west by Hickman County, where a Good Join Road may be found on county maps.

Fulton County has a road that's entertaining if nothing else: picture show road.

To the east, however, a Livingston County road seems to admit uncertainty: Guess Road.

While Livingston has a Turkeytown Road, there's an Old Buzzard Road in Calloway County.

Too, Calloway has a Bullfrog Bridge Road. Is it a span for croakers? Anyway, Buffalo Road roams in Trigg County.

The shortest regional road named might belong to Via Road in Hickman County. The longest two are probably Aunt Jane Underdown Tabernacle Road in Crittenden County and Lovelaceville-Florence Station Road in McCracken County.

I don't know about Aunt Jane, but with Lovelaceville-Florence Station, names are abbreviated and run together on road signs. It looks like "Lovlfiorsta."

Investigators sifting through wreckage of exploded plant

CHANNELVIEW, Texas (AP) — Federal investigators were sent to examine the wreckage of a chemical plant today to find the cause of a thunderous explosion that killed 17 workers and sent dozens of employees scrambling for safety.

Two tanks that collected waste water and flammable hydrocarbons exploded at the Arco Chemical Co. plant about 15 miles east of Houston late Thursday. The blast could be heard 20 miles away.

"When I heard it, I knew what had happened," said employee Kathryn Cox. "I hollered to my people, 'Y'all run, run as fast as you can!' I looked back twice and then I just kept running because I knew if it went again, we'd probably get blown up."

The explosion leveled an area the size of a city block. Five people, including two people living near the complex, suffered minor injuries.

Investigators with the Occupational Safety and Health Administration were to inspect the charred, twisted metal today in hopes of finding the cause.

The roof of a three-story, 900,000-gallon tank blew off and landed 100 yards away in a parking lot. The rest of the tower was scattered over a block-wide area. Several smaller explosions followed. A smaller, connecting tank was blackened.

"It looks like a tornado or fire went through that area," said Assistant U.S. Labor Secretary Gerard F. Scannell, who is leading an investigation of the accident.

OSHA investigators are looking into a number of aspects at Arco, including the maintenance record and complaints from family members that some employees were having to work long hours, Scannell said.

Plant manager Earl McCaleb said the tanks were in operation, but he added that it was believed that "some kind of work" was being done on a compressor, which compresses gases before they enter the tanks.

Seventeen bodies were pulled from the debris. One victim, an employee of a waste hauling company, was found in the cab of his truck, officials said.

Five other victims were Arco Chemical employees, and 11 were employed by a contractor, Austin Industrial Inc. of Houston.

More than 50 people were working in the plant at the time, officials said. The plant has more than 350 employees.

"We were running through the mud just as fast as we could get out of there," said Tommy McBride, a plant worker. "We knew what it was."

The fire was out by daybreak Friday. Plant firefighters sprayed down the wreckage while other workers searched for bodies amid the twisted pipes and other debris.

KSP chief feels drug testing necessary

By MARK R. CHELLGREN Associated Press Writer

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky Justice Secretary Michael Troop declines to suggest policy for other law enforcement agencies on the subject of drug testing.

But Troop, who is acting commissioner of the state police, said the public demands the kind of accountability that drug testing can provide.

"I think it's coming. I think it ought to be done," said Troop. "For most any police agency, I think they've got that responsibility to the public."

Troop announced Friday that the KSP will begin random, mandatory drug testing next year.

The state police have had mandatory drug testing for cadets for a few years. The new policy will extend to all sworn personnel hired since 1984, when such testing became a condition of employment. That accounts for about a third of the 900 sworn officers.

Troop said he expects other officers to voluntarily submit to drug tests.

"People have an expectation that you're physically fit, that you're unimpaired and that you have integrity," Troop said.

Maj. Jerry Lovett, an operations director for the KSP and the officer chiefly responsible for the policy, said it was not prompted by any particular event.

"We honestly feel that we don't have a drug-abuse problem," Lovett said.

The tests will eventually extend to civilian state police employees in sensitive positions such as laboratory personnel and dispatchers.

Any of the 1,600 employees of the department can voluntarily submit to a test.

Tests will be conducted for seven drug categories, including prescription medications such as barbiturates and illegal substances such as marijuana and cocaine.

The initial tests will be performed in-house by the state police laboratory. Any positive result will be checked by an outside laboratory.

Positive tests for prescription medications will result in referrals to an employee assistance program.

"If it's cocaine or marijuana, then we would proceed with disciplinary action and ultimately dismissal, I think," Lovett said.

Troop said he is convinced of the accuracy of the tests and the ability to maintain privacy for individuals and confidentiality of the results.

"I'm not worried about something being wrong with it," Troop said.

A committee of sworn and civilian state police personnel had a hand in drafting the policy.

Trooper Les Calhoun of the London post said most of his colleagues support the policy.

"I didn't have anybody hardly say anything negative about it," Calhoun said.

A spokesman for Gov. Wallace Wilkinson said there are no plans to begin drug testing for all state employees.

DISTRICT COURT SUMMARY

The following is a summary of the DUI and felony cases brought before the Calloway County District Court this week. DUI cases are only listed after final disposition and only if a plea or verdict of guilty has been entered. Unless otherwise noted, a court cost of $47.50 was automatically paid by the party mentioned. (A "fee" refers to a sheriff's fee). In the event of any type of suspensions, figures listed represent those fines or sentences after the suspended portion has been subtracted. Those parties appearing before Judge Leslie Furches may have either paid a fine, fee, court costs, made restitution or received a sentence, or any combination. Some cases may have been continued, passed on to another court date or dismissed for a variety of reasons. Misdemeanors, including minor traffic violations, and offenses involving minors are not included in the following list:

From June 29:

Edgar B. Downey — driving under the influence (first offense), entered guilty plea: $200 fine, $150 DUI fee, court costs and CVP.

Edgar B. Downey — driving under the influence (second offense), entered guilty plea: seven days jail, one year outpatient treatment, $350 fine, $150 DUI fee, court costs and CVP.

From July 2:

Estil Jesse James — two counts of wanton endangerment, driving under the influence: preliminary hearing set for July 18, bond set at $5,000 cash, $10,000 property.

Shirley Ivy — first degree forgery: preliminary hearing set for July 25.

Geoffrey W. Swan — two counts of theft by unlawful taking over $100: pretrial diversion agreement entered, signed and approved.

have become sub-categories on their own," he said, "and that's something we will have to work out."

Other categories can be handled by existing groups and organizations such as the Business Council for the Arts, the Murray-Calloway County Parks and Recreation Board and others, Zea said.

"What we want to try to do is to get some of these organizations that helped us formulate these goals in the first place organized to help fulfill them," Zea said. "In a lot of cases, many organizations are already working toward these goals."

Your Individual Horoscope

Frances Drake

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

FOR SUNDAY, JULY 8, 1990

ARIES

(Mar. 21 to Apr. 19)

Extra responsibilities could fall on your shoulders now. It's a time to be mature rather than rebellious. Down play ego and deal with the tasks at hand.

TAURUS

(Apr. 20 to May 20)

You're serious-minded now, but may quarrel with those who don't agree with you. Travelers could meet with delays now. Give yourself extra time to meet schedules.

GEMINI

(May 21 to June 20)

Reaching agreements with others about financial concerns will be difficult today. Your attitude toward money now is inconsistent. Try to avoid a p.m. quarrel with a friend.

CANCER

(June 21 to July 22)

You'll do what is expected of you now, but there may be some grumbling in the process. Avoid any tendency to nag today. Try to be cooperative with others.

LEO

(July 23 to Aug. 22)

Work performance may be erratic now. Extra responsibilities give you no justification to hurry matters unnecessarily or to overlook details which are important.

VIRGO

(Aug. 23 to Sept. 22)

Finding the right words to get across what you mean may be difficult now. Though you may try to be levelheaded, your tone of voice may say something entirely different.

