BUSINESS

The productivity of American workers posted a barely perceptible gain of 0.3 percent in the first three months of 1991, significantly worse than first believed. The revised increase announced Wednesday was much weaker than the 1.0 percent rise first reported by the Labor Department. It is one more piece of evidence about how poor the nation's economy did in the January-March period, analysts said.

City Council OKs bond issue for new treatment plant, annexes property

Staff Report
Murray Ledger & Times

The Murray City Council during special session Wednesday elected to allow the city to sell bonds for the construction of a new $4.39 million water treatment plant. The bonds will be sold after a second reading of the ordinance on June 13, according to city officials. The new treatment plant will replace the current plant which has been working at its five-million-gallons a day capacity for the last year, officials said.

Twenty-year bonds will be sold through a local brokerage firm to finance the project, allowing the bond holders to make profits on interest accumulated on the bonds, officials said.

The new plant will handle seven million gallons a day and be located on the site of the current plant near South Miller and Elm streets.

Construction of the plant, granted to Judy Construction of Cynthiana, Ky., is expected to take about 18 months.

The new plant will also allow the city to install newly-regulated treatment processes, officials said.

In other business, the council held a public hearing on the city's 1991-92 fiscal year budget but received no opposition to it, according to Mayor Bill Cherry.

The council also approved an ordinance annexing land along River Road into the city at the request of the landowners, Cherry said.

The council also approved an ordinance closing a proposed road at the city's industrial park.

Civil rights bill approved but Democrats miss veto-proof margin

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The House approved the Democratic civil rights bill Wednesday but fell short of the margin it would need to override a veto by President Bush, who has attacked the measure as a formula for racial quotas.

The House approved the bill 273-158 after two days of contentious debate in which opponents restated Bush's charge that the measure would push employers to resort to hiring quotas out of fear of discrimination lawsuits.

Supporters angrily disputed that contention, saying the bill would actually outlaw quotas. They accused Bush of exploiting racial divisions for political gain.

The bill is designed primarily to overcome a series of 1989 Supreme Court rulings that have made it more difficult for minorities to win job discrimination suits.

It also would change job discrimination laws to expand the rights of women, religious minorities and the disabled to collect monetary damages if they are victims.

House Speaker Thomas Foley asserted that Democrats had not failed, despite missing a veto-proof total by more than a dozen votes. He said they would attain the added strength by the time the job discrimination bill passes the Senate and reaches Bush, who vetoed a similar measure last year and has promised to do so again.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Bush was gratified by the outcome that "indicates strong support for sustaining a presidential veto."

Supporters would need 288 votes to achieve a veto-overriding two-thirds majority of 431 House members, the number who voted Wednesday. The required number would be 290 if all 435 House votes were cast.

Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., who led opponents of the bill during debate, summed up the uncertainty that remained despite Wednesday's lopsided vote. "We didn't win but we didn't lose," he said.

The bill now goes to the Senate, where efforts toward a compromise already are under way.

A group of nine moderate Republican senators announced their own legislation aimed at finding a middle ground between Bush and House Democrats on Tuesday. The House defeated both a more liberal version of the bill and Bush's less far-reaching alternative before Wednesday's final vote.

Foley said he had been assured by Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, that the Senate would begin consideration promptly, and the House speaker said he still held out hope of agreeing on a version Bush would sign.

Despite the Democrats' gain of eight seats in last fall's elections, supporters of the Democratic bill ended up with exactly the same number of votes, 273, that they had when the bill was approved in final form last year and vetoed. Opponents picked up four votes over last year.

Nine Republicans switched from supporting the bill last year to siding with Bush this time.

If the issue returns to the House this year, Foley said supporters will also gain the votes of one Democrat who was absent and of the Democratic winner of a special election in Massachusetts on Tuesday.

Soldiers in doomed barracks followed orders not to flee

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. soldiers at a barracks in Saudi Arabia that was destroyed by an Iraqi Scud missile followed standing orders to go or stay inside the building rather than try to escape, Army investigators say.

The Scud's 800-pound high-explosive warhead turned the building into an inferno, killing 28 soldiers and injuring 98 on Feb. 25. It was the biggest single loss of American troops in the Persian Gulf War.

Army officials, briefing reporters Wednesday on the investigation of the attack, said the troops had only 30 seconds' warning of the incoming missile.

They said previous Scud attacks showed that the main danger was flying pieces of missile debris rather than a direct hit on a building. Therefore, it was standard procedure to go inside rather than outside, they said.

There were no concrete bunkers or bomb shelters near the barracks, said the officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The Army also disclosed that a computer problem in the Patriot air defense system that permitted the Scud missile to enter Saudi Arabia unopposed had been detected five days before the fatal attack. Patriot missiles intercepted virtually all other Scuds in the war.

The computer in the Patriot battery whose radar had picked up the incoming Scud failed to track the missile as it roared toward Dhahran. Thus, no computer instructions were given and no Patriot missiles were launched, the Army said.

Charges dropped against lawmaker-reservist who exceeded authority during Persian Gulf War

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — A state lawmaker has been cleared of Army charges and faces honor instead of prison for bucking authority in the Persian Gulf.

David Young, 28, a lieutenant in the Army Special Forces reserve, could have been sentenced to up to 10 years in prison if convicted on charges that he stole some vehicles and equipment, lost some of it, had subordinates get rid of some more, and then lied under oath and obstructed justice.

The Army said Wednesday that it has dropped the charges, and a heavily censored Army report supported claims by Young's lawyer that he broke the law to serve his country.

"There has been absolutely no indication that Lt. Young committed any of these acts for personal gain. His sole motivation appears to have been ... (censored) to accomplish his mission," said the report by an investigating officer, whose name was blacked out.

"It should be noted that Lt. Young's actions occurred on the eve of the ground war against Iraq, during which Lt. Young would distinguish himself in action against armed and hostile forces."

Tom Christo, Young's lawyer, had maintained that during the liberation of Kuwait, Young "borrowed" two vehicles to lead a daring mission through artillery fire that captured Iraqi soldiers who had stalled an allied advance.

Christo, who provided the censored report, said earlier that an Army investigator recommended that Young be cleared, but the Army refused to confirm it. Christo also said Young had been recommended for medals for bravery in combat and meritorious service.

Thornburgh urged to quit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats in Congress want Attorney General Dick Thornburgh to leave office immediately now that he has announced plans to run for the Senate from Pennsylvania this summer.

"I think it's very unwise for someone to continue in a law enforcement position while an announced candidate for office," Senate Majority Leader George J. Mitchell, D-Maine, told reporters today.

"I think he is inviting unnecessary problems for himself ... and questions about propriety," Mitchell said.

House Speaker Thomas Foley and several key House Judiciary Committee members said Wednesday that Thornburgh's planned candidacy posed a conflict of interest with his duties as the nation's chief law enforcement official.

"I do not think it is a good practice for officials in sensitive positions of government, where they have almost judicial, quasi-judicial responsibility, to be announced as political candidates," Foley, D-Wash., told reporters.

"It would be better practice, I think, for (the) announced political candidacy of an attorney general to be followed by an immediate ending of his responsibilities as attorney general."

President Bush said Tuesday that Thornburgh will seek to fill the unexpired term of the late Republican Sen. John Heinz in a special election in November. He said he had asked Thornburgh to stay at the Justice Department at least through July.

Southern Baptists urge Bush, Presbyterians to uphold sexual morality

ATLANTA (AP) — The Southern Baptist Convention gave the Presbyterian Church and an Episcopal president advice on upholding traditional Christian sexual morality as it staked out a clear conservative agenda at its annual meeting.

President Bush, scheduled to meet today with 30 Baptist leaders and give a short talk to the annual meeting, was sharply criticized by Southern Baptists Wednesday for his handling of National Endowment of the Arts funding.

Representatives of the 15 million-member denomination urged Bush to fire NEA Chairman John Frohnmayer and cut off money for the arts agency unless it can be prevented from supporting "obscene, offensive, morally repugnant and sacrilegious art."

The Baptist convention also jumped into the middle of a controversy dividing the more liberal Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), approving a resolution saying sex should be reserved for marriage and urging "all Christians to uphold the biblical standard of human sexuality against all onslaughts."

The Presbyterian General Assembly is scheduled on Monday to discuss a church committee report that would give church approval to homosexual, premarital and bisexual relationships.

"Any abdication of the clear biblical morality ... should be out of the question for any religious body," said R. Albert Mohler Jr., a member of the convention's Resolutions Committee.

Mohler said the resolution was not intended as an indictment of a "sister denomination," but that Southern Baptists were compelled to state their position because the Presbyterian report put the issue in a public forum.

"This is a call to conscience," Mohler said.

Gordon Stewart, moderator of the Presbyterian sexuality committee, refused to comment on the Baptist resolution. The convention approved a resolution sharply rebuking Bush and his administration for federal financing of organizations that "promote sexual immorality."

"The committee will express its support for the president where it can and its disappointment where it must," said Resolutions Committee Chairman David Hankins.

The Southern Baptists were one of the few Christian denominations to support Bush's decision to go to war in the Middle East.

Strikes, riots, protests hit eight African nations

By MICHELLE FAUL
Associated Press Writer

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast — Strikes, riots and protests hit eight nations of West and Central Africa on Wednesday, with demonstrators demanding democracy and blaming dictators for economies wrecked by corruption and mismanagement.

The actions against military regimes or one-party states were reported Wednesday in the Ivory Coast, Zaire, Gabon, Togo, Central African Republic, Mauritania, Nigeria and Ghana.

Troops fired guns and tear gas at protesters in some cities, but there were no reports of deaths Wednesday.

In Congo, another Central African nation in turmoil, a national conference stripped President Denis Sassou Nguesso of many of his powers. The conference members plan to set up a provisional government to transform the former Marxist-Leninist-ruled nation into a democracy by June 1992.

In the post-Cold War period, pro-democracy movements have gotten a boost in much of Africa, which has few elected leaders.

The ouster last March of President Moussa Traore of Mali and the election defeat of President Mathieu Kerekou of Benin — both military dictators — encouraged foes of one-party rule elsewhere in Africa.

In Ivory Coast, police fired tear gas to disperse up to 300 university students hurling stones. The students were demanding an independent inquiry into a student riot in May during which, they said, troops killed four protesters.

In Zaire, where President Mobutu Sese Seko has held power for 26 years, rioting broke out Wednesday in Kinshasa, the capital. Rioters smashed windows and looted shops after protests against get-rich-quick swindles promoted on government radio and TV. Some Zaireans sold their homes in hopes of enriching themselves, only to lose all their money. The schemes were banned a week ago by a new transitional government, but it was too late for many Zaireans.

