Senior Citizens bankrupt; director loses job By MARK COOPER Murray Ledger & Times Asst. Editor

The Murray-Calloway County Senior Citizens' finances are in shambles and it may have cost its director her job.

A newly-appointed Senior Citizens Board made up of city and county officials Tuesday voted to dismiss director Jackie Jordan after learning that the organization is virtually broke and owes at least $9,000 to local banks, businesses and organizations.

City and county government, which supplement the Senior Citizens operating costs, began learning of the financial troubles of the group earlier this year when they were contacted by businesses concerning unpaid debts, according to officials.

"I'm still getting a call a week," according to Calloway County Judge/Executive George Weaks, who was voted chairman of the board.

According to Jordan, money problems at the end of the fiscal year - with the type of agency that the Senior Citizens has become is almost normal.

"We've always had money problems at the end of the fiscal year," she said. "As long as we are funded as we are, the services will have to be altered or you will have money problems."

Rising costs in minimum wages, gasoline and other factors also attributed to the organization's finance problems, she said. "Cash management became more and more difficult," she said.

The board named nutrition site and area director Verona Grogan as acting director and set up an ad hoc committee that will investigate the group's finances, prepare a budget and report back to the board. Much of the problem stems from a lack of information about the financial situation of the organization, according to Weaks.

"Nobody knows nothing about anything - that's the problem,' Weaks said.

Weaks said cold checks from an empty account at one bank were passed to pay accounts at another bank. At least $1,100 is owed one local service station and thousands

Iraqi Shiites say Saddam escaped assassination attempt in Karbala

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — An Iraqi opposition group claimed Tuesday that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein escaped assassination in an attack that killed at least three members of his entourage.

The Islamic Action Organization said in a statement that 'popular forces in Iraq ambushed Saddam Hussein's motorcade during a visit to Karbala," a holy Shiite Muslim city 60 miles south of Baghdad.

The group, which has offices in Syria and Iran, said "many of Saddam's escorts were killed or wounded."

There was no way to verify the claim and the group did not say when the alleged attack of his government come from the Sunni Muslim minority.

Ali al-Khayyat, a security officer.

The wounded, it said, included Gen. Abdel Khaleq al-Samerai, Karbala's military governor and his deputy, Brig. Fack Jalal al-Obeidi. The statement said that after the attack, Saddam's elite Republican Guard launched a "large-scale arrest campaign in the city," which had been devastated in clashes before the army crushed the rebels in late

County to discuss dispatching with KSP soon for Lyon County, can take on

By MARK COOPER Murray Ledger & Times Asst. Editor

Faced with a price hike of 100 percent from the city, the Calloway County Fiscal Court agreed Tuesday to ask the Kentucky State Police for help with dispatching calls in the county. The Murray Police Department, which dispatches for the Calloway County Sheriff's Department at night and during weekends, asked the county for $38,000 yearly for the services, double the $16,000 the department is currently paying. The city's latest proposal, however, includes a $30,000 fee each year until 1993 with a guarantee of no increase during that time.

Mayfield's Kentucky State Police Post I, which already dispatches for Graves County and will dispatching responsibilities for much less than the city wants, according to Calloway County Judge/Executive George Weaks.

The court authorized Weaks to negotiate with the KSP to find out exactly what costs are involved and what facilities will be needed to shift dispatching to the post. The county has until Aug. 1.

If dispatching is shifted, service will remain virtually the same for the department although many of the KSP dispatchers will be unfamilar with roads and locations in Calloway, according to Joe Pat Barnett, a local radio specialist who spoke to the court concerning the service.

The county will also likely have to pay for installation of a local emergency telephone number that would reach the post in Mayfield, Barnett said.

Weaks, who rejected the city's $30,000 proposed fee, said he plans to talk to the post and gather information before reporting back to the

Slovenian parliament accepts peace accord with government

By TONY SMITH Associated Press Writer

LJUBLJANA, Yugoslavia — The Slovenian Parliament voted overwhelmingly today to accept a peace accord meant to keep the Yugoslav army in its barracks as Slovenia and Croatia negotiate independence with the federal government. The breakaway republic's president, Milan Kucan, had urged acceptance of the pact, telling lawmakers their choice was "war or peace." An uneasy truce was holding, even though the peace plan has not been fully implemented. Slovenia, the northernmost republic that declared independence on June 25 along with Croatia, accused the federal army of flying in hundreds of soldiers to reinforce its units inside the republic. Scattered ethnic clashes were reported again in neighboring

The Parliament voted 189-11, with seven abstentions, to approve the peace accord, which was mediated by the European Community.

The agreement calls for the withdrawal of army units to their barracks and the Slovenian militia to be demobilized and returned to quarters. Slovenia and neighboring Croatia agreed to suspend secessionist moves for three months to allow time for negotiations.

Federal Premier Ante Markovic and his Cabinet accepted the plan Monday, as did Croatian President Franjo Tudjman. The collective federal presidency delayed a vote on the accord, saying Slovenia was not living up to the plan's

As Parliament began debate today, Kucan said rejection of the accord could lead to more fighting. "War or peace ... that is what you must decide upon today," he told deputies. He said the agreement was "one of the steps on the long road to Slovenian independence."

Kucan said the accord was less than ideal, "but it does represent a fragile balance of interests for peace." The alternative would be "to start on an uncertain path that up to now has been characterized by war," he said.

Federal and Slovenian leaders on Tuesday accused each other of violating terms of the accord, but the nearly week-old cease-fire held in Slovenia.

One indication of the depth of mistrust between the army and Slovenia was evident Tuesday at an army barracks 75 miles east of Ljulbjana. Slovenian militiamen laid mines outside the base, while federal troops dug new defense trenches

Scattered violence was reported in Croatia, whose leaders charged that the federal army's Serbian leadership was purging the ranks of soldiers unwilling to fight secessionist

Iran-Contra figure's plea could harm Gates' CIA nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former CIA official's guilty plea in the Iran-Contra scandal could pose new dangers to the confirmation of Robert Gates, President Bush's nominee to head the spy agency. With hearings on Gates' nomination tentatively scheduled to begin Monday, the Senate Intelligence Committee was scouring court documents connected with the guilty plea by Alan Fiers for information that could link Gates more closely to the operation than he has

"Gates can get confirmed, but it's going to be rough," said one administration strategist familiar with the congressional mood. "Right now, there is some slippage" in support for the nominee, said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Recent developments, including Fiers' plea Tuesday, are "feeding the anxiety level" of lawmakers who do not want to confirm Gates and later be blamed for overlooking some serious issue that would make him unqualified for the job, said the source. Government prosecutors said % Fiers has told them that he and at least three other top agency officials besides then-Director William Casey knew by mid-1986 about the diversion of funds to aid Nicaragua's Contra rebels.

Gates, who was then Casey's top deputy, has denied knowing of the operation run by Oliver North until much later. But Fiers' testimony is an indication that institutional

Bush ready to lift S. Africa sanctions

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush says he soon will "very cheerfully" lift economic sanctions against South Africa, as that country also moves to end its role as an international outcast by promising not to acquire nuclear weapons. The White House planned a formal announcement on lifting sanctions today, officials said.

And South Africa's promise regarding nuclear weapons was being formalized today in a State Department ceremony at which South African Ambassador Harry Schwarz planned to sign the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty.

South Africa was readmitted to the Olympic movement Tuesday, ending decades of sports isolation because of its apartheid policies.

News of the world

U.S.S.R. MOSCOW — Boris Yeltsin swore himself in today as the first popularly elected president of the Russian republic, with Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev and other leaders looked on. Gorbachev, speaking after the ceremony, promised to support Yeltsin in his efforts to bring radical reform to the country's largest and richest republic. Afterward, Yeltsin strode to the stage and shook hands with the Soviet leader, to the applause of the audience. Yeltsin was elected president in direct general elections June 12.

•MOSCOW — A bomb exploded in the building in Estonia's capital that houses the headquarters of the secessionist republic's militia, injuring one guard, shattering windows and starting a fire, news reports said today. The official Soviet news agency Tass said the explosion took place "literally a few steps" from Toompea Palace, the seat of the Baltic republic's parliament. No one claimed responsibility for the bombing, which occurred at sunset when the Estonian national flag was being lowered from the top of a tower across the street.

LEBANON TYRE - Army troops and tanks rolled to the entrance of this southern port today to disarm about 1,000 guerrillas manning PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat's last outpost near Israel. It was the final phase of the government's plan to end the Palestine Liberation Organization's ability to attack Israel from southern Lebanon. Also today, the government announced that it will take 5,091 Lebanese militiamen into the army and police as part of a program to rehabilitate Christian and Muslim irregulars who fought Lebanon's 16-year civil war. Interior Minister Brig. Gen. Sami Khatib) said in Beirut that eventually 20,000 militiamen who have surrendered their weapons and disbanded their factions will be given government security jobs. JAPAN

TOKYO — Taking responsibility for the brokerage scandal that has outraged smaller investors, Japan's finance minister took a salary cut today and announced reprimands and penalties for other ministry officials. The "Big Four" securities firms at the center of the scandal began four days of restricted activities ordered by the ministry as punishment for their shady dealings, and their employees attended self-criticism sessions. The ministry has come under strong criticism for its failure to police the stock market and prevent brokerages from compensating major clients for investment losses and for dealing with underworld figures

BRAZIL

SAO PAULO - Forensic experts have identified the remains of three political prisoners killed by a former military regime and buried in a clandestine mass grave with more than 1,000 skeletons. The remains were unearthed in September in an unmarked section of a hillside cemetery on Sao Paulo's outskirts. Most of the remains found in the mass grave were those of paupers, but about 100 are believed to be those of political activists who "disappeared" during the 1964-1985 military dictatorship. The three identified were Antonio Carlos Bicalho Lara and his wife, Sonia Maria Lopes Moraes Angel Jones, both tortured and killed in 1973, and Denis Casemiro, killed in 1971. Some 200 Brazilian political activists were killed or disappeared under the military regime.