LIBRA

(Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)

Family members just won't see the same thing in the same way now. Allow others the chance to express their opinions, without you getting angry in the process.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)

You're in a serious frame of mind today and will have little patience with those who are scatterbrained or frivolous. On the job, watch out for arguments.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)

A penny wise, pound-foolish attitude marks your approach to money today. With one hand, you could be tightfisted. With another, wildly extravagant.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 19)

You'll get mad now if others treat lightly a topic that is important to you. Perhaps, it's best now just to do your own thing in a quiet-like fashion.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 20 to Feb. 18)

You'll do some hard work for a while today, and then you're likely to put some things off. To be effective now, you have to resolve the battle that's going on within yourself.

PISCES

(Feb. 19 to Mar. 20)

It's those little things that are said without much forethought that could get you in trouble with close ties now. Social life is marred by small differences.

YOU BORN TODAY have a good head for business and are a natural money maker. You're naturally ambitious and sometimes you're drawn to government service. You have an interest in the arts and sometimes become involved in a business that is related to the arts. You often make a valuable contribution to community betterment, though at times the desire to make money and to become prominent can take too great a hold on you. Birthdate of: Nelson Rockefeller, politician; Billy Eckstine, singer; and Kevin Bacon, actor.

FOR MONDAY, JULY 9, 1990

ARIES

(Mar. 21 to Apr. 19)

One ticklish situation in business today needs delicate handling. You'll be getting some good career advice from a friend or business associate now.

TAURUS

(Apr. 20 to May 20)

Think twice, before you decide to commit further monies to a project. A business trip may be necessary for some of you. An adviser makes a lot of sense now.

GEMINI

(May 21 to June 20)

You'll be re-evaluating some of your investment requirements now. It may be time also to take a closer look at some of your insurance policies. Travel is a plus.

CANCER

(June 21 to July 22)

Partners are in agreement now about the use of joint assets, some of you will be entering a collaborative venture today. Evening places a special accent on togetherness.

LEO

(July 23 to Aug. 22)

What you're able to do for others seems important now. It's a good day to take the children shopping. Know how to be polite but firm with a time-wasting buddy.

VIRGO

(Aug. 23 to Sept. 22)

Business and pleasure mix to your advantage now. Some of you become involved with a project involving the entertainment world now. News comes from a relative.

LIBRA

(Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)

You may be going out somewhere special with a family member today. Renew an old friendship now. Drop a line to someone you've almost forgotten. Stay in touch.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)

You may find something you like in a garage sale today. You'll be making some minor changes at home. Catch up on correspondence. Keep abreast of current events.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)

Shopping could lead to an unexpected purchase now. You may be buying a present for a relative. A close tie may be feeling down in the dumps now. Your cheery words will help.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 19)

You may decide today to begin replenishing your wardrobe, but it won't be the same old thing you're buying now. An experimental mood leads to a new look.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 20 to Feb. 18)

You're a person of dual moods today. After socializing with others, you may opt for some time for yourself. Evening hours find you in a contemplative mood.

PISCES

(Feb. 19 to Mar. 20)

This is not the best time to begin a home decorating project. Taste may be a bit off. A friend may confide in you now. Tete a tetes are favored over group activities.

YOU BORN TODAY are more universal minded than the typical member of your sign. You have a natural interest in society and its problems and are often a force for community betterment. You have critical talents and are also drawn to public service, though you become involved, a part of you remains aloof. In your personal life, you need to let others know how you feel about them.

McCallon receives Lions Club-Tolley scholarship at MSU

Marilyn McCallon of Kirksey, a senior at Murray State University, has been selected to receive the $1,000 Murray Lions Club-Bryan Tolley Memorial Scholarship for 1990-91.

She is the daughter of Datha McCallon and the late Jewell McCallon of Kirksey. Her major field of study at Murray State is radio-television.

Established in 1981 by the Murray Lions Club, the Bryan Tolley Memorial Scholarship Fund recognizes a charter member of the Murray Lions Club who distinguished himself both in the club and in the community with many years of service.

Recipients of the scholarship benefit from money contributed to the special fund by the Tolley family, friends and the Murray Lions Club as a way to perpetuate the memory of Bryan Tolley.

Scholarship awards are made to sophomore, junior or senior students at Murray State who are enrolled full-time and who are graduates of either Murray High School or Calloway County High School.

Marilyn McCallon of Kirksey is the beneficiary of the Murray Lions Club-Bryan Tolley Memorial Scholarship for 1990-91 at Murray State University where she is a senior radio-television major. Shown with her are Steve Sexton (right), president of the Murray Lions Club for 1989-90, and Johnny McDougal, chairman of the club's scholarship committee.

MSU retirees

Three mainstays in the Department of Music at Murray State University ended their full-time involvement with the department on June 30 — (from left) Charles Stone, keyboard and instrument technician, retired after 20 years of service. Seaford, secretary, retired after nine years of service to the department and an affiliation with the community of more than 30 years. Reichmuth began new duties as acting assistant dean of the College of Fine Arts and Communication July 1. He had been with the Department of Music since 1970 as marching band director, student teaching supervisor and, since 1977, as chairman.

Local teachers among 20 selected from area to visit annual Project

Stacey Curd McCuiston, a teacher at East Elementary School; Tina Ratterree, a teacher at Robertson Elementary School; and Margaret Richter, a teacher at Calloway County High School, are among the 20 elementary and secondary school teachers from western Kentucky who will take part in the fifth annual Purchase Area Writing Project at Murray State University July 5-Aug. 2.

The institute is a joint project of Murray State and the Kentucky Department of Education. It is designed to provide public school teachers with intensive training in an effort to promote improved writing instruction in the public schools.

Doris Cella, instructor of English at the university's Learning Center, and Dr. Fred Cornelius, associate professor in the Department of English, are coordinating the project. Carolyn Tucker, a middle school teacher from Dixon, is assisting in program development.

Each participant in the program will receive six graduate credit hours and a monetary stipend in exchange for serving as "writing instruction consultants," conducting in-service programs and workshops for colleagues during the 1990-91 school year, Mrs. Cella said.

The Murray State Workshop is part of the National Writing Project, which uses as its model the University of California-Berkeley Bay Area Writing Project, established in 1973.

FROM AROUND THE STATE

The following is a roundup of editorials published or aired by Kentucky newspapers and broadcast stations. The editorials comment on a variety of issues of interest to Kentucky residents. Some editorials may have been condensed for space purposes. These editorials are not to be mistaken as representing a position taken by The Associated Press.

The State Journal, Frankfort: Even though Kentucky's first education commissioner to oversee the reformed schools system hasn't been hired and the impact of many provisions of the 1990 School Reform Act are still being studied, most local school districts are moving at full speed on one of the core provisions of the act. More districts than anyone anticipated want to begin preschool programs for disadvantaged four-year-olds this coming school year. Under the new law, many districts could wait to begin the preschool program until the 1991-92 school year.

The eagerness to move ahead of the law's timetable is the most encouraging sign we've seen that local educators are ready to accept many of the changes mandated by the General Assembly.

Ultimately the state's 177 school districts must offer the preschool program to all 4-year-olds whose family income would qualify the children for free lunches. The intent is to target children from low-income families for the kind of special preparation they need to begin kindergarten and first grade on a par with students from more affluent homes and, as a result, give them a greater chance of succeeding in the elementary grades.

Betty Steffy, deputy superintendent of public instruction, told a briefing this week that 103 local districts have expressed a desire to begin the preschool program this fall.

Everyone involved in school reform in Kentucky agrees that the effectiveness of the radical changes made in the state's schools system will not be known for some years to come. However, the quick response from local education in creating a statewide preschool program for disadvantaged children is a good sign that the children most in jeopardy of falling by the education wayside are going to be the first ones helped. That's a real reason for excitement.

Lexington Herald-Leader: All those people pouring money into Martha Wilkinson's campaign fund know something you don't.