General strikes paralyzed Gabon, an oil-rich Central African state, and Togo, a small West African nation of 3.5 million.

Violence last October forced President Omar Bongo to hold Gabon's first multiparty elections in 22 years. Bongo's party kept power with a bare majority. He is one of the few elected civilian leaders in the region.

In Togo, opposition parties said a strike would go on until President Gnassingbe Eyadema's military government resigns. Violent strikes in April forced Eyadema to allow opposition parties.

Elsewhere:
•Government workers in the Central African Republic continued a strike begun March 29 to demand salaries unpaid since March.

•In Mauritania, in northwest Africa, the Workers' Trade Union called for a general uprising to overthrow the six-year-old military government of Col. Maaouia Ould Sid-Ahmed Taya, who has promised free elections. On Sunday, thousands rioted and looted shops in Nouadhibou, the country's second-largest city, to protest increased bread prices.

•In Ghana, demonstrations against the military leader, Flight Lt. Jerry Rawlings, have taken place this week in the towns of Cape Coast, Kumasi and Tamali. Rawlings' opponents have criticized his return to constitutional rule. They say the military has no intention of yielding power.

•In Nigeria, Africa's most populous nation, with about 119 million people, it was impossible to buy any of the 50-odd newspapers or 100-plus magazines this week after newspaper vendors struck for more money.

Police crack down on universities, company

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — About 4,000 police officers raided two Seoul universities and a cosmetics plant today, searching for student and labor leaders of nationwide, anti-government protests.

At the universities, police arrested 85 students, but later released all but five. None was among the leaders who were being sought.

In the raid on the cosmetics firm, Pacific Chemical Co., police arrested 475 union members and labor organizers.

No injuries were reported in either raid.

The raids came as President Roh Tae-woo's government moved aggressively to stem six weeks of violent protests.

The government has launched a nationwide manhunt for 150 dissident leaders accused of instigating violent demonstrations after the fatal April 26 police beating of a student.

Until recent days, the public had generally condoned the anti-government protests, but there were increasing signs that ordinary citizens were becoming fed up.

In one instance, some Seoul residents halted fighting between police and students.

On Wednesday night, as police and student protesters battled outside Seoul's Korea University, 20 neighborhood women rushed into the middle of the fray and sat down in an intersection littered with fire-bombs and tear-gas canisters.

"We have had enough," shouted Kim Yong-kyu, 53, a shopkeeper. "What do you guys think you're doing? We cannot live like this."

The turning point in public opinion may have come Monday when students roughed up Prime Minister Chong Won-shik and hurled eggs and flour at him. Many Koreans were already upset over the disruptions caused by the protests — air laden with tear gas, traffic jams created by blocked streets and lost business in areas where clashes take place.

The unrest has been Roh's most serious political crisis since he took office in 1988.

The government faces local council elections on June 20, the first in a series over the next 18 months, including presidential elections in which Roh cannot succeed himself.

Students, dissidents and worker protesters have demanded the resignations of the Cabinet and broad economic and political reform. They accuse the government of backtracking on reform to prolong power and suppress dissent.

Park Sang-cheon, spokesman for the main opposition New Democratic Party, issued a statement today warning the government "not to tighten suppressive rule by abusing law enforcement power."

Park agreed, however, that the government should seek "fundamental and overall countermeasures" for the attack on the prime minister.

Jay Leno to replace Carson as host of 'Tonight Show'

NEW YORK (AP) — Heeeyeyeyeyeyey. Jay Leno, NBC's official announcer today that comedian Jay Leno will take over as host of "The Tonight Show" when Johnny Carson retires next year.

Leno, 41, has been exclusive guest host of "The Tonight Show" for the past three years.

The New York Daily News said Letterman, once considered Carson's heir apparent, was described by an unnamed source as "fit to be tied" when told of Leno's appointment.

"Late Night with David Letterman" is broadcast immediately after "Tonight."

Carson's company produces "Tonight" and, in association with NBC, the Letterman show. The News said "Tonight" brings in an estimated $60 million annually for the network, which is 15 percent of NBC's revenue.

BULGARIA

SOFIA — Senior Bulgarian officials say they're convinced agents of the ousted Communist government killed a dissident in London with a poison-tipped umbrella in 1976. Scotland Yard is helping Bulgarian investigators in the probe, a British spokeswoman said in London today. Two British intelligence officials arrived Wednesday, Bulgaria's official news agency BTA said. One Bulgarian official said he expected indictments in the case. In another development, Italy says it has begun looking into allegations by a purported former Bulgarian intelligence official that the Soviet KGB ordered the shooting of Pope John Paul II in Rome in 1981. Under its new non-Communist president, Zhelyu Zhelev, Bulgaria is allowing investigations into the two cases, which touch on events that occurred during the regime of Todor Zhivkov, the longtime Communist ruler ousted in 1989. Georgi Markov, a British Broadcasting Corp. journalist, was killed in London in 1978. He was waiting for a bus in London. "No one can ever convince me that writer Georgi Markov was not assassinated by the Bulgarian secret services," Interior Minister Hristo Danov told BTA on Wednesday. Danov said "sensational" disclosures could be expected soon about Markov's murder and the disappearance of his police file. BTA reported. The file lists 17 200-page volumes.

ISRAEL

JERUSALEM — Peace crusader Abie Nathan today ended a 40-day hunger strike, staged to protest a ban on Israeli contacts with the PLO, by drinking a hot cup of chicken soup. "I didn't last to die I want to live and let others live," Nathan, 54, explained to reporters as he headed an appeal by President Chaim Herzog to the Israeli leader's residence. Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat had also urged Nathan to end his strike. Nathan insisted he had proved his point, although Parliament rejected a bill last week to repeal the 1986 law that prohibits Israelis from meeting with officials of the Palestine Liberation Organization. Nathan had demanded repeal of the law.

POLAND

OLSZTYN — To a country emerging from four decades of Communist censorship, Pope John Paul II warned today that the newly found freedom does not give license to preach lies and hate. Poland and other Eastern European countries where Communism has fallen in the last two years have been troubled by the renewal of bitter ethnic and nationalist rivalries and outbreaks of anti-Semitism.

GERMANY

BERLIN — A Berlin court today convicted one of East Germany's most powerful leaders on corruption-related charges. It was the first trial of a member of the ousted Communist regime. Harry Tsch, 64, was immediately sentenced to 18 months in prison. Authorities allege that East German Communist leaders routinely plundered their late country's meager finances to provide luxuries for themselves, friends and families. Millions of dollars in Western currency — perhaps hundreds of millions — was allegedly misused or smuggled out of the country and much of it remains unaccounted for. Tsch was a member of the ruling Politburo and, as head of the nine-million-member, state-run labor union, he was one of the country's most powerful officials.

JAPAN

SHIMABARA — Mount Unzen continued to smolder, shudder and spew lava today, and one expert said the thousands of people who evacuated homes at its foot will not return for months, perhaps years. Newspapers published pictures of the volcano's Monday eruption taken by photographers among the 38 people killed in the sudden storm of searing gas, molten ash and rock. Three nationally circulated newspapers, the Yomiuri, Mainichi and Nikkei, published such pictures, some of which were marred by black holes and marks where the film apparently was damaged by the heat. The body of one photographer, Tadahoshi Tsuchiya, 58, was identified by his wristwatch, its glass cover blown off and the hands stopped at 4:18 p.m., the time the 4,452-foot volcano erupted.

THAILAND

BANGKOK — In a chilling cockpit transcript of the minutes before last month's Lauda Air crash, the pilot and co-pilot struggle to interpret warning signals related to a reversal in jet engine thrust. The transcript, made available today by Thai investigators, was released after the cockpit voice recorder of the Boeing 767 was analyzed by the U.S. National Transportation Safety Board in Washington.

D.C. No official cause of the May 26 crash has been disclosed. All 233 people aboard were killed when the plane blew apart as it approached cruising altitude and fell in pieces into thick Thai jungle.

NIGERIA

ABUJA — African leaders have voted at a summit to maintain economic sanctions against South Africa, but a splinter group defied consensus by announcing that its members will now openly trade with Pretoria. For the first time in the 27-year history of the Organization of African Unity, its members were openly divided over the sanctions question. Kenya, Madagascar and other nations say they will restore trade and transport ties as a signal of support for President F.W. de Klerk's political reforms. Most of the organization's 51 member states voted Wednesday to keep up the pressure of sanctions to ensure that de Klerk keeps promises to abolish all racist legislation and move toward democracy. Most of the organization's leaders met in Abuja, the parliament of South Africa took another step in that direction by abolishing apartheid laws that segregated neighborhoods for more than 40 years.

IRAQ

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration says Baghdad is diverting emergency food supplies, including food intended for the Kurds that wound up in Saddam Hussein's hometown of Tikrit. White House press secretary Martin Fitzwater said the United Nations today ordered Iraq to freeze shipments into Iraq and is demanding full restitution of the missing food. He called it a cynical attempt by the Iraqi president "to buttress his regime's standing." Fitzwater in a written statement, said, "We have reports that Iraq has systematically diverted substantial quantities of World Food Program (WFP) food shipments into the Ministry of Trade's regular food ration system." The World Food Program is a U.N.-administered relief agency based in Rome.

ALGERIA

ALGERS — Heavily armed Algerian troops backed by tanks guarded main squares in Algiers today to prevent a new outbreak of Muslim fundamentalist violence in this North African nation. Also today, Sid Ahmed Ghozali, the newly named prime minister, began talks to form a new Cabinet. Ghozali was foreign minister until being appointed prime minister by President Chadli Bendjedid on Wednesday. Bendjedid dismissed the previous government and postponed Algeria's first multiparty general elections because of the riots, which were triggered by Muslim fundamentalists of the Islamic Salvation Front. The front is composed mostly of Sunni Muslims who seek to remove Bendjedid and establish an Islamic state. Streets in Algiers were quiet today following the imposition of a curfew on the capital and surrounding regions. Two people were killed and 14 injured in clashes Wednesday between police and demonstrators in eastern Algiers, near the Tunisian border, according to the official Algerian news agency. It said the deaths occurred about the same time as Bendjedid declared a national state of emergency for up to four months. There were no reports of serious rioting elsewhere in the country. No official casualty toll has been announced, but at least seven people were killed and dozens injured in Algiers on Tuesday when police fought supporters of the Islamic Salvation Front.