BRASILIA — A wealthy businessman kidnapped a week ago said Tuesday he had escaped his captors by prying open a window with a spoon while they slept. Wagner Canhedo Jr., 34, was kidnapped July 3 and held in Annapolis, about 90 miles from Brasilia, he said. After escaping through an apartment window Monday, he ran to a pay phone and called his family, Canhedo said. His father said a $5 million ransom had been collected for the kidnappers but had not been paid out. The Canhedos said nothing about the identity of the kidnappers. Police said no arrests had been made

ALGERIA

ALGIERS — The army has increased by more than four times the number of Muslim fundamentalists it says were arrested in a crackdown against anti-government protests. The army announced that 5,870 people had been arrested since June 30, far higher than the previous official figure of 1,367. The army said 1,050 of those had been released. In another development, the prime minister won a resounding vote of confidence Tuesday from the National Assembly, hours after declaring that Algeria faces its worst financial crisis along with political turmoil.

BULGARIA VIENNA, Austria - A Bulgarian official said Tuesday his government will shut down two high-risk nuclear reactors, but will continue to use two other reactors of the type described by Western officials as unsafe and impossible to repair. Following heavy Western criticism and a warning from the International Atomic der Tomov told reporters that Bulgaria's policy now was "security at any price, security and safety above production. Tomov said two of the four reactors that have come under criticism would be shut down this month, but it was unclear if they would be shut down for good. He said his government needed up to $50 million in immediate Western aid to make safety improvements on the two other units, which will remain on line. All four units are at the Kozlodui power plant 125 miles north of Sofia.

INDIA
NEW DELHI — Police have arrested two Sri Lankan Tamils accused of harboring the mastermind assassin of former Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi, a news report said Tuesday. P. Vijayan and his father-inlaw, S. Bhaskaran, were arrested Monday in Madras as conspirators, raising to 12 the number of detained suspects in the May 21 assassination, the Press Trust of India said.

NORTH KOREA

UNITED NATIONS - Communist North Korea said Tuesday it has, formally applied to join the United Nations, a move diplomats have called a major step in Pyongyang's effort to end its international isolation. North Korea announced May 28 it was dropping its demand that the north and the south be represented in the United Nations by a joint seat, and planned to apply for its own. Suh Jonghwan, a spokesman at the South Korean Mission, welcomed Tuesday's announcement and said the Seoul government would file its own application for a U.N. seat soon, probably in early August. The Security Council is expected to consider both applications in a package and approve both without dissent, allowing the General Assembly to vote on making the two Koreas the organization's 160th and 161st members when it convenes in September Both Korean states, which have been bitterly divided for four decades, now hold non-voting observer status. Ambassador Ho Jong, North Korea's deputy observer, said his nation was joining separately with reluctance because South Korea had made clear it would press for its own membership

LIMA - A videotape showing police beating two teen-age boys who were later found shot to death has led many Peruvians to rethink how their govern-ment is combating a vicious guerrilla war. International groups say Peru has one of the worst human rights records in the world. For three years in a row, more people arrested for political crimes are thought to have been killed while in custody in Peru than in any other country. The videotape, made by television news reporters, shows policemen beating 14-year-old Emilio Gomez and his brother, Rafael, 17. The tape also shows the officers stuffing the boys into the trunk of a patrol car. A second videotape, made the same day, shows policemen punching and kicking 26-year-old medical student Freddy Rodriguez until he lost consciousness. Like the Gomez brothers, Rodriguez was also found later shot to death. Rights activists have compared the case to that of Rodney King in the United States. In March, an independent cameraman taped Los Angeles policemen clubbing and kicking King. But whereas the King beating led to some changes in police policy, many people in Peru fear the publicity over the three deaths will do little to limit rights abuses WHITESBURG, Ky. (AP) — State Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen told Letcher County school officials and parents they can use controversy surrounding a decision-making council to their advantage.

"I think the tensions between school councils and school boards is good because it will give rise to better decisions," Boysen said Tuesday.

He also said better communication is the key to making school councils work.

Boysen announced Monday he would visit the county, where a newly created governing council for West Whitesburg Elementary School and county school board officials have been battling over school control.

Members of the council complained to the state Department of Education that they had been stonewalled at every turn by the county board.

Creation of the councils, each to be made up of a school's principal, two teachers and three parents, was a key feature of the 1990 Kentucky Education Reform Act.

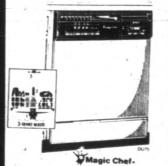

The new law gave the councils a measure of authority over the running of their individual schools.

In June, West Whitesburg Elementary principal Charlene Collins resigned in protest, saying community efforts to carry out the state's new school reform law were being undermined

In a news conference Monday, Boysen said he doubted the state would have to bring legal action against the Letcher County school

W.A.T.C.H. fundraiser beginning

The Board of Directors and staff of the Work Activities Training Center for the Handicapped would like to take this opportunity to announce the beginning of our annual fundraising promotion.

For the past several years, an annual fundraiser has been conducted to secure general operating revenue for the Center. Through the generous and consistent support of this community, we have enjoyed tremendous growth and been able to reach out and expand services to the adult handcapped citizens of our community. However with that growth, it has become increasingly difficult to effectively schedule and prepare fundraising promotions within an approximate weekly time frame as has been done in previous years.

Because we respect your time, we are trying a new approach in contacting our supporters this year. We are beginning our fundraiser to run concurrently with our fiscal year, July 1-June 30. A special mailer has been prepared and is being circulated to previous donors. Individual contacts with business representatives will also begin this week. Special fundraising activities such as the annual golf tournament and auction will be held in September, as usual. Please be assured that we still hold true to our concept of an annual fundraiser. We feel that this method will allow us to more efficiently organize our fundraising events, avoid duplication of) contacts, and channel our energies toward challenging those we serve to attain their individual goals,

If you have questions regarding any material or phone call received through our fundraiser, please do not hesitate to contact the Center at 759-1965 and a member of our staff will be happy to verify or supply information regarding our sevices. Donations of any amount are sincerely welcomed and may be mailed to W.A.T.C.H., 702 Main, Murray, Ky.

Thank you Murray and Calloway County for your continued faith and ecognition of the W.A.T.C.H. program. Because of your support, we emain a vital service within this wonderful community.

Congress tapping Social Security

All men and women who are receiving Social Security and the millions of others that will be getting Social Security in the future, be sure and read what I have to tell you in the following paragraphs?

The Social Security fund was not to be touched for any debts of the ederal government, but a while back the Congress borrowed $56 billion from the Social Security Fund to help the government pay its debts. Oh, I forgot to mention that the Social Security was given our IOUs for the $56 billion, which aren't worth the paper they are written on.

I am now making an appeal to all who are receiving Social Security and the millions of others who will be receiving Social Security - if the money is intact.

One way to stop the Congress from tapping the Social Security Fund is to write to your two U.S. Senators and to your Congressman and tell them bluntly to keep their hands out of the Social Security; the Social Security Fund was not to be used for any operations of the federal government and that you will see to it that this ruling should be enforced by going to the ballot box. And those members of the Congress who yiolate this rule would be voted out of office. Get those letters rolling to your representatives in the Congress and warn them to stay out of the Social Security Fund (which is a Sacred Trust).

REPORT TO KENTUCKY

Wendell Ford

U.S. Senator

Kentucky and the nation are facing a crisis affecting the lives of millions of Americans of all ages -- a growing health-care crisis that must be addressed by the private sector and every level of government.

It is an intolerable fact that some 37 million Americans, including approximately eight million children, are currently struggling to survive without health insurance.

Some 700,000 Kentuckians fall into this rapidly growing category, which already includes 250,000 working Kentuckians who simply have nowhere to turn for affordable health care.

Many Kentuckians can tell us from personal experience that healthcare costs are swollen by waste and spiraling out of control -- and these Kentuckians are absolutely right

Health-care costs are approaching $700 billion a year on a national basis, with studies telling us that $100 billion a year is being wasted on paperwork alone.

Employers now put 25 percent of net earnings into health care while employees face rising health-insurance premiums. A single program --Medicare -- threatens to move past Social Security and Defense to become our most costly federal program. And the federal government shifts an increasing share of the total health-care burden to Kentucky

Our current system is failing us in economic as well human terms. It is neglecting the health needs of children and others, reducing productivity and driving up the ultimate cost of treating long-neglected medical

The search for affordable health care has become a national challenge, and I want you to know that this challenge has been taken up in the U.S. Senate. Our majority leader, Sen. Mitchell, has introduced legislation to address the runaway costs of health care and the problems of the uninsured. This bill is designed to contain costs and reduce waste through the use of standardized forms, the creation of health-insurance consortia and other efficiency measures.

It would establish a new health-care fund to be supported in part by employers who do not provide health-care benefits. It would address a major concern of mine by providing tax credits and other assistance to struggling small businesses taking part in this program.

This bill is sure to inspire a wide-open and highly informative debate on health care -- and this is as it should be. We are dealing with an issue that simply cannot be ignored as we move into the 1990s.

We must have cooperative answers to national health-care problems now affecting every individual and every family in this state. As Kentuckians, we need to make our voices heard while we can still make

Poets and pornography

WASHINGTON - Some months ago, when I was sore at the National Endowment for the Arts, it occurred to me that I might maintain my mad by picking on a few poets. After all, poets are fat targets. When a poet gets a grant of $20,000 of the taxpayer's money he (or as the case may be, she) is asking for a critical pie in the face.

From a list of grantees approved by the NEA, I chose six names at random. Under the Freedom of Information Act I demanded to see their applications and supporting exhibits. Hah! I ha-hahed to myself, I will tear these poets to pieces. I may even call them 'poets," putting the word in quotation marks to give it a nasty spin. Bring me some briquettes, Lizzie, for I am breathing fire.

The NEA responded with commendable speed. Within a month a thick packet of material arrived. Alas, I was now mad about something else. Advancing age has its drawbacks. I was sore at Ted Kennedy, I think. Anyhow, I put the poets aside and didn't find them until the other morning.

It pains me to say this, for my reputation is at stake, but the poems, on the whole, were damnably good. I am no friend to free verse. Robert Frost once defined free verse as playing tennis with the net down, and only one of the six (George C. Bradley of Chester, A CONSERVATIVE VIEW

James Kilpatrick Syndicated columnist

Conn.) wrote poems that rhymed and scanned. Bully for him.