They must. Why else are they giving her all that money? At this point, most people know two things about Martha Wilkinson: She is married to Gov. Wallace Wilkinson, and she is running for governor herself.

They aren't likely to learn much more for months. Martha Wilkinson says she won't answer any questions about issues until she becomes an official candidate for governor, which might be in December or later.

But she must be telling some people something. After all, several hundred well-connected and well-heeled supporters showed up (earlier this month) when she threw a lavish party to raise campaign funds. Afterwards, Gov. Wilkinson said the event might have raised as much as $1 million for his wife's campaign.

The governor also said ... "I think the editors are the only ones now interested in (issues). The public certainly isn't at this point in time." ... It's just flat-silly to suggest that the people who are giving money to Martha Wilkinson's campaign don't care about issues. Just look at a list of contributors, and you can tell that these people do care — and what they care about.

This list is full of people who do business with the state, who run businesses that are regulated by the state, who hold coveted state appointments. For most of them — as for most big contributors to most political campaigns — the key issue is simple: What is the candidate going to do for me?

Apparently, those folks (at Martha Wilkinson's fund-raiser) got $1 million worth of answers on that issue ... Wouldn't you like to know what they know about the views of this woman who would be governor?

Messenger-Inquirer, Owensboro: Nobody disputes that the Kentucky General Assembly's $1.3 billion tax increase for the biennium already is beginning to be felt across the state. What is being disputed is the percentage of the tax increase earmarked for education.

... We would argue the figure lies somewhere ... around 60 percent. Counting the tax increase, the lottery and increased revenues from growth in the economy, state government will have almost $2 billion in new money over the biennium. Of that, $1.2 billion, or 60 percent, goes for new spending in education.

Thus if new spending for education is apportioned equally among all sources of new revenue, 60 percent of the tax increase goes toward education ...

Was a $1.3 billion tax increase necessary to provide $1.2 billion in new money for education?

Obviously not. The $1.2 billion could have been raised with a tax increase half as large.

But all along, most Kentuckians realized the state needed large sums of new money for a lot more than education ...

To meet those needs and provide education reform, legislators and the governor bit the bullet and passed a large tax increase. During the coming biennium, Kentuckians will decide whether they got their money's worth.

Letter to the Editor

Local tour group thanks Egyptian officials for trip

(Editor's Note: Following is a letter from a local tour group thanking Egypt for a good security on a recent tour including that country.) Dear Editor,

On behalf of our travel group that just recently returned from our visit to Israel and Egypt, the home to the roots of our Christian religious faith, we want to say a very special thanks.

We have never felt so well protected. When we left Israel at the Rafah Border Crossing, we were met by two squads of Tourist Police who escorted our bus convoy all the way to Cairo. About every 25-40 miles there was a highway road block and checkpoint to go through. Twice they changed our route as we traveled.

It was a great deal of comfort to all of us — the Koreans, the Hong Kong visitors, the French and yes, we Americans to know that our security was looked after so effectively.

Our hats are off to the Egyptian government for your fine help.

Shekran!

Thirty years ago IBM signs could be seen almost everywhere. They were about the size of shirt collars and carried the single command, "THINK!"

Back then our reaction to the order was "Why, or course!"

But now, having had several decades to THINK about it, I'm not so sure that was the right response.

Thinking is more easily printed than done.

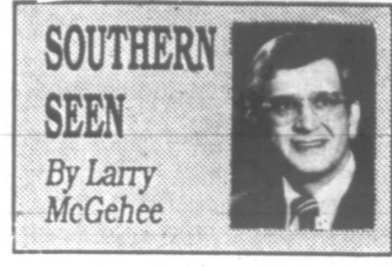

I think the reason we don't see THINK! posters around much any more is that someone told IBM they offended people. Having to think disturbs the peace.

What brings those old THINK! posters to mind is some thinking I've been doing about the comic strip, Doonesbury. Periodically some letterwriter lobbies to have it removed altogether, and then some other letterwriter defends it, and after a few pingpong battles pro and con, the editors announce that the cartoon will be retained because it is an artist's personal editorial commentary with as much right to space as William Buckley or Jack Anderson.

To make the point clearer, in many papers Doonesbury is on the editorial page instead of back on "the funny page". This is splitting hairs, I think. I don't find many of the other cartoon strips funny enough to be on the funny page. On the other hand, I do find Bill Buckley hilarious and, personally, would move him from the editorial page to the comic section. Or to the horoscopes.

Those occasional flurries of pro and con letters about Doonesbury do make one THINK. One thought Think!

SOUTHERN SEEN
By Larry McGehee

I have to wonder why certain people seem to make a vocation out of writing Letters to the Editor. It seems to me a few names appear awfully often. That makes me THINK of that line of Emily Dickinson's: "This is my ... letter to the world/That never wrote to me." Only, Emily said "loveletter", and most of the frequenters of the Letters to the Editor space don't have much love in theirs.

But, to get back to Doonesbury, I think the reason that letters get written about it and that it has to seek shelter as a "minority opinion" on the editorial page is that it is "offensive."

I choose that word deliberately, having thought it through carefully. "Offensive" is a wonderfully ambiguous word. Among many things, "offensive" can mean "repulsive" or "taking the initiative" or "provocative". I find Doonesbury "offensive" because it "takes the initiative" in making me think, while others find it offensive because its message is "repugnant to" their own tastes or ideals.

What I really find offensive about Doonesbury are the readers/writers/sidewalk pundits who find it offensive because it makes them THINK.

I think the most dangerous trend-line facing us today — even more dangerous than those graphs that show the national debt climbing or SAT scores declining or voters voting less or drug use reaching (in an interesting choice of words) "a new high" — is that we increasingly are offended by having to THINK.

Doonesbury is nothing in the world but a cartoon version of the old IBM placard. Its message is the same: THINK!

That is all it asks of its readers. Just THINK! It doesn't demand that we BELIEVE! It doesn't require us to AGREE! It doesn't ask us to APPLAUD! And even at its most prophetic peak of denunciation and apocalyptic warning, it doesn't insist that we REPENT!

Its main message is not its political platform nor its polemical perspective — just THINK. If it were pasted at a street intersection, it would say CAUTION. At a school crossing, it would say SLOW.

Thinking is "offensive" because it is very hard work to get it on a time card and cashed at a bank. Thinking is asking for a headache, because most things that need thinking about are so confounded complex.

Thinking is also asking for a guilt trip, because to think about something deeply enough implies we ought to do something more after thinking about it. We send congratulatory cards or sympathy notes to our friends that say, "Thinking of you," and hope they understand we wish we could do more than that. We tell someone who needs something from us, "Let me think about that and get back to you on it."

Thinking is really a very difficult thing. We are much more comfortable if we can just follow a rut that is already there, like a barber circling his chair for a lifetime or a mule turning a can press. If we can just learn a routine, we won't have to THINK about it any more. Knee-jerk reactions are simpler than thinking things through.

Thinking is "unnatural". We are much more comfortable with just "doing what comes naturally". It makes sense to live that way. Why learn higher math when there are machines that can do for us any math we would ever need? Why worry about bills before Congress when there are elected experts to do our thinking for us? Why "think about marriage" when we can live together without it, or can break up easily if we do get hitched? Why "think about having a baby" when we can put off thinking about it — at least for nine months longer?

Thinking may clear up some things. But the common experience is that it confuses more than it clarifies. What happens when you plug a microwave and an air-conditioner into an electric circuit designed for hundred-watt light bulbs? We already have more to know than we can absorb. Does thinking just over-load a system that is already carrying more than it was designed to do?

Maybe so. Doonesbury disagrees. Think it over and get back to me on it.

BUSINESS NEWS IN BRIEF

Murray Ledger & Times

Donna Swatzell is presented a check for $100 and a plaque from Mr. Hunt Smock for being named HT Marketing's Employee of the Month.

HT's Swatzell named Employee of the Month

HT Marketing, Inc., is proud to announce that Donna Swatzell has been selected as Employee of the Month for May, 1990.