NICARAGUA

MANAGUA — The legislature on Wednesday revoked a law demanding that the United States pay Nicaragua $17 billion in compensation for its activities during the Contra-Sandinista civil war. The 39 Sandinista Front deputies in the National Assembly walked out in protest before the 49-1 vote. Three government coalition deputies were absent from the 92-member single-chamber assembly. Wednesday's move paves the way for President Violeta Chamorro's government to drop the compensation demand begun by her predecessors in the leftist Sandinista government. The Chamorro administration has cordial relations with the United States. It says that if the compensation issue is dropped, it can press instead for more U.S. aid.

CLARIFICATION

Due to late grades being reported, two local Murray State University students' names were inadvertently omitted from the recent story concerning Dean's List scholars. Mark Henderson compiled a 4.0 grade point average during the spring semester, while Bruce Thurmond was also named to the Dean's List.

A story in the May 29 edition incorrectly identified the winner of a road construction bid granted by the Calloway County Fiscal Court. Emerine Construction of Murray won the bid of approximately $100,000.

The Murray Ledger & Times regrets the error and is happy to set the record straight.

'The Kentucky that Daniel Boone saw'

State accepts gift of 700-acre forest preserve in Hardin County

ELIZABETHTOWN, Ky. (AP) — One of the oldest forests in central Kentucky, a 700-acre preserve in Hardin County, has been turned over to state officials what may be the National Audubon Society's first-ever land gift to a state.

"One-half of 1 percent of Kentucky today resembles the Kentucky that Daniel Boone saw," said Richard R. Hannan, director of the Kentucky State Nature Preserves Commission, which assumed ownership of the tract during a ceremony Tuesday.

"We're not trying to lock up our entire state," Hannan said. "We're trying to find the jewels that are left."

Audubon Society President Peter Berle said he believes the new preserve, which the society has held for about 20 years, is the society's first land gift to a state government. It will be the second-largest preserve owned by the state nature preserves agency.

"This is a piece of ground that just ought to sit here," said Peter Berle, president of the society, moments after he officially handed over title to the Vernon-Douglas State Nature Preserve before a group of state and local dignitaries.

This particular jewel — distinguished with large beech, sugar maple and tulip poplar trees — sits just off the intersection of Blue Grass Parkway and Kentucky 583.

Most forest land is periodically cut for timber, but that hasn't happened for decades in this parcel, so the forest is a mature, diversified ecosystem with some trees boasting diameters of nearly 2 1/2 feet and ages approaching 150 years, commission officials said.

The preserve, which is named for the family that originally settled the land and for the family that donated it to the Audubon Society, also includes an 800-foot-long cave.

The commission, which also owns a preserve of more than 700 acres in Greenup County, administers some larger preserves — within state parks, for example — but does not own them. The commission was formed in 1976 and instructed to preserve pockets of natural land throughout the state.

In all, 23 nature preserves with about 6,200 acres are being protected, and an additional 38 areas of about 5,700 acres are being protected by landowners through a less binding program.

The preserve will be left essentially untouched, although trails will be more clearly marked and signs will be posted. Joyce Bender, the stewardship coordinator for the commission, said she would be working with the local Audubon chapter and other concerned groups to see that the land is used only for "passive" activities such as bird watching or hiking.

Berle said the composition of the crowd, which included a variety of environmentalists, state Sen. Tom Smith, Elizabethtown Mayor Pat Durbin and Barry Bingham Jr., a representative of nearby Bernheim Forest, was heartwarming in that it illustrated that "open space is just as important as a new shopping center."

Not everyone is likely to agree.

Smith, for example, said the new preserve is nice but not as exciting as a new factory.

"I'd rather have a new industrial park because that generates a lot of jobs," he said.

The Vernon-Douglas preserve was initially given to the National Audubon Society in 1972 by Eleanor L. Douglas, who still lives near the site, and her brother, Ollie G. Douglas, who has since died.

Eleanor Douglas was 4 when her family purchased the land in 1910. She could not attend Tuesday's ceremony but said in a letter that the transfer brought back memories.

WKU urged to improve minority recruiting, retention

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP) — A state education panel is suggesting that Western Kentucky University become more aggressive in recruiting and keeping minority faculty.

There's room for improvement, concluded the state Council on Higher Education's Committee on Equal Opportunities after a tour of the campus.

It was the first in a series of inspections that will involve all eight state universities in the next two years.

"There seems to be a decline in the recruiting and retention of black students and faculty," said Wendell Thomas, chairman of the committee.

"We received some explanation why things have changed; some of them seemed to be reasonable. Members of the committee felt that Western had done a good job until recently."

The committee's recommendations on all schools inspected this year will be turned over to the full council this fall, said Roy Peterson, assistant to the council's executive director.

That report could affect the amount of state money Western receives. The school receives more than $190,000 annually to spend on providing equal opportunities to minority students.

University President Thomas Meredith said he didn't believe the visit had been entirely negative.

"I think they realized that we were doing a lot of positive things," he said.

Attorney charged with shooting another in Fayette courtroom

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — A state labor lawyer has been charged with first-degree assault for allegedly shooting another attorney inside a Lexington court building in an apparent personal dispute.

The two tumbled into a packed Fayette District courtroom in Lexington's Municipal Building on Wednesday. Within a minute, a bailiff subdued the lawyer with the gun, and the judge whose courtroom had been disrupted grabbed the weapon.

District Court records showed that Evans had filed a complaint earlier in the day against Davis, accusing him of terroristic threatening.

The complaint said that Davis had accused Evans of seeing Davis' ex-wife and then threatened Evans by saying, "I've got a bullet for you," said Linda Johnson, head of pretrial services and criminal complaints at district court.

Clark said he was "shaken and concerned" by the incident that terrified about 150 people inside the courtroom.

William Clayton Evans, 47, was charged and lodged in the Fayette County Detention Center on a $7,500 cash bond. He was to be arraigned today, said Sgt. Barney Kinman of the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Police Department.

William Davis, 36, was shot once in the abdomen with a pistol. He was reported in stable condition following surgery at the University of Kentucky Medical Center, Kinman said.

Clark said he was "shaken and concerned" by the incident that terrified about 150 people inside the courtroom.

"They were all terrified and they were all going every which way," the judge said.

"We didn't hear any arguments. We just heard the shot."

After bailiff Norman Morton got control of Evans, Clark took the gun from his hand.

"He recognized me and said, 'OK judge, I'll give you the gun,'" Clark said.

Fayette County Sheriff Harold Buchignani said the two men were seen talking in the warrants section of the building before walking down the hallway where the shot was fired outside Courtroom 5.

Davis then staggered into the crowded courtroom of District Judge Thomas Clark. Evans followed and was wrestled to the floor, Buchignani said.

"I automatically hit the ground. Everybody did," said Alice Covington, who was in the courtroom. "The next thing I heard, amidst all the crying and praying, a guy said ... 'He shot me.'"

Both Davis and Evans reside in Lexington and are graduates of the University of Kentucky law school.

Davis, an Alabama native, served as an assistant in the state Attorney General's office from 1981-87. He has since been in private practice in Lexington. Evans, a native of Louisville, headed the black adoption program for the Lexington Urban League from 1985-87.

Old state capitol restoration delayed due to preparations

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Closure of Kentucky's old state Capitol for restoration has been delayed, a Kentucky Historical Society official said Wednesday.

Work to restore original interior colors and to repair water damage to plaster and woodwork had been expected to start this month.

But the work instead will begin in late July or early August because consultant studies and other preparations are taking longer than expected, said Nicky Hughes, manager of the historical society's museum division.

Completion is still scheduled for November, however, Hughes said.

The work is part of a long-term project to return the 1830 Greek Revival landmark in downtown Frankfort to its appearance in the 1850s.

State government moved across the Kentucky River to the present Capitol in 1910. The Old Capitol and its annex became the historical society's home in 1920.

The Kentucky History Museum in the annex will remain open while the Old Capitol is being repaired, according to a statement from the historical society.

AMVETS ladies raise funds

Dear Editor:

All of the Veterans Organizations in Henry County, the AMVETS, VFW, American Legion, DAV and their auxiliaries, were joined by Nashville and Memphis Hospital Veterans for the annual Fun Run (walk) on Memorial Day.

The walk started at the airport. Two and a half miles later, with lots of sweat and gusto, we arrived at the American Legion Post 164.

The walk is held each year as a fund raiser for the Veterans Hospital Recreation Fund. It is also a time to honor our deceased members. Each Post has its own Memorial Ceremony.

The walk was started with wheelchair veterans. They bring their special racing chairs. They were followed by runners, joggers, trouters, strutters, walkers and a few draggers, waking up many calf muscles to experience a burning sensation. A few had back pains to start. Dry mouths were experienced by some while others had enough spit to smoke while we trudged onward non stop up and down hill. The Yucca plants were in bloom and very plentiful in well kept yards. The day was great for the occasion. The sky was cloudy overcast with a nice breeze in the air. We were a very colorful parade of walkers. Most were wearing red, white and blue patriotically decorated. A few had the new yellow ribbon included. Our new president Bonnie Scott was sporting a new hat she painted with red, white and blue with stars on it. Our oldest walker is Nora Sway, 82 years old, carrying the American Flag. She is a member of the Post 45 Ladies Auxiliary of AMVETS. Judy Boone and Edna Coles were our ladies to finish first. We were greeted at the end of alot of huffing and puffing at the American Legion Post 164 with trays of ice water and other beverages available to us. We then had our ceremonies after which we all enjoyed a barbeque ribs dinner. Post 45 then had open house for all.

The event was a success bringing in $1,388 with AMVETS Post 45 responsible for $900.

WORKING TO MAKE HEALTH CARE AFFORDABLE

Thirty-seven million Americans do not have access to adequate health care. Yet, $600 billion is annually spent on health care in this country. Billions of those dollars are lost in malpractice lawsuits and medical procedures to guard against such suits.

Earlier this month, President Bush sent a proposal to Congress to help combat this wide-spread problem. The proposal would limit medical malpractice lawsuits - a plan endorsed by the American Medical Association (AMA) for the past five years.

The plan emphasizes reduction of insurance premiums, lowering the number of defensive medical measures, and increasing public access to health care. It is estimated that malpractice lawsuits add $5.6 billion a year to insurance premiums. Defensive medicine adds another $15 billion to $40 billion annually to the cost of health care. Total medical liability premiums tripled from 1982-1988.

The high price of malpractice insurance affects not only the cost, but also the availability of health care. Many doctors choose to give up high-risk specialties such as obstetrics in order to avoid malpractice suits and high insurance rates. Four out of five obstetricians in the United States have been sued. For every $3,000 paid for the delivery of a baby, $500 of it is for malpractice insurance.