The other five disdained the whole notion of poetic forms, but their imagery was fine. I am forbidden to quote extended passages, so you will have to take my word for it. Their free verse carried a wallop. If the government is going to give away my money to "creative writers," the six applicants probably were deserving. I have now said something nice about the OK? Let me fire up the boiler again. The NEA has given away $250,000 of our money to a TV series called "Point of View," and through a regional grant has awarded $8,000 to Marlon Riggs. It appears that Riggs is the producer of a film, "Tongues Untied," which he describes as an affirmation of black homosexual life.

The editors of Human Events arranged to see the film before it airs on PBS July 16 as part of the "Point of View" series. Their comment: "It contains unimaginably foul language, racial slurs, homosexual lovers kissing, and full frontal nudity." More than 200 PBS stations - stations not known for timidity — have refused to show this putative work of art.

"I would categorize a lot of it as pornography," said Maynard Orme, president of KOAB in Portland, Ore. Jim Lewis, program manager of the PBS outlet in Wichita, Kan., said the film "flies in the face of community values." The film is so offensive that in 20 states, every PBS station has turned it down.

The Rev. Donald Wildmon, down in Tupelo, Miss., lately has been calling attention to "Tongues Untied." This is surely his right in a free country. Wildmon is head of the American Family Association. Among the literati he is regarded as a particularly loathsome fungus, more uggggh even than Sen. Jesse Helms, but in denouncing a federal handout for this film the reverend gentleman has abundant company.

Why does the NEA persist in this kind of grossly offensive

'art"? There is no way — absolutely no way - that "Tongues Untied" could qualify as a production with "substantial artistic and cultural significance." That is what the law requires. To the extent that it "reflects the culture of a minority," which is also part of the law creating the NEA, the film reflects an aspect of black culture that countless black familiers would repudiate altogether.

Perhaps it needs to be said one more time: The producer of "Tongues Untied" has every right to make his film. If the film is obscene as a matter of law, some prosecutor can take the producer to court. But the producer has no right whatsoever to produce his film at public expense.

Incidents of this sort keep coming along. John Frohnmayer, chairman of the NEA, continues to evidence no sensitivity whatever toward public standards of decency. Under the scorn of a few trendy artistes, he withers like last week's gardenia. He says firmly that he will not be a "cultural czar," but he heads an agency that performs precisely that function.

Stiffen your spine, Mr. Chairman! You are, after all, The Boss. If your peer panels keep recommending grants for garbage, get some new peer panels. Or yield the iob to somebody else.

The Donald withdrew a printed statement from his jacket pocket and said: "I assume you are familiar with my recent utterances about the terrors of modern dating because of the threat of AIDS?"

"I read that. You really do ask your female friends to undergo medical testing?'

"One can't be too careful."

"I'm curious. Just how do you go about diplomatically making such a request. Do you send them a note or what?"

"Oh, no. The first time we go out, I make it a double date. Then when I got to the young lady's home, I tell her: 'I'd like you to meet Charles here, he is my personal physician. And this is Lucille, his medical technician.' Then I hand her some flowers. I always bring flowers. And I say: 'I hope you don't mind if Charles takes a little of your blood and Lucille analyzes it? It will take only a few minutes, then we can go to dinner. I've made reservations at a wonderful place."

"That's very tactful. But I assume that is no longer necessary, since you are now engaged to

The Donald looked dazed. "You are Marla, not Carla?"

"Of course I am Marla, not Carla, you silly but lovable tycoon." The Donald scratched his head, recombed his hair, gave it a squirt of goo and said: "I don't understand this at all."

I interrupted to say: "Yes, she is right. It has been in all the papers. You dumped Ivana for Marla, but they you were reported to have dumped the beautiful Marla because you were smitten with the gorgeous Carla. But then you announced that you had become engaged to Marla, and indicated that you had never been anything but 'friends' with Carla." The Donald shook his head and said: "There seems to have been a mistake made here. I would have sworn that I dumped Marla and had become engaged to Carla."

The young lady laughed and said: "No, you foolish but adorable real estate mogul, you originally said you dumped me, the beautiful Marla, for Carla, but then you dumped Carla and proposed to me, Marla."

The Donald peered at the young lady and said: "You're saying that you are Marla and not Carla?" She sighed and said: "Of course right. You are Marla, not Carla." "See?" she said, giggling delightedly. "I told you. And we're engaged and will live happily ever after, unless the banks peel you like a grape, in which case I will have to reconsider my options."

The Donald shook his head and said: "I think I know what happened.

I said: "Do you mind if I take notes?" "Not at all," he said, "since it is my duty as The Donald to share with the American public every detail of my private life, my every emotion, my every thought, as banal and tawdry as they might be." "Yes, you owe it to history. So

Jury candidates in Swaggart trial asked beliefs, habits

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Prospective jurors in the $90 million defamation lawsuit against televangelist Jimmy Swaggart have been asked whether they read the Bible and believe a person can be possessed by Satan.

The trial, which began Monday in Orleans Parish Civil District Court, stems from a lawsuit filed in 1987 by rival evangelist Marvin Gorman.

With 24 lawyers active in the case, and many taking turns questioning jurors, the selection was expected to take at least a week.

Gorman, 58, claims that in 1986 Swaggart, 56, conspired to ruin his New Orleans television ministry by falsely accusing him of having adulterous affairs. Gorman admitted to a single "immoral act" with Gorman helped bring down Swaggart two years later by providing photographs of the Baton Rouge-based evangelist with a prostitute.

The lawsuit also claims that the Rev. Tom Miller, an Assemblies of God Minister, smeared Gorman by telling fellow ministers that during an exorcism he heard the devil speak in Gorman's voice.

Five-year-old in murder-related case to stay with aunt for now

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — A Leslie County woman trying to get her 5-year-old granddaughter in a murder-related custody battle lost a round in the state Court of Appeals.

A three-judge panel said little Candis Foster should remain in Ohio with an aunt while the court fight plays out.

The case pits maternal grandmother Audrey McGuire against Betty Wynn, sister of the child's father, Ricardo Foster, who is awaiting trial for murder.

Foster allegedly strangled the child's mother, Billie Sue Richards, in an Indianapolis motel room on Aug. 15, 1989. Foster and Richards were not married. After the death, Candis lived with her grandmother at Wooton in Leslie County. But Wynn won a custody order for Candis in neighboring Perry County, where the girl and her mother had lived. A domestic-relations commissioner said in February that Foster, as the girl's parent, had a superior right to custody and could designate Candis' guardian.

Perry Circuit Judge Calvin Manis accepted the recommendation and granted custody to Wynn on Wynn and her husband, George Wynn, lived in Lakeland, Fla., at the time. They now live with Candis in Fowler, Ohio.

Their attorney, Teresa Reed of Hazard, said Candis "is happy and secure where she is now. I think it would be a big mistake to send her McGuire's attorney, Sharon Morris of Lexington, said McGuire's problem at the Court of Appeals was that while the grandmother had possession of the child for almost two years, Perry Circuit Court had not issued a temporary custody order in the case.

Their failure to win an emergency order blocking the lower court's custody order does not affect McGuire's appeal, Morris said.

BAKER'S STEW

By Trudy Baker

They call these the dog days of summer, between July 1st and August 15th, are the hottest days of the year. My dogs, lazy and panting like mad when outside, don't seem particularly taken with the temperatures and avoid meeting my eye as I grumpily mumble something about dog days.

Gardens, pumped up by all the early spring rain, choose this swealtering heat to start producing at double time and so just when it's way too hot to feel like cooking anything, you end up with bushels of cucumbers, beans, squash, tomatoes, etc. that have to be boiled, baked, bagged, scalded, simmered or skinned. This can only be done, of course, after having spent umpteen hours picking the dem things out in the hot sun, while swatting bugs and wiping the sweat out of your eyes, only to come indoors and stand over a boiling kettle for hours. Fun, isn't it?

No matter how much one keeps saying either, "Thank how much money we'll save", or "These will taste wonderful this winter", it's just not enough to convince me that this is an enjoyable task.

"Too hot to eat", everyone says, although I find myself sitting down to a meal as often as I do in December. In all honesty, it's not how often we eat, but what we eat that changes. I find our food tastes run in cycles. In September and October, busy schedules keep casseroles and crock-pot meals in favor; November, December and January call for hearty soups and baked dinners; February, March and April are reserved for dieting off those insulating pounds picked up over the winter months; and May and June belong to the grill. July and August, without fail, are devoted to salads.

Besides being generally cooler to fix, salads are light, not too heavy on a hot day, and usually allow enough room left over for something cool for dessert, like ice-cold watermelon, or nomemade peach ice cream.

Here are several salad recipes we ike for cool summer menus. This is more recipes than I normally have space for, but during these dog days, well it's just too hot to write!

Corn and Tomato Salad 3 ears cooked, cold corn on the cob, cut off rib celery, sliced thinly 2 green onions, thinly sliced 1/2 c. chopped green pepper 2 large tomatoes, chopped 1/4-1/2 c. Italian dressing (bottled) Mix together well, chill 30 mins., or nore, before serving.

Overnight Vegetable Salad 1 lb. fresh green beans, broken into

4 c. fresh whole corn, cut off cob 3 c. thinly sliced celery (6 lg. stalks) 8 green onions, thinly sliced

2-16 oz. cans red kidney beans, rinsed and drained Dressing:

1/3 c. sugar 3 Tbs. flour 2/3 c. dider vinegar 1/2 c. water

2 Tbs. spicy brown mustard 1 teast salt 1/4 teas. pepper

In 3 c. boiling water, cook beans til tender-crisp. Put corn in colander and pour beans and boiling water over. Drain. Transfer to a large bowl, add celery, onion and kidney beans, toss and set aside.

Stir together sugar and flour, add remaining ingredients and stir til smooth. Cook over medium heat until mix boils and becomes translucent. Pour dressing over vegies and cover. Chill overnight.

Woods and Tuggle vows solemnized at church

Miss Victoria Annette Woods, daughter of Danny and Earleene Woods, Rt. 7, Murray, and Christopher Jon Tuggle, son of Charles and Louise Tuggle of New Haven, Ill., were married Saturday, May

The vows were solemnized at 2 p.m. at First Baptist Church, Murray. Dr. Greg Earwood officiated.