In honor of her achievements on behalf of the company, she received a check for $100 and a plaque, presented by Mr. Hunt Smock.

Swatzell has been with the company since January of 1986 and holds the position of credit/collections clerk. She is responsible for investigating new accounts for credit purposes and monitoring existing accounts to make sure they maintain financial stability to continue to receive terms.

At the beginning of this year's selling season, she assisted the controller and cash manager in reviewing and approving credit for 250 accounts. She also assists the accounts receivable staff in resolving claims which helps to eliminate discrepancies and she assists in collecting monies from past due accounts.

Swatzell has a thorough knowledge of all company procedures involving shipping, marketing and accounting which helps to locate errors in the system regarding returns and invoicing. Her performance and expertise are exemplary as she works with our collection agency in processing past due accounts.

She possesses excellent follow-up skills; she stays with a project until it is resolved. She has attended numerous collection seminars to improve her skill and knowledge.

She is courteous and professional in working with accounts and sales representatives. She has the ability to obtain results that are in the best interest of the company without creating friction.

Swatzell is well-liked by everyone and she is always willing to lend a helping hand to co-workers. HT Marketing appreciates the contributions that she has made and we feel she is very deserving of the Employee of the Month award.

Latimer graduates from Cannon Trust School in Charlotte, N.C.

Pat Latimer, vice president and assistant trust officer at the Bank of Murray, recently graduated from Cannon Trust School. A nationally-recognized training program for bank trust officers and foundations, the school is held annually on the campus of the University of North Carolina in Charlotte, N.C.

A three-year program, the school involves one week of intensive study each year, with exams given to students the first two years. Students must prepare and present case studies, participate in discussion groups and debate issues relative to the subject matter.

Areas of study include: Trust Department Management, Investments, Fiduciary Income Tax, Estate and Gift Tax and Administration of Trusts and Estates. Instruction is given by attorneys, bankers, consultants and professionals from all across the country.

Latimer, who came to work at the Bank of Murray in August of 1969, has been an employee of the Trust Department since 1981 and currently serves as vice president and assistant trust officer.

She is married to James R. Latimer, a teacher and coach at Puyere School, and they live in Hazel, Kentucky. Their children are Candace, a sophomore at Murray State University and Jeremy, a freshman at Henry County High School.

Pat Latimer

"We are very happy to have Pat complete this program of study, which will help her to better serve the Trust needs of our customers," said Joe Dick, president of the local bank. Bank of Murray's Trust Department is 10 years old and continues to grow, serving the trust, investment and retirement needs of the area.

Washer named MassMutual agent in Murray area

Jamie D. Washer

Jamie D. Washer has been named the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company agent in Murray. Washer is well-known in the insurance industry having served Murray and Calloway County for 12 years.

Founded in 1851, MassMutual is a mutual company with $96 billion of life insurance in force. It is operated for the benefit of its policyholders who share in the surplus of the company through dividends which minimize the cost of insurance. Among the nation's 100 largest businesses of all kinds, the company is the 11th largest among over 2,000 U.S. life insurers. MassMutual has received the highest rating from all three of the leading independent analytical rating services: A.M. Best, A Plus; Moody's Investor Services, Inc.; AAA; and Standard and Poor's, AAA.

MassMutual provides a complete portfolio of life, health and accumulation products; employee benefit and investment management programs marketed through four product lines: Individual (life, disability, annuity, equity, small business employee life and retirement plans); Group Life and Health (life and health, support services for employers); Group Pension (investment and support services for benefit and contribution retirement plans); and Investment Management Group (both personal and institutional investment services and mutual funds).

The office is located in the Hopkinsville Federal Bank building at 7th and Main and the telephone number is 753-1133. Washer recognizes the importance of service in the insurance field and offers the same prompt, courteous service that he has given in the past.

As an independent agent, Washer will also offer other lines of insurance coverage and welcomes the opportunity to help with any of your insurance needs.

Billington attends Essentials of Bank Marketing School

Wilma Billington, marketing officer at the Bank of Murray, recently attended the 1990 Essentials of Bank Marketing School on the campus of the University of Colorado, Boulder, CO.

Covering such subjects as Marketing Planning, Research, Strategies, Product Development, Product Management, Presentation Skills, the Role of Advertising, Organization and Implementation, the school was a five-day intensive study sponsored by the Bank Marketing Association.

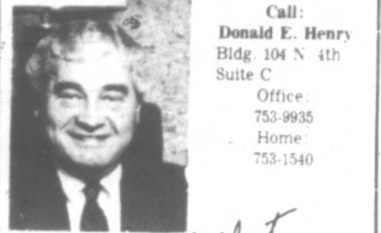

Bank Marketing professionals from across the nation attend the annual school, share marketing ideas and receive instruction from the most successful bank marketers and teachers.

At the completion of the program, each participant is awarded a certificate.

Over 250 persons attend Erwin reunion at former homeplace

A reunion of the descendants of John Johnston Erwin was held Sunday, May 27, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Buren Erwin in Calloway County. The Erwins' home is located on the old John Johnston Erwin farm and Mr. Erwin's house was built by his grandfather, John Johnston (Pudge Erwin) Erwin II in 1880. There were over 250 descendants of four sons and one daughter of John Johnston Erwin and Sarah Marie Allison Erwin attending. Family members traveled from Kentucky, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Oklahoma, Michigan, Tennessee, Missouri, Nebraska, Georgia and Washington. The renewing of old acquaintances and making new ones was enjoyed by those attending. A catered barbecue dinner was served in the carport of the Erwin home which features many family heirlooms from the Erwin family. Mr. and Mrs. Erwin have invited the Erwin descendants back in five years in 1995 for another celebration of family ties.

Mother has baby in pop-up camper in a short time

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Andra Diane Brunson's birth in the middle of the night was so fast her dad didn't have time to switch on the lights — in the family's pop-up camper.

"By the time my husband got from the head of the bed to the foot of the bed, the head was out," Carol Brunson said of early Wednesday's birth.

Mrs. Brunson, her husband, Ronnie, and her four young sons were sleeping in the 16-foot camper behind a friend's house in San Marco about 4 a.m. Wednesday when she began having labor pains five to seven minutes apart.

She woke her husband and said, "The baby's really hurting."

He told her to try to go back to sleep. When she woke him again about an hour later, the baby was ready to be born.

Brunson, a roofer who moved his family to Jacksonville from Charleston, S.C., a few weeks ago, handled the entire delivery in the dark.

"As it turned out, I didn't have time to flip on the light," he said.

Mother and daughter were doing fine at Baptist Medical Center.

Electric blender may be used for Pina Colada Fruit Salad

NEW YORK (AP) — Nothing suits summer better than foods that are light and easy to prepare.

An electric blender speeds the preparation time for the following recipe, allowing you to spend less time in the kitchen and more time outdoors.

Pina Colada Fruit Salad
Dressing:
1 cup unflavored yogurt
One 2-ounce jar crystallized ginger
One-half of a 6-ounce can frozen pineapple juice concentrate, thawed
Fruit Salad:
1 pineapple, cut into chunks
1 cantaloupe, cut into chunks

3 navel oranges, sectioned
3 kiwifruit, cut into slices
1 cup shredded coconut, toasted
Combine yogurt, crystallized ginger and pineapple juice concentrate in container of an electric blender. Blend until smooth. Cover and refrigerate until needed.

Combine pineapple, cantaloupe, oranges and kiwifruit in serving bowl. Cover and keep chilled. Just before serving, stir dressing into fruit salad. Sprinkle coconut over top. Makes 6 servings.

United States best market for watches

NEW YORK (AP) — Switzerland, which has been making watches since 1550, supplies about half the world's timepieces and more than 90 percent of all fine luxury watches in terms of sales volume.

The United States is the country's single most important market, according to the Watchmakers of Switzerland Information Center. The most recent import figures showed an annual volume of 210 million watches.