Kentucky is not immune to this crisis - 73 of Kentucky's 120 counties do not have an obstetrician.

Medical malpractice is an issue which must be addressed to make health care more affordable, and accessible to all Americans. We must balance the rights of patients to fair compensation with the rights of all Americans to affordable health care.

Today In History

Today is Thursday, June 6, the 157th day of 1991. There are 208 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On June 6, 1944, the "D-day" invasion of Europe took place during World War II as Allied forces stormed the beaches of Normandy, France. On this date:

In 1918, the World War I Battle of Belleau Wood, which would result in a U.S. victory over the Germans, began in France.

In 1925, Walter Percy Chrysler founded the Chrysler Corporation.

In 1933, the first drive-in movie theater opened, in Camden, N.J.

In 1934, the Securities and Exchange Commission was established.

In 1942, Japanese forces retreated in the World War II Battle of Midway.

In 1966, 25 years ago, black activist James Meredith was shot and wounded as he walked along a Mississippi highway to encourage black voter registration.

In 1968, at 1:44 a.m. PDT, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy died at Good Samaritan Hospital in Los Angeles, 25 1/2 hours after he was shot at the Ambassador Hotel by Sirhan Bishara Sirhan.

In 1977, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled states could not impose an automatic death sentence for defendants convicted of murdering a police officer.

In 1978, California voters overwhelmingly approved Proposition 13, a primary ballot initiative calling for major cuts in property taxes.

In 1982, Israeli forces invaded Lebanon to drive Palestine Liberation Organization fighters out of the country. The Israelis withdrew in June 1985.

In 1984, government forces in India stormed the Golden Temple in Amritsar in an effort to crush Sikh extremists. At least 1,000 Sikhs and 200 soldiers were killed.

In 1985, authorities in Embu, Brazil, exhumed a body later identified as the remains of Dr. Josef Mengele, the notorious "Angel of Death" of the Nazi Holocaust.

Local artists featured in 'Uncommon' show

Although more than 550 Kentucky artists submitted their work, only 57 were chosen, and three of those hail from Murray. Local photographers D.H. Jackson, Ronnie England and Jackie Jones were among those selected for the exhibit "Uncommon Views of the Uncommonwealth," a juried show sponsored jointly by the Kentucky Arts Council, Kentucky Department of Travel Development and Kentucky Tourism Federation.

A reception for the exhibition is planned for tomorrow, June 7, 5-7 p.m. at the Clara M. Eagle Gallery on the Murray State University campus. The show will be on display until June 28.

An instructor in the MSU art department, Jackson won first place in the competition for "Winter Solstice," which depicts an unusual winter landscape. The skeletal trees in the picture huddle miserably in a stark Kentucky forest. The brittle black and white scene is shattered and distorted by the use of mirrors. As first prize winner, Jackson was awarded $975 for his piece.

MAIN STREET

England focuses on early spring in his photo entitled, "Surprise in March." A log structure with a scrim of snow on its roof squats in the roadside, from which the snow has already melted. The photo appears to be black and white, as muted as the winter landscape, except for the hint of yellow from the center line of the road. Amidst the drabness, the line of color is as welcome and surprising as the first crocus of spring, sprouting spunkily in spite of a late winter snow.

Signpainter Charley Raines is featured in Jones' entry in which a man concentrates on his work despite the clutter and mayhem that surrounds him. As the artist leans gracefully into the "S" he painstakingly letters, he is oblivious to his environment. Discarded paint cans and splashes of paint are everywhere, but the emerging sign is as neat and trim as a barbershop tenor.

Although the exhibition features scenes from Kentucky exclusively, many of the pictures on display reflect themes that go beyond the bounds of familiar tobacco barns and horse fences. In the shots depicting people, for instance, each one is as unique as a thumbprint. "Guests: Viva House Shelter," by Tamara Fitzpatrick of Lexington, highlights a group we often might want to ignore — three apparently homeless men who have taken advantage of the shelter's services. The men are serious, dignified even, as they sit for their picture. Though their faces are careworn, one has a slight smile that seems to say, "I may be down but I'm not out."

"Rescuing the By-Pass," by John Mandile of Bowling Green, is a portrait of a modern folk hero, a cartoon-like muscle man who hoists the sign for a transmission shop on a busy strip clogged with gas stations and fast food restaurants.

While many of the pictures in "Uncommon Views of the Uncommonwealth" are thought-provoking, some are merely pretty. There are daffodils and dogwoods, babbling brooks and bright blue skies. There is something for everyone in this exhibit that opened at last year's Kentucky State Fair and is touring the state through July.

Van Deren Coke, former curator of photography for the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art, a native Kentuckian and nationally acclaimed photographer, judged the show. The competition was open to amateur and professional photographers, and prizes totaling $1,975 were awarded.

The Eagle Gallery is located on the 4th floor of the Price Doyle Fine Arts Building, at the corner of 15th and Olive Streets on the MSU campus. Summer hours at the gallery are 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. There is no admission fee.

SOUTER AND SOUTER.

Memorial Day and the Persian Gulf War

This was the first Memorial Day on which the 147 Americans who died in the Persian Gulf War joined the honor roll of those who fought and died in America's other wars and are officially honored by a grateful nation.

Since the war ended, some have tried to minimize the victory because Saddam Hussein remains in power in Iraq, or because of the suffering of the Kurds, or because we fought a "third-rate military" (in fact, we turned the world's fourth-largest army into a third-rate military by confronting Iraq with a first-rate fighting force).

These critics wanted limited goals, and when President Bush's limited goals were achieved with such astounding success, the limitation brigade suddenly demanded a broader victory.

U.S. fighting forces demonstrated skills and character beyond their combat ability. Lt. Gen. Gus Pagonis reported that in seven months he had not heard one reported incident of an American soldier violating the laws or customs of the Arab nations where they were posted. American men and women acted with bravery, winning honor above all expectation and beyond all precedent.

This victory will be a lasting warning against aggression and a testament to American principles and strength. Our mission of rescue and retribution was moral in its aim, bold in its planning and brilliant in its conduct.

Lessons abound for us and for future observers of Memorial Day.

The first lesson is simple and fundamental: aggression that is not confronted is rewarded. This has been the amply demonstrated political fact of our bloody century. It is the lesson that dived Chamberlain from Churchill. The lesson of Munich. But it is a lesson that many in our Congress — very nearly a majority — tried to ignore. And that should not be forgotten.

The policy of most Democratic leaders, though not most Democrats, was to delay. It was irresponsible to hope for the best while Hussein promised the worst.

Infinite delay and hope against hope are precisely what practitioners of the land-grab depend upon. It's been said that criminal methods, once tolerated, are soon preferred.

The chant of "No blood for oil" was tired and empty. It rang hollow in the face of advancing, aggressive brutality. Hussein did not seek control of oil to squeeze consumers for a few extra pennies at the pump. He sought it to find a military machine, to gain nuclear weapons, to unleash worldwide terrorism, to tyrannize his neighbors.

CAL'S THOUGHTS
By Cal Thomas

This was threat of global reach and against clear American interests.

The moral case was so clear — as clear as in the gathering storm before World War II. Hussein is not an Arab nationalist, a reincarnated Nasser. He is the author of uncounted atrocities. He is a self-aggrandizing aggressor of limitless ambition, and he had to be stopped.

"One thing is certain," wrote G.K. Chesterton, "if such men are not held answerable for doing such things, such men will do them again; and myriads of such men will do myriads of such things, again and again until the crack of doom."

The second lesson of the Gulf War was the vital importance of the military buildup of the 1980s — spending criticized at time as wasteful and excessive. As Adm. Hyman Rickover observed, "The more you sweat in peace, the less you bleed in war."

Iraqi soldiers remarked that they never saw our soldiers coming. American planes, tanks and artillery struck Iraqi targets without being detected in time for their fire to be returned.

Perhaps the greatest lesson of our latest war is a rebirth in our nation of heroism. It is exhilarating to discover that courage is still common in Americans. It is equally encouraging that this virtue still commands broad respect.

Again, Chesterton noted, "Courage is almost a contradiction in terms. It means a strong desire to live taking the form of a willingness to die." C.S. Lewis argued, "Courage is not simply one of the virtues, but the form of every virtue at the testing point."

That is quite a list of accomplishments for one fighting force in one war to bequeath to a nation. The Desert Storm veterans have thus raised their own glorious monument, not made of marble, but of an intangible that cannot be eroded by time or corrupted by those who would rewrite history to conform to their political world views.

Those who served and survived, and especially those who fought courageously and died, will be remembered and honored for what they gave back to their country as long as America observes a Memorial Day.

Retrial of Warford suit against Herald-Leader set for Monday

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — A retrial of a libel suit filed against the Lexington Herald-Leader by former University of Pittsburgh assistant coach Reggie Warford is scheduled to begin Monday in Fayette Circuit Court.

The U.S. Supreme Court, without comment last January, let stand a Kentucky Supreme Court ruling that Warford did not qualify as a "public figure" who would have to prove the newspaper published statements with "actual malice" — knowledge or reckless disregard of falsity.

The state Supreme Court ruling overturned a lower court decision in the case.

The suit stems from a reprint of an October 1985 series for which the newspaper won a Pulitzer Prize.

Warford, a former University of Kentucky player, contends the article has damaged his career.

One of the articles in the series said that Warford offered money to Steve Miller of Lexington if Miller would agree to play basketball at Pittsburg.

Warford denied the allegation and sued.

Fayette Circuit Judge James

Keller dismissed the suit after Warford's attorney had presented his side. Keller had originally ruled that Warford was not a public figure, but then he reversed himself and ruled that Warford was a public figure.

Last year the state Supreme Court reversed the dismissal, ruling among other things that Warford must be considered a private individual for purposes of his suit and ordered a retrial.

Private citizens must show only that the allegedly libelous statements were false and made negligently.

The newspaper appealed the state Supreme Court ruling to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The state court also weakened the newspaper's case by excluding evidence about two people the newspaper contended were "recruiting aides" for Warford.

Police investigate stabbing death of Hopkins woman

MANITOU, Ky. (AP) — Police are seeking leads in the stabbing death of Sheila Hargrove, whose body was found Tuesday by a fisherman in a water-filled strip pit about five miles from her Hopkins County home.

State police spokesman Bryan Pitney said Ms. Hargrove, 30, apparently was slain at her home about 12 hours before the body was discovered.

Pitney said police were called to the house early Tuesday by a boyfriend who had gone to visit Ms. Hargrove. When officers arrived, they found blood stains on the front porch and in the living room. Furniture in the home had been moved, Pitney said.