Music was by Jeff Woods, guitarist, uncle of the bride, Mary Dell Sewell, organist and pianist, aunt of the bride, and Mitch Woods, pianist, brother of the bride.

The bride was given in marriage by her father.

She wore a gown of ivory satin featuring a sabrina neckline, tapered bib front and long puffed pointed sleeves framing the fitted bodice decorated with reembroidered Alencon lace appliques embellished with iridescent sequins and seed pearls. From an antebellum waistline encrusted with ornamentation flowed a full skirt with a pyramid design at the bottom and a lace border. Across the back a deep v led to a bow resting above a cathedral length train adorned with v-shaped cut out lace appliques.

Her cathedral length veil was held in place by a bandeau of seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white gardenias, stephanotis, needlepoint ivy and sprays of seed pearls. Placed in the bouquet was the New Testament belonging to her maternal grandfather, the late Rev. Earl Warford.

Miss Mary Ann Todd was the maid of honor and Miss Traci Walker was bridesmaid. They wore cornflower blue long sleeve tea length dresses and carried nosegay

'McClure Pavilion' dedicated in Mason's Chapel ceremony

Homecoming events at Mason's Chapel United Methodist Church were held Sunday, June 23. This was a special day in the history of Mason's Chapel; it was "McClure Day" with all of the events of the day centered around the late Dane and Myrtie McClure. Flowers were placed at the altar in their memory by their children and the

"McClure Pavilion" was dedicated in a special outdoor service by the Rev. Tommy Edwards, right, superintendent of the Paris District of

man of Administrative Board, and the Rev. Sky Lowe-McCracken, minister, Mason's Chapel Church. The money for the pavilion had been donated by the McClure family in memory of their parents. The King's Sons presented special singing for the dedication ceremony. A basket dinner was served. McClure family members present were Mr.

and Mrs. Gilmer McClure of Memphis, Tenn., Mr. and Mrs. Grayson

McClure, Mr. and Mrs. Don McClure and family, and Mr. and Mrs.

bouquets of yellow daisies and pink alstromeria.

Della Marie Sewell, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a dress like that of the other bride's attendants and carried a white wicker basket of silk petals.

Ryan Malone was best man. Groomsman was Todd Vinson. Ushers were R.P. Hodge and Jason Woods, the latter a cousin of the bride. Mitch Woods, brother of the bride, was ring bearer.

The groom wore a black tuxedo with a white stephanotis boutonniere.

The other attendants wore black tuxedoes and had boutonnieres of pink alstromeria.

A reception followed in the Fellowship Hall of the church. Serving were Heidi Tuggle, sister of the groom, April Woods, cousin of the bride, and Cynthia Garland.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Tuggle are now residing at Paducah.

The bride is a 1990 graduate of Murray High School and is now employed at Radio Shack in a mall at Paducah. The groom is a 1991 graduate of IET, Paducah. He is presently employed at Heil Beauty Supply, Paducah, but will be entering the Air Force in November.

The groom's parents were hosts for the rehearsal dinner held at Sirloin Stockade.

Prenuptial events included a personal shower given by the bride's aunts for family members, and a tea given at Fellowship Hall of First Baptist Church by Cathy Hopkins, Rebecca Cunningham, Joan Bowker, Debbie Bell, Betty Wagar, Pam Williams and Joretta

Lawyer says police overreacted to squirt-gun fight

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Two print shop employees are due in court July 26 to answer wanton endangerment charges stemming from their water pistol shootout that brought more than a dozen officers to the scene.

The employees' attorney claimed that police overreacted to the incident that began shortly after 3 a.m. EDT Saturday when passers-by spotted two men, apparently armed with automatic weapons, inside

Kinko's Copies, a 24-hour shop. Andrea Rose Lincoln, 21, and John Rodney Pittman Jr., 28, were charged with wanton endangerment and disorderly conduct, even after police discovered that what appeared to be MAC-10 submachine guns were actually water

"All they had to do was look at the situation and see what was going on," defense lawyer Maury Kommor said Tuesday, adding that there were two other people in the store at the time.

'They kept screaming at police that the weapons were toys, but Lincoln and Pittman were forced to lie on their stomachs and crawl to the officers," Kommor said.

After receiving several calls from people who had passed the shop, police responded to what they feared could be a robbery or a hostage situation.

"They had to prepare for the worst," said police Lt. Terry Fisher. If automatic weapons were inside, 'you're already outgunned."

Sgt. Carl Yates, a police spokesman, said, "You probably couldn't tell (the water gun) from a distance if I laid a real one beside it." Toy guns in the hands of adults make them more frightening, Yates said. "You figure if a 10- or 11-year old child has them, they are playing, but with older people you have to assume they are real."

Yates said toy manufacturers design the guns to look authentic, even with the bright tips on the barrels required by the 1988 federal

The toys used by the Kinko's employees had inch-long orange fluorescent tips, but officers peering through the shop's window couldn't see them during the horseplay because the tips were hidden in the hair and ribs of co-workers, Yates said.

Dusty Corum, an assistant manager at a toy store, said manufacturers and stores have tried to comply with the toy-gun law, aimed princi-pally at thwarting hijackers and other terrorists.

He acknowledged, however, that the toys resembling automatic weapons generally are not in unusual colors except for the tips.

Yates said police would like all the toy guns produced in a univer-sal color so there would be little

Police allege man plotted to rob bank with water pistol

ASHLAND, Ky. (AP) — Police tipped police earlier in the day that he intended to rob a branch of the arrested a 29-year-old Ashland man on charges of plotting to rob a bank with a water pistol.

Kennedy Edwin Martin was being held in the Boyd County Jail in lieu of a $2,500 bond.

Martin was charged Monday with criminal attempt to commit first-degree robbery, punishable upon conviction by 10 to 20 years in prison.

Martin's arrest as he walked on a city street came two days after Louisville police stormed a print shop where two workers were playing with squirt guns that resembled submachine guns.

Records show that Martin's estranged wife, Jonelle Martin,

Bank of Ashland. Mrs. Martin told police her husband called her from a convenience store and told her he planned to use a water pistol as a

Officer Tim Wallin said later he saw Martin walking along a street and Martin changed directions when he was spotted. Police said that after Martin was detained, he told officers he had a water pistol-in his boot. The black squirt gun was confiscated.

Commonwealth's Attorney C. David Hagerman said Tuesday he would seek a court-ordered psychiatric evaluation for Martin.

doubt of what they are.

Capt. Wayne Kessinger, who used to command the city police SWAT team, said police can't make assumptions or take calls they receive lightly. "They have to respond to that run at face value,"

Kommor said he had no problem understanding the police response to the call "but once they realized these were toy guns, they shouldn't have tried to cover things up by charging my clients.'

Kommor said the wanton endangerment charge wasn't filed because the men had squirt guns. "Police claim they had to use high speed to get to the scene, thereby possibly endangering the lives of others. The store is about a block away from the police Kommor said Lincoln and Pittman probably were bored and were playing with the guns to ease the monotony of being in the shop overnight.

They were arraigned Monday and released on their own recognizance pending a court appearance

Outspoken employee's promotion still on hold

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky's top environmental regulator will have a month to decide whether he wants to promote a merit system employee who has publicly criticized him in the past.

The state Personnel Board announced the deadline after Robert Padgett of Jeffersontown complained that the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet wasn't acting on his case.

Padgett, who has worked for the cabinet for 12 years, oversees 16 of the state's 17 Superfund sites, and in his latest performance review he got the highest ranking possible in all categories.

The cabinet's Division of Waste Management and Department of Environmental Protection recommended Padgett for promotion to a supervisor's job late last year. He would oversee the state's program of looking for problem waste sites and trying to arrange for cleanups.

But the recommendation has awaited Secretary Carl Bradley's approval ever since. Padgett blames the delay on public statements he has made criticizing Bradley and Gov. Wallace Wilkinson's administration. He has taken his case to the state Personnel Board, which handles worker complaints about abuses of the merit system, which is designed to protect state workers from political influence.

A hearing on Padgett's com-plaint was scheduled Monday, but a Personnel Board hearing officer delayed it after the cabinet promised to tell Padgett within a month whether he will be promoted.

Bradley acknowledged Monday that the delay was indeed the result of questions raised among the cabinet's top political appointees about Padgett's outspokenness in

Two years ago Padgett wrote a letter to state lawmakers and newspapers criticizing a comment Bradley had made at a legislative meeting. Padgett said that the Wilkinson administration has been a weak enforcer of state environmental

Both the governor and Bradley were upset about the letter. Bradley said he met with Padgett and told him he should bring his complaints to him. Wilkinson later told Padgett he would have fired him, Bradley and Padgett both said.

Bradley said that when he got the recommendation to promote Padgett, he brought it up at a staff meeting and deputy secretary John

Nichols urged him to wait. "Nichols said, 'Well, I wouldn't sign it, secretary, until you let us find out whether he's playing on the team' ... or whether he's trying to foment dissent," Bradley said.

Bradley said that last week, when he learned about Padgett's complaint, he again asked Nichols and others whether to approve the promotion or defend the cabinet against the allegation.

The secretary said he hasn't talked to Wilkinson about the promotion, nor has he surrendered his responsibility to make a decision to his assistants.

Did you know that becoming certified as a chiropractor requires a minimum of six years of highly specialized college training?

Today's Doctor of Chiropractic must complete 4,485 hours of classroom instruction and pass a rigid chiropractic board examination before earning a license. In most states, continuing educational seminars must be completed for annual license renewal.

PERSONAL BACKGROUND

In addition, I have completed courses in Nutrition and Physicalmodulities and Adjunctive Care, and hold a bachelor degree in Nutrition from Life Chiropractic University in Georgia; and hold an Associate of Science degree from W.C.C.C. in Michigan. Postgraduate studies included Pediatric Adjusting and Sports Injury. While in college, I received National Dean's List Award of Merit, Achievement of Excellance Award, Who's Who Among College Students Award, and in 1989 was named Senior Intern at Life University and graduated with honors. To further my continuing education, I have received special training since college in Pediatric Adjusting from Dr. Larry Webster, Thompson Adjusting Technique from Dr. J. Clay Thompson, Chiropractic Philosophy from Dr. Sid Williams, President of Life University. And I have visited a number of other chiropractic clinics to study their methods and procedures.