Other leading importers of Swiss watches are Hong Kong, Italy, Germany and Japan.

Dear Abby

Assault With Deadly Perfume Is a Crime Against the Nose

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I suffer from asthma and allergies, so when we read this in The Arizona Republic, we could certainly relate to it. We think it deserves a bigger audience, so we're sending it to you. If you agree, please put it in your column.

A.A. IN PEARCE, ARIZ.

DEAR A.A.: The writer, Elin Jeffords, should have no objection to a national audience. I agree, it's well worth the space, and here it is:

"The four of us were seated on the patio of a popular midtown restaurant enjoying coffee and dessert. It was cool and the air was pleasantly fresh.

"Peripherally, I noticed the hostess seating a couple at the table next to us, which was a comfortable distance away.

"Suddenly, it struck us: a blast of one of those heavy-duty perfumes with a name like 'Cyanide' or 'Psychosis.'

"My gosh, one of my companions exclaimed, 'What is that?'

"It was the woman at the next table. Every time she shifted position, billows of strong, nauseatingly sweet fragrance wafted toward us. In minutes, we were saturated. It was all we could smell or taste. The luscious desserts were left partly eaten, the coffee half drunk, as we crowded our chairs as far as possible away from the assault while waiting for our check.

"And they don't allow pipe smoking?" whispered our companion the Pipe Smoker, in amazement, as we headed for the exit.

"The stench clung to our clothes and filled our heads long after we departed. I could only conclude that her companion must have been nose-dead to put up with it."

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday I was told that one of my fellow employees had been killed in an auto accident. Because I handle employee records in my job, after I recovered from the initial shock, I wondered, were her affairs in order?

I know you have addressed this issue before, but I hope you can find the space to ask your readers one more time to plan for the inevitable — death. Ask yourselves: Who will get my belongings — bank accounts, life insurance, retirement fund, family heirlooms, auto and home? Who will be the guardian of my minor children? Where will the money come from to bury me?

I feel that one of the greatest kindnesses that one can do for one's survivors is to spare them the pain of legal and financial nightmares that so often follow a loved one's death.

CALIFORNIA READER

DEAR READER: Although nobody gets out of this world alive, most people tend to postpone preparing for it.

If you are one of those persons, as a favor to those you love, tackle this job at the earliest possible moment.

People are eating them up! For Abby's favorite recipes, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Cookbooklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

End of an Era

Herzog brought Cardinals titles with brand of exciting baseball

By R.B. FALLSTROM
AP Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Even geniuses, it seems, can run out of options.

Whitey Herzog rebuilt the St. Louis Cardinals 10 years ago, turning them into a National League powerhouse without the benefit of power hitting or power pitching.

It was a team built for speed. It was called "Whiteyball" and it was revolutionary in its time, producing three pennants and a world championship in the 1980s.

For this, Herzog was widely considered the best manager in baseball and under his guidance the Cards have drawn more than 3 million fans twice in the last four seasons. Cardinals' broadcaster Jack Buck calls Herzog "a magician."

But it's been a while since the glory years, and it's been a long time since Herzog has had the kind of team he'd like to field. Sure, he's managed his share of dogs, including the 1986 and '88 Cardinals. The difference this time is there's no relief in sight.

In the weeks before his resignation, Herzog gave little hint that he was frustrated with the job. He hid it well. Because for too long he's managed a team that was a longshot at best.

To most Cardinals fans, Herzog will always be a genius. That's because the front office is there to take the heat.

The Cardinals have been a most reluctant participant in the free-agent market, dipping into the pool only twice. The Cardinals signed catcher Darrell Porter in the winter of 1980 and pitcher Bryn Smith last November, but in between there was nothing.

Herzog's advice was heeded when the club traded for relief pitcher Lee Smith this spring. But the deal cost them Tom Brunansky, one of their two power hitters, creating another problem.

It's likely to get worse, since the Cardinals have 10 potential free agents and many could go elsewhere. Last winter, catcher Tony Pena was allowed to leave for Boston and the scene could be repeated en masse this winter.

Among the big names who could leave are third baseman Terry Pendleton and outfielders Willie McGee and Vince Coleman. The front office solution is to rebuild through the farm system, a tedious process.

Herzog has never been at a shortage for suggestions and during his two-year stint as general manager from 1980-82 he laid the groundwork for a successful decade. But when club president August A. Busch Jr. faded from the picture in the late 1980s, Herzog's voice no longer carried the same power.

Busch died last fall, severing Herzog's pipeline to the top. "To be successful in sports, you have to use all the rules, you have to use all the avenues," Herzog said at the news conference called to announce his resignation. "I don't think the St. Louis Cardinals or anybody else can just do with the farm system."

"You have to use the trade routes and I think every once in a while you've got to sign a free agent to fill a void."

Herzog, 58, is under contract with the Cardinals through 1992 and will remain with the club as a vice president and consultant at an estimated $600,000 per year.

Perhaps for that reason he had nothing but good things to say about the organization. But that's pretty much an about-face from the last few years when Herzog lodged frequent complaints

Losing their best Bud

Card fans hate to see Whitey go

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis fans say they are sorry to see St. Louis Cardinals manager Whitey Herzog go, but his resignation Friday didn't exactly surprise them.

"I'm disappointed, but not surprised," said Norbert Utz, who said he went to high school with Herzog in New Athens, Ill. As if they had had a long time to think about it, many fans were quick to accuse the team's front office of eroding Herzog's authority over the team.

"I think they took control away from him," said Greg Lang, 30, a downtown courier. "It was no longer his kind of team. It wasn't his fault. He had to play the hand the way it was dealt. "Hey, he brought a winner to St. Louis. They even called it 'Whitey Ball.'"

"I don't think he had any control any more," said Mike Karandzic, 35, manager of a north side restaurant. "I think a lot of it had to do with old Mr. Busch (August A. Busch Jr.) passing away. Rumor has it that his son (current Anheuser-Busch Chairman and president August A. Busch III) isn't that interested in baseball. Whitey just wasn't in charge anymore."

Trifon Panopoulos, owner of a downtown sports bar and a Cardinals booster, echoed that sentiment.

"He (Herzog) was just disgusted," Panopoulos said. "I don't think (General Manager Dal) Maxvill would make the trades or get the players he needed. He got frustrated with the front office."

"But with Whitey staying on as a vice president, Maxvill may be looking for a job himself next year."

Mike Shannon, color man with announcer Jack Buck on Cardinal radio broadcasts, said he had seen the move coming and recognized Herzog's problems.

"I'm not surprised at all," said Shannon. "We were afraid that something like this was going to happen. I watched Whitey suffer through this year and his hands are almost tied." So far this year the Cardinals are 34-47 and in the cellar in the National League East.

"He can't get things done right now because we don't really have a Cardinal baseball team here," Shannon said. "What we have, in my estimation, is we've got so many people ... just playing for themselves. They're just playing for their free agency and Whitey Herzog is not going to be responsible for having a club that's not a team."

As Herzog made the announcement on live television, patrons in Panopoulos' bar shouted such sentiments as, "No, no, don't blame yourself," and "They pushed you out the door."

"He's been the best," said Acea Winslow, 32. "It's a shame he has to go. He was just tired of having players make all that money and not produce."

In Herzog's hometown of New Athens, Cardinals fans gathered at Joe Poe's Tavern to commiserate over the depressing news.

"There's not much more that can happen to the team," said

WHITEY HERZOG

By MARK EVJE
Associated Press Writer

SAN DIEGO — Did Whitey Herzog abandon a sinking ship by abruptly quitting as the St. Louis Cardinals' manager? It depends whom you ask.

"There were guys who were kind of disappointed about him going out that way," third baseman Terry Pendleton said after the Cardinals' 5-3 win over San Diego on Friday night. "I have a lot of respect for Whitey and always did, but I think he should have stuck it out with us."