Neighbors said Ms. Hargrove had lived in Manitou about a month, but had lived in the neighborhood once before and had relatives in the area. She worked at a Madisonville restaurant.

Authorities said Ms. Hargrove had three children who were staying in Ballard County.

Rally welcomes National Guard company home

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky National Guard's 2123rd Transportation Company will be welcomed home Saturday with a rally to mark its participation in the Persian Gulf War.

Members of the unit have been at Fort Campbell since their return Sunday from the Middle East.

"When we did the Desert Christmas — getting Christmas gifts to the troops — we all decided back then that we needed to do something when they come back home," said Tim Andrews, promotions director for WDNS-FM radio station, one of the event's sponsors.

The homecoming will be similar to rallies held in other cities for returning troops, Andrews said.

Bowling Green Mayor Patsy Sloan and Warren County Judge-Executive Basil Griffin will issue a joint order that proclaims the day one of honor for the unit and its service to country.

Ray Corns files counterclaims against creditors

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Ray Corns has filed a counterclaim against four creditors who allege his campaign for lieutenant governor owes them $104,711.

Corns, who finished fifth in the Democratic primary, denied the allegations. Gov. Wallace Wilkinson last week appointed him Justice Cabinet secretary and acting state police commissioner.

The counterclaim said various sums were paid to the creditors and should be repaid because goods and services they provided Corns' campaign "were defective in quality and performance."

Three companies sued Corns' campaign in April: WUSSOW Consulting Group of Brentwood, Tenn., seeking $90,647; Jones Printing Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., seeking $7,386, and The Aware Group of Louisville, seeking $5,957. A former Corns campaign employee, Wayne Aitken of Washington, D.C., joined the suit, seeking $721 in moving expenses.

The suit and counterclaim were filed in Franklin Circuit Court, where Corns was a judge before becoming a candidate.

The counterclaim said Corns' campaign had no contract with the creditors. Aitken now works for WUSSOW, whose principals include Corns' brother-in-law, Charles Fentress.

Wednesday night's jackpot was $2.5 million.

Heart Failure

 He thanked God for our food
 Together we ate our lunch
 He took his Bible and books into the living room to study
 I stacked our cups and plates
 Heard a thump, a bang
 Ran to see
 Dialed 911
 He was gone
 when they came.

As A Child Grows

By Linda M. Siebold
 A child is born, and as it grows it learns right from wrong.
 The child is taught the Golden Rule:

To have faith; to be strong.
 The child reads in his or her
 Bible
 Of the Christian way
 And finds there the perfect prayer...
 Still in use today.

The 'ing' Words

By Wilma Jean Sanders
 I like 'ing' words, because they flow and sing
 They're moving, even grooving, and what's hap-pe-ning
 They're the present, near future,
 this at the same time
 I use them and abuse them, as I make them mine
 They fit my personality, as they flit 'cross the page
 They're dancing, even prancing, and living near the edge They're happy, uplifting as they march along
 I guess I'll still use them, even when they are wrong.

 Little bitty birdie
 Sitting on a twig,
 If you were twice your size
 You'd not be very big.

 Feasting at my flowers,
 You're so fascinating
 I'd watch you for hours!
 Little bitty birdie,
 You move so very fast
 I can hardly see you
 When you zip past.

Williams asked to leave

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Esther Williams was asked to leave the Los Angeles Country Club because she wore pants to a charity function, though she was the guest of honor.

Miss Williams, 67, said a man told her she could don a skirt kept handy for dress-code violators — or leave.

"I thought he was kidding. I really did," she said.

Miss Williams, MGM's "Bathing Beauty" of the 1940s, said she told the crowd, "I haven't done anything to offend anyone here tonight, except that I have silk on my legs and they want my legs bare." Then she left.

She wore an Oscar de la Renta outfit with black pants, matching camisole and floral jacket to the May 15 party for Childhelp USA fund-raisers.

The country club did not reply Wednesday to a request for comment.

Special oatmeal bread recipe released by Byal

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes Magazine Food Editor

Home-baked loaves of bread are like green salads and baked potatoes: it's not what's in them that raises the fat quotient, it's what you put on top. For this whole-grain bread, choose low-fat spreads such as mustard or reduced-calorie mayonnaise for sandwiches, and jams or fruit preserves for toast.

Oatmeal Bread

- 4 1/2 to 4 3/4 cups all-purpose flour
 - 1 package active dry yeast
 - 1 1/2 cups water
 - 1-3rd cup packed brown sugar
 - 3 tablespoons shortening, margarine, or butter
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 2 cups quick-cooking or regular rolled oats
- In a large mixer bowl combine 2 cups of the all-purpose flour and the yeast. In a saucepan heat and stir water, brown sugar, shortening and salt until warm (120 degrees F to 130 degrees F) and shortening almost melts. Add to flour mixture. Beat with an electric mixer on low speed for 30 seconds, scraping bowl constantly. Beat on high speed for 3 minutes. Using a spoon, stir in the rolled oats and as much of the remaining flour as you can.

Turn dough out onto a lightly floured surface. Knead in enough of the remaining flour to make a moderately stiff dough that is smooth and elastic (6 to 8 minutes total). Shape into a ball. Place in a lightly greased bowl; turn once. Cover and let rise in a warm place until double, about 1 to 1 1/2 hours.

Punch dough down. Turn out onto a lightly floured surface. Divide in half. Cover and let rest for 10 minutes. Lightly grease two 8-by-4-by-2-inch loaf pans. Shape each half of the dough into a loaf. Place in pans. Cover; let rise in a warm place until nearly double (45 to 60 minutes).

Bake in a 375-degree oven for 40 to 45 minutes or until done. Cover loosely with foil the last 10 to 20 minutes, if necessary, to prevent overbrowning.

DEAR ABBY

by Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "No Money Machine" — the parent who is cutting corners in order to send her son to the high school prom — prompts this letter.

Abby, going to a senior prom is a privilege — not a God-given right. I came from a large family, and our education (12 years of Catholic school) was paid for by our parents, but we had to earn our own money for all the "perks."

I have raised my son the same way. At 16, he's already had a semi-formal under his belt. He asked if he could have his Christmas gift of money in advance so he could pay $35 for tickets, $15 for a corsage and $10 for a secondhand tux.

If he wants to continue at the Catholic school he attends, he will have to get a summer job to help with the $1,300 tuition. His class ring will be bought with money he saves from his allowance.

Abby, as you've often said: "Give a man a fish and he can eat for a day. Teach him to fish and he can eat forever."

The best gift some people can give their kids is a kick in the rear to the job market.

NO MONEY MACHINE EITHER

DEAR NO MONEY MACHINE: You could teach a class in child development. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: Please set me straight. Is it considered poor manners to write a letter instead of having a face-to-face confrontation?

Recently, I decided to quit my job as baby sitter for a woman I'll call Mrs. Smith. She is very strong-minded and not a person I would care to debate, so to avoid being pressured to stay on with other arrangements, then kick myself afterward, I chose to write.

I dropped the letter in Mrs. Smith's mailbox. As soon as she read it, she telephoned to say that we would still be friends, but she thought it was extremely "ignorant and ill-mannered" of me to have written to her instead of speaking to her. Abby, some people are easier to write to than talk to.

What do you think? Was a letter a poor vehicle for my message?

IN THE DARK

DEAR IN: I think you used excellent judgment. Your reasons for writing to Mrs. Smith instead of risking a face-to-face confrontation were valid.

DEAR ABBY: With so many children as well as some adults unable to read, and the warning on some labels printed so small that older people can't read them, perhaps we should resume the old skull and crossbones on all poisons.

Also, now that camping season has returned, parents should avoid dressing their children in camouflage-printed clothing for picnics or camp-outs. If children wander off, they would be much harder to locate.

Bright orange or yellow is the most visible color. Campers should keep that in mind.

DULUTH, MINN.

DEAR DULUTH: And a whistle hung on an elastic cord around the neck isn't a bad idea for campers. But make sure the elastic cord can't strangle the wearer should it get caught on some object.

People are eating them up! For Abby's favorite recipes, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Cookbooklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill., 61054. (Postage is included.)

Greene reportedly top choice at Calloway

RON GREENE

By DAVID RAMEY
Murray Ledger & Times Sports Editor

Ron Greene is the top candidate to be the new basketball coach at Calloway County High School, the Ledger & Times has learned.

The former Murray State coach is currently head coach of the Nashville Stars of the World Basketball League, and declined to comment Wednesday night on his apparent interest in the Calloway position.

"I really don't want to comment on whether I would be interested or not," Greene said via telephone from Nashville Wednesday night. "I don't think it would be proper at the present time."

Calloway County school superintendent Dr. Jack Rose also declined to comment on Greene's status.

"I think at this point in time we are down to two or three people," Rose said. "We're going to try and get it done in the next seven or ten days, if things work out."

Under the new Kentucky Education Reform Act, the superintendent does all the hiring and firing in the school system. He is required to advertise the job for 30 days before hiring.

Russ Wall resigned from his basketball coaching duties on April 26 to enter a doctoral program. Wall, compiled a 32-31 record and made two regional tournament appearances in his two seasons as Calloway coach, with a 16-16 mark this past year.

Laker assistant coach Bobby Toon, formerly the head coach at Fulton County, Marshall County and Murray, was thought to be the top choice before Greene entered the search.

"I've been told that they haven't made a decision," Toon said Wednesday. "I've asked for the job, and would like to have it, but it's out of my hands."

Greene and Rose reportedly met Thursday morning to discuss the position, and one source said that the two have met on four different occasions in the last month to talk about the vacancy.

Greene, a native of Terre Haute, Ind., has spent the last two winters watching from the stands after a disappointing four years at Indiana State. He and his family returned to Murray after he resigned from the Sycamore job in 1989.

He coached the Racers from 1978 to 1985, and rebuilt the program into an Ohio Valley Conference powerhouse. He had a record of 119-78 in seven seasons, won or shared three OVC titles and directed three Racer trips to the NIT.

Despite a long and successful coaching career, Greene, a 1962 Murray State graduate, has never

Inside Scoop

David RAMEY

Ledger & Times Sports Editor

Calloway County school superintendent Dr. Jack Rose says a decision hasn't been made about a new basketball coach, but my money is on Ron Greene.

Greene, the former Racer coach, declined to comment on the job when reached by phone Wednesday night, but he is evidently interested in stepping into the high school coaching ranks, somewhere he has never been before.

Hiring Greene would certainly boost interest in the Calloway County basketball program, and if he can work the kind of magic he worked at Murray State, New Orleans and Mississippi State, Greene could be the person to give Calloway that most elusive state tournament berth, something that the program has never enjoyed in 31 years of basketball.