Additionally, I devote three days every month attending a nation-wide seminar in Atlanta and Chicago to stay current on the latest chiropractic advances.

This is the kind of training and professionalism I offer you. If you have hesitated visiting a chiropractor, perhaps you didn't know that chiropractors go to such great lengths to continue their education and provide you with the latest techniques and the most qualified service. So, you see, what you don't know, can't help you. Call me today and let me help you.

Ft. Knox soldier hospitalized after being shot by deputy

MULDRAUGH, Ky. (AP) - A tried to prevent the man from Fort Knox soldier remained hospitalized Tuesday after being shot by a Meade County deputy sheriff who was responding to a burglary report near Otter Creek Park southwest of Louisville.

The wounded man, Maj. Frederick S. Washington, 38, was charged with first-degree burglary, firstdegree assault, first-degree robbery and first-degree attempted rape following the shooting and arrest on Monday.

He was listed in fair condition Tuesday at Humana Hospital-University of Louisville, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Washington was shot in the hand and leg about 1 a.m. EST Monday by Deputy Bill Sego, the Kentucky State Police reported. Washington was shot after allegedly attempting to escape and cutting the deputy's hand, police said.

Sego responded to the home after the teen-age daughter of the woman who lives there called the local 911 emergency line. State police said a woman ran out the door when the officer arrived and screamed that there was a man inside with a knife, and that the daughter was still inside.

The deputy entered the house and confronted a man who was holding a knife, police said. Sego was cut during a scuffle when he

Bryant said state will widen highway

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) -Transportation Secretary Milo D. Bryant said the state intends to widen U.S. 27-68 between Lexington and Paris despite threats of continued legal action from the project's opponents.

"We are determined to build the road," Bryant said Monday, "It's a priority of Governor (Wallace) Wilkinson's, and I'm doing everything I possibly can to accomplish that priority.

Bryant also said he would like to have construction to widen the stretch to four lanes by the end of the year. Regardless of how long it took, Bryant promised the Transportation Cabinet would "do it the right way," however.

Officials of a Fayette County group opposed to the project said they might seek this week to have the cabinet declared in contempt of Bob Wilson, president of the Land and Nature Trust of the Bluegrass, and Robert Reeves, an attorney who represents the group, said they thought a task force meeting in Frankfort on Monday was in clear violation of a federal court injunction barring the state from proceeding with the project.

The injunction, issued Sept. 2, 1979, prohibits the state from proceeding with the project until the state can show that its planning process has complied with federal

Reeves said he thought the state also violated the federal order by advertising for a design consultant before asking the courts to lift the

Plan to shift attack unit to Fort Campbell appears to be approved

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky. (AP)

— A plan to shift a helicopter attack unit from Fort Hood, Texas, to Fort Campbell has received what appears to be a nod of approval.

The proposal to move 264 military personnel, their families and 34 AH-64 Apache helicopters to serve with the 101st Airborne Division would involve long term consion would involve long-term construction, a report said. The move could occur as early as August.

The report, prepared by the Army Engineer District at Mobile, Ala., and released Monday, indicates no environmental problems with the move, and, on the economic side, anticipates 332 new jobs created in the area because of the planned unit shift.

The unit targeted for the move is the 1st Battalion of the 3rd Avia-tion Attack Helicopter Regiment. The idea behind the move is to bring the 101st Airborne Division's aviation brigade up to full combat strength. The division is authorized four attack helicopter battalions, three in the active force and one in the reserves, according to the

Maj. Ed Gribbins, post public affairs officer, said the Army will wait and "gauge public opinion" before making a final decision on

Cops & robbers & paint...

Local enthusiasts brave steamy hot weather conditions for paintball matches at Eagle's Landing near the shores of Kentucky Lake north of New Concord. The wilderness sport features teams equipped with single-shot paintball pistols and safety gear who attempt to capture the other team's flag or eliminate all members of the team, according to Eagle's Landing owner Barry Michie. The pistols, using CO2 cartridges, fire paint pellets which bursts upon the clothes of an opponent, "killing" him or her. Strategy and skill come into play during matches as each team attempts to outgun the other while keeping their heads down themselves (at right, left). Equipment and accessories are numerous (below, at right) and safety goggles are needed (below, at left) to protect the head and eyes from the pellets, which can sting but usually don't break the skin. Camouflage is also a good idea (at bottom, left).

Thinking it over

Newton pondering offer for South Carolina coaching post

By DAVID RAMEY Murray Ledger & Times Sports Editor

Steve Newton is mulling over an offer from the University of South Carolina, and said this morning that he expects a decision by noon tomorrow.

"We've had preliminary discussions regarding an offer for me to become the head coach at the University of South Carolina, and I hope to make a final decision today (Wednesday) or by noon tomorrow," Newton said via a statement released by Murray State this morning. "Before there is an announcement of my decision, I intend to speak with the administration

Newton toured the South Carolina campus in Columbia Tuesday, and ended his day with an almost six-hour meeting with the USC search committee at the Campstone Conference Center on the Carolina campus.

He was scheduled to meet with USC president James Palms this afternoon, while South Carolina athletic director King Dixon had called a basketball team meeting for this morning.

The Gamecocks have been searching for a replacement for George Felton, who was fired May 14. Although the school is entering the Southeastern Conference, at least two candidates have turned USC down already.

South Carolina spokesman Brian Binett said this morning that no press conference had been scheduled as of yet. He could not confirm that Newton had been offered the job. Before meeting with the search committee Tuesday, Newton told reporters, that "the ball is in South Carolina's court.

Hopefully, we'll tip it off a little later on.' Newton emerged from the meeting at 12:20 a.m. EDT, and told reporters he hadn't been offered the job.

"No, not at this point in time," Newton said. "We've been getting to know each other, and we're going to stay over and

South Carolina officials would say only that "contractual and personnel matters were discussed." A similar meeting with Rutgers coach Bob Wenzel, who turned the job down on Monday, lasted just three hours on Saturday

South Carolina is reportedly offering Newton a four-year contract, which including outside income contract, could total $1 million over the length of contract.

Newton first was contacted by USC officials on Wednesday, and held a three-hour meeting in Nashville with Carolina athletic director King Dixon and assistant athletic director Art Baker on Friday. He cut short a visit to the Nike/ABCD Camp in Indianapolis on Monday after Wenzel turned the USC post down. Newton arrived in Columbia Tuesday, along with his wife Kathy and two of his sons.

Murray State athletic director Michael D. Strickland is vacationing in Destin, Fla. and indicated he will return immediately to Murray should Newton take the South Carolina job. "We don't want to lose Steve," said Strickland. "But if he goes to South Carolina, we'll move as quickly as we can to hire a successor. I feel the Murray State head coaching position would attract some outstanding candidates."

Newton, who just turned 50, has spent seasons at the helm of the Racers, compiling a 116-67 mark. Murray has made three trips to the NCAA Tournament in the last four years, including a loss to Alabama in the first round of this year's Southeast Regional in Atlanta. Murray State has won or shared four straight OVC titles and three OVC Tournament titles during his tenure.

A 1963 graduate of Indiana State, Newton was an assistant at Mississippi State and New Orleans before arriving in Murray in 1978 as an assistant coach under Ron Greene. Newton was named Racer coach in 1985, succeeding Greene who left for Indiana State.

Ripken leads AL stars to third straight victory

TORONTO (AP) - In the year of the streak, the American League kept its going because of the man chasing baseball's ultimate streak.

Cal Ripken, baseball's Mr. Consistency, played home run derby for the second straight day, and it was enough for the Americans to win 4-2 Tuesday night for their fourth straight All-Star game

It was the latest feat for the Baltimore shortstop, who hasn't missed a game in almost 10 years and is closing in on Lou Gehrig's iron-man record. But it also was another day at the office.

'That's the good thing about having a good first half and a good All-Star game. Everyone lets the 'take-a-day off line' die right now," Ripken said. "It seems like about the same time last year, I was thinking my career was on the downhill side. It seems like a lot of things have happened since then."

Ripken, just four years away from Gehrig's mark of 2,130 consecutive games, put the Americans ahead with a three-run homer in the third inning. Then, for the third consecutive year, manager Tony La Russa relied on his short relievers. Not since Joe DiMaggio and Ted

Williams starred from 1946-49 have the Americans done so well. Those two Hall of Famers were honored at the SkyDome before the game by President Bush and Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulro-ney, but Ripken was the hit of the night, and the MVP. 'It was a perfect match," La better. Andre Dawson hit their first

All-Star homer since Dale Murphy in 1984. Ryne Sandberg doubled for their first extra-base hit in four

They also got 10 hits, their most since 1979.

Still, they couldn't stop the Americans from closing their gap to 37-24-1. Especially when La Russa, who became the only manager to win three straight All-Star games, went to Jeff Reardon, Rick Aguilera and then Dennis Eckersley in the ninth. Eckersley worked a 1-2-3 inning for his third career All-Star save.

The SkyDome's retractable roof was rolled back an hour before the game, and once it started, it was an open-and-shut case on the event's beşt player.

Ripken, who has played 1,489 straight games, homered off former teammate Dennis Martinez in the third inning. Even though this game did not officially count, it was one of the more memorable for Partly because of what Ripken did during Monday's workouts. In an amazing display of the consistency that has marked Ripken's career, he stepped up in the home run-hitting contest and connected on six of his first seven swings, and 12 of 22 overall.

"It was unbelievable," said Martinez, who watched Ripken's power show. "Everybody was talking about his swing, how good it was. I've never seen so many shots in a row.'

Neither had Ripken.

"I was concerned by just being in the home run derby," he said. "When you try for home runs in patting practice, it can get you into bad habits, and I didn't want to do that because I'd had a good first half. In hindsight, it might've helped me relax for the game."

Ripken, batting .348 with 18 home runs and 54 RBIs at the break, made a winner of hometown favorite Jimmy Key, while Martinez took the loss.

Ripken also helped the Americans match their longest winning streak ever in the event. They have now won six of nine, after losing 19 of 20.