Herzog resigned hours before Friday's game, saying he was embarrassed by the way the last-place Cardinals had been playing and blaming himself for much of their failure. Pendleton didn't agree.

"I don't think it should be somebody else motivating you, it should be yourself. We weren't doing that and it wasn't his fault," Pendleton said.

"But I feel like he was our captain and we were going down and he left. I didn't like the way he did it. That's my own personal feeling, we're all entitled to that, and that's the way I feel about it."

Left-hander John Tudor, who pitched six innings and got the win Friday to improve his record to 7-3, offered a different assessment of Herzog's decision.

"I don't consider him a captain leaving a sinking ship because he did everything he could to turn this team around," Tudor said. "I think he did what he had to do. I know Whitey's not one to back down

Schoendienst guides Birds to win over Padres

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Red Schoendienst thinks his St. Louis Cardinals have too much talent to be in last place in the National League East.

The Cardinals took another step in the right direction Friday night by beating the San Diego Padres 5-3 in their first game under Schoendienst.

"It's a long season yet," said Schoendienst, who was named interim manager after Whitey Herzog resigned earlier Friday. "As long as I'm here, I hope we play good ball, win and be competitive. I don't think this is a last-place club. These guys have a lot of pride."

The Cardinals have the league's second-worst record at 34-47.

Herzog cited the team's poor performance as his main reason for resigning. Schoendienst, the only man besides Connie Mack to manage in four different decades, hopes his team straightens out as the New York Mets did after Bud Harrelson replaced Davey Johnson this year.

"The players are the ones who have to make the changes," Schoendienst said. "You hear that certain guys build confidence into players. A ballplayer has to build confidence into himself."

Third baseman Terry Pendleton agreed.

"Bud Harrelson didn't turn it around for the Mets," said Pendleton. "It's not the guys in the front office. It's the guys between the lines."

Like St. Louis, the Padres have been struggling. They have fallen six games under .500 for the first time at 36-42, and trail NL West-leading Cincinnati by 13½ games.

"Talent doesn't win games," said loser Dennis Rasmussen (7-5). "You can't throw your gloves out there and win. You have to execute and do the little things."

San Diego had just four hits off John Tudor (7-3), Ken Dayley, Tom Niedenfuer and Lee Smith.

The Padres hurt themselves defensively in the sixth, making two costly mistakes that turned a 2-1 lead into a 3-2 deficit.

First, center fielder Joe Carter misplayed a single by Pedro Guerrero, allowing Willie McGee to score from first. Then first baseman Jack Clark was unable to cleanly field a grounder by Pendleton, allowing Guerrero to score from third although Pendleton was out at first.

"Every time we make a mistake, it seems to open the door to something," Padres manager Jack McKeon said. "The way we're going, we can't afford to give anybody extra bases or outs."

Guerrero singled home Ozzie Smith with the game's first run in the top of the first, but the Padres came back on solo homers by Mark Parent in the third and Garry Templeton in the fifth.

Templeton's was his seventh of the year, his most since hitting a career-high nine while with the Cardinals in 1979.

Rasmussen retired 12 straight after the Cardinals first run before hitting Mil Thompson with a pitch in the fifth. The Cardinals then used three hits and the misplays by Carter and Clark to take the lead for good in the sixth.

St. Louis added two runs in the seventh on an RBI double by Smith and sacrifice fly by Guerrero. San Diego added its final run on a sacrifice fly by Bip Roberts in the bottom of the seventh.

"Obviously, we haven't been doing much right," Rasmussen said. "When we get good hitting, we don't get good pitching. When we get good pitching, we don't get good hitting."

Lee Smith earned his 11th save and second in as many games against the Padres with 1-3 shutout innings.

"Hopefully, I'll get more chances," he said. "We have to play better. We need to put something together on our home stand after the All-Star break. We have to try to get to .500 and go from there."

WIMBLEDON

Becker-Edberg to face off again in men's final

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — It all seemed so familiar: An unknown, unseeded teen-ager blasting aces and giving fits to a top player in the Wimbledon semifinals.

Boris Becker had seen it before.

He was the 17-year-old who shocked everyone in 1985, winning the title as an unseeded outsider by overpowering veteran players.

This time Becker was on the other side of the net, watching Goran Ivanisevic's serves and volleys rocket past and putting up little resistance for nearly two sets before asserting his own power.

"It was one of the best grass-court matches I've ever played," Becker said after his 4-6, 7-6, 6-0, 7-6 victory. "He's got the hardest serve and the best serve of anybody I've ever played."

Becker advanced to his third straight Wimbledon final against Stefan Edberg, who ended Ivan Lendl's latest quest for the only Grand Slam title that has eluded him. Edberg overwhelmed Lendl 6-1, 7-6, 6-3.

Becker defeated Edberg in last year's final, avenging his championship loss to the Swede in 1988. Sunday's match will mark the first time this century the same men have met in three consecutive Wimbledon finals.

Today, Martina Navratilova, the second seed, seeks her record ninth singles title in the women's final against fifth-seeded Zina Garrison, who defeated No. 3 Monica Seles and topped Steffi Graf to reach the championship match.

When Becker was asked whether Ivanisevic had the makings of a Wimbledon champion, a sparkle came to the eyes of the three-time winner.

"During the match I thought about somebody who was 17 who was playing like that," said Becker, who as an unseeded player defeated Anders Jarryd in the 1985 semifinals and then beat Kevin Curren in the final to become Wim-bledon's youngest men's winner.

Ivanisevic came out blazing, notching seven aces in the first set and outslugging a defending champion who seemed flustered by his opponent's power.

When the 18-year-old Yugoslav broke Becker's serve in the 11th game of the second set to take a 6-5 lead, he served for a two-set lead. But Becker rallied to break back, then won the tiebreaker 7-4.

"At 6-5 I was thinking about going two sets up. I was thinking too much and I lost the game," Ivanisevic said. "If I had won the second set, maybe I would have won the third also."

Becker played a nearly flawless third set, losing only seven points, but Ivanisevic rallied to force a tiebreaker in the fourth set. Becker won the last three points to win 7-5.

"I think I have learned some things," Iva-

Kissinger answers critics of USA soccer

ROME (AP) — The tone was clear. Several hundred journalists had gathered to confront the organizers of the 1994 World Cup. Few of them liked the idea that the United States, a soccer novice, would be the host of this crown jewel.

The only time the tense, confrontational mood was broken was when Henry Kissinger was addressed. Kissinger is serving as vice chairman of the organizing committee and, clearly, is the most influential member. When he was quizzed, the questioners were almost reverential, and they applauded Kissinger when he left.

"For me, this is a labor of love," the former secretary of state said. "I have been a soccer fan since I was a little boy."

Kissinger will need all of his persuasive powers to help make the first United States-based World Cup a success. He knows it.

"I think people are exaggerating the lack of interest in soccer in the United States," he said. "We had large crowds at the Olympics in 1984, the Cosmos and a few selected other places drew big crowds (in the NASL). It is one of the two or three most frequently played sports in high schools and colleges."

"I wouldn't be here if I agreed with those who say it won't succeed."

Kissinger admitted television was a worry. Since NBC already said it won't bid for rights, and both CBS and ABC are likely to pass, it would appear cable TV will be the route the organizers must take.

"TV is a problem," Kissinger said. "But you can't judge by the percent that this World Cup has gotten (in the ratings). TNT, which has televised the games, is cable and you have to subscribe and live in an area that can get cable. And it was not heavily advertised."

"I am on the board of CBS and I am not saying there is interest there, but they will hear from me for four years."

"American TV has not known how to show this sport properly ... to explain what the teams are trying to do on the field, the strategy of the game, which team is trying to attack and which is seeking to defend."

"I'm confident and hopeful we will get reasonable television coverage. Even if not national, we will get local (coverage). I think we can solve this problem, but we have a lot of work to do."