But still waiting in the wings is Bobby Toon, the veteran high school coach who has worked hard the last two seasons at Calloway as an assistant coach under Russ Wall, and certainly deserves the opportunity to be the Laker boss.

Rose, who has total hiring and firing power under the new Kentucky education reform law, must now be weighing a great debate. The public relations coup of naming Greene versus the merits of hiring Toon.

It all makes for an interesting summer.

Murray State pitcher Kirk Rueter is also having to make a tough decision. He was reportedly surprised to be drafted as high as the 17th round in this week's baseball draft.

Rueter has another year of eligibility left, and if he does return for his senior year, he could improve his draft position and complete his college degree. There are a number of reasons to stay. If he has another season like he did this year, ever start would be in front of a number of scouts and he could make much more bonus money.

But the Montreal Expos may wave enough money in front of the lefthander to make him forget about Reagan Field and commencement next May and Rueter may be on a bus in Florida State League in July.

The Ledger and Times has learned of a standout local basketball product who could be one of the great talents ever to come out of this area. Unfortunately for fans, it's going to be a couple of years before he's going to be big enough to handle the basketball hoop.

MSU assistant basketball coach James Holland and his wife celebrated the birth of their son, Anthony Jerome, Wednesday. Sources close to the arrival say that A.J. arrived in this world whistling "Sweet Georgia Brown" and twirling a basketball on his hand.

Although national letter-intent for the youngster is still 17 years away, the elder Holland said the prospect has narrowed his college choices to Murray State and North Carolina.

LOOK ALL WAYS BEFORE CROSSING

Bulls-Lakers NBA series becoming Jordan's show

CHICAGO (AP) — After two games, the Michael-Magic series has become the Magical Michael series.

Michael Jordan staged a spectacular display of teamwork, passing, shooting and aerial artistry. Magic Johnson was stifled by Scottie Pippen's bump-and-grind defense.

The Chicago Bulls relied on sensational shooting and re-awakened aggressiveness to even the best-of-7 NBA Finals at one game apiece Wednesday night with a 107-86 rout of the Los Angeles Lakers.

"They attacked and we didn't attack," Johnson said.

"It was a game that you rarely see at this time of the season," Los Angeles' James Worthy said. "A game where nothing goes right for one team and everything perfect for the other."

The Lakers will try to reverse that trend Friday night in the first of three games at Los Angeles. All they have to do is find a way to stop Jordan.

The Bulls' star made only one of three shots in the first 20 minutes as he got his teammates involved. Then he buried his next 13 attempts, mostly jumpers, and finished with 33 points on 15-of-18 shooting.

Chicago, shaking off its opening-game nervousness, set an NBA Finals record by hitting 50 of 81 shots, a percentage of 61.7. The old mark of 61.5 was set by the Lakers against Boston on June 4, 1987.

John Paxson made all eight of his shots and Horace Grant hit 10-of-13. Combined with Jordan, they connected on 33 of 39. The entire Los Angeles team hit only 30 of 73.

Jordan, as usual, outdid everyone.

"He can do the impossible, the unbelievable," said Johnson, who had only 14 points. "It was his game."

Even Jordan, himself the master of the miraculous, was impressed. With 7:46 left in the game, he made a layup that gave the Bulls their biggest lead, 97-71. It was no ordinary layup.

He took a pass from Cliff Levingston in the lane and drove. Encountering the long arms of Laker forward Sam Perkins while in midair, Jordan shifted the ball from his right hand to his left as he was descending and laid it in off the backboard.

Hearing the roar of the crowd, he bent at the waist, pumped his fist in front of him and made a facial expression indicating he may have surprised himself.

"He had it going from outside," Johnson said, "then he drove down the lane, put (the ball) in one hand, then the other, then floated about five more yards, said, 'Well, I don't know,' then he put it off the glass."

"It's just one of those creative moves," Jordan said. "Sometimes I don't know what's going to happen."

He also succeeded on a more human level. He made excellent passes to set up easy inside baskets in the first half and hit normal mid-range jumpers. He finished with 13 assists and seven rebounds. Pippen and Horace Grant added 20 points each for the Bulls. Pippen also had 10 assists.

In Chicago's 93-91 loss in Sunday's opener, his teammates watched as Jordan put on a one-

Staff Report

A gorgeous June day greeted the competitors at the Hart Memorial Tournament Wednesday, and Wanda Brown and Mary Bain made the most of it.

Brown and Bain fired a 68 in the two-lady scramble tournament, besting Mary Jane and Pat Park by three strokes.

"It was a very successful tournament," Hart chairman Betty Lowry said. "The weather really made it beautiful."

Defending champions Joanna Gibbs and Dana Stonecipher won a countback for third place, while Velvet Jones and Rhonda Boone took fourth with a 72.

In the first flight, Connie Lamkin and Donna Wear fired a 79 to take first, winning a countback as the four top teams in the flight had 79s. Mary Anderson and Betty Lowry took second, Tonja Fike and Ethlene McCallon were third and Rainey Apperson and Caroline Copeland finished fourth.

In the second flight, Burlene Brewer and Laura Parker fired an 84 and also won on a countback. They edged Sue Jordan and Polly Buchanan, who finished second and third place performers Caryl Compton and Waldean Siegfried and fourth place finishers Margaret Shuffett and Diane Villanova.

In the third flight, Dot Beach and Jo Glasglow edged Virginia Howard and Hilda Jackson in a countback, as both teams fired 90s. Billie Cohoon and Sherry Gibbs fired a 91 for third place, as did fourth place finishers Lula Bingham and Lois Keller.

Velvet Jones won the longest drive competition, and Waldean Siegfried took the closest to the pin award.

Two years ago the future looked bleak for Shelby Morgan. She lay in a coma for 84 days, the results of injuries sustained in an automobile accident in July 1989.

Among other injuries, she suffered a broken back, neck and brain stem. For the teenager who had completed her freshman year at Austin Peay State University in Clarksville, Tenn., on a golf scholarship, the road to recovery has been almost remarkable.

She is the daughter of Mike and Jeanie Morgan of Murray and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brewer, also of Murray.

Since January of this year she has been working with the staff at Murray State University's Adult Learning Center on basic education skills in preparation for returning to college. She is enrolled at Murray State this summer taking a computer course in an effort to continue improving her eye and hand coordination. She hopes to pick up where she left off on her accounting major at the time of the accident.

She continues physical therapy and speech therapy three times a week.

Friends of Miss Morgan are hosting a golf tournament this weekend at Murray's Oak Country Club as a show of support for her determination and recovery. Proceeds from the tournament will be used to purchase a computer for the 20-year-old student.

Entry fees for the open tournament are $15 per person or $30 per team. In addition to raising money for the computer, golfers will compete for an assortment of prizes. Among the prizes donated by area merchants are U.S. Savings Bonds, a silver set, gift certificates, country hams, a desk calculator and golf balls.

Golfers may pre-register by calling the Oaks, 753-6454. Tee-off time both days of the tournament is 1 p.m.

Coordinating the tournament with the support of the board of directors of the Oaks Country Club are Carol Lane, Claire Benton, Janet Futrell, Sandra Edwards, Melba Hatcher, Wanda Brown and Burlene Brewer.

The 10th of each month is a very important day to your city newspaper carrier. Your carrier must receive your payment by the 10th of the month in order to pay their bill.

You see, these carriers are independent business men and women. They buy their papers from us at wholesale cost and sell them to you at the retail delivery rate. When you don't pay them by the 10th they have to dig down into their own pockets to make up the difference.

Please pay your carrier promptly before the 10th of each month. They depend on you to write their pay checks. Collection time can be an inconvenience for you and your carrier.

ARTS/ENTERTAINMENT

New Playhouse season mixes old, new

It's a typical summer for Murray's Playhouse in the Park. There will be a new executive director, a smash Broadway musical, two riotous comedies in one evening of theatre and a Pulitzer prize-winning drama.

At least it has become typical for Kentucky's most dynamic community arts organization. Even though most newcomers to Murray are surprised to find so much theatre activity, area theatre patrons have come to expect it. This summer, there should be no cause for disappointment.

Acting Executive Director Kathryn Ballard has just returned from Louisville's Kentucky Center for the Arts (KCA) where the West Kentucky Playwrights presented three new works in the Marth Experimental Theatre. She found Louisville audiences very receptive to the plays and the performers.

"Touring three new plays to the state's theatre center is something very new for us," Ballard said, "and we were very pleased with the response. People all over Kentucky are paying attention to what happens at the Playhouse."

KCA officials extended to Playwrights director Becky Reynolds an "open invitation" to appear at the Experimental Theatre. "We take that as a sign of genuine appreciation for the hard work everyone does at the Playhouse, as well as a testament to the support we have from throughout West Kentucky," Ballard said.

But there will be no time to rest as the opening date of the summer season approaches. "The Sound of Music" will have its first performance on June 13 for three weekends. Despite the large cast and the challenging music, there is something typical about it, too.

Three newcomers (Cathy Mallett, Jeff Holden and Lanette Hunt) will appear in principal roles. "It's not uncommon for this theatre to introduce new talent to the community," veteran performer Pete Lancaster said. Lancaster will be joined by Margaret Porter Boone who last performed with him in a 1970s production of "The Music Man."

"The summer gives lots of opportunities to many people," Lancaster said. "We've got some actors who are on the stage for the first time, and there are others who have professional performing careers."

This summer, the theatre will also develop other kinds of talent. Ballard has appointed three new directors to mainstage performances.

Kyle Mills, an MSU senior theatre student, will direct "Lonesome." The one-act play is a companion piece to "Laundry and Bourbon," directed by Gaye Brewer. Brewer is no stranger to the Playhouse, but will be serving in her first directing role this summer.

Lee Robbins directs "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-In-The-Moon Marigolds," the season's final play. It is Robbins' Murray debut in the director's chair, even though he has worked with the play before.

"This is an important next step for the Playhouse," Ballard said. "There are many fine actors and performers who have developed their talents here, and it is time for us to more actively encourage directors, stage managers, designers and technicians."

In the meantime, Pat Clement and her staff are putting the finishing touches on "The Sound of Music," the story of the von Trapp family. In just a few days, they will begin another season of theatre in the same Park where it all started in 1978. Acclaimed state-wide, a training ground for amateurs and professionals alike and a constant source of joy and fun — for Playhouse in the Park, it's another typical summer.

The 63-member Louisville Youth Orchestra will make Murray State part of its Western Kentucky mini-tour Monday evening. The audience is encouraged to bring blankets or lawn chairs. There is no admission charge.