NL looks for answers as streak continues

TORONTO (AP) - At least the National League scored this time. Actually led for two innings. Even hit a home run - something it hadn't done in seven years.

The way the All-Star game has been going lately, those modest achievements shouldn't be overlooked.

The National League finally produced some offense Tuesday night before losing 4-2. Ten hits, two runs and a pair of extra-base hits made the fourth consecutive loss a little easier to take. Remember: This is essentially the same team that managed just two measly singles in a 2-0 shutout last year at Wrigley Field.

"There's no reason to drop our heads," said Andre Dawson, whose solo homer was the first by the NL since 1984. "They just played better ball. They had the upper hand.

They flat-out beat us.' At least this time, the National League lost while playing its style of baseball.

The National Leaguers pulled off the hit-and-run. They stole a base. They used their speed on the artificial turf. And they created scoring threats, with at least one baserunner in each of the first eight Trouble was, they couldn't finish it off. And they ended up losing because the American League played its game, too — it got the three-run homer, by Cal Ripken Jr. The NL had plenty of chances to

"That's why it's so frustrating," said Tony Gwynn, who had two hits. "The first day you get here, everybody talks about having fun. But when you get the uniforms on, everybody talks about winning.

"When we jumped on them in the first inning, our side got fired up. Everybody was saying, 'Let's get some more.'

Bobby Bonilla's infield single off Jack Morris' foot drove in a first-inning run and ended a streak of 10 consecutive scoreless innings by the National Leaguers. It gave them their first lead since the first inning of the 1989 game, when they scored two and went on to lose 5-3.

But that first inning was an omen. Although the NL got a run, a double-play grounder by Dawson cut the rally short. It was the first of two costly double-play grounders by the NL, which wound up stranding five runners in scoring position.

"It looked like we were rolling right along," said Will Clark, who had a single and a walk. "This club had some chances to score runs, but we couldn't bunch our hits together like we did in the Clark also figured in one of the NL's most costly plays. The NL threatened in the sixth when Clark walked and Bonilla singled again. Felix Jose forced Bonilla at second, sending Clark to third with one out and the NL 90 feet away from the tying run.

Paul O'Neill then chopped a grounder towards first baseman Cecil Fielder, and Clark took off as soon as he saw bat hit ball. Everyone involved in the play agreed it was Clark's only option.

"Men on first and third, you have to go," Clark said.

Anything less than a perfect play by Fielder and catcher Carlton Fisk and Clark is safe. But both were perfect — Fielder's clean catch and quick throw beat Clark home by five feet.

"I was a dead duck," Clark

He slid hard into Fisk's shinguards, but the ball wouldn't come loose. End of rally.

The NL ended up with 10 hits its first time in double figures since 1979. Dawson's homer was its first since 1984, when Gary Carter and Dale Murphy connected. And Ryne Sandberg's third-inning double was the NL's first extra-base hit in four

All that, and it still lost.

The ball is in Steve Newton's court.

Newton, who is known as the master of cliches, told the media before entering last night's six-hour meeting with the South Carolina search committee that "the ball is in South Carolina's court. Hopefully, we'll tip it off a little later on.' Well, apparently USC bounced the ball back, and Newton appears ready to put it into his office - in the Carolina Coliseum.

He was scheduled to meet with university president James Palms this afternoon after apparently being offered the job as successor to George Felton, who was fired in May as Carolina prepares to move into the Southeastern Conference.

Newton confirmed via a statement released by Murray State this morning that he had been offered the job.

"We've had preliminary discussions regarding an offer for me to become the head coach at the University of South Carolina, and I hope to make a final decision today (Wednesday) or by noon tomorrow. Before there is an announcement of my decision, I intend to speak with the administration of Murray State.'

Part of that administration is on vacation. MSU athletic director Mike Strickland was enjoying fun in the sun in Destin, Fla. with his wife and daughters, but may have to rush back to Murray to name a new basketball coach.

"We would have to move very, very rapidly," Strickland said. "We would formulate a strategy with Dr. (Ronald) Kurth and Don Kassing so that we could hire a coach quickly.'

.But there is no question who the number one candidate for the basketball coaching job at Murray State University is. Steve Newton.

"I hope I don't have to come back," Strickland said. 'We want to keep Steve."

In addition to Strickland, a search for a basketball coach will put pressure on two new folks. Kurth, MSU's president who was just inagurated in the spring and has just over a year on the job, would be faced with his first major athletic hiring. He's the veteran of the upper university administration who would handle the hiring. New vice president for university relations and services Don Kassing has officially been on the job for less than two weeks.

If Newton leaves, Murray State has to hurry for a number of reasons. It is right in the middle of the summer recruiting evaluation period, and Murray State also has two recruits that they were getting ready to announce as new signees who would start school this fall.

Barring any last minute collapse, Newton will take the South Carolina job, despite an almost comical search that has gone on for almost two months. Fortunately for his own sake, Newton has only had to deal with the search for less than a week. One South Carolina athletic observer told me that if the administration had to do it all over again in Columbia, they might not have fired Felton in the first place. But if their search leaves them Steve Newton, then it may have been worth the wait.

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) -South Africa was readmitted to the Olympic movement, ending decades of sports isolation and clearing the way for its participation in the 1992 Games. Satisfied that South Africa is on the way to achieving racial equality in sports the International Olympic Committee granted full recognition to the republic's recently-formed national Olympic

The decision was announced by IOC president Juan Antonio Samaranch at the end of talks with a five-man delegation of South African sports officials. South Africa, whoch last competed in the olympics in 1960, was expelled from the IOC in 1970 because of its policy of apartheid, or racial segregation. South Africa fulfilled the IOC's main condition for reinstatement in June when parliament repealed the last legal pillars of apartheid. The South Africans have also largely complied with the IOC's demand to unite the country's racially separate sports federations into single non-racial entities. The other three IOC conditions for recognition were respect of the Olympic Charter, establishment of relations between South African national federations and the international federations, and normalization of ties with sports bodies in Africa.

Keady sad to see changes in USA basketball teams

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Gene Keady feels some sadness as he prepares to select the 12-man team to represent the United States in next month's Pan American Games.

"I'm disappointed over the change in our international basketball progpam," the Purdue coach said, referring to the decision to allow NBA players in the Olympics and to have NBA coaches lead the coaching staff. "As a coach, I've always had that hope of coaching our Olympic team.

Now that job is going to be given to NBA coaches, and all a college coach can look forward to is being an assistant. This is probably my last shot as the coach of a national team.

"And going to the Olympics was something our college players could dream about. Now only a few have a real chance to do that, "In the past, a strong performance in the Pan Ams was considered incentive to be invited to the Olympic squad. These guys are the first who have almost no chance for the Olympics because the team we send to Spain next year will be dominated by NBA players.'

Most estimates have only two college players being selected for the Olympic squad, to be coached by Detroit Pistons coach Chuck Daly. Keady is counting on national pride to provide incentive during the Aug. 3-17 Pan American Games in Havana.

'It's a great honor being selected to represent your country. It's something I've worked hard to achieve," he said. "Now, the bottom line is that we're going into international competition seeking a gold medal for the United States.'

Before leaving for Cuba, Keady plans a series of exhibition games and workouts that will help decide the four players he must cut. Sixteen hopefuls will show up Monday at Purdue's Mackey Arena, where Keady will put them through intensive two-a-day workouts before the still unannounced exhibition schedule begins. "We're facing a big challenge and that gold medal should provide plenty of incentive," he said. "We'll find out quick if there is anyone in the group who doesn't want to make the sacrifice: It's going to be hot in Mackey Arena, and there's no air conditioning.' The players' efforts during earlier trials impressed Keady.

"Overall, I like this squad. I like the way these guys are willing to work," he said. "I'm looking for a squad that includes three centers, three point guards and six other good athletes, including good 3-point shooters, because that's a big part of the game internationally.

Most of the hopefuls were selected in April from a group of 38 at trials in Colorado Springs, Colo. Four others were invited after USA Basketball approved their requests to miss the trials: Doug Christie of Pepperdine, Robert Horry of Alabama, Byron Houston of Oklahoma State and Christian Laettner of NCAA champion Duke.

Laettner will be reunited at the camp with Duke teammates Grant Hill and Thomas Hill.

"I think having three people who played together off a national champion will be a big plus for us," Keady said. "It gives the team a certain stability and nucleus."

Others headed for the workouts include 7-footer Eric Montross, who helped North Carolina reach the Final Four as a freshman last season. Montross, a standout at Indiana's Lawrence North High School, is the tallest member of the group that includes 6-10 Mike Peplowski of Michigan State, 6-9 Tom Gugliotta of North Carolina State, 6-9 Adam Keefe of Stanford and 6-8 Walt Williams of Maryland.

"Overall, I really like the chemistry of this team. I'm expecting some real tough competition to make the squad," Keady said.

The U.S. men's program has been struggling in international play. It was upset by Brazil in the gold medal game of the 1987 Pan Ams and also failed to win gold medals in the 1988 Olympics, 1990 Goodwill Games and 1990 World Championships.

Coalition expected to make final bowl choice

Communicate Before You Medicate.

ATLANTA (AP) - The final cog in a four-bowl alliance that could provide a national championship football game is only a conference call away. Gene Corrigan, commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference, said Tuesday the coalition of three bowls, two conferences and Notre Dame was expected to name the fourth bowl in the mix this afternoon following a conference call

It is believed the group narrowed its choice to either the Fiesta Bowl in Tempe, Ariz., or the Citrus Bowl in Orlando, Fla., after hearing hour-long presentations from five bowls on Tuesday.

"The field obviously narrowed down," Corrigan said, adding that no vote was taken because "straw votes end up being votes and somebody talks.

Already in the alliance are the Cotton, Orange and Sugar Bowls, along with the ACC, the Big East Conference and Notre Dame.

The process would become effective following the 1992 season, filling eight spots in the four bowls. Details of how the pairings will be made won't be announced until later, but three conference champions will be in games under existing contracts — the Southwest winner in the Cotton, the Big Eight in the Orange and the Southeastern in the Sugar. With the Big East and ACC included in the coalition, the only Division I-A conference within the College Football Association not included is the Western Athletic Conference, which sends its champion to the Holiday Bowl.