Much work must be done in upgrading the level of soccer available in the United States. U.S. Soccer Federation president Werner Fricker insisted that a professional Ederberg faced only one break point in the match and converted 79 percent of his chances at the net, compared to 57 percent for Lendl. It was Lendl's worst defeat at Wimbledon since his first appearance...

Kissinger ...

(Cont'd from page 8) international league will be developed and said international tournaments will be used for that purpose. "We have to do something to get high-quality soccer played in the United States," Kissinger said.

"That is a way of getting it popular. It must be done. "It is true soccer is not a national sport, but it is a vicious circle. The NASL was a start, but it may have got overambitious and didn't build systematically. "None of us want to disgrace the United States in putting on a performance that is not comparable to what has gone before."

Herzog ...

(Cont'd from page 8) you've got to be a professional and do what you're supposed to do."

Herzog said at a news conference Friday that he made the decision to resign earlier this week when the Cardinals lost a three-game series in San Francisco.

"I was totally embarrassed by the way my ballclub played up there. I just think we've underachieved. I don't think I've done a good job as manager this year," said Herzog, affectionately known as "The White Rat" by his players.

"I feel very badly for the ballclub, the organization and Cardinals fans. I'm the manager and I take full responsibility for it. I just can't get the guys to play and I think anybody could do a better job than me."

Coach Red Schoendienst, the only man who won more games as Cardinals manager than Herzog, replaced him on an interim basis. Herzog, in his 11th year as manager, has 822 wins. Schoendienst won 1,028 games in 12 years in the 1960s, '70s and briefly in 1980.

"When you're like Whitey, you become an institution at what you do," shortstop Ozzie Smith said. "Any time an institution steps down, it's a surprise. It caught us all by surprise."

First baseman Pedro Guerrero said he and his teammates were partly to blame for Herzog's resignation.

"I'm kind of shocked about it," Guerrero said. "I feel kind of responsible. I know that I haven't done the job that I did last year at this point."

Cardinals president Fred Kuhlmann said Herzog will remain with the club as a vice president.

"When Whitey brought up the subject of resigning several weeks ago, we said 'no,'" Kuhlmann said at the news conference. "But everybody feels it's in the best interest of the team to make a change now."

The nature of Herzog's duties "will be on a consultant-type basis and maybe working with some of the kids on the farm, but he wouldn't be involved with any player-type moves," team spokesman Brian Bartow said.

Herzog said his contract, which runs through 1992, will be honored by the Cardinals, but that the club won't stand in his way if he decides to join another team.

"I wouldn't want to sit here and tell you I wouldn't want to manage again," he said. "I don't want to manage again this year and I don't think I want to manage next year, but I don't want that etched in stone. I might get the itch to do it."

The Cardinals won the World Series under Herzog in 1982 and were NL champions in 1985 and 1987.

Only Tommy Lasorda, who has managed the Los Angeles Dodgers since 1977, has been with the same team longer than Herzog had among active managers.

The Cardinals' top officials — Kuhlmann, general manager Dal Maxvill and executive vice president Mark Sauer — flew to California for the announcement.

None gave any indication when a permanent replacement for Herzog would be named.

Schoendienst played 14 years for St. Louis and last managed the Cardinals in 1980 when he took over briefly for Herzog, who moved from the dugout to the front office as general manager.

Giants manager Roger Craig had a long talk with Herzog on Monday after the first game of the three-game series in San Francisco.

"He came into my office and we talked about everything," Craig said. "I never got the feeling that he was going to resign or quit."

End of ...

about the team's failure to pursue prime free agents and make needed trades.

Since going to Game 7 of the World Series in 1987, the Cardinals were 14 games below .500. Currently they're in last place in the National League East, 15 games behind Pittsburgh.

Even more galling to Herzog, the team lacks any semblance of his stamp — flawless defense, strong pitching, an effective bullpen and aggressive baserunning.

There's been little evidence of disharmony in the clubhouse, but the proof is in the standings. And the stony stares of the players in the dugout speak volumes.

"I'm not going to single out any players," Herzog said. "It isn't that the effort isn't there. They run the balls out, but sometimes I don't know if their minds are there."

Offensively the team is 11th in the league in batting average, last in home runs and last in total bases. Defensively they're 10th in earned-run average and 11th in double plays.

Herzog led the Cardinals to a World Series Championship in 1982 and pennants in 1985 and 1987. Only last month the club marked his 10-year anniversary as manager by presenting him with a grandfather clock.

Now, suddenly, the Herzog years are at an end. He hopes it's not a dead end.

"You might say I'm leaving them where I joined them, in last place," Herzog said. "It's really been bad. "I think we've underachieved and I think anybody could do a better job than me."

Losing ...

40-year-old Robert Kreher, who was at the bar with his brother waiting for the official announcement.

"You can't go much lower than losing Whitey. I think he's just fed up and that's a shame because there's no better manager than Whitey."

Jay Randolph, a longtime friend of Herzog's and the TV reporter who broke the story in St. Louis, said he believed Herzog was frustrated and confused about the team and the game.

"I think he sees a lot of problems — the high prices, free agents, expansion — and he's not sure where baseball is going and what's to become of it," said Randolph, special sports correspondent for KSDK-TV.

"When you can't get what you want, how can you win," lamented Bonnie Brogan, waitress at the Crown Candy Kitchen, where the resignation was the primary topic of conversation.

"I hate to see him go," said one customer, police Capt. Wayne Brocato. "But the team wasn't playing and the team makes or breaks a manager. It's too bad. He was probably one of the best things to happen to Cardinals baseball."

Charlie Gijto, owner of Charlie Gijto's Pasta House, a restaurant and sports bar near Busch Stadium, said a major change was needed to bring the Cardinals out of their season-long slump, but he didn't expect Friday's news.

"I'm surprised that he resigned, I thought there needed to be changes made, but I didn't think it would be Whitey."

Murray State's Dr. Jan Weaver speaks at national teacher education meeting

Dr. Jan Weaver, dean of the College of Education at Murray State University and president of the American Association of Colleges of Teacher Education, addressed the recent annual meeting of the National Association of State Departments of Teacher Education and Credentials in Kansas City, Mo.

She cited the lack of standardized requirements and said each state has enacted differing and specific requirements for teacher certification. Those factors have exacerbated teacher shortages and undermined the 33-state Interstate Compact which makes provision for interstate teacher certification, she added.

Her topic, "Facilitating the Mobility of Teachers from State to State," addressed the need for greater flexibility in institutions with teacher-education programs so that teachers prepared in one state can be certified to teach in other states.

However, she pointed out that close examination of the differences in requirements shows that the competencies and knowledge expected are almost identical.

"The problem arises from state departments mandating specific

MSU to offer computer class during summer

A computer course that focuses on the educational setting and specifically addresses computer literacy and computer applications is scheduled for the second five-week summer session July 9-Aug. 10 at Murray State University.

Computer Science 580, Introduction to Computer Programming in Education, will be offered by the Department of Computer Studies from 10:30 a.m. to 12:40 p.m. on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays. It carries three semester hours of graduate or advanced undergraduate credit.

Academic credit is not allowed if the student has already earned credit for either Computer Information Systems 143 or Business and Public Affairs 143.

Dr. Marlene Campbell will be the instructor for the course, which includes introductions to computer hardware and software, social and legal issues, and computer applications such as operating system, word-processing, spreadsheet and database.

Participants will gain specific computer skills and have access to software that may be legally copied for use in their schools in the fall.

Anyone with a question about the course may call the Department of Computer Studies at Murray State at (502) 762-2094.

Preventing fetal alcohol syndrome

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Can you provide information on fetal alcohol syndrome? What are the causes, and can someone suffering from it be cured?

DEAR READER: Fetal alcohol syndrome is a constellation of symptoms (mental retardation, delayed growth and congenital defects) seen in infants whose mothers abused alcohol during pregnancy. Although the syndrome is usually seen in babies whose mothers drank heavily throughout the pregnancy, less severe degrees of alcohol use are also associated with fetal defects.