Youth Orchestra to perform at MSU

Murray State University will be one of the concert stops on a West Kentucky mini-tour by the 63-piece Louisville Youth Orchestra on Monday evening, June 10.

To begin at 6:30 p.m. on the lawn in front of Lovett Auditorium, the performance by the ensemble directed by Daniel Spurlock is open to the public at no admission charge. The Department of Music at Murray State is the concert sponsor.

The audience is encouraged to bring blankets or lawn chairs for comfortable seating. In the event of inclement weather, the concert will be in Lovett Auditorium.

Founded in 1958, the orchestra is made up of young musicians from the eighth grade through the school from the Kentuckiana area. Its music covers the whole range of orchestral repertoire, from classical to light pops.

Literally hundreds of concerts by the orchestra have been performed throughout Kentucky, including the Governor's Mansion and the State Fair, as well as appearances in Chicago, Pittsburgh, Nashville, Buffalo and the International Festival of Youth Orchestras in Lausanne, Switzerland.

Spurlock is the second of only two music directors of the orchestra. He took the baton from Rubin Sher in 1975. Guest conductors through the years have included Robert Whitney, Akira Endo, Jorge Mestor, Karl Haas and Lawrence Leighton Smith.

A full scholarship graduate of the Juilliard School with bachelor's and master's degrees in double-bass, Spurlock plays principal bass in the Louisville Orchestra and was assistant conductor of that ensemble from 1975 to 1979.

He has also made guests appearances with the Indianapolis Orchestra and the Kansas City Youth Orchestra.

Lewis, Henrickson exhibits up

Two students will share the space at the Curris Center Gallery to exhibit recent work in partial fulfillment of their degrees from Murray State University.

"What A Long Hard Journey It Has Been" and Lynn Marie Henrickson titles her portion of the exhibition "Crayola Moonbeams."

Their painting, weavings and textiles will be on view May 29 through June 9.

Flowers are the subject of Lewis' oil paintings. The patterns in her weavings are created by exploring technique, including tapestry and inlaid with wool, acrylic and cotton yarns and lace weaving with linen.

The daughter of Billie and Sandra Lewis of Princeton, Ky., Lewis is a candidate for a bachelor of science in art education.

"In the near future I am going to teach summer art workshops and hope to have a teaching job in the fall in a school system," said Sandi. She is a student member of the National Art Education Association and Theta Chi Delta.

"In my works, I enjoyed studying the various techniques used in the past and incorporating them," said Henrickson.

She has explored surface design processes, hand-dyeing and assemblage techniques to create pillows, an Amish-style quilt and a traditional-pieced quilt called "Drunkard's Path." Lynn is also showing watercolors and fiber with enamel on copper compositions.

Lynn Marie Henrickson is the daughter of Charles H. and Judy O. Henrickson of Bowling Green, Ky.

Lynn is a candidate for a bachelor of science degree with emphasis in surface design. She was the president and founder of Murray State's local Theta Chi Delta sorority. Lynn plans to return to Bowling Green and pursue work in the textile field.

House approves water projects

U.S. Rep. Carroll Hubbard (D-KY) said today that he was very pleased that his colleagues in the U.S. House of Representatives have approved a bill which contains funding for several major water projects which will benefit western Kentucky.

On May 29, the House passed H.R. 2427, a bill sponsored by the House Appropriations Committee's Subcommittee on Energy and Water Development. This legislation establishes funding for flood control programs. Hubbard testified before the subcommittee on March 21 in support of the west Kentucky projects.

Of those projects contained in the bill, the most important to western Kentucky is the Olmsted Project. Presently, the Army Corps of Engineers is proceeding with the replacement of the existing structures at Locks 52 and 53 on the Ohio River with a single facility on the river between Ballard County, Ky., and Olmsted, Ill. This project will result in the construction of a new high-lift dam with two 1,200-foot lock chambers. This new facility would furnish the much-needed capacity that can no longer be met by the existing obsolete structures. The Olmsted Project is one of the largest civil works projects ever undertaken by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. The total federal cost for this program will exceed $1 billion, some of which has been appropriated in past fiscal years with additional funding to be approved as a part of future budget requests. This year, the House approved the requested $11,400,000 for general construction funding for this project. This is the second year the House has approved general construction funding for this project, thereby allowing the Corps of Engineers to continue its land acquisition and other pre-construction related activities.

Other improvements to the inland waterway system which were funded in the bill included $501,000 for investigative studies to improve navigation on the Cumberland and Tennessee Rivers, and $860,000 for studies to improve the locks and dam at Uniontown, Ky.

In addition, the house appropriation included general operational and maintenance funding for the Elvish Stahr Harbor at Hickman, Ky., as well as the operation of Barkley Dam and Lake Barkley. Funding for the Hickman Harbor was approved in the amount of $524,000, and $5,703,000 was appropriated for the operation and maintenance of Barkley Lock and Dam.

The bill also contains $109,500,000 in funding for channel improvements in Arkansas, Illinois, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri and Tennessee. These improvements will result in reduced flooding in the area.

In discussing the House's approval of the project, Hubbard said that these projects will benefit western Kentucky in three major ways. "These projects will aid western Kentucky's economy by improving shipping on the inland waterway system, by flooding which threatens the property and lives of those who live along our streams and rivers. We worked hard to show the need for these western Kentucky projects, and I am pleased that they were funded," said Hubbard.

The bill will now go to the U.S. Senate for legislative action.

Two-car accident

Wrecker crew members haul away a vehicle involved in a two-vehicle accident Wednesday at the intersection of Kentucky 121 and Johnny Robertson Road around 3:57 p.m., according to a report from the Calloway County Sheriff's Department. Deputies said Justice Fortenberry, of 919 Johnny Robertson Road, Murray, was northbound on Kentucky 121 and was attempting to turn onto Johnny Robertson Road when he turned into the path of Timmy Bazzell, 23, of Rt. 1, Murray, who was southbound on Kentucky 121. Bazzell was listed in stable condition at Murray-Calloway County Hospital and Fortenberry was treated and released. Train derailment prompts evacuations of 300 people CAVE CITY, Ky. (AP) — About 300 people were evacuated when 32 cars of a CSX train derailed just north of here and authorities feared a tank car full of propane was leaking.

An inspection late Wednesday showed that liquid dripping from the car was just water that had condensed because the propane in the 34,000-gallon tanker is very cold, said state Fire Marshal Rodney Raby. Propane is extremely flammable and is toxic if inhaled.

Clean up began late Wednesday night. Raby said residents probably would be allowed to return home sometime this afternoon.

There were no reports of injuries following the noon CDT Wednesday derailment about 2½ miles north of Cave City, said Mark McDaniel, a spokesman for the state Division of Disaster and Emergency Services.

U.S. 31W was closed and the Federal Aviation Administration closed the air space over the derailment for about 2½ hours because of the potential for explosion, McDaniel said.

Homes in a one-mile radius of the derailment were evacuated. Two shelters were set up at Horse Cave Community Center and the Cave City Convention Center, but most people evacuated apparently stayed with friends and family, according to McDaniel.

Most of the derailed cars were carrying wood products. There were 12 tank cars carrying chemicals including ammonium nitrate, dimethylene anhydrous, methyl alcohol and trimethylamine anhydrous.

Two cars carrying ammonium nitrate granules spilled their cargo. Kentucky State Police Trooper Jackie Strode said the white granules don't represent a danger unless they come in contact with flame or liquid. Water and ammonium nitrate could react explosively, releasing ammonia gas.

But it was sunny Wednesday and no rain was predicted for today. The train originated in Nashville and was headed to Louisville.

CSX declined to speculate on the cause of the derailment.

DR. GOTT

by Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have severe scar tissue in my lungs. I'm a 69-year-old female and have smoked in excess of one pack per day for 45 years. I've been prescribed Brethine, Choleydil and Atrovent and question the side effects since I've been on the medication for over five years.

DEAR READER: As a result of your heavy cigarette consumption, you appear to have developed a chronic lung disorder. I'll venture that you have emphysema, chronic bronchitis and chronic pulmonary inflammation in addition to (or as a cause of) your pulmonary scarring. Evidently, your doctor has chosen to treat the treatable aspects of your disease, a wise choice inasmuch as the scarring itself is permanent and incurable.

The purpose of therapy is to arrest the formation of pulmonary scars by controlling the conditions leading to them. Therefore, your doctor has prescribed Brethine (terbutaline, a bronchodilator to open breathing passages), Choleydil (oxtriphylline, another bronchodilator) and Atrovent (ipratropium, an aerosol to prevent bronchial spasms).

I hope you have stopped smoking because this unhealthy habit will undo whatever benefit you might enjoy from the medicines.

I'm not as concerned about the side effects of the drugs (jitteriness, nausea and palpitations) as I am about the effectiveness of the therapy. If the drugs help you, you can safely continue them under your physician's guidance. If, on the other hand, you are experiencing wheezing, difficulty breathing and persistent coughing, a change might be in order. Ask your doctor about this.

Many lung afflictions lead to pulmonary scarring, which is untreatable. Most doctors attempt to treat these afflictions — such as bronchitis, chronic pneumonia and asthma — in hopes of preventing (or minimizing) the permanent damage (emphysema and scarring) they cause. In addition to drug therapy, physicians often prescribe prednisone, supplemental oxygen and special breathing exercises to help people cope with the chronic disability of pulmonary scarring.

Thank you.

Sorry, but it didn't work. Newspaper advertising isn't like radio and TV.

73 percent of the primary TV sets in Kentucky households have remote control. It makes switching stations easy. With the push of one button your advertising message disappears.

See the commercial. Watch the commercial disappear.

In a recent statewide survey of 2,000 Kentucky households, 55 percent said they "do something else" when a commercial comes on TV. They switch stations. Or go to the refrigerator. Or let out the dog. Or put the laundry in the dryer.

Newspaper advertising doesn't work that way. When your customer is ready, your advertising message is there. So while newspaper readers might go to the refrigerator, your message is there when they return. And it stays there, working for you.

Dear Abby celebrates 35th anniversary

By Mary A. Pradt
 In Japan, certain uniquely talented craftsmen, such as master wood-carvers and Kabuki performers, are designated by the government as Living National Treasures. If the U.S. had such a tradition, one such treasure would be Pauline Esther Friedman Phillips, "much" better known as Abigail Van Buren.

Dear Abby, who reaches millions of readers in more than 1,200 newspapers, is celebrating her 35th anniversary as a master of her craft. At 72 (that's not a typo), she's going strong, helping and entertaining her readers as she has since 1956, tackling real problems in 25 lines or less.