John Reid of the Holiday made a pitch to become a fifth bowl in the mix in the future.

The nation's other two major football conferences — the Big Ten and Pac 10 — send their champions to the Rose Bowl. Neither league is a member of the CFA. The last Pac 10 team to win the national title in The Associated Press poll was Southern California in 1972. The Big Ten hasn't had a champion since Ohio State won it in 1968. Brigham Young, the WAC champion, was the only other team not in the coalition to win the and Holiday.

Report says Iraq abused rights while Western countries looked away

LONDON (AP) — In releasing its annual report today, Amnesty International leveled harsh criticism at Western countries for failing to act against Iraqi repression until the invasion of Kuwait.

The international human rights watchdog, in its 30th annual report, also noted that rights abuses persist in eastern Europe due to a resurgence in ethnic conflicts and

The London-based group noted: -the torture or mistreatment of prisoners in more than 100

-the jailing of people for political beliefs by more than half the world's governments,

-and the existence of death squads in at least 29 countries. The group, which opposes the death penalty in all cases, faulted the United States for having more than 2,300 people under sentence of death in 34 states.

Amnesty said governments ignored human rights abuses in Iraq until the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and that the same inattention and expediency permits abuses to continue elsewhere.

"There were many people in and out of government at the end of 1990 who had reason for deep shame — and sometimes selfinterested regret - at their failure to stand up against human rights violations," the report says.

"Just months before the invasion of Kuwait, the United Nations Human Rights Commission decided not to take action on the grave human rights situation in Iraq," Ian Martin, Amnesty's general secretary, told reporters on Tuesday.

"Throughout the decade governments across the political spectrum failed to look at the human rights records of the countries to which they export military, security and police assistance that could be used to commit further violations," he said. "Most of those governments did an about-face after the invasion of Kuwait.'

Suddenly after the invasion, Martin said, Amnesty's past reports on Iraq were in great demand.

But even then, he added, many governments maintained a double standard: abuses committed by their enemies were exploited as propaganda, while those committed by their friends "were lost in the Unjust imprisonment, torture, illtreatment and governmentreported across much of Europe in the 17 months ending in May, Amnesty said.

"The massive political upheavals of 1989 in Eastern Europe led to continuing reforms allowing greater freedom of expression, movement and association," the report

"But other human rights abuses in Europe continued, often in a climate of growing ethnic conflict or nationalist demands."

It specifically cites reports of torture and ill-treatment in Romania and human rights abuses in Yugoslavia's ethnic Albanian-sanctioned executions were dominated Kosovo province and Albania.

Amnesty also criticized the Soviet Union.

"At least 30 Armenians were murdered in Azerbaijan in a reported pogrom, while local police and soldiers apparently stood by and did nothing to protect them,

The report cites "grave human rights violations" in countries such as Chad, Egypt, El Salvador, Iran, India, Mauritania, Burma, Sri Lanka, Sudan and Turkey.

On a positive note, ti says some or all political prisoners were freed in several African nations: South Africa, Rwanda, Malawi, Ethiopia, Sudan, Cameroon, Burkina Faso, the Central Africa Republic, Niger, Swaziland and Zambia.

Panel sees link between poverty, cancer

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — A federal advisory panel is hearing suggestions that poverty - far more than race — is as one of the most powerful and underestimated risk factors for cancer.

Both inadequate access to health care and unhealthy habits among the poor contribute to the problem, the President's Cancer Panel was "Poor people are more focused on day-to-day survival - and I'm afraid that health care more often takes a back seat," Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan told the panel Tuesday. Added Dr. Samuel Broder, director of the National Cancer Institute: "It is difficult for an individual to say, 'I'll go for a mammogram today' when you are worried about how to pay for dinner." He linked the higher cancer rates for poor people to what he called "poverty-driven lifestyles" that may include unhealthy diets, greater use of alcohol and tobacco, occupational risks and less access to medical care.

People living below the federal poverty level have a death rate from cancer that is twice as high as that for the rest of the population. Black men, who outnumber whites in poverty three-to-one, have a 25 percent higher risk of contracting Broder said he hoped the advisory panel's decision to devote its first meeting under a new chairman to the subject signals "a new acknowledgement of poverty as a cause of cancer and cancer as a cause of poverty.

He said that for some families on the edge of poverty, "cancer in any family member will start an inexorable slide into poverty.'

The three-member advisory panel is appointed by the president to monitor developments in the National Cancer Program. Its chairman, who replaced the late industrialist Armand Hammer, is Dr. Harold Freeman, a surgeon at Harlem Hospital Center in New York. Freeman, the first black to chair the panel, said his experiences in Harlem graphically demonstrate the links between poverty and cancer and show that race, too, is a factor. But he added: "Race in itself is not the cause of death. It is a circumstance in which people live, basically defined by poverty.' Dr. Bernadine Healy, director of the National Institutes of Health, said there is a growing recognition that "the fundamental issue is poverty" rather than race.

Panel delays decision on women in combat

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate subcommittee recommends a two-year delay in any decision over whether women should be allowed in combat.

On Tuesday, the Senate Armed Services Committee's manpower subcommittee added to next year's defense bill a proposal for a 15-member commission, appointed by the president, to consider the question and issue recommendations in 1993.

The House already has voted to allow the services to use women in

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, the subcommittee's chairman, said a postwar hearing showed no consensus among top Pentagon officials, military leaders or service women.

"This issue is too serious for us to act hastily," Glenn said. 'Before wholesale changes can be made, we need to be confident that combat effectiveness would not be compromised by those changes.'

At a subcommittee hearing last month, the military's top brass suggested that eliminating restrictions on combat assignments could end up forcing women to register for

Conference discusses danger to aircraft from volcanic ash

SEATTLE (AP) — More commercial airplanes are flying over active volcanoes, making it vital to learn more about the ash plumes that can snuff out engines, experts

"There's a driving need to prevent a major aviation accident which has not yet happened.' Donald Engen, former administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration, said Tuesday.

Engen was the keynote speaker at the first International Symposium on Volcanic Ash and Aviation Safety. About 200 experts on flight, volcanoes and weather attended the gathering.

Transpacific air traffic is growing and commercial flights to Asia from the United States and Europe fly over the geologically turbulent Pacific rim known as the "Ring of Fire," which includes parts of North and South America, Japan and New Zealand

Pilots sometimes fly into ash plumes without realizing it because the ash often can't be distinguished from other clouds by radar.

Participants in the conference, which continues through Thursday, will present new ways of tracking ash clouds, including improved radar and satellite surveillance.

The symposium was organized after the 1989 eruption of Mount Redoubt in Alaska, but it took on new importance with the devastating June eruption of Mount Pinatu-bo in the Philippines.

So far, at least 15 jetliners have flown into ash from Pinatubo, said U.S. Geological Survey scientist Thomas Casadevall. Ten engines had to be replaced because of ash damage, said Ernest Campbell, a

Public Notice

BUCKLE-UP! UP THERE! Anchorage. Virtually every part of the KLM jet was damaged. The ash ruined engines, sandblasted windshields and wings, clogged air and water systems and contaminated electronics and hydraulics. The repair bill was $80 million, Campbell said.

Thomas Miller of the Alaska can be expected, he said.

"This should not be looked at as some rare phenomenon," he said.

Report: LAPD needs new chief, overhaul after beating

By MICHAEL FLEEMAN Associated Press Writer.

LOS ANGELES - Police Chief Daryl Gates rejected a commission's recommendation that he resign soon as part of an overhaul aimed at curbing brutality and racism in the department.

The independent Christopher Commission, formed after the videotaped police beating of black motorist Rodney King, released its report Tuesday after a three-month investigation. The commission found graphic examples of police racism, a confrontational attitude by officers toward the public and a deficient citizen complaint system. It warned of a "siege mentality" in the department and indicated that Gates should resign. It broadly criticized the department's leadership but did not single out Gates. We believe that commencement of a transition in that office is going to run away," and he hinted that it would take a voter referendum to persuade him to quit.

"The people will speak and that will say volumes to me," Gates

The report also recommended certain, unidentified members of the five-member Police Commission resign "in the interest of harmony and healing." Acting President Melanie Lomax and Sam Williams, outspoken critics of Gates, did so immediately.

Mayor Tom Bradley and community groups renewed calls for Gates to quit. The chief has civilservice protection and can be removed only by the mayorappointed Police Commission for misconduct. Thus, he has virtual lifetime tenure.

Gates' defenders were "outraged at the thinly veiled attempt to force Chief Gates out the back door," On Tuesday he said, "I'm not said Peggy Rowe Estrada, president of Citizens in Support of the Chief of Police.

The panel was formed after the March 3 beating in which white police officers repeatedly beat, stomped and shocked King with a stun gun. He had been pulled over for speeding.

A bystander's videotape of the beating was broadcast across the nation. Four officers were charged with assault and brutality.

The commission's 10 members were appointed by Gates and Bradley. It was headed by former Deputy U.S. Secretary of State Warren Christopher.

'The leadership of the LAPD must send a much clearer and more effective message that excessive.... force will not be tolerated," the report said. It added: "The problem of excessive force is aggravated by racism and bias within the LAPD.

The commission said it found

The 228-page report said some 'problem' officers in the 8,300-member department were not adequately disciplined. It said 183officers had at least four excessiveforce complaints each from 1986 to

The department's "hard-nosed" style "produces results, but it does so at the risk of creating a siege mentality that alienates the officer from the community," the report said.

On Tuesday, before the report was released, The Associated Press quoted a city official who had been briefed by a member of the panel's staff. The source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the report neither blamed nor cleared Gates and did not call for his resignation.

The report said the police chief should serve a five-year term, renewable only once at the Police Commission's discretion. It suggested that the mayor and the commission share the power to fire the chief; the firing could be reversed only with a two-thirds vote of the City Council.

The report noted that Gates has headed the department for 13 years and he'll turn 65, a traditional retirement age, next month.

Community leaders said the proposed changes could take years and that many required voterapproved amendments to the City

Russellville man faces forgery charge Monday

A Russellville man was arrested Monday after allegedly attempting to pass a forged check, according to a report from the Murray Police Department.