Because alcohol is so ubiquitous in our culture, we tend to forget that it is a potent poison, especially to a developing fetus. Thus, most obstetricians warn their patients to abstain from drinking alcohol during pregnancy — most importantly, during the first few months when the embryo undergoes its most crucial growth. Fetal alcohol syndrome is untreatable; it is all the more tragic because it is preventable.

To give you further information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Help II — Mental/Substance Abuse." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband has been diagnosed with cellulitis of both legs from the ankles to the knees and has been told there is no cure. Can you tell us what this is and offer any suggestions?

DEAR READER: Cellulitis is a diffuse, spreading infection of the skin, usually affecting the lower legs. Although the cause is usually elusive, cellulitis often seems to be related to poor circulation. Arterial blockage deprives tissues of oxygen and nutrients, leading to a susceptibility to infection.

Whatever the cause, antibiotics are the best treatment. Large doses may be required. In addition, elevation of the legs and the use of elastic support hose may aid healing.

Your husband should be checked for diabetes, which contributes to infection and poor circulation. Any infection on the feet — such as athlete's foot — can aggravate the condition and should be treated with appropriate anti-microbial drugs.

Also, your husband may need testing, such as arteriography (X-rays of the arteries), to determine if he has circulatory blockage. Such blockage could be helped by surgery to re-establish the normal flow of blood to the extremities.

If your husband's cellulitis doesn't improve with medical (drug) treatment, I think he should request referral to a vascular surgeon. Cellulitis can be treated and cured.

San Francisco homeless ousted from camp in park after deadline; dozens arrested

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Some of the homeless had lived under the trees across from City Hall for more than two years. But within hours, the transients' occupation of Civic Center Plaza seemed like it had never taken place.

Office workers ate lunch under the olive trees in the one-block park and children played tag on the grass; mothers wheeled their babies on the paths and old men sat on benches, reading newspapers and chatting.

Police rousted some 100 transients from their illegal camp before dawn Friday, the deadline set by Mayor Art Agnos. Five people were arrested for refusing to leave, and another half dozen arrests took place later in the day.

The liberal mayor, who had been under pressure to restore the showpiece park to public use, was enforcing a city ordinance banning camping in public places.

After city workers had moved the transients' tents, sleeping bags and assorted possessions to homeless shelters, and hauled away trash, the plaza had an uncharacteristically pristine appearance by midday.

Dozens of people who previously steered clear of the park reclaimed the lawns and benches.

"I just sat on the bench... enjoying the sunshine," City Hall employee Tony Pacheco said. "Normally I wouldn't do that. It looked like a campground until today."

"There was a whole bunch of people before, and we were afraid," said Karen Valdez, 9, who played with her sister and two brothers. "We didn't come a lot to the park because there were drunk people around here."

Police said they planned round-the-clock patrols of the park, which was virtually deserted Friday night, to discourage the homeless from returning. One homeless man who had camped at the park for months pledged to return, even if it meant being arrested.

"I'll just lay here and let them take me, because I'm right. I'm talking about the United States. I've got rights," said Kenny Martin, 40.

Martin said he had nowhere else to go. He characterized the city's shelters, including two that opened this week, as "warehousing" and claimed they had no vacancies.

But Larry Bush, an assistant to the mayor, said "no one has been turned away." On Thursday night, the two new shelters, with a total of 140 beds, had about 20 vacancies, he said.

Scores of homeless people have lived in the plaza for several years, and their numbers swelled to more than 300 after the Oct. 17 earthquake, which destroyed or made uninhabitable many residential hotels.

Police officers used a "low-key, friendly approach" in telling the campers to leave, said Police Chief Frank Jordan.

"We're going to take it a day at a time, but long term we think it is a step in the right direction," he said.

Murray State's Johnson will conduct 'Studio 90' session in Oahu, Hawaii

Dennis L. Johnson, director of bands and assistant professor of music at Murray State University, has been invited to conduct the closing session for "Studio 90" in Oahu, Hawaii.

"Studio 90" is a series of intense five-week arts workshops sponsored by the Mid-Pacific Institute, a private arts school. Sessions began June 25 and will continue through July 27.

The programs of dance, music, theatre and visual arts for students going into grades seven, eight or nine includes activities, lectures and performances to develop technical experience and discipline and to promote creativity.

Johnson will be the guest conductor for the music sessions of the seminar and will coach the chamber music players and direct the wind ensemble, according to Thad Hegerberg, artistic director of Mid-Pacific.

"As former band director at the Interlochen Center for the Arts, Professor Johnson brings a wealth of experience in working with gifted young people and we look forward to his input and work with our program," Hegerberg said.

course titles in state-approved, teacher-preparation programs," she explained. "Thus transcripts from one state may have different course titles than transcripts from another state, even though graduates from both states had nearly identical course content on math methods or teaching composition."

"All of us want quality control within and across states, but requirements should pertain to the kind of skill and knowledge attained rather than the titles of courses."

A dean at Murray State since 1985, she earned the B.A. degree at Kentucky Wesleyan and the M.A.T. and Ed.D. degrees at Indiana University.

Johnson called the opportunity to work with gifted and motivated students "an exciting opportunity" and said he looks forward to the experience.

"They are working quite hard to develop a summer program and I hope I can be of some benefit because of my experiences with similar summer programs," he said.

A faculty member at Murray State since 1985, Johnson earned the B.M.E. degree at University of Michigan and the M.M.E. degree at Michigan State University.

Christian Science couple say they will abide by ruling

BOSTON (AP) — A Christian Science couple convicted of manslaughter for relying on prayer to heal their dying son said they would abide by a judge's order to take their other children to a doctor for regular check-ups.

The requirement was part of the 10 years' probation handed out Friday to David and Ginger Twitchell. "We always tried to obey the law, both in '86 and now, and we'll try to obey the judge's instructions," Twitchell said.

The couple were convicted Wednesday of recklessly and wantonly causing the death in 1986 of their 2½-year-old son, Robyn, by not seeking medical care for the boy, who had a bowel obstruction. They could have received 20 years in prison.

Superior Court Judge Sandra Hamlin imposed probation under maximum supervision and ordered the couple to take their three remaining children for checkups under guidelines set by the American Medical Association.

Hamlin also said that at "any signs of serious illness" in the children — who range in age from 9 months to 8 years — a doctor must be called in.

In a statement, Twitchell said that while he would obey the order, he would "always pray first" for his children's health.

"We have never ruled out medical care. We just feel prayer, God's power, is a lot better," said Twitchell.

The former Boston residents, both 34, now live in Brentwood, N.Y.

The Christian Science Church teaches that sickness can be healed by spiritual means alone. Church officials have said the case is an attack on their religion and expressed confidence the verdict will be overturned on appeal.

The trial has garnered wide attention, in part because it was held in Boston, where the Christian Science Church has its headquarters.

ANSWER: Two diamonds. Too strong for a single raise. Temporarily with two diamonds and return to spades at your next turn.

Not everyone reached today's excellent spade slam at Houston's Winter Regional. Fewer yet were doubled. One desperate East doubled for a diamond lead. However, a more resourceful South made the slam anyway.

When Jack Kennedy of Shreveport and Dr. John Fisher of Dallas held the North-South cards, they bid as shown. Fisher's jump to three hearts was a mini-splinter, promising a good spade fit and a singleton heart. After Kennedy learned about the good fit, his only problem concerned aces, and his Blackwood inquiry gave him the answer.

East's double was an understandable, although desperate, shot. He hoped that a diamond lead would establish his diamond king and that his trump ace would control matters before South could get the discard(s) he needed. He got one wish, but not the other.

Kennedy won dummy's diamond ace, led a club to his king and then cashed a high heart. A second high heart was ruffed in dummy, and South's last diamond was discarded on dummy's club ace. Now it was safe to lead trumps, and the doubled slam earned a top score.