I knew from a previous encounter that Abby is far too modest to talk about such rarefield concepts as being a Living National Treasure, so when I got the opportunity I asked instead, "What's it like to have virtually everybody know your name? How do you feel about being a household word?"

A household word - you mean like Drano? asked Abby, chuckling. "I feel as though my life has not been wasted."

Well, not unlike Drano, she has cleared up a lot of things for a lot of folks since she started corresponding with people as Dear Abby in January 1956, at first for the San Francisco "Chronicle" and soon afterward for a nationally syndicated audience.

So what's Abby up to now, as she starts her 36th year in the advice business? As usual, quite an assortment of activities.

Like many women in the '90s, Abby juggles a lot of concerns and commitments at once. Family and friends are her highest priorities, yet she manages to be active in such activities as Planned Parenthood and the American Foundation for AIDS Research, AND turn out 365 columns each year.

Right now, Operation Dear Abby/America Remembers is one of the projects closest to her heart. This Operation is a highly successful campaign to get readers to write to American servicemen and women stationed abroad. This year's campaign was launched last November and took on a special urgency with more Americans deployed overseas - half a million in the Persian Gulf alone - than had been in decades.

Van Buren first urged readers to write to servicemen in 1967, at the request of Navy men serving in Vietnam. Since 1983, Abby's effort has been coordinated by Army Reserve Sgt. Donald P. Grimes, chairman of America Remembers.

An unanticipated but rewarding result of Operation Dear Abby is that many correspondents have met and become "more" than pen pals. Van Buren has received dozens of wedding invitations from couples who met in this way, from the Vietnam era right up through Desert Shield.

There may - or may not - be patriotic implications in the fact that the Friedman twins, who grew up to become Ann Landers and Dear Abby, were born on the Fourth of July 1918, in Sioux City, Iowa. Neither twin ever sought a career. Abby, like most women of her generation, had modest goals - a good education (not "for anything in particular") and, as her mother advised, finding "a nice Jewish boy who would marry me and take care of me." But both twins wrote for their high school and college papers, including a gossip column, the "Campus Rat," bylined "PEEP" - for Pauline Esther, Esther Pauline. Just short of graduating from Morningside College in 1939, the twins were married, in a double ceremony.

Abby, as we now know her, has been married for more than 50 years to Morton Phillips, an investor and venture capitalist who is also a lively 72.

Abby first lived in Eau Claire, Wis., where her two children were born. She trained Gray Ladies for the American Red Cross and worked as a volunteer in the local hospital. Being a Gray Lady gave her a chance to "give patients something most of them hungered for - someone who would 'listen' to them." The Phillipses moved to San Francisco with their children in 1955, where Mrs. Phillips approached the "Chronicle," offering to write an advice column. The "Chron" took her on for $20 a week, and the rest is history.

No matter what you "think" you've heard or read, Abby and her twin sister remain close, communicating by phone, letters, and (hey, it's the '90s) fax mail.

"Being a twin," says Abby, "is a blessing that only a twin can know." It means "never being lonely, having someone to share with - secrets as well as worldly goods."

Based in Beverly Hills now, Abby works at home, rising early, and getting in a brisk half-hour walk donning a jogging outfit, on the wood floor around the perimeter of her living room before tackling her mail. She uses an IBM Selectric III typewriter (she has two, plus one in storage), not a computer.

When you write "Dear Abby" c/o your newspaper, the letter is forwarded to Los Angeles. The mail is received and sorted in an office, staffed by six, a half-mile away from Abby's home. Daughter Jeanne Phillips, who serves as Abby's editor, directs the operation. Letters requiring an immediate response and those with a self-addressed, stamped envelope are given priority.

While some letters are life-or-death situations, others are matters of etiquette or settling an argument as weighty as whether a dog can serve as a guide dog, or who should walk the bride down the aisle if her parents are divorced and she prefers her stepfather to her natural father.

Pharaohs' city found at pyramids' base

By MIMI MANN
 Associated Press Writer

NAZLETT EL-SAMMEN, Egypt — Hidden beneath a tourist village at the foot of the Sphinx, Egyptologists have found the remains of a city belonging to the pyramid-building pharaohs.

"This discovery is much more important to Egyptology than all the gold in Tutankamun's tomb," said Zahi Hawass, antiquities director for the Giza pyramids and Sphinx.

"The objects from Tut's tomb are lovely to look at. But they don't tell anything about real life, what was going on at the time Tut was pharaoh. These ruins will reveal a lot about the pharaohs, the nobility and the common man."

For example, what kinds of houses did ancient Egyptians live in? What did they eat? How did society's levels coexist and differ? Until now there have been few answers, because ancient cities and villages disappeared beneath changing civilizations.

Hawass predicted the ruins will unravel not only mysteries about the pyramid builders but those of the civilizations that followed at Giza Plateau, in the desert southwest of Cairo.

They include the Greeks, the Romans, perhaps Canaanites — civilizations described by early academics and travelers but rarely evidenced by artifacts.

Getting answers isn't going to be easy. The ruins lie beneath Nazlett el-Sammen, a community of 70,000 people whose livelihood comes mainly from selling tacky items to tourists.

Beginning 18 months ago, the ancient city slowly emerged as laborers dug up Nazlett's neighborhoods to install sewer lines financed by the U.S. Agency for International Development.

Besides giving villagers their first sewage system, the project will keep underground filth away from the Sphinx, which crouches between Nazlett and the pyramids.

As digging began, artifacts surfaced. Uncovered early were stones of what Egyptologists believe to be the Valley Temple of Pharaoh Cheops, whose Great Pyramid is the last survivor of the Seven Wonders of the Ancient World.

In August, a sprawling cemetery with tombs and remains of the pharaonic middle class was discovered a few miles behind the Sphinx. The find hinted at a sizeable city nearby.

Hawass, who announced discovery of the buried city last week, said it stretches two miles and is the largest ever found from the Old Kingdom. That era of iron-fisted pharaonic rule lasted almost 450 years, ending in 2134 B.C., and led to a chaotic 74 years called the first Intermediate Period.

Ruins of that time found under Nazlett verify legends that the ancient city was destroyed by a people's revolt against the pharaohs to begin the Intermediate Period.

Excavators found extensive areas of charred remains, a sign that buildings were burned. Given legendary accounts on papyri of such mayhem, Hawass had no doubt relics and records match.

Still to come, Hawass said, should be the city of the Canaanites, who lived in the area and worshiped their own god Baal 1,000 years after the pyramid-builders.

By the Greek period in Egypt — beginning with Alexander the Great in 332 B.C. and ending with Cleopatra's defeat by Roman forces in 31 B.C. — the Nazlett area was already a tourist center. Romans built an amphitheater in front of the Sphinx and staged plays about love and history.

Nazlett el-Sammen itself dates from the seventh century. It was named to honor Sheik Hammed el-Sammen, a Muslim who worshiped inside an ancient pyramid tomb.

History left many clues to the ancient city's location, but frustrated archaeologists watched over the last 20 years as Nazlett expanded to accommodate a tourist boom.

Plans to shift some residents and demolish part of the village for archaeology created a political storm in Cairo last year.

Villagers shouted their anger at laborers and supervising officials from the Egyptian Antiquities Organization as the sewage-trench network expanded.

The officials themselves could only stare at thousands of pottery shards, animal bones — some with butcher's marks — mud-brick walls, parts of stone tablets. Although not barred from excavating, they refrained to avoid trouble.

Hawass said excavators will be content for now to dig up an open area in the fall to see what's there, while deciding their next step.

He said one trophy archaeologists would love to find is the palace of the pharaohs, first used as a residence by the pyramid-building Old Kingdom pharaohs supervising work on Giza Plateau.

Later pharaohs used it as a changing room for rituals, festivals and dances to honor the pyramids and their builders.

Kentucky Spotlight

By George W. Hackett

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Her life is a mixture of the ingredients that go into a good paperback romance.

Betty Layman Receveur was a high school dropout, who married at 14, reared three sons, was divorced twice. But she always clung to her dream of becoming a best-selling author.

For years, there were doubts, frustrations and rejection slips. "When manuscripts were returned, I'd sit down and try harder," said Receveur, whose latest release, "Oh, Kentucky!," received excellent reviews. "People are buying it and that's the best test of all."

The novel recreates the story of Daniel Boone and Fort Boonesborough, a settlement constantly under attack by Indians resentful of the white man's encroachment onto their land.

Kitty Gentry, the leading character, was 16 when she crossed the mountains to reach the fort, where she encountered hardships and danger.

Kitty is a "composite of all of my female ancestors," Receveur said. "While doing research for the book, I stumbled across a document indicating my relatives were at Boonesborough. The deed to the land they purchased in this state was written on a sheepskin signed by Patrick Henry."

During the Great Depression, Receveur's family migrated from Grayson County to Louisville, and she lived with her grandparents. "I grew up listening to their tales of Kentucky lore."

Although she married young, Receveur was not the stereotypical uneducated girl with babies clinging to her skirts. "I read everything, particularly history. My career began at 20 after receiving an old Royal typewriter. I started a novel, writing at those odd hours between caring for the children and ironing."

The manuscript was completed in 10 years and mailed to a publisher. "He wasn't interested but enclosed a nice note. The book went into the closet and stayed there for 10 more years."

During the next decade, she occasionally sold short stories that bolstered her ego but didn't do much for her finances.

One day, she pulled her old manuscript from the closet, ironed the wrinkled pages and sent it to Avon Books. Four months later, Avon accepted "Sable Flanagan," and set up a deal for a generous advance and royalties.

"It was incredible. I started to hyperventilate," Receveur recalled. "I felt ill for three days; it felt like I'd been hit by a truck."

Two other novels followed, including "Molly Gallagher," a best-seller that was translated into German, Swedish and Norwegian.

When "Oh, Kentucky!" was finished, it was a hefty 1,500 pages, and her publisher, Ballantine, recommended that it be trimmed because of skyrocketing paper costs.

The 500 pages left over will become a sequel, said Receveur, "a slow, deliberate writer. It takes me 15 minutes to peck out a comma."

Ask her age, and she quips: "I'm old enough to do whatever I want to do, and still young enough to do it."

Dream Factory provides getaway for Owensboro youth

He and his family spent five nights and six days in Florida, courtesy of the Dream Factory of Owensboro.

The fifth-grader, who lives in the Delaware community, has cystic fibrosis, a hereditary disease that affects the respiratory system.

John likes to swim but was so hard on his kiddie pools that his father finally bought him a horse trough.

The Dream Factory is a non-profit organization that helps critically, chronically and terminally ill children makes their dreams come true.