James H. Day, 37, of Russellville, was arrested and charged with second degree possession of a forged instrument and lodged in the Calloway County Jail. He was later transferred to the Christian County Jail, police said.

Day allegedly attempted to cash a forged check at Kroger that was reported stolen from the Russellville V.F.W., police said.

Day faces other related charges in Christian County, police said.

is risky, high-tech detective game

a U.N. inspector said. BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Like high-tech detectives, U.N. inspec-One hoped-for assessment by the tors tried today to piece together agency will be just how far Iraq the shards of Iraq's nuclear progwas from making a nuclear bomb. ram to determine whether Saddam U.S. intelligence had estimated Hussein is still hiding weapons-Iraqi scientists were several years grade uranium.

away from that goal before its facilities were hit by allied bombers during the Persian Gulf War. "At this moment I cannot make a judgment," about the status of Iraq's alleged bomb program, said Dimitri Perricos, an IAEA expert serving as chief inspector for the U.N. team currently in Iraq. "The data will have to be evaluated," he said. "Things are going well. They are opening up. We are finding things according to the declaration" of new nuclear facilities made by the Iraqis on Monday, Perricos said at his Baghdad hotel.

Under threat of U.S. military action, Iraq on Monday divulged for the first time an extensive program to manufacture bomb-grade uranium. Since then, U.N. inspectors have gained unprecedented access to nuclear sites.

Perricos, asked whether an air strike was no longer an option because of the new access his 37-person team was receiving this week, said, "Let's say we are putting it off.'

But puzzling gaps remain in Iraq's disclosure. A major question is whether Iraq had enough equipment — mainly giant electromagnets — and used it long enough to enrich the amount of uranium needed for a bomb, said Perricos.

Enrichment means supplying enough radioactivity to uranium to fuges, which separate out radioactive isotopes.

According to the new list of nuclear sites released by Iraq on Monday, it was trying both methods. But the list said Iraq had produced only 1.1 pounds of slightly enriched uranium that had not already been declared under the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty. That is far from what is needed

An Iraqi defector reported to have given information to the U.N. Sanctions Committee said Iraq had actually produced about 88 pounds of highly enriched uranium. A nuclear bomb could be produced with about 55 pounds of high-grade uranium, Perricos said.

"The conclusions you can draw are that list is correct, or that list has certain things which are missing," said Perricos.
"So you dig deeper. And then you can say, 'OK, if they say they have X number of machines that could enrich uranium and I get evidence that they started operating X number of years ago I can make some calculations.'

As yet, the three nuclear inspection teams that have visited Iraq since May have found no other evidence, such as attempts to manufacture highly sophisticated nuclear triggers, that would indicate a weapons program was far along, he

"I don't think anyone can answer that" yet, Perricos said. Ever since Israeli jets destroyed

Saddam's French-built Osirak nuclear reactor in June 1981, the Iraqi leader has made a nuclearweapons program a paramount goal to gaining parity in Middle East

Views On Dental Health®

Dr. Joe L. Mason, Jr. D.M.D.

BRUXING AND TMJ SYNDROME lot of pressure? Does your jaw ache? The two things may, in fact, be related. Recent studies have shown that stress is an important contributing element in a type of jaw problem known as TMJ SYNDROME (temporomandibular joint syndrome). Frequently, patients under stress unconsciously try to reduce tension levels by bruxing (grinding their teeth together at night). Habits like clenching, grinding, or bruxing are particularly harmful to the biting surfaces of teeth because they cause unnaturally rapid wear. This in turn may bring about

Do you live and work under a cusp or biting surface interference between the lower and upper jaw.

> If this occurs, then the TMJ syndrome may develop secondarily to the bruxing. Should bruxing continue once the joint pain is present, the pain and muscle spasms may be very bad. A combination of treatments may be necessary, including psychological counseling, relaxants, and dental help.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by Jeane Dixon

THURSDAY, JULY 11, 1991

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: A financial turnaround is possible now. Your intuition will be right on target in the fall. Do not let pride prevent you from getting the job done in November. Ask for help if you need it. Ending a romantic triangle puts you on the road to true happiness in December. A favorite child passes a test with flying colors in early 1992. Take an overdue vacation next spring

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor Yul Brynner, author E. B. White, boxer Leon Spinks, actress Susan Seaforth Hayes. ARIES (March 21-April 19):

Your attitude is an important ingredient in your success formula. Learn to delegate routine chores, freeing you to spend more time on creative projects. Socialize this evening.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Travel and communication are featured. Study all written communications very carefully. Consult an attorney if legal questions arise. Romance is rocky but will smooth out.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Check for gaps in supplies. You will not be disappointed by a financial agreement. Romance lives up to your expectations this evening. Someone at a distance is thinking about you. Write more letters.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Resolve a domestic problem before leaving home this morning. A meeting of minds is essential to your wellbeing. Replace bad habits with good ones. Certain possessions are worth more than you imagined.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Follow a regular schedule at work today. Your performance may be scrutinized by your employer. Avoid making any real estate. A dream could turn out tobe prophetic.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Follow your own good instincts. Keep in close touch with anyone who can further your goals. A financial situation shows steady improvement. Highlight your good sense of humor it is a wonderful asset.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be willing to revise or discard outmoded methods. Health and employment matters deserve top priority. You are bubbling with inventive ideas; emphasize their practicality. A romantic admirer boosts your ego.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A personal relationship intensifies. What you thought was merely a fling becomes something special. Curb a tendency to flit from project to project. A steady manner will impress higher-SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Today's emphasis is on joint finances and big spending plans. A pioneering venture promises to pay off handsomely if you leave old prejudices behind. Your views about life and love are slowly changing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An excellent day to reorganize your household or place of business. Focus on mutual financial interests. Buying a big-ticket item could be a shrewd move. Comparison-shopping will help you save money.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You see brighter days just ahead. A romantic dream could come true. Distant locales may play a role in your business success. Someone older and wiser teaches you an important

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): More work and less play is featured today. Open the lines of communication with your co-workers or fellow hasty decisions involving money or students. Letters and travel put you where you wish to be. Romance continues to thrive

TODAY'S CHILDREN are very sensitive to their loved ones' moods and criticism. A harsh comment or sad event sends their spirits plummeting. Conversely, a kind word or a pat on the back will make them smile at the world! Naturally conservative and conventional, these Cancerians are still interested in everything that is new. Cautious in romance, they will only wed if they find a partner who shares their family-oriented values.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: How lucky we are to be living in West Virginia. The newspapers here, as a matter of policy, do not publish the cause of death in their obituaries. I understand that in some states the cause of death is required. A friend who works at the local mortuary told me that a newspaper editor in another state refused to print an obituary unless "cause of death" was disclosed.

Abby, why would this information be important to the general public? The friends and relatives of the deceased know the cause of death without having it in print for all the world to see.

DAILY COMICS

N.J.G. IN WHEELING

DEAR N.J.G.: The cause of death is not the business of the public, but some newspaper editors feel that no obituary is complete unless it is included.

When the cause of death is a suicide, some obituaries disclose the details: "suicide by hanging," "suffocation," "overdose," "shotgun to the head," "slashed wrists," etc.

Bless those sensitive editors who show compassion and re- out of the sand, thank God he was survivors. The good Lord knows and is fine now. they have already suffered enough.

DEAR ABBY: We recently learned an important lesson in child safety that should be common knowledge. During a stay at the beach, my 11year-old son and his 10-year-old cousin dug a small cave in the sand where there is a small incline. While my son was inside the small cave, it collapsed on him. His cousin immediately started digging and called others nearby for help. Someone called 911, and when we dug my son summer — the other two children did not survive!

Abby, just as children are taught never to play in the ocean without an adult, they should be taught never to tunnel or dig straight-sided holes in dirt or sand. Also, children should be taught not to climb steep sand or sandstone banks. Be aware that sand is very unstable and can cause suffocation within minutes! We feel extremely lucky and thankful that we can put this lesson to use to warn others

I assure you, in the years to come she will have more fun telling about her crazy wedding night than anything she could have described had she occupied the bridal suite.

FREDERICK F. COHN IN CHICAGO

DR. GOTI

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: A year ago I was diagnosed with two STDs, namely genital warts and chlamydia. My husband has been sexually active with other women, yet he says that women in their child-bearing years get these two diseases. What information do you have?

DEAR READER: Women during their child-bearing years are, to be sure, more likely to contract sexually transmitted diseases for the simple reason that they are more sexually active than are pre-adolescent girls or elderly females. Therefore, your husband's rather ineffective alibi contains truth. However, I believe his statement was no more than an excuse for his behavior. The fact is that he picked up venereal warts and chlamydia from one of his partners and passed the disease to you. You did not get these STDs merely because of your age; you were probably infected courtesy of him. (Of course, if you have had extramarital affairs, you may have contracted the diseases from someone other than your husband.) It sounds to me as though your husband is reluctant to take responsibility for his actions. Perhaps you would feel more comfortable taking a stand about his infidelity. You may be willing to forgive him his indiscretions, but I see no reason for you to continue to be a willing victim in a situation where your health is at stake.

Both venereal warts and chlamydia can be cured; the first by topical treatment from a gynecologist, the second with anti-microbial pills. Obviously, your husband should be treated simultaneously. (If he didn't get the diseases outside the marriage, he is likely to have become infected by you.) Simultaneous treatment will prevent a re-infection cycle from

An old medical aphorism is: When you find one venereal disease, look for another. Therefore, you and your husband should be checked for other conditions, such as gonorrhea and syphilis. More than 30 sexually transmitted diseases have been identified; fortunately, most of them are uncommon. Nonetheless, you and your husband are at risk for hidden infection that, if present, should be treated.

Many modern couples have worked out a satisfactory arrangement for extra-marital sexual interests. This is a personal decision about which I won't moralize. Yet, few of these couples have really thought through the physical consequences — notably STDs — of this sexual freedom. Venereal disease is often a wet blanket on an "open marriage" and usually forces the participants to re-evaluate... their beliefs about what is appropriate sexual behavior.

I believe you and your husband would benefit from some marriage counseling. At the very least, you should address the issue of STDs with your gynecologist.
